Important Notes About Human Biology Courses

Human Biology Course Prerequisites & Corequisites

Students are advised that the Human Biology Program enforces prerequisites and corequisites on all courses offered by the program. Students are expected to know the prerequisites of courses they wish to take and ensure they have the necessary prerequisites prior to enrollment.

Should a student wish to seek a prerequisite waiver, the request must be made prior to enrolling in the course. Please email the program office at hmb.udergrad@utoronto.ca with such requests. If a student is enrolled in an Applied Statistics Specialist, or is planning on using transfer credits, or credits obtained from UTSC/UTM, in lieu of stated prerequisites/corequisites, please contact the program office prior to enrolling in courses to ensure your alternate credits will be accepted.

Please note that if a pre-requisites is a FCE count, we generally will allow a 0.5 FCE difference (i.e. have 13.5 FCE complete when 14 FCE is required). Should a student have all other prerequisites and if enrolment pressure is not too high, the FCE pre-requisite will be waived. An email request for a waiver of this type of prerequisite is not necessary.

Please note that 300-level courses with the following joint course codes are automatically accepted when the pre-requisite states "A HMB300-level course:" CJH, EHJ, JNH.

Regarding Human Biology 400-level Courses

Due to popularity of HMB400-level courses, the Human Biology Program Office reserves the right to remove any student who has either completed the required number of courses for their HMB program or has completed the program requisite that the HMB400-level course would count towards utilizing a HMB400-level course taken in a prior school year. The Human Biology Program Office also reserves the right to instruct students enrolled in too many HMB400-level courses to drop to a specified number to allow as many of our HMB students to take a HMB400-level course. This course enrolment limit varies from year to year, generally capping at two if a major student and three if a specialist student. Students in this situation are given five business days' notice via email of their situation to choose which courses they wish to keep. Students are encouraged to routinely check their UTOR email during July and August Course Enrolment.

Students who are removed from HMB400-level courses for the reasons listed above will be permitted to attempt re-enrollment on September 1. This means, that if you were removed from a HMB400 level course not due to failing prerequisite checks, you will be permitted on September 1 to enrol via ACORN either into the course if there is space, or on the waitlist if the course is full.

There are no pre-requisite exceptions on any HMB400-level course.

Students planning on using transfer credits in lieu of the pre-requisites must email hmb.undergrad@utoronto.ca before enrolling in the course to request that transfer credits be accepted in lieu of the stated pre-requisites. Please note that 300-level courses with the following joint course codes are automatically accepted when the pre-requisite states "A HMB300-level course:" CJH, EHJ, JNH.

Regarding Human Biology "Tiered Waitlists"

The Human Biology Program employs "tiered waitlists" on all courses that have the enrolment indicator of R1 or P that has unequal spots. (HMB does not use the R2 enrolment control). For an explanation of how Tiered Waitlists work please visit the HMB Webpage "HMB Tiered Waitlist Explained."

Human Biology Courses

HMB200H1 - Introduction to Neuroscience

Hours: 24L/12T

An introductory course that explores the development, physiology and continually changing function of the nervous system as it relates to certain types of human behaviour. Critical analysis of scientific evidence is used to enrich learning.

Prerequisite: BIO120H1, BIO130H1

Recommended Preparation: PSL300H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

HMB201H1 - Introduction to Fundamental Genetics and its Applications

Hours: 24L/12T

Interdisciplinary course consisting of three parts: the genetic basis, tools and techniques of biotechnology; medical, environmental and agricultural applications; and ethical, legal and social aspects of biotechnology (including approaches to risk assessment, reduction and acceptance). A prime example used in the third part is the controversy over genetically modified foods.

Prerequisite: BIO120H1, BIO130H1

Recommended Preparation: HMB265H1/ BIO260H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

HMB202H1 - Introduction to Health and Disease

Hours: 24L/12P

An introductory course in Health and Disease using an interdisciplinary approach that integrates bacteriology and virology with other aspects of human biology, including chronic disease and neoplasia. An exploration of the key concepts and approaches that are necessary for understanding the dynamic nexus of human health and disease. (Lab Fees: $40)

Prerequisite: BIO120H1, BIO130H1

Exclusion: HMB203H1/ HMB204H1

Recommended Preparation: BIO230H1/ BIO255H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

HMB203H1 - Introduction to Global Health

Hours: 24L/12T

An introductory course covering the theories, operational components and strategies of implementing health care in resource-poor settings. Topics may include education, control of vector-borne diseases, essential drug provision, maternal and child health, nutrition, incorporation of alternative and complementary technologies, community participation and deployment of health service providers

Prerequisite: BIO120H1, BIO130H1

Exclusion: HMB202H1/ HMB204H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

HMB204H1 - Introduction to Human Biology

Hours: 24L/12T

An introduction to the biological, health, environmental, and sociopolitical issues that influence human health and well-being. Topics include genetic variation within and across human populations, biological variation related to the environment, determinants of health and disease, and human behaviour and development.

Prerequisite: BIO120H1, BIO130H1

Exclusion: HMB202H1/ HMB203H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

HMB265H1 - General & Human Genetics

Hours: 24L/12T

An introduction to classical and modern methods of genetic analysis. Topics include Mendelian genetics, the genetics of human population and disease, genomics, and applications of genetics to human society.

Prerequisite: BIO120H1, BIO130H1, ( CHM135H1/ CHM139H1, CHM136H1/ CHM138H1)/ CHM151Y1

Exclusion: BIO260H1/ BIO207H5

Recommended Preparation: Recommended Co-requisite: BIO230H1/ BIO255H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

HMB300H1 - Neurobiology of Behaviour

Hours: 24L/12T

This neuroscience course focuses on higher brain functions and the mechanisms underlying human and animal behaviours. Topics may include the emerging role of the gut microbiome's impact on behaviour, pathogens that alter neuronal development and the biological basis of mindfulness and placebos. In addition, the impact that exercise and sleep play in modulating these behaviours are examined. Common experimental techniques used in neuroscience research such as brain imaging and cellular genetics are emphasized.

Prerequisite: BIO230H1/ BIO255H1, HMB200H1/ PSY290H1/ PSL300H1/ CJH332H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

HMB301H1 - Biotechnology

Hours: 24L/12T

Students gain an appreciation for how science, business, government and society drive the development of biotechnology products. Topics include stem cells and regenerative medicine, diagnostics, cancer therapy, biotechnology in the developing world, antibiotic alternatives, and patents.

Prerequisite: HMB265H1/ BIO260H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

HMB302H1 - Vertebrate Histology and Histopathology

Hours: 24L/36P

Laboratory and lecture course studying the structure of the cell, various tissues and organ systems. Emphasis is on functional morphology and the adaptive response (including the inflammatory reaction) by comparing histological sections of normal tissues and organs with common diseases including neoplasia, respiratory, and liver disease. (Lab Materials Fee: $27)

Prerequisite: BIO230H1/ BIO255H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

HMB303H1 - Global Health and Human Rights

Hours: 24L/15S

A multidisciplinary emphasis on the economic, historical, social and cultural determinants of health and human rights, and how structural violence prevents progress towards human rights. Case studies reflecting global aspects of health and human rights form a framework for approaching these issues.

Prerequisite: 9 FCE complete, a HST200-level course/ HMB202H1/ HMB203H1/ HMB204H1

Distribution Requirements: Science; Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

HMB306H1 - Ethical Considerations in Emerging Technology

Hours: 14L/10S

Advancing technology increases our ability to intervene in the course of natural events involving human health and well being. Questions arise as whether we ought to and who will benefit or be harmed. This course considers the far-reaching bioethical implications of emerging bio-technology. Topics to be explored include-but are not limited to- ethical considerations in emerging reproductive technologies, genetic alteration/genetic enhancement. Use of life support technologies, synthetic life, life extension.

Prerequisite: BIO230H1, HMB265H1/ BIO260H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

HMB310H1 - Laboratory in Neuroscience

Hours: 12L/36P

A laboratory course based on current research techniques for students in the Neuroscience program. Lab topics may include human brain imaging and disorders, electrophysiology, cell culture, and changes in gene expression during neuronal development. Labs start in the first week of term. (Lab Materials Fee: $60)

Prerequisite: 9 FCE complete, HMB200H1/ PSY290H1, HMB265H1/ BIO260H1, BIO230H1/ BIO255H1

Corequisite: PSL300H1

Exclusion: HMB311H1/ HMB312H1/ HMB314H1/ PSY359H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

HMB311H1 - Laboratory in Fundamental Genetics and its Applications

Hours: 12L/36P

A laboratory course based on current research techniques for students in the Fundamental Genetics and its Applications programs. Lab topics may include molecular biology and animal cell culture techniques, nutrigenomics; an overview of microarrays and a CRISPR module. Labs start in the first week of term. (Lab Materials Fee: $100)

Prerequisite: 9 FCE complete, HMB201H1, HMB265H1/ BIO260H1, BIO230H1/ BIO255H1

Exclusion: HMB310H1/ HMB312H1/ HMB314H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

HMB312H1 - Laboratory in Health and Disease

Hours: 12L/36P

A laboratory course based on current research techniques and topics which may include basic microbiology, molecular biology and animal cell culture techniques, immunocytochemistry, changes in gene expression, and histological techniques. Labs start in the first week of term. (Lab Materials Fee: $70)

Prerequisite: 9 FCE complete, HMB202H1/ HMB203H1/ HMB204H1, HMB265H1/ BIO260H1, BIO230H1/ BIO255H1

Corequisite: BCH210H1

Exclusion: HMB310H1/ HMB311H1/ HMB314H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

HMB314H1 - Laboratory in Human Biology

Hours: 12L/36P

Students analyze whole body, cellular, and molecular responses to stress. Techniques range from those standard in medical practice (e.g., fitness measures, blood pressure, lung function) to current research techniques (cell culture, changes in gene expression). Students gain technical and analytical skills as they work at the bench to design and carry out individual and group experiments. Labs start in the first week of term. (Lab Materials Fee: $52)

Prerequisite: 9 FCE complete, HMB265H1/ BIO260H1, BIO230H1/ BIO255H1

Corequisite: PSL300H1, PSL301H1

Exclusion: HMB310H1/ HMB311H1/ HMB312H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

HMB320H1 - Neuroanatomy

Hours: 24L/4T/10P

This is a rigorous, introductory course that addresses the structure of the vertebrate central nervous system with an emphasis on functional human neuroanatomy. It is designed for students who intend to continue with studies in the Neurosciences and related areas.

Prerequisite: 9 FCE complete, PSL300H1, HMB200H1/ PSY290H1, BIO230H1/ BIO255H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

HMB321H1 - Topics in Genetics

Hours: 24L/12T

The overall theme of this course is human genetics in disease. Topics include the molecular basis of human disease, using model organisms to identify disease-related genes, and genetic counseling. Expert guest lectures from clinical and basic sciences as well as small group work in tutorials build in-depth understanding.

Prerequisite: 9 FCE completed, HMB265H1/ BIO260H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

HMB322H1 - Topics in Health & Disease

Hours: 24L/12T

Explore the scientific basis and interdisciplinary healthcare practices of several diseases (diseases vary by year). Discuss current issues related to the biology and the impact of these diseases.

Prerequisite: 9 FCE complete, HMB202H1/ HMB203H1/ HMB204H1, BIO230H1/ BIO255H1, PSL300H1

Corequisite: PSL301H1

Recommended Preparation: HMB302H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

HMB323H1 - Global Health Research

Hours: 24L/12T

Globalization of health problems impacts biomedical research. Current global health research advances are explored and global health research skills are developed. Both provide background preparation for global health research, particularly in international settings.

Prerequisite: 9 FCE complete, HMB202H1/ HMB203H1/ HMB204H1, BIO230H1/ BIO255H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

CJH332H1 - Cellular and Molecular Neurobiology of the Synapse

Previous Course Number: CSB332H1

Hours: 24L

Examination of all aspects of the synapse in both the peripheral and central nervous systems of invertebrates and vertebrates. Topics include: neuroplasticity, synapse formation, synaptic transmission, synaptic modulation, and the molecular biological basis of neurodegenerative disorders.

Prerequisite: BIO271H1/ PSL300H1

Exclusion: CSB332H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

HMB342H1 - Epidemiology of Health & Disease

Hours: 24L/24T

This course engages students in the fundamental science of epidemiology applied to health and disease. After an introduction to various measures of health and disease, the scientific methods used to investigate, analyze, prevent and control health problems will be illustrated using biomedical and public health examples.

Prerequisite: 9 FCE complete, BIO120H1, BIO130H1

Exclusion: HST373H1

Recommended Preparation: STA288H1 or other statistics course

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

JNH350H1 - AIDS : Challenges and Successes

Previous Course Number: NEW350H1

Hours: 24L

Explores the pandemic of AIDS in Africa through a social science lens. (Given by Human Biology and New College)

Exclusion: NEW350H1

Recommended Preparation: NEW150Y1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities; Social Science; Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

EHJ352H1 - Evolution of the Human Genome

Hours: 24L/12T

Human genome diversity and evolution with a focus on current research. The course integrates applications of human evolutionary genomics to the understanding of human history and adaptation, the causes of disease, and genome structure and function. Topics include: comparative genomics, population genomics of adaptation, association mapping, repetitive/selfish DNA, and gene duplication.

Prerequisite: BIO220H1, BIO260H1/ HMB265H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

HMB360H1 - Neurogenomics

Hours: 24L/12T

Genetic basis of both the normal and abnormal development of the nervous system and its function. Topics include the regulation of neural gene expression, the role of epigenetics on neuron function, genome wide association studies and disorders of brain and behaviour, optogenetic and pharmacogenetic techniques to probe neural circuit function. Tutorials emphasize critical analysis of primary research.

Prerequisite: 9 FCE complete, HMB265H1/ BIO260H1, HMB200H1/ HMB201H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

HMB394Y0 - International Research Project in Human Biology

Hours: TBA

Your individual, independent research project is supervised by a faculty member in an approved university. This unique opportunity to conduct a lab-based research project is open to students in any Human Biology program. Coordinated by Centre for International Experience. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: At least 8.5 FCEs including relevant courses in human biology.

Distribution Requirements: Science

HMB396Y0 - International Research Project in Human Biology

Hours: TBA

Your individual, independent research project is supervised by a faculty member in an approved university. This unique opportunity to conduct a lab-based research project is open to students in any Human Biology program. Not eligible for CR/NCR option. Coordinated by Woodsworth College.

Prerequisite: An approved 300-series science laboratory course and permission of the Human Biology Program from which application forms may be obtained.

Distribution Requirements: Science

HMB398Y0 - Research Excursions

Hours: TBA

An instructor-supervised group project in an off-campus setting. Details at <http://www.artsci.utoronto.ca/current/course/rep>. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: 9 FCE complete and permission of the Human Biology Program from which application forms may be obtained.

Distribution Requirements: Science

HMB399Y1 - Research Opportunity Program

Hours: TBA

Credit course for supervised participation in faculty research project. Details at <http://www.artsci.utoronto.ca/current/course/rop>. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

HMB401H1 - Biomedical Advances & Technologies

Hours: 24L/12T

This course introduces life science students to biomedical advances and technologies in medicine, including drug patents, medical device implants, diagnostic and medical device software. Limitations of patent protection in commercializing medical products, and limitations to scalability may also be discussed. Specific topics vary from year to year and will be based on the course instructor's area(s) of expertise.

Prerequisite: 14 FCE complete, HMB301H1/ HMB321H1/ BCH311H1/ CSB349H1/ MGY311Y1/ PSL350H1, HMB201H1/ HMB202H1/ HMB203H1/ HMB204H1

Recommended Preparation: a statistics course

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

HMB402H1 - Topics in Translational Medicine

Hours: 18L/6S

The bridge between basic scientific research and clinical practice integrates fundamental knowledge about molecular/cellular mechanisms and clinical disorders to increase the potential for new medical treatments, therapies and interventions as well as understanding of disease processes. Specific topics vary from year to year and will be based on the course instructor's area(s) of expertise.

Prerequisite: 14 FCE complete, BCH210H1, BIO230H1/ BIO255H1, HMB302H1/ HMB321H1/ HMB322H1/ BCH311H1/ CSB349H1/ MGY311Y1/ PSL350H1, and HMB202H1/ HMB203H1/ HMB204H1

Recommended Preparation: BCH311H1/ CSB349H1/ PSL350H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

HMB406H1 - Health Care Ethics

Hours: 8L/16S

Since research involving human subjects lays the foundation for innovation in modern health care, this course examines health care ethics along a continuum from bench to bedside. Ethical issues are discussed in the context of specific cases involving human research, as well as contemporary clinical practice.

Prerequisite: 14 FCE complete, A HMB300-level course, HMB306H1/ PHL281H1/ other ethics course with prior approval from the unit

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

JHA410H1 - Clinical Neuroimaging

Hours: 24L/12T

This course focuses on the use of neuroimaging techniques in understanding how trauma, disorders, and disease impact neural structure and function. Lectures will focus on local and long-range neural impact of pathology and neuroimaging assessment. Lab work will focus on practical skills including image processing, analyses, and experimental design.

Prerequisite: 9 FCE complete, PSL300H1, BIO230H1, HMB200H1/ PSY290H1/ ANA300Y1

Recommended Preparation: HMB320H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

HMB420H1 - Seminar in Neurobiology of Behaviour

Hours: 12L/12S

This seminar course focuses on recent research into the neurobiology underlying human behaviour. A variety of normal and abnormal human behaviours are studied which may include: voluntary action; moral cognition; hedonism; aggression; mental health; addiction; the impact of the gut microbiome on brain development and health.

Prerequisite: 14 FCE complete, HMB200H1, HMB300H1, HMB320H1/ ANA300Y1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

HMB421H1 - Seminar in Fundamental Genetics and its Applications

Hours: 12L/12S

Theme based lecture and seminar course underlining current medical research in relation to the areas of genes and genetics. Topics vary yearly.

Prerequisite: 14 FCE complete, HMB265H1/ BIO260H1, HMB201H1

Recommended Preparation: HMB321H1/ BCH311H1/ CSB349H1/ MGY311Y1/ PSL350H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

HMB422H1 - Seminar in Health & Disease

Hours: 16L/8S

This course focuses on various medical research related to human disease. Topics vary based on course instructor's area(s) of expertise.

Prerequisite: 14 FCE complete, PSL300H1, PSL301H1, HMB302H1/ HMB322H1, and HMB202H1/ HMB203H1/ HMB204H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

HMB430H1 - Trends in Neuroscience

Hours: 18L/6S

Current research covering the breadth of neuroscience is showcased by members of the Collaborative Program in Neuroscience. Topics vary yearly, but cover the spectrum from molecular through genetic, cellular, developmental, systems, behavioural and modelling. As well, approaches to studying neurodegenerative diseases and clinical neurophysiology are introduced.

Prerequisite: 14 FCE complete, HMB200H1, CJH332H1, HMB320H1/ JHA410H1/ ANA300Y1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

HMB431H1 - Innovation in Applied Genetics

Hours: 16L/8S

This course explores innovation in research and technology in the field of applied genetics. Specific topics vary from year to year and will be based on the course instructor's area(s) of expertise.

Prerequisite: 14 FCE complete, HMB321H1, HMB201H1/ HMB202H1/ HMB203H1/ HMB204H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

HMB432H1 - Topics in Histology & Histopathology

Hours: 12L/12S

Lecture and seminar course emphasizing current research. Topics may include the digestive system, cardiovascular system, respiratory system, stem cells, and neoplasia. Topics vary depending on class interest.

Prerequisite: 14 FCE complete, HMB302H1/ HMB322H1

Recommended Preparation: BCH311H1/ CSB349H1/ MGY311Y1/ PSL350H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

HMB433H1 - Topics in Global Health

Hours: 16L/8S

Seminar and theme based course examining the opportunity to apply basic knowledge of biological determinants of disease to designing health system interventions and informatics that can have a global impact in the near term.

Prerequisite: 14 FCE complete, HMB303H1/ HMB323H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

HMB434H1 - Complementary & Integrative Medicine

Hours: 20L/4S

Introduction to complementary and alternative medical therapies. Topics include, Traditional Chinese Medicine, Naturopathy, Ayurvedic, and Mind-Body Practices. Biological mechanisms will be emphasized and therapies will be critically analyzed from an evidence-based research perspective. Integrating alternative therapies into Western practices with a focus on personalized medicine will be discussed.

Prerequisite: 14 FCE complete, BCH210H1, BIO230H1/ BIO255H1, HMB302H1/ HMB312H1/ HMB314H1/ HMB322H1/ HMB323H1/ HMB342H1, and HMB202H1/ HMB203H1/ HMB204H1

Recommended Preparation: HMB342H1/ CSB349H1/ PSL350H1/ BCH311H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

HMB435H1 - Selected Topics in Molecular Cell Biology

Hours: 16L/8S

Theme-based lecture and seminar course underlining current basic science research in the area of molecular and cell biology, focusing on cell migration and its relevance to human health and disease. Topics may focus on the impact of fundamental processes underlying the cell biology, physiology and pathophysiology of cell motility in a variety of systems (e.g. immune, nervous system, cancer context).

Prerequisite: 14 FCE complete, BCH311H1/ CSB349H1/ MGY311Y1/ PSL350H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

HMB436H1 - Medical and Veterinary Mycology

Hours: 24L

This lecture-based course will familiarize students with fungi of public health importance, particularly those that cause disease in humans and other animals. The course will focus on the clinical presentation, pathophysiology, and treatment of fungal infections, as well as the ecology, physiology and evolutionary biology of the agents responsible. The course will also address other ways in which fungi influence human and animal health.

Prerequisite: 14 FCE complete, HMB265H1/ BIO260H1, BIO220H1

Recommended Preparation: EEB268H1, EEB331H1/ CSB353H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

HMB437H1 - The Biology of the Human Metallome

Hours: 24L

This course will discuss how heavy metals are integral to organ function through various biological pathways, the importance of metal regulation and control and its relationship with gene transcription. An introduction of metallo-therapeutics will also be featured, ranging from neurodegenerative therapies to cancer treatment.

Prerequisite: 14 FCE complete, HMB265H1/ BIO260H1, BIO230H1/ BIO255H1, BCH210H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

HMB440H1 - Dementia

Hours: 18L/10P/6S

This course, featuring a service-learning component, explores dementia. In patients with dementia, intellectual, social and occupational functioning deteriorate. The course addresses the multi-disciplinary aspects of dementia (clinical, genetic, molecular, social) with a focus on the most common cause of dementia, Alzheimer's disease.

*A short application to enrol in this course is required.
Information may be found via the Human Biology Program website.*

Prerequisite: 14 FCE complete, HMB265H1/ BIO260H1, PSL300H1, HMB300H1/ HMB302H1/ HMB320H1/ HMB321H1/ ANA300Y1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

HMB441H1 - Genetics of Human Disease

Hours: 24L

This advanced course aims to provide students with current, in-depth knowledge of the genetics of specific human diseases, including single gene (e.g., Huntington disease), multifactorial (e.g. Alzheimer's disease), and non-Mendelian (e.g. mitochondrial DNA-related disease) disorders, and how the use of genetics to elucidate disease mechanisms can lead to treatments and personalized medicine in order to improve healthcare.

Prerequisite: 14 FCE complete, HMB265H1/ BIO260H1, BCH210H1, HMB302H1/ HMB321H1/ HMB322H1/ BCH311H1/ CSB349H1/ MGY311Y1/ PSL350H1, and HMB201H1/ HMB202H1/ HMB203H1/ HMB204H1

Recommended Preparation: HMB321H1, PSL300H1, PSL301H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

HMB443H1 - Global Hidden Hunger

Hours: 18L/6S

Vitamin and mineral deficiencies, termed 'hidden hunger,' affect about half the world's population. Explore the global nature, catastrophic consequences, and causes of these deficiencies. Discuss formulation and implementation of international, national, and local policies to alleviate 'hidden hunger' especially in infants and young children. A service-learning opportunity is integrated. Students will be required to contribute to a local community organization while using course knowledge to develop a project or initiative beneficial to the organization and community.

Information may be found via the Human Biology Program website.*

Prerequisite: 14 FCE complete, BIO230H1/ BIO255H1, HMB302H1/ HMB303H1/ HMB312H1/ HMB314H1/ HMB322H1/ HMB323H1/ CJH332H1 (formerly CSB332H1)/ NFS382H1

Recommended Preparation: PSL301H1, CSB349H1/ PSL350H1/ BCH311H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

HMB450H1 - Neurodevelopmental Disorders and Diseases

Hours: 24L/12T

Proper development of the human brain is essential for human health. This course will examine how neurodevelopment failures contribute to neurological disorders and diseases, such as epilepsy and autism. Current research from basic, translational, and clinical perspectives will be examined using case studies. The impact of neurodevelopmental disorders and diseases on the individual and community will be discussed.

Prerequisite: 14 FCE complete, HMB200H1, HMB320H1/ ANA300Y1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

HMB452H1 - Personalized Medicine

Hours: 12L/12S

The bridge between basic scientific research and clinical practice integrates fundamental knowledge about molecular/cellular mechanisms and clinical disorders to increase the potential for new medical treatments, therapies and interventions as well as understanding of disease processes. Specific topics vary from year to year and will be based on the course instructor's area(s) of expertise.

Prerequisite: 14 FCE complete, HMB302H1/ HMB321H1/ HMB322H1, HMB201H1/ HMB202H1/ HMB203H1/ HMB204H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

JEH455H1 - Current Issues in Environment and Health

Hours: 16L/8S

This course introduces students to complex issues at the interface between environment and health where health is broadly defined. Each year a current and controversial case study is explored from scientific, medical, political and policy perspectives. The course takes students from the molecular to individual to population and societal levels.

Prerequisite: 14 FCE complete, ENV341H1/ HMB302H1/ HMB312H1/ HMB314H1/ HMB322H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

HAJ453H1 - AIDS: A Global Perspective

Hours: 6L/18S

Seminars explore the global AIDS crisis, adopting the medical-anthropological perspective of Paul Farmer's Infections and Inequalities. Varying epidemiological profiles of AIDS are placed in broader social, cultural, and political-economic frameworks. The impact of globalization and structural inequality on local cultures and lifestyles provides an essential backdrop to the discussions.

Prerequisite: 14 FCE complete, ANT208H1/ BIO220H1/ PHS300H1/ JNH350H1

Distribution Requirements: Science; Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

HMB462H1 - Topics in Epidemiology

Hours: 12L/12S

The focus is on the theory and application of biostatistics and epidemiology to current developments in special topics in substantive areas of epidemiology (e.g., chronic disease, environmental & occupational health, infectious disease, methods, social, etc.).

Prerequisite: 14 FCE complete, HMB342H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

HMB470H1 - Exercise and Sports Medicine

Hours: 20L/4S

This course introduces biomechanics and builds on knowledge of the biomechanics of injury and dysfunction to develop a systematic understanding of risk, injury prevention, and initial management of injuries in sports and physical activities. Some additional topics include doping in sport, travel issues in competitive sport, and ethical issues in clinical sport medicine.

Prerequisite: 14 FCE complete, PSL300H1, PSL301H1, HMB200H1/ HMB201H1/ HMB202H1/ HMB203H1/ HMB204H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

HMB471H1 - Performance Enhancement

Hours: 20L/4S

Enhancing performance has broad appeal. This course explores current developments for achieving peak performance academically, physically and emotionally. We focus on the scientific basis of the links between performance and stress, and of the benefits and risks of pharmacological methods to achieve performance enhancement. Various stress management skills are introduced.

Prerequisite: 14 FCE complete, PSL300H1, HMB200H1/ HMB201H1/ HMB202H1/ HMB203H1/ HMB204H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

HMB472H1 - Exercise Physiology

Hours: 20L/4S

Examine the physiological and biochemical responses of the human body to both acute and chronic bouts of physical activity. The impact of activity on health, and health on physical activity, is explored by examining adaptations from the cellular to the systemic level of bodily function.

Prerequisite: 14 FCE complete, PSL300H1, PSL301H1, HMB200H1/ HMB201H1/ HMB202H1/ HMB203H1/ HMB204H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

HMB473H1 - Exercise and Mental Health

Hours: 18L/10P/6S

This course, featuring a service-learning component, discusses how mental well-being is a critical element of total health. We explore the evidence underpinning the role of physical activity in the avoidance of mental disorders, recovery from mental disorders, and the quality of life of those with or without mental disorders.

A short application to enrol in this course is required. Information may be found via the Human Biology Program website.

Prerequisite: 14 FCE complete, PSL300H1, PSL301H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

HMB474H1 - Dental Sciences

Hours: 12L/12S

Dentistry is one of the oldest branches of medicine responsible for the treatment of diseases of oral cavity. This course will introduce students to the key concepts as well as the latest research in the dental sciences, including but not limited to craniofacial structures, bone physiology, odontogenesis, pathogenesis of oral diseases, and technology in dental sciences.

Prerequisite: 14 FCE complete, BIO230H1/ BIO255H1, PSL300H1, PSL301H1, HMB200H1/ HMB201H1/ HMB202H1/ HMB203H1/ HMB204H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

HMB489H1 - Advanced Laboratory in Human Biology

Hours: 72P

Building on their experience in 3rd-year labs, students participate in inquiry-based laboratory experiments in diverse areas of current human biology research. Open to students in any Human Biology program. Labs start in the first week of term. (Lab Materials Fee: $105)

Prerequisite: 14 FCE complete, HMB310H1/ HMB311H1/ HMB312H1/ HMB314H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

HMB496Y1 - Research Project in Human Biology

Hours: TBA

A research project course for students enrolled in a Human Biology program, supervised by a faculty member appointed in a faculty or division at St. George Campus (Faculties of Arts & Science, Medicine, Engineering, Dalla Lana School of Public Health, etc.). Open to third and fourth year students.

Students are responsible for securing their own supervisor. Should a HMB Specialist require help securing a supervisor, the request must be made by email to the Human Biology Program Office no later than July 20 for Academic year projects and January 30 for Summer projects.

Completed applications for this course are due to the Human Biology Program Office by September 1 for Academic year projects and May 1 for Summer projects. Please see the application on the Special Enrolment Courses page on the HMB Website.

Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: Permission of the Human Biology Program; please refer to the Human Biology Program website for more details

Exclusion: Students are not permitted to do a HMB research project concurrently with another research project

Distribution Requirements: Science

HMB499Y1 - Research Project in Human Biology II

Hours: TBA

A research project course for students enrolled in a Human Biology program, supervised by a faculty member appointed in a faculty or division at St. George Campus (Faculties of Arts & Science, Medicine, Engineering, Dalla Lana School of Public Health, etc.).

Students are responsible for securing their own supervisor. Should a HMB Specialist require help securing a supervisor, the request must be made by email to the Human Biology Program Office no later than July 20 for Academic year projects and January 30 for Summer projects.

Hungarian

Given by the Centre for European, Russian, and Eurasian Studies

Hungarian is spoken by ten and a half million inhabitants of present-day Hungary, about three million people in the neighbouring countries, and perhaps as many as an additional two million around the world. These figures make Hungarian, which is related to Finnish, Estonian, and Lappish, but virtually no other language in Europe, by far the largest minority language in the great Indo-European language territory.

Despite the isolation that might have been imposed by the uniqueness of their language, Hungarians have been engaged with, and participants in, greater European affairs since their arrival in the Carpathian basin more than a thousand years ago. Hungarians have made signal contributions in the fields of arts, science, and mathematics, winning Nobel prizes in Chemistry (4), Medicine (3), Physics (3), Economics, and Literature. In the music world the names Bartók, Kodály, Lehár, Liszt, Széll, Ormandy, Schiff, and many others are internationally famous. Leo Szilárd, Edward Teller, Paul Erdős, and John von Neumann are famous figures in theoretical physics and mathematics. Joseph Biró developed the ball-point pen and to this day the British call a ball-point pen, a biro. Hungarians have also become famous in sports, particularly soccer, boxing, and fencing, and in the world of cinema. And who has not played with the Rubik's cube?

Hungarian studies at the University of Toronto focus on the language, literature, cinema and culture of Hungary and on the international role of Hungary and Hungarians - particularly on Hungarian immigration to Canada. For many of the courses no prior knowledge of the Hungarian language is necessary, making them easily accessible also to students in other programs.

Hungarian Programs

Hungarian Studies Major (Arts Program) - ASMAJ1124

Completion Requirements:

(6 full courses or their equivalent including two FCEs in Hungarian language study)

First Year:

HUN100Y1

Higher Years:

1. HUN200Y1, HUN310Y1, HUN320Y1

2. Two courses from: EUR200Y1, HIS241H1, HIS242H1, HIS251Y1, HIS389H1 (Hungarian History), HIS453H1, HUN355H1, HUN345H1, HUN355H1, HUN356H1, HUN440Y1, HUN450H1, HUN455H1; INI381H1

Hungarian Studies Minor (Arts Program) - ASMIN1124

Completion Requirements:

(4 full courses or their equivalent, including at least one at the 300+ level)

Four courses from: HUN100Y1, HUN200Y1, HUN310Y1, HUN320Y1, HUN335H1, HUN345H1, HUN351H1, HUN440Y1, HUN450H1, HUN455H1; HIS241H1, HIS251Y1, HIS389H1 (Hungarian History), HIS453H1; INI381H1

Faculty of Arts & Science Language Citation

The Hungarian program participates in the Faculty of Arts and Science's Language Citation initiative. Students may achieve this Citation in Hungarian.

Language study is a demanding and intellectually rewarding educational experience. Our students learn to communicate both orally and in writing in other languages and are thus able to experience other parts of the world in more intimate ways. Their access to other cultures opens doors for further study and employment. Students in our department also have the opportunity to read a vast array of world-renowned authors in the original languages, as well as works – normally not available in English – in other areas of study, for example, cinema studies, drama, folklore, history, intellectual history, philosophy, mathematics, and political science.

The Language Citation recognizes a significant level of achievement in language study. For course selection students should consult the Undergraduate Coordinator as early as possible since not every language course is offered each year. Students who begin language study at the Intermediate level should consult the Undergraduate Coordinator for approval of advanced literature and culture courses that may satisfy the requirements for the Language Citation.

The Language Citation in Hungarian is available to students who complete HUN200Y1 and HUN310Y1 with a grade of at least B-.

Students should note that, as explained on the page 20 of this Calendar, the Language Citation is not equivalent to an academic program and that enrolment in a program is not necessary in order to earn the recognition bestowed by the Citation.

First Year Seminars

The 199Y1 and 199H1 seminars are designed to provide the opportunity to work closely with an instructor in a class of no more than twenty-four students. These interactive seminars are intended to stimulate the students' curiosity and provide an opportunity to get to know a member of the professorial staff in a seminar environment during the first year of study. Details can be found at www.artsci.utoronto.ca/current/course/fyh-1/.

Note

The Department reserves the right to assign students to courses appropriate to their level of competence in Hungarian.

Hungarian Courses

HUN100Y1 - Elementary Hungarian

Hours: 120P

This course is aimed at students interested in Hungarian but have no prior knowledge of the language. The course emphasizes essential vocabulary, basic comprehension, speaking, reading and writing skills with a balance between communicative activities and grammar practices. Communicative activities will include group and partner work to encourage interactive learning.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

HUN200Y1 - Intermediate Hungarian

Hours: 96P

Review of descriptive grammar; studies in syntax; vocabulary building; intensive oral practice; composition; reading and translation.

Prerequisite: Permission of instructor

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

HUN310Y1 - Advanced Hungarian

Hours: 48S

This course is intended to build on the skills and knowledge acquired by the students in the previous Hungarian language courses. It will consist of a more advanced study of grammar, more complex vocabulary, higher level of oral skills and longer reading, writing and translation exercises. Communicative activities will include group and partner work to encourage interactive learning.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

HUN320Y1 - A Survey of Hungarian Literature

Hours: 48S

A chronological study of the development of Hungarian literature since the 12th century; emphasis both on outstanding writers and on significant movements or themes. Transformations of ideas and changes in language and style. No knowledge of Hungarian required.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

HUN335H1 - Urban vs. Rural: Immigration to and Settlement in North America

Hours: 12L/12S

This course will provide an examination of the history of Hungarian Immigration to and settlement in North America. The course will examine the "push" and "pull" factors, the socio-economic factors involved, their patterns of migration and the organizational development of the communities they founded in North America. The course will compare and contrast the reception the immigrants and later refugees received in the United States and Canada and examine how they adapted to their new homelands.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

HUN345H1 - The Dynamic of Hungarian Culture, Ethnography, and Folklore

Hours: 12L/12S

Explore the cultural traditions, historical processes, myths, and figures that have shaped and redefined Hungarian civilization and national identity. Theoretical and practical classes on ethno-genesis, anthropology, and folklore. Readings in English (also available in Hungarian).

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

HUN355H1 - One Hundred Years of Dramatic Change: History of the Past Century and Reflections of Society in Hungarian Culture

Hours: 12L/12S

Explore Hungary's rapidly changing place in Europe. Focus on political, sociological, and historical understandings of nationalism and identity as they manifest themselves in literature, history, and culture. Knowledge of Hungarian not required.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

HUN455H1 - Hungary and Europe: Cultural Adaptation in the Late 20th Century

Hours: 12L/12S

Focus on literature, art, mass media, and popular culture in post-1990 Hungary with special emphasis on the past ties to European culture and the impact of European integration. Readings in English (also available in Hungarian).

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

HUN497Y1 - Independent Study (Hungarian)

Hours: TBA

Translation course concentrating on Hungarian prose translation. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: Permission of Department

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

HUN498H1 - Independent Study (Hungarian)

Hours: TBA

Translation course concentrating on Hungarian prose translation. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: Permission of Department

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Introduction

Immunology is an integrative branch of the medical sciences that draws upon the more traditional disciplines of Molecular Biology, Microbiology, Pathology, and Biochemistry. In essence, Immunology is the study of the physiological responses that result when foreign (i.e. non-self) materials are introduced into a vertebrate organism such as humans. Traditionally, the discipline has focussed on the body's response to infectious micro-organisms, with the purpose of developing effective vaccines. However, the scope of modern Immunology now encompasses all aspects of self vs. non-self recognition phenomena including organ transplantation, tumour immunology and autoimmune diseases. Recent major advances in our understanding of the cellular and molecular basis of the immune response promise to provide us with a new generation of prophylactic, therapeutic and diagnostic reagents of relevance to human and animal health.

The Department of Immunology, in collaboration with Trinity College, co-ordinates specialist, major, and minor programs in Immunology. The emphasis of the specialist program is to provide students with a sound theoretical understanding of the cellular and molecular basis of non-self recognition, together with sufficient laboratory experience to enable the students to consider embarking on a career in the discipline. The major and minor programs offer students fundamental training in Immunology and gives them the opportunity to combine Immunology with another program in Life Sciences, Basic Sciences, or within the Arts.

Immunologists may have careers in universities and other centres of learning and research, as well as in the biotechnology industries, diagnostic laboratories and various government agencies. Courses in this specialist program are drawn from offerings by the Department, together with courses from other Departments, taught in some cases by members of the Department of Immunology. As enrolment in the specialist and major programs are restricted, please consult specific requirements outlined in the program description section.

Immunology Programs

Immunology Specialist (Science Program) - ASSPE1002

Enrolment Requirements:

This is a limited enrolment program that can only accommodate a limited number of students. Eligibility will be competitive and based on a student's marks in the 3.0 required first-year courses:

BIO120H1, BIO130H1, [CHM135H1 (formerly CHM139H1); CHM136H1 (formerly CHM138H1)] / CHM151Y1, (MAT135H1, MAT136H1) / MAT137Y1 with an average of at least 70% on these 3.0 full-course equivalents (FCEs) and a final mark of at least 65% in each course.

While it is difficult to predict what will be competitive course marks and average in a given year, based on previous years, the estimate is: course marks = high 70s; average = high 70s.

Achieving these estimated marks does not guarantee admission to the program in any given year.

Note: Students must apply to this program on the A&S Current Students Program Enrolment website.

For more information, refer to the Immunology website at: www.immunology.utoronto.ca.

Completion Requirements:

(13.5 full courses or their equivalents)

First Year:
BIO120H1; BIO130H1; [CHM135H1 (formerly CHM139H1); CHM136H1 (formerly CHM138H1)] / CHM151Y1; (MAT135H1; MAT136H1) / MAT137Y1

First Year or upper years:
(PHY131H1; PHY132H1) / (PHY151H1; PHY152H1)

Second Year:
1. BCH242Y1; BIO230H1; BIO260H1 / HMB265H1; CHM220H1; IMM250H1
2. One course from the following list: BIO220H1 / STA220H1 / TRN225Y1 / TRN236H1 / CHM247H1 / CHM249H1

Third Year:
BCH377H1; IMM341H1; IMM351H1; MGY311Y1; MGY377H1; MGY378H1

Fourth Year:
1. IMM435H1
2. Two courses from the following list: IMM428H1 / IMM429H1 / IMM430H1 / MIJ485H1
3. IMM450Y1 or one full course equivalent at the 400-series in ANA, BCH, IMM, LMP, MGY, CSB.

Notes:

1. (PHY131H1; PHY132H1) / (PHY151H1; PHY152H1) may be taken in the first year or subsequent years and are not required for entrance into the specialist program.
2. IMM435H1 is capped at 40 students. Priority will be given to Immunology Specialist students, followed by Immunology Major students.

Immunology Major (Science Program) - ASMAJ1002

Enrolment Requirements:

This is a limited enrolment program that can only accommodate a limited number of students. Eligibility will be competitive and based on a student's marks in the 2.0 required first-year courses:

BIO120H1, BIO130H1, [CHM135H1 (formerly CHM139H1); CHM136H1 (formerly CHM138H1)]/CHM151Y1 with an average of at least 70% on these 2.0 full-course equivalents (FCEs) and a final mark of at least 60% in each course.

While it is difficult to predict what will be competitive course marks and average in a given year, based on previous years, the estimate is: course marks = high 70s; average = high 70s.

Achieving these estimated marks does not guarantee admission to the program in any given year.

Note: Students must apply to this program on the A&S Current Students Program Enrolment website.

For more information, refer to the Immunology website at: www.immunology.utoronto.ca.

Completion Requirements:

(8 full courses or their equivalents, including two 400-series courses)

First Year:

BIO120H1; BIO130H1; [CHM135H1 (formerly CHM139H1); CHM136H1 (formerly CHM138H1)]/CHM151Y1

Second Year:

1. BCH210H1; BIO230H1; IMM250H1; BIO260H1/HMB265H1
2. 0.5 full-course equivalent (0.5 FCE) from the following list: BIO220H1/ STA220H1/ TRN225Y1/ TRN236H1/CHM247H1/ CHM249H1

Third Year:

IMM340H1; IMM350H1; CSB349H1/ BCH311H1; One full-course equivalent from the following list: BCH370H1/MGY377H1/ MGY378H1/ PHL281H1

Fourth Year:

One full-course equivalent from the following list: IMM428H1/ IMM429H1/ IMM430H1/ IMM435H1/MIJ485H1

Notes:

1. Students considering graduate school are encouraged to add the additional non-compulsory IMM450Y1 research course, if space permits.
2. MIJ485H1 requires MGY377H1 & MGY378H1 as pre-requisites.

3. IMM435H1 is capped at 40 students. Priority will be given to Immunology Specialist students, followed by Immunology Major students.

Immunology Minor (Science Program) - ASMIN1002

Completion Requirements:

For more information, refer to the Immunology website at: www.immunology.utoronto.ca.

(4 full courses or their equivalents)

First Year:

BIO120H1; BIO130H1; [CHM135H1 (formerly CHM139H1); CHM136H1 (formerly CHM138H1)]/CHM151Y1

Second Year:

BIO230H1; IMM250H1

Third Year:

IMM340H1; IMM350H1

Regarding Immunology Courses

First Year Seminars

The 199Y1 and 199H1 seminars are designed to provide the opportunity to work closely with an instructor in a class of no more than twenty-four students. These interactive seminars are intended to stimulate the students' curiosity and provide an opportunity to get to know a member of the professorial staff in a seminar environment during the first year of study. Details can be found at www.artsci.utoronto.ca/current/course/fyh-1/.

Immunology Courses

IMM250H1 - The Immune System and Infectious Disease

Hours: 24L

Students will be introduced to the basic concepts of immunity to infectious disease and how breakdown of the immune response can lead to auto-immunity. We will trace the history of current ideas in immunology and the immune response by examining how bacteria and viruses cause disease and the initial discoveries that led to such developments as vaccination. Current topical and newsworthy infectious diseases (HIV, tuberculosis, SARS, avian flu) will be used as examples of how the immune system copes with microbial infections.

Recommended Preparation: BIO120H1, BIO130H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

IMM340H1 - Fundamental Immunology

Hours: 24L

This course introduces the basic principles and key players of the immune system: differences and interplay between innate and adaptive immunity, how immune cells develop and function, how immune cells recognize threats and danger and mount an appropriate and measured response.

Prerequisite: BIO230H1

Exclusion: IMM334Y1/ IMM335Y1/ IMM341H1

Recommended Preparation: IMM250H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

IMM341H1 - Fundamental Immunology (Advanced)

Hours: 24L/12T

This course introduces the fundamental principles and key players of the immune system: differences and interplay between innate and adaptive immunity, how immune cells develop and function, how immune cells recognize threats and danger and mount an appropriate and measured response. Intended for students specializing in Immunology and related programs.

Prerequisite: BIO230H1

Exclusion: IMM334Y1/ IMM335Y1/ IMM340H1

Recommended Preparation: IMM250H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

IMM350H1 - The Immune System in Action

Hours: 24L

This course illustrates how different elements of the immune system come together to mount efficient and measured responses. Topics include response to infectious microorganisms, allergy and autoimmunity, immune responses against cancer, and transplantation immunology.

Prerequisite: IMM340H1/ IMM341H1

Exclusion: IMM334Y1/ IMM335Y1/ IMM351H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

IMM351H1 - The Immune System in Action (Advanced)

Hours: 24L/12T

This course illustrates how different elements of the immune system come together to mount efficient and measured responses. Topics include response to infectious microorganisms, allergy and autoimmunity, immune responses against cancer, and transplantation immunology. Intended for students specializing in Immunology and related programs.

Prerequisite: IMM341H1/ IMM340H1

Exclusion: IMM334Y1/ IMM335Y1/ IMM350H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

IMM428H1 - Molecular Immunology

Hours: 24L

This course will focus on the molecular and cellular biology of immune recognition. The course will emphasize historical and recent experimental evidence leading to our current understanding of immune recognition. Subtopics are subject to change and have recently included mechanisms of diversification of immunoglobulin receptors, T cell –MHC interactions, T cell activation and signaling mechanisms; receptors of the innate immune system, immune recognition by natural killer cells.

Prerequisite: BCH210H1/ BCH242Y1, BCH311H1/ CSB349H1/ MGY311Y1/ PSL350H1, IMM350H1/ IMM351H1/ IMM334Y1/ IMM335Y1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

IMM429H1 - Developmental Immunology

Hours: 24L

Hematopoiesis, myelopoiesis, lymphopoiesis, a study of the development of cells involved in the immune system including their ontogeny, physical, molecular, and biochemical characteristics, regulation of differentiation and maturation, positive and negative selection of lymphocytes.

Prerequisite: IMM350H1/ IMM351H1 ( IMM334Y1/ IMM335Y1)

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

IMM430H1 - Clinical Immunology

Hours: 24L/24T

This course will address the underlying pathogenesis as well as highlight the challenges of treating immune-related conditions such as autoimmunity, cancer, HIV, and transplantation and graft rejection. Half of the lectures will address the genetics and cellular pathogenesis of autoimmune diseases such as multiple sclerosis, type I diabetes and lupus. Other lectures will overview a number of immunological challenges faced in the clinic, such as preventing graft rejection after transplantation or boosting the immune system to fight cancer and HIV.

Prerequisite: IMM350H1/ IMM351H1 ( IMM334Y1/ IMM335Y1)

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

IMM435H1 - Practical Immunology

Hours: 72P

Application of basic principles acquired from IMM350H1/IMM351H1 (IMM334Y1/IMM335Y1); immunological procedures performed in research and diagnostic laboratories using molecular and cellular approaches; instruction through lectures, video tapes, and practical exercises in the laboratory.

Prerequisite: BCH210H1/ BCH242Y1, IMM350H1/ IMM351H1/ IMM334Y1/ IMM335Y1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

IMM450Y1 - Research Project in Immunology

Hours: 154P

An opportunity for specialized research in Immunology under the supervision of a member of the Faculty. There are no pre- or co-requisites, although preference is given to Immunology Specialist and Major students. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

MIJ485H1 - Vaccines and Immunity

Hours: 36L

Analysis of the strategies used by pathogenic microbes to evade specific and innate immune responses, and the strategies used to combat infectious disease using vaccines, with an emphasis on molecular and immunological aspects. Special topics include: molecular basis of pathogenicity and immune-evasion strategies; vaccination strategies; challenges to vaccine implementation (given jointly by the Departments of Molecular Genetics and Immunology).

Prerequisite: ( IMM340H1/ IMM341H1), ( IMM350H1/ IMM351H1), MGY377H1, MGY378H1

Exclusion: MBY480H1, MGY485H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

Impact Centre

Faculty List

Professor and Director

M. Cynthia Goh, BS, PhD (U)

Cross Appointed

E. Istrate, BAsC, PhD

Introduction

The Impact Centre's goal is for proactive knowledge translation, in which university-based expertise is brought to create value to society. Innovation and entrepreneurship are important aspects in this process, and the Impact Centre is home to a number of training activities for students to gain entrepreneurial skills. These skills are useful whether starting a company, or joining an existing company. At the undergraduate level, this program includes lecture-based and experiential-learning courses.

The courses are aimed at students from all disciplines. Inventions sometimes come from the science or engineering labs, but getting them out of the lab and available to meeting society's needs requires a very diverse set of skills. This is usually done by multi-disciplinary teams with representatives from the sciences, the social sciences and the humanities. Therefore, the courses will emphasise such collaborations between students of diverse backgrounds.

Impact Centre Courses

IMC200H1 - Innovation and Entrepreneurship

Hours: 24L

How do innovations become useful in society? What is needed for a company to use such innovations successfully? Why and how do individuals and companies commercialize a technology? This course gives an introduction to the skills needed by entrepreneurs in order to start a new venture based on an innovative idea. This course is Pass/Fail. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: 4.0 FCEs in any subject

Recommended Preparation: No particular preparation needed. Although the topics relate to science innovations, the course is targeted at students from all disciplines, who are interested in using innovations. This includes science, social sciences and humanities students, mirroring the roles of these individuals in enterprises. Because this is an introductory course, students who have previously taken business or entrepreneurial courses are strongly discouraged from registering in this course.

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

IVP210H1 - Holography for 3D Visualization

Hours: 24L/36P

An introduction to the theory and practice of holography. Human perception & 3D visualization; fundamentals of 3D modeling; ray and wave optics; interference, diffraction, coherence; transmission and reflection holograms; colour perception; stereograms. Applications of holography in art, medicine, and technology. Computer simulation, design, and construction of holograms. In this course an additional fee of up to $50 may be charged for activities outside of the classroom (e.g., field trips). Such fees will be confirmed in the course syllabus.

Exclusion: JOP210H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

IMC299Y1 - Research Opportunity Program

Hours: TBA

Credit course for supervised participation in faculty research project. Details at <http://www.artsci.utoronto.ca/current/course/rop>. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

IMC391H1 - Exploring New Ventures

Hours: 12L/48P

This experiential learning course allows students to explore the inner working of new venture companies. The majority of the course consists of a placement with Toronto-based start-ups, with oversight from the Impact Centre. In-class activities facilitate the application of entrepreneurial tools to develop the students' entrepreneurial skills.

Prerequisite: IMC200H1/ RSM100H1/ MGT100H1. 8.0 FCEs in any subject.

Exclusion: IMC390Y1, IMC392Y1

Recommended Preparation: Although the internships often relate to science innovations, they are targeted at students from all disciplines. This includes science and engineering, social sciences and humanities students, mirroring the roles of these individuals in enterprises.

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

IMC392Y1 - Exploring New Ventures

Hours: 12L/96P

This experiential learning course allows students to explore the inner working of new venture companies. The majority of the course consists of a placement with Toronto-based stat-ups, with oversight from the Impact Centre. In-class activities facilitate the application of entrepreneurial tools to develop the students' entrepreneurial skills.

Exclusion: IMC390Y1, IMC391H1

Recommended Preparation: Although the internships often relate to science innovations, they are targeted at students from all disciplines. This includes science and engineering, social sciences and humanities students, mirroring the roles of these individuals in enterprises.

Distribution Requirements: Science; Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

IMC399Y1 - Research Opportunity Program

Hours: TBA

Credit course for supervised participation in faculty research project. Details at <http://www.artsci.utoronto.ca/current/course/rop>. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Introduction

Indigenous Studies is an interdisciplinary undergraduate program dedicated to the study and research of Indigenous peoples in Canada and throughout the world. The program offers courses that engender a rigorous and respectful understanding of Indigenous peoples' languages, knowledges, cultures, histories, politics, arts, intellectual traditions and research methodologies. INS offers Specialist, Major, and Minor Programs within the Faculty of Arts & Science. Students are encouraged to seek counselling and information about this program from indigenous.studies@utoronto.ca or on our website at <http://www.indigenousstudies.utoronto.ca>.

Indigenous Studies Programs

Indigenous Studies Specialist (Arts Program) - ASSPE0115

Completion Requirements:

(10 full courses or their equivalents, including at least one 400+level course)

1. INS201Y1
2. INS210Y1/ INS220Y1/ \(INS230H1, INS231H1\)
3. INS300Y1 and INS301Y1/ INS351Y1
4. INS390H1 and INS460H1
5. Four additional full-course equivalents from Group A (note: some of these courses have prerequisites)
6. One additional FCE from Group A or Group B below (note: some of these courses have prerequisites)
7. For numbers 5 and 6 above, 2 FCEs must be at the 300 level and .5 FCE at the fourth year level.

Note: A student who wishes to complete their program in four years should take at least two courses in Indigenous

Studies each year for the first two years, for example, INS201Y1 and INS210Y1/ INS220Y1/ INS230H1 and INS231H1 the first year; INS300Y1 and another 300 level course from ABS the second year; INS301Y1/ INS351Y1 (offered in alternative years) and another 300 level course from INS the third year; and a four hundred level INS or JFP course; or one 400 level half course and one 300 level course in their final year.

Indigenous Studies Major (Arts Program) - ASMAJ0115

Completion Requirements:

(7 full courses or their equivalent, including at least two 300+level courses)

1. INS201Y1
2. INS210Y1/ INS220Y1/ INS230H1 and INS231H1

4. INS390H1
5. Two additional full-course equivalents from INS or JFP (note: some of these courses have prerequisites)
6. One additional .5 FCE from Group A or one .5 FCE from Group B below (note: some of these courses have prerequisites)
7. Of the courses chosen, at least 2 FCE must be at the 300+ level and .5 FCE at the 400 level.

Note: A student who wishes to complete their program in four years should take at least two courses in Indigenous Studies each year for the first two years, for example, INS201Y1 and INS210Y1/ INS220Y1/ INS230H1 and INS231H1 the first year; INS300Y1 and another 300 level course from ABS the second year; INS301Y1/ INS351Y1 (offered in alternative years) and another 300 level course from INS the third year; and a four hundred level INS or JFP course; or one 400 level half course and one 300 level course in their final year.

Indigenous Studies Minor (Arts Program) - ASMIN0115

Completion Requirements:

(4 full courses or their equivalent, including at least one full-course equivalent at the 300+-level)

1. INS201Y1
2. INS300Y1/ INS301Y1/ INS351Y1
3. One additional full-course equivalent from INS or JFP (note: some of these courses have prerequisites)
4. One additional full-course equivalent from Group A below (note: some of these courses have prerequisites)

Note: A student who wishes to complete their program in four years should take at least two courses in Indigenous

Studies each year for the first two years, for example, INS201Y1 and INS210Y1/ INS220Y1/ INS230H1 and INS231H1 the first year; INS300Y1 and another 300 level course from the second year; INS301Y1/ INS351Y1 (offered in alternative years) and another 300 level course from INS the third year; and a four hundred level INS or JFP course; or one 400 level half course and one 300 level course in their final year.

Faculty of Arts & Science Language Citation

Indigenous Studies participates in the Faculty of Arts & Science Language Citation Initiative for Anishinaabemowin. The study of the Anishinaabe language is a demanding and intellectually rewarding educational experience. Successful study of this language demonstrates intelligence, discipline, analytical sophistication, and an excellent memory. The study of any language provides invaluable insights into the varieties of human culture and expression.

In each language the Language Citation recognizes a significant level of achievement in language study with a high level of academic success. The Citation in Anishinaabemowin is available to students who complete INS210Y1 and earn a grade of at least B- in INS310Y1 and INS301Y1/INS351Y1.

Students should note that, as explained in this Calendar, the Language Citation is not equivalent to an academic program and that enrolment in a program is not necessary in order to earn the recognition bestowed by the Citation.

First Year Seminars

The 199Y1 and 199H1 seminars are designed to provide the opportunity to work closely with an instructor in a class of no more than twenty-four students. These interactive seminars are intended to stimulate the students' curiosity and provide an opportunity to get to know a member of the professorial staff in a seminar environment during the first year of study. ## Indigenous Studies Courses

INS200H1 - Introduction to Indigenous Truth and Resilience

Hours: 24L/12T

This course is an interdisciplinary introduction to the historical and contemporary experiences of Indigenous peoples in Canada, with an emphasis on local lands and peoples. The course will explore Indigenous resilience, relationships with settlers and settler states, and principles and ethics of Indigenous Knowledge. Tutorials will focus on critical discussion and experiential learning.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities; Social Science
Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

INS201Y1 - Introduction to Indigenous Studies: Foundations, History and Politics

Hours: 48L/24T

This course is designed to introduce students to the ideas, methods and themes of the discipline of Indigenous Studies. The development of the field of Indigenous Studies in Canada will form an important focus in the first half. The second part of the course will address "history and politics", including an overview of the historical processes of diplomacy, alliances, and treaty-making.

Exclusion: ABS201Y1- Introduction to Aboriginal Studies
Distribution Requirements: Humanities; Social Science
Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1); Society and its Institutions (3)

INS205H1 - Indigenous Worldviews, Spiritual and Healing Traditions

Hours: 24L

This course will discuss the relationship between spiritual philosophies, beliefs, traditions and practices that contribute to meaning in Indigenous communities. This course will emphasize traditions and teachings and understanding the role of spirituality historically and within contemporary Indigenous societies, including governance, treaties, environment, culture, healing and everyday life.

Prerequisite: INS201Y1 or INS200H1

Exclusion: ABS205H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

INS210Y1 - Introduction to Anishinaabemowin

Hours: 72L

An introduction to the Anishinaabe language, including the syllabic writing system.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

INS215Y1 - Introduction to an Indigenous Language of Canada

Hours: 72L

This course will offer an introduction to one of Canada's Indigenous languages, including its writing system. Speaking skills will be emphasized.

Exclusion: ABS215H1; ABS215Y1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

INS220Y1 - Introduction to an Iroquoian Language

Hours: 72L

An introduction to one of the languages of the Iroquoian language family.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

INS230H1 - Introduction to Inuktitut

Hours: 24L

An introduction to one dialect of Inuktitut, the language of the Inuit, including aspects of other dialects and the syllabic writing system.

Exclusion: ABS230H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

INS231H1 - Elementary Inuktitut

Hours: 24L

This course builds on the introduction to Inuktitut from ABS230H. Emphasis will be placed on developing grammatical complexity and vocabulary in students oral skills, as well as dialect and cultural awareness.

Prerequisite: INS230H1

Exclusion: ABS231H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

INS240Y1 - Ecological Interactions: Intro to Indigenous and Western Sciences

Hours: 48L/72P

Introduction to methodologies and applications of Indigenous and Western sciences, with an emphasis on environmental change, animal behaviour, evolution, sustainable practices, and implications of intrinsic ecological connections. Exploratory labs, often outdoors, develop literacy and skills in each paradigm as well as critical thought, creative reflection, and synthesis of knowledge.

Prerequisite: INS201Y1

Exclusion: ABS240Y1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

INS250H1 - Indigenous Environmental Science and Practice (formerly Indigenous Environmental Education)

Hours: 24L

This course is a study of the ecological and scientific teachings of Indigenous peoples. The course provides and overview of Indigenous peoples' relationships with the natural world in historical and contemporary environmental issues and their implications for Indigenous Peoples and others.

Prerequisite: INS201Y1

Exclusion: ABS250H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

INS261H1 - Contemporary Challenges Facing Indigenous Communities

Hours: 24L

This is a survey course focusing on the contemporary challenges faced by Indigenous peoples in Canada. In this course students research specific challenges facing Indigenous communities today. ## Introduction

Since 1965, the Centre for Industrial Relations and Human Resources has brought together professors from many different disciplines and departments at the University of Toronto to teach and conduct research on all aspects of work, the workplace, labour markets and labour relations. The CIRHR's graduate programs rank among the best in North America and its faculty reflects the depth, breadth and diversity of our university.

The overarching goal of the undergraduate program in IRHR is to offer an interdisciplinary learning opportunity in which to study the 'world of work and employment' in a Canadian and global context from the perspectives of economics, history, law, management, political science, psychology and sociology. The program provides students with a theoretical background and knowledge of current developments in the field that will serve as a basis for careers areas such as: a Human Resources Generalist, Recruitment Specialist, HR Consultant, Employment Equity Officer, Training and Development Consultant, Corporate Trainer, Policy Advisor in the Ministry of Labour, Union Representative and Labour Relations Specialist. The undergraduate program in IRHR is also a perfect platform from which to enter post-graduate programs in Industrial Relations and Human Resources, Law with a specialisation in labour and employment, as well as policy and labour studies programs.

Students are encouraged to use the resources available in both the CIRHR Library and Career Centre in order to investigate current labour market trends and career options in Industrial Relations and Human Resources. In Ontario, Human Resources Professionals Association (HRPA) regulates the HR profession and issues the Certified Human Resources Professional (CHRP) designation, the national standard for excellence in human resources management. IRHR students are also encouraged to explore the services offered by HRPA. The Program Office is located in Woodsworth College and IRHR students continue to benefit from the rich academic support services and facilities available at the College.

Regarding Program Enrolment

Admission to major and specialist programs will be determined by a student's mark in specific courses. These are limited enrolment programs that can only accommodate a limited number of students. Achieving the marks required does not necessarily guarantee admission to the program in any given year. Requests for admission will be considered in the first program request period only. For detailed program application instructions (see "type 3- with a no indicator") click here. Do not change your program after year 3 if you are required to complete your degree in four years as prerequisites and program requirements will not be waived. Due to the limited enrolment nature of this program students are strongly advised to enroll in backup programs.

Industrial Relations and Human Resources Programs

Industrial Relations & Human Resources - Specialist Program (Arts Program) - ASSPE1536

Enrolment Requirements:

The Industrial Relations & Human Resources (formerly Employment Relations) specialist is a limited enrolment program and achieving the minimum mark threshold does not guarantee admission to the specialist in any given year. The precise mark threshold is an estimate of what will be required in the Spring program admission cycle.

Due to the limited enrolment nature of this program students are strongly advised to enroll in backup programs. Requests for admission will be considered in the first program request period only which takes place in the Spring. Please check the Faculty of Arts and Science's Program Enrolment page for further instructions.

Applying after first year:

1. Completion of at least four full-course equivalents
2. ECO101H1 and ECO102H1 with a combined estimated average of 67% or a minimum 80% in ECO105Y1
3. 1.0 FCE from SOC100H1/ SOC150H1/ PSY100H1 with a combined estimated average of 70%

Applying after second year:

1. ECO101H1 and ECO102H1 with a combined estimated average of 67% or a minimum 80% in ECO105Y1
2. 1.0 FCE at the 200+ level in SOC with a combined estimated average of 73%. The SOC courses must be taken in the Fall and Winter terms immediately preceding the Spring program admission cycle.

Completion Requirements:

The following requirements apply to students admitted to the Industrial Relations & Human Resources (IRHR) specialist in 2018.

The specialist requires ten courses (10.0 FCEs) including a minimum of 4.0 FCEs must be at the 300+ level. Of these, at least 1.0 "IRE" FCE must at the 400 level. A course taken on a CR/NCR basis may not be used to satisfy program requirements.

1. ECO101H1 and ECO102H1 or ECO105Y1
2. 1.0 FCE from SOC100H1/ SOC150H1/ PSY100H1
3. All of IRE240H1, IRE244H1, IRE260H1, IRE339H1, IRE430H1, IRE431H1
4. 1.0 FCE from Group A
5. 1.0 FCE from Group B
6. 0.5 FCE from Group C
7. 0.5 FCE from Group D
8. Additional courses (excluding those already counted) from Groups C and D for a total of 10.0 FCEs.

Group A: ECO321Y1 (or equivalent)/ HIS263Y1/ POL214Y1

Group B: ECO220Y1/ IRE379H1/ PSY201H1/ PSY202H1/ SOC202H1

Group C: IRE444H1/ IRE446H1/ IRE447H1/ IRE472H1
Group D: GGR221H1/ HIS313H1/ INI300H1/ IRE242H1/ IRE332Y0/ IRE342H1/ IRE344H1/ IRE345H1/ IRE346H1/ IRE347H1/ IRE348H1/ IRE349H1/ IRE367H1/ IRE378H1/ IRE395H1/ IRE396H1/ IRE432Y0/ IRE493H1/ IRE494H1/ JGI216H1/ SOC207H1/ SOC366H1/ SOC367H1/ SOC439H1

Notes:

1. A maximum of 1.0 FCE in IRE395H1 and IRE396H1 can count toward the IRHR specialist program.
2. ECO program students may use ECO339H1 in lieu of IRE339H1. Please contact the Program Office to have the course counted towards the IRHR program requirements.
3. Non "IRE" coded courses are offered by other departments. These courses may be available only to students who have completed specified prerequisites or who are enrolled in a program sponsored by the department offering the course. Check the Faculty of Arts and Science's timetable for details.

Introduction

Innis College offers courses (designated INI) that sustain two interdisciplinary academic programs: Urban Studies and Writing and Rhetoric. Innis College is also the home of the Cinema Studies Institute, which offers an impressive collection of courses (designated CIN) listed separately under Cinema Studies Institute. Courses for the new Innis One Program have been inspired by the College's two academic programs and its special relationship with the Cinema Studies Institute.

Innis One: The Creative City

Innis One encourages first-year students to develop their creative and critical capacities by exploring the dynamism of the urban environment. By reaching beyond the walls of the academy to engage in an imaginative, inquiry-based, and civic-minded learning experience, students will gain a greater appreciation of the interplay between film, writing, and urban landscapes.

Students may enroll in two (1.0 FCE) of the four half-credit courses (INI100H1, INI101H1, INI102H1, and INI106H1) offered in the Program. Limited to an enrolment of 25, these seminar courses, featuring group discussions, films, guest lecturers, and special field trips, offer students a unique experiential learning opportunity that will also help them to develop writing, research, and analytical skills.

All first-year students in the Faculty of Arts and Science (St. George campus) are eligible for admission. Students may apply to all four Innis One courses by ranking their preferences. Online applications and further information are available at innis.utoronto.ca/academic-programs/one/.

Urban Studies

Urban Studies at Innis College provides students with the tools to make sense of their urban world. The Program examines the complex and dynamic relations among institutions, people, and physical form that create, sustain, or destroy cities.

The Program is suited for those students who wish to study cities using several disciplinary approaches. It is also of interest to those students who wish to become involved in urban issues in Toronto. The Program offers an internship in the office of either a municipal politician, non-profit research group, or other government organization as part of its experiential learning program. Because urban issues are so varied, Urban Studies combines well with many other program areas. Students are advised to consult the Program Director when designing programs that meet their particular interests. The Program encourages students to take advantage of the Study Elsewhere Program at the University of Toronto to broaden their knowledge of cities.

Also see the Urban Studies website at sites.utoronto.ca/innis/urban.

Writing and Rhetoric

The Minor Program in Writing and Rhetoric is built on a foundation of Innis College courses that cover academic essay writing, rhetoric, critical thinking, creative writing, media analysis, and writing in the workplace and for the public sphere. The Program also draws on relevant University of Toronto courses in a range of disciplines. The Program's design reflects three interrelated themes.

Writing:

This discipline involves more than instruction in composition skills. Writing is related to rhetoric, logic, reasoning, and critical thinking. One of the main goals of the Program is to ensure that students graduate with a solid grounding in various modes of writing and with highly developed transferable skills.

Rhetoric:

Classical rhetorical terms and methods of argumentation and persuasion are central to the study of rhetoric. One of the oldest disciplines in the liberal arts, rhetoric as a contemporary discipline focuses on the influence of discourse on social forces. For the purposes of this Program, rhetoric will, broadly speaking, be used to signify both rhetoric in the classical sense of the term and the patterns of communication identifiable in a variety of disciplines and environments.

Critical Analysis:

One of the tenets of the Program is shared by many of the University's Arts and Science disciplines: that problem-solving and creative, persuasive, and effective writing depend on the ability to analyze discourse critically.

Urban Studies Specialist (Arts Program) - ASSPE2207

Enrolment Requirements:

For Program requirements and information, consult the Urban Studies website at sites.utoronto.ca/innis/urban. Note: All Urban Studies programs are limited enrolment programs (see the Arts & Science Program Enrolment instructions at <http://www.artsci.utoronto.ca/current/program> for application procedures).

This is a limited enrolment program. Eligibility will be based on a student's mark(s) in the required course(s). The precise mark thresholds outlined below are an estimate of what will be required in the coming program admission cycle. Achieving those mark(s) does not necessarily guarantee admission to the program in any given year.

Enrolment in the Specialist program requires the following:

- Completion of at least 4.0 FCEs in first year courses;
- Completion of at least 3.0 FCEs from the list of 4.0 FCEs in possible First Year selections below with an average final mark of not less than 72 percent across all three and individual final marks not less than 70 percent. Students who did not meet this criterion at the completion of year 1 (and hence had been unsuccessful in their first application to the USP) may re-apply at the end of year 2 and the admission decision will be based on the completion of one of the following (in addition to INI235H1 and INI236H1) with a final mark of at least 70 percent in each:

ECO220Y1 or

The pairing of GGR270H1 and GGR271H1; or

The pairing of POL222H1 and POL232H1; or,

The pairing of SOC202H1 and SOC252H1

Completion Requirements:

(11.0 Full Course Equivalents (FCEs) including at least 4.0 FCEs at the 300+ level, 1.0 of which must be at the 400-level)

Innis College Courses

First-Year Seminars

The 199Y1 and 199H1 seminars are designed to provide the opportunity to work closely with an instructor in a class of no more than twenty-four students. These interactive seminars are intended to stimulate the students' curiosity and provide an opportunity to get to know a member of the professorial staff in a seminar environment during the first year of study. Details can be found at www.artsci.utoronto.ca/current/course/fyh-1/.

Note

Courses are listed in this order:

- Innis One
- Urban Studies
- Writing and Rhetoric
- Other Innis College courses

For Cinema Studies Courses see Cinema Studies Institute.

Innis One Courses

INI100H1 - The City Where Movies Are Made

Hours: 36S

In this course, first-year students will be introduced to film culture in Toronto from a variety of angles, including: a history of the city onscreen (both as itself and as a popular shooting location for American productions); an account of major Toronto filmmaking sites and institutions; introductions to local directors and producers; and overviews of contemporary local film festival culture (TIFF and beyond) as well as the city's film-critical community. Through a combination of lectures, screenings, field trips and special guest speakers, the students will be moved to consider both the vitality of Toronto's film scene as well as its connections to other aspects of the city. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: Admission to Innis One

Exclusion: Munk One, New One, St. Mike's One, Trinity One, Vic One, UC One, Woodsworth One

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

INI101H1 - Blogging the Just City

Hours: 36S

An introduction to the concept of the city as a creative environment promoting not only growth and wealth but also social justice, equality, cooperation, and civility. Students will learn to build their own blog to help them to observe, interpret, and reflect upon the process of urban interaction and the relationship between creativity and justice. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: Admission to Innis One

Exclusion: Munk One, New One, St. Mike's One, Trinity One, Vic One, UC One, Woodsworth One

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

INI102H1 - Telling the Stories of the City: Writing Creative Non-Fiction

Hours: 36S

An introduction to creative writing techniques and the personal essay form through which students will explore and develop their conscious connection to the natural-urban landscape. The course will include activities such as field trips, readings, interviews, and journaling to generate the material for personal essays on engagement with nature in the city. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: Admission to Innis One

Exclusion: Munk One, New One, St. Mike's One, Trinity One, Vic One, UC One, Woodsworth One

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

INI106H1 - Writing Literary Journalism: Telling the Stories of the City

Hours: 36S

An introduction to literary journalism, in which students study the craft of storytelling along with interviewing, reporting, and the journalist's ethical stance. Guest speakers, field trips, writing activities and course readings will help students engage deeply with their environment and develop the skills and sensitivity required for literary reporting. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: Admission to Innis One

Exclusion: Munk One, New One, St. Mike's One, Trinity One, Vic One, UC One, Woodsworth One

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

Urban Studies Courses

INI234H1 - Cities in Popular Culture

Hours: 24L

By exploring different popular culture phenomena such as the emergence of hip-hop in the Bronx, Batman's Gotham, and Nollywood, this course works to examine the contributions of popular culture in shaping our understandings of cities (as well as providing different perspectives of the city and the urban experience than is generally captured in scholarly/academic literature). Popular culture becomes a vehicle by which we will explore different aspects of urban life and urban representation.

Prerequisite: 4.0 FCEs

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

INI235H1 - A Multidisciplinary Introduction to Urban Studies I: Theoretical Foundations of City Building

Previous Course Number: INI235Y1

Hours: 24L

Focuses on the theoretical foundations of urbanization, urban change, and city building, with particular attention on global urban growth, history of contemporary urbanization, urban planning, governance, built form, and economic development. These topics are explored through a multidisciplinary lens, with an emphasis on understanding urban transitions over time and their meaning for contemporary urban experience.

Prerequisite: Four courses with at least one of the following: ECO100Y1/ ECO105Y1 or 1.0 FCE from 100-level GGR courses including GGR101H1, GGR107H1, GGR112H1 and GGR124H1, or 1.0 FCE from 100-level POL courses including POL101Y1, or POL214Y1, or 1.0 FCE from 100-level SOC courses including SOC101Y, SOC102H, and SOC103H

Exclusion: INI235Y1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

INI236H1 - A Multidisciplinary Introduction to Urban Studies II: Urban Challenges and Theoretical Application

Previous Course Number: INI235Y1

Hours: 24L

Cities are centres of innovation and creative energy, but they also face significant and pressing challenges. This course explores various urban issues including inequality, eroding infrastructure, and concerns arising from globalization, while also examining the ways in which municipal governments and urban citizens are imagining and implementing potential solutions to these challenges.

Prerequisite: INI235H1

Exclusion: INI235Y1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

INI333H1 - Critical Approaches in Urban Studies

Hours: 24L

How do power and dominance consolidate in urban settings? How do individuals and communities contest this consolidation, and claim spaces and rights in the city? These questions will be taken up through a range of critical approaches, including Indigenous, critical race feminist, political economy, queer, and anarchist perspectives. Students will have the opportunity to carry out interview-based research on an issue of equality and social justice that matters to them.

Prerequisite: INI235H1 and INI236H1

Recommended Preparation: None

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

INI334H1 - Urban Field Course

Hours: 12S

Students will have the opportunity to travel to a destination city for a week-long examination of specific social, economic, physical, and/or environmental issues. The trip will include meetings with municipal representatives and other decision-makers (public and possibly private). The findings of the trip supplemented by bibliographic research and in-class discussion will form the basis of a major research essay. Each student is required to pay the cost of transportation and accommodation. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: INI235H1 and INI236H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

INI336H1 - Creative Cities

Previous Course Number: INI336Y1

Hours: 24L

A prominent thesis in the fields of planning and economic geography is that the presence of creative occupations in a city correlates positively with the overall health of urban regions. This course will investigate the nature of this link from theoretical and empirical perspectives and examine its potential usefulness in a planning/policy context.

Prerequisite: 1.0 FCE from: GGR101H1/ GGR107H1/ GGR112H1/ GGR124H1; INI235H1, INI236H1

Exclusion: INI336Y1

Recommended Preparation: GGR220Y1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

INI337H1 - Studies in Contemporary Urban Problems

Hours: 24L

This course will focus on an examination of the immediate difficulties facing Toronto and by extension all Canadian cities. Instruction will consist of a combination of lectures by the instructor and by noted experts/practitioners in a range of topic areas including urban governance, finance, planning, environmental sustainability and social welfare.

Recommended Preparation: GGR124H1/ (INI235H1, INI236H1)

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

INI338H1 - Advanced Topics in Urban Studies I

Hours: 24L

This course will expose students to a range of contemporary theoretical, analytical, and policy oriented debates in Urban Studies. The emphasis will be on establishing a broad knowledge base in the multifaceted field of urban studies. The exact topics to be covered will fall broadly under the banner of urban socioeconomic change, and specific syllabi, year to year, will follow contemporary and emerging debates. This will be expanded upon in this course's 400 level counterpart.

Exclusion: GGR347H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

INI339H1 - Divided City / United City

Hours: 24L

Focus on the impact of increased economic inequality and economic polarization trends that are reshaping Canada's metropolitan areas, changing neighbourhoods, and affecting the lives of our diverse urban population. Using the Toronto area as an example, students explore the consequences of these trends and the implications for public policy.

Prerequisite: A minimum of 8.0 FCEs

Distribution Requirements: Humanities; Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

INI342H1 - Urban Studies Research Seminar I

Hours: 24S

This course provides students an opportunity to craft and initiate an Urban Studies capstone research project. Students will gain knowledge, experience and insight in utilizing qualitative research methods including interviewing, focus groups, observational analysis and other techniques. Seminars and assignments focus on the application of qualitative methods to each student's selected urban research question.

Prerequisite: INI235H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

INI430H1 - Advanced Topics in Urban Studies II

Hours: 24L

This course is meant to be a senior complement to INI338H1 whereby important theoretical, analytical and/or policy debates are addressed in a research seminar format. Students in INI430H1 will be expected to extend, or refine research topics identified and explored in INI338H1 in a major independent research project. Students will present their proposals, their progress reports, and their final results to the instructor and the class.

Prerequisite: INI235H1, INI236H1, INI336H1/ INI338H1. Priority is given to students enrolled in the Urban Studies Major or Specialist Programs. However, consideration may be given to students with suitable course background as determined by the Program Director.

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

INI431Y1 - Special Topics in Urban Studies

Hours: TBA

From time to time, the Urban Studies Program organizes community outreach and information sessions. At the discretion of the Director, students may enroll in a special topics course and investigate these issues more deeply under the supervision of an agreeable faculty member. Proposals including a letter from an agreeable faculty member should be submitted to the Director by June 1 for a Fall or Year-long course, or by November 1 for a Spring course. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: Enrolment in a major or specialist program in Urban Studies.

Recommended Preparation: INI235H1, INI236H1, completion of research design and research methods courses, 14 FCEs in an aligned social science program.

INI432H1 - Special Topics in Urban Studies

Hours: TBA

Special topics courses are offered periodically for senior students in the Urban Studies Program. Offerings in any given year will depend on program priorities, availability of specialized expertise and funding. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: Enrolment in a major or specialist program in Urban Studies.

Recommended Preparation: INI235H1 and INI236H1, completion of research design and research methods courses, 14 FCEs in an aligned social science program.

INI433H1 - Special Topics in Urban Studies

Hours: 24S

Special topics courses are offered periodically for senior students in the Urban Studies Program. Offerings in any given year will depend on program priorities, availability of specialized expertise and funding. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: Enrolment in a major or specialist program in Urban Studies.

Recommended Preparation: INI235H1 and INI236H1, completion of research design and research methods courses, 14 FCEs in an aligned social science program.

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

INI434Y1 - Independent Research in Urban Studies

Hours: TBA

INI437Y1 - Urban Experiential Learning in Toronto & the GTA

Previous Course Number: INI306Y1

Hours: 72S

A method of studying city issues that combines readings, seminar discussions, and field trips with an 8 hour / week internship in the office of a municipal politician, local government, or non-profit organization. Readings focus on community development, urban planning, economic development and local governance. Students must fill out a ballot for the course (available on the Urban Studies website - <http://sites.utoronto.ca/innis/urban> ) by June 1. Enrolment in this course is competitive and at the discretion of Professor Shauna Brail.

Prerequisite: INI235H1, INI236H1. Priority is given to students enrolled in the Urban Studies Minor, Major, or Specialist Programs. However, consideration may be given to students with suitable course background as determined by the Program Director. Note: INI437Y1 cannot be taken concurrently with JGI450Y1.

Exclusion: INI306Y1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

INI438H1 - Advanced Urban Research Project

Hours: 24S

This course will allow students to investigate an urban topic of their choice in a guided seminar environment. This course will guide students through the various steps of the research process including: proposal writing and refinement, secondary research, primary data acquisition, analysis and the production of a senior research paper. The course emphasizes the connections between the design, implementation and write-up of an in-depth research paper. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Exclusion: INI438Y1

Recommended Preparation: INI342H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

INI439H1 - Cities and Mega-events: Place-making, Contestation and Urban Citizenship

Hours: 24S

Mega-events, like the Olympics, give cities the opportunity to showcase themselves to the world, but the production of television-friendly urban images do much to obscure the processes, compromises and social consequences in host cities. These events are powerful tools for city branding. They are also potential opportunities for social movements and other groups and individuals to highlight their own sets of concerns. This course will explore the challenges and opportunities that cities face in hosting such events.

Prerequisite: 12.0 FCEs

Exclusion: INI430H1 (topic of same name in 2013-14), INI332H1, INI432H1 (2016)

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

JGI216H1 - Globalization and Urban Change

Hours: 24L

Focusing on the impacts that global flows of ideas, culture, people, goods, and capital have on cities throughout the globe, this course explores some of the factors that differentiate the experiences of globalization and urban change in cities at different moments in history and in various geographic locations.

Recommended Preparation: GGR124H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

JGI346H1 - The Urban Planning Process

Hours: 24L

Overview of how planning tools and practice shape the built form of cities. This course introduces twentieth century physical planning within its historical, social, legal, and political contexts. Community and urban design issues are addressed at local and regional scales and in both central cities and suburbs. The focus is on Toronto and the Canadian experience, with comparative examples from other countries, primarily the United States. Transportation cost: $20.

Recommended Preparation: 8.0 FCE's including GGR124H1, INI235Y1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

JGI450Y1 - Planning for Change: Community Development in Practice

Hours: 48S

Offers senior undergraduates the opportunity to participate in a service learning course alongside graduate students. Students will examine theory and practice related to service learning and will conduct a research project designed with a community organization. The course aims to unite theory and practice by providing analytical tools to connect academic and community development work.

Prerequisite: 15 FCEs, 5.0 of which must be GGR/INI. Note: JGI450Y1 cannot be taken concurrently with INI437Y1.

Exclusion: JPG1812H (graduate)

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

JGI454H1 - The Role of the Planner: Making a Difference

Hours: 24L

Focuses on the role of a planning practitioner in contemporary society using a wealth of examples drawn from recent issues and debates in Canadian cities and regions. The course will walk students through the demands made of planners in terms of both technical expertise as well as political necessity and ask them to think actively about how to prepare for the extraordinary growth of cities during the next century. Examples of issues that will be discussed in some detail include the myths surrounding the city vs. the suburbs, the creativity and passion involved in planning work and the need to see Toronto's future from a regional perspective.

Prerequisite: 14.5 FCEs, 5.0 of which must be GGR/INI Urban Studies

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

Writing and Rhetoric Courses

INI103H1 - Writing Essays

Hours: 24L/12T

Introduces the fundamentals of essay writing within an interdisciplinary context. Includes the history of the essay and its various rhetorical modes (narrative, descriptive, expository, argumentative), with a focus on humanities and social sciences essays. Both non-academic essays and essays from across the academic disciplines are examined in terms of purpose, audience, and persuasive strategies.

INI104H1 - Writing Reports

Hours: 36S

Introduces the fundamentals of report writing within an interdisciplinary context. This writing intensive course focuses on improving writing skills appropriate to report writing genres. Informal, formal, research, and professional workplace reports are examined in terms of purpose, audience, structure, style, persuasive strategies, and use of visual rhetoric (tables, charts, graphs). This course also examines qualitative and quantitative research methods.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities; Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

INI201H1 - Theories of Rhetoric

Hours: 36S

The history of rhetoric, the philosophical art of persuasion, is a complex one bound up with the histories of philosophy, literature, and religion, the rise and fall of empires, and the emergence of modern science and media technology. We will examine the development of rhetoric over time, from the roots of the discipline in classical antiquity to the genesis of modern and postmodern rhetoric, including the New Rhetoric. We will then focus on contemporary rhetorical currents in language philosophy, gender studies, critical race studies, and affect theory.

Prerequisite: Completion of 4.0 full-course equivalents.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

INI203H1 - Foundations of Written Discourse

Previous Course Number: INI203Y1

Hours: 36S

Designed to teach students to write persuasively and to recognize persuasive strategies at work in writing they analyze. Classical rhetorical terms, elements of style, and modes of argument are central to the course.

Assignments include a rhetorical analysis, in-class close reading exercises, and a term essay. Readings include prose from a variety of disciplines, excluding fiction and poetry. Students who enrol in the course must demonstrate competence in the English language.

Prerequisite: Completion of 4.0 full-course equivalents.

Exclusion: INI203Y1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

INI204H1 - The Academic Writing Process

Hours: 36S

The strategy necessary to write complete pieces of non-fiction prose, especially exposition and argument. Concepts of planning and organization include: focusing, research, outlining, patterns of logical development, introduction, paragraph development, conclusion, argumentation and persuasion, documentation, and revision. Students for whom English is a second language should have an advanced level of fluency in English before enrolling.

Prerequisite: Completion of 4.0 full-course equivalents.

Exclusion: INI204Y1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

INI211H1 - Introduction to Creative Writing

Hours: 36S

This introductory course focuses on the process and craft of creative writing. Students will study short fiction, creative nonfiction and poetry by established writers, and learn to respond to works-in-progress by their peers. A variety of activities will help students generate, develop, and revise a portfolio of original creative work.

Prerequisite: 4.0 full-course equivalents

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

INI301H1 - Contemporary Issues and Written Discourse: Rhetoric and the Print Media

Hours: 36S

Examines how the language and rhetoric of print media shape social issues. Rhetorical strategies at work in the media reporting of such controversial issues as international crises and military actions are examined. The construction of the columnists persona and the role of editorials are also examined.

Prerequisite: Completion of 4.0 full-course equivalents.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities; Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

INI300H1 - Strategic Writing in Business and the Professions: Theory and Practice

Previous Course Number: INI300Y1

Hours: 36S

Aims to teach students to recognize the rhetoric of the professional workplace and to communicate strategically and ethically using written and oral discourse appropriate to business, government, and not-for-profit organizations. Case study analysis using ethical reasoning models is a central component of the course.

Prerequisite: Completion of 4.0 full-course equivalents.

Exclusion: INI300Y1; INI302H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities; Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

INI302H1 - Writing in Business and the Professions for Rotman Commerce students

Hours: 24L/12T

Designed for and restricted to undergraduates in Rotman Commerce. Assignments and course aims reflect the learning goals of the Rotman Commerce program. This course focuses on critical thinking, ethical reasoning, and the rhetoric of the world of business. The theory and practice of written and oral communication are also central. Case study analysis using ethical reasoning models is a central pedagogical tool.

Prerequisite: Completion of 4.0 full-course equivalents.

Exclusion: INI300Y1/ INI300H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities; Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

INI303H1 - Digital Rhetoric

Hours: 36S

Examines the profound impact of digital media on contemporary culture and discourse. Students will explore recent currents in rhetoric and digital media. Students will investigate the rhetorical operation of digital media in domains ranging from academia to politics to popular culture. The class will analyze the role of rhetorical principles, such as persuasion and identification, in a diverse array of online discourse such as discussion forums, social media, and the blogosphere.

Prerequisite: Completion of 4.0 full-course equivalents.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

INI304H1 - Critical Thinking and Inquiry in Written Communication

Hours: 24L

This seminar in critical reading, analysis, and writing focuses on the nature, the evaluation, and the use and abuse of evidence in the process of formulating and supporting an argument. The case study method will be employed to assess the level of authority, credibility, and objectivity evident in public discourse, official sources, and academic inquiry.

Prerequisite: Completion of 4.0 full-course equivalents, and a writing course offered by the Writing and Rhetoric Program (or equivalent).

Distribution Requirements: Humanities; Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

INI305H1 - Word and Image in Modern Writing

Hours: 36S

The rhetorical term Ekphrasis, which refers to writing that is about visual art, is central in the examination of the persuasive power of the conversation or discourse that is produced when the written word attempts the evocation of visual images. Course readings will include ekphrastic texts drawn from several disciplines and genres: journalism, informal essays, poetry, and scholarly writing.

Prerequisite: Completion of 4.0 full-course equivalents.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

INI310H1 - Stylistic Editing and Copy Editing

Hours: 36S

This course introduces students to professional editorial conventions at two later stages of the editorial process. Both stages require analytical skills and sentence expertise. Through stylistic editing, students learn how to improve a writer's literary style; through copy editing, they learn how to ensure both accuracy and consistency (editorial style).

Prerequisite: Completion of 4.0 full-course equivalents.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

INI311Y1 - Seminar in Creative Writing

Hours: 72S

This workshop course examines methodological approaches to literary fiction from the perspective of the creator. ## Introduction

To study Italian is not only to acquire a language, but also to study a rich literature and a many-sided culture which have played an important, and sometimes dominant, role in Western civilization. For Canadians, the Italian contribution bears a special significance: the vast influx of Italians has brought changes in our way of life and a living presence to reinforce traditional Italian influences, thus enriching the meaning of the term Canadian. Italian combines well with other modern languages and literatures, and other programs such as European Studies, Literary Studies, and Mediaeval and Renaissance Studies, but is by no means restricted to these. Students may choose from Specialist, Major and Minor programs in Italian Studies. Italian courses are offered for beginners as well as for students who may have prior knowledge or instruction in Italian. Oral practice is included in all language courses. Students well qualified in the Italian language may be excused from language courses in first year (please see the Undergraduate Coordinator). 300- and 400-series courses are available to qualified third and fourth-year students and may be taken concurrently. These courses offer a wide range of options in language, literature, linguistics, culture and cinema. There are courses in Italian literature, culture and cinema that are given in English and have no language requirement. In conjunction with Woodsworth College, ITA courses may be taken in Italy at the University of Siena during July and August. A number of bursaries are available. Students may apply to take their Third Year in Italy under the Study Abroad Program in conjunction with the Centre for International Experience (<http://www.studentlife.utoronto.ca/cie>). ## Faculty of Arts & Science Language Citation

The Department of Italian Studies participates in the Faculty of Arts and Science's Language Citation initiative for Italian. Proficiency in Italian is an invaluable asset for those wishing to pursue a career in social work, business, applied science, government, law, medicine or education. A knowledge of Italian complements undergraduate studies in other areas, such as music, fine art, literary studies, European history or political science, to name a few.

The Language Citation recognizes a significant level of achievement in language study with a high level of academic success. The Citation in Italian is available to students who, having completed a first year language course in Italian (ITA100Y1/ITA151Y1) (or the equivalent prerequisite training), earn a grade of at least B- in a second-year language course (ITA250Y1/ITA251Y1) and in a third year language course (ITA350Y1/ITA351Y1).

Students should note that the Language Citation is not equivalent to an academic program and that enrolment in a program is not necessary in order to earn the recognition bestowed by the Citation.

First Year Seminars

The 199Y1 and 199H1 seminars are designed to provide the opportunity to work closely with an instructor in a class of no more than twenty-four students. These interactive seminars are intended to stimulate the students' curiosity and provide an opportunity to get to know a member of the professorial staff in a seminar environment during the first year of study. Details can be found at www.artsci.utoronto.ca/current/course/fyh-1/.

Guidelines for students who wish to begin the study of the Italian language at the university level

ITA100Y1 - Italian Language for Beginners – An introductory course for students with no previous knowledge of the Italian language. Not open to students with grade 11 and/or 12 U or M Italian or with previous experience, exposure or instruction in Italian.

ITA250Y1 - Intermediate Italian – The subsequent course for students who have completed ITA100Y1 or ITA151Y1.

This course is also open to students who have completed Grade 11 and/or 12 Italian (U or M level) or with previous experience or instruction in Italian. For this group, the Department may conduct assessment to determine appropriate placement.

The Department reserves the right to place students in the language course appropriate to their level of language skill.

Exclusion: ITA471Y1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

ITA489H1 - Independent Studies

Hours: TBA

An opportunity to pursue at the 400-level an independent course of study not otherwise available. A written proposal, co-signed by the instructor, must be submitted on the appropriate proposal form for approval by the Department of Italian Studies. Application deadline: April 30 for F courses, November 30 for S courses.

Prerequisite: Permission of Department

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

ITA490Y1 - Independent Studies

Hours: TBA

In exceptional circumstances, students may request to pursue at the 400-level an independent course of study not otherwise available. A written proposal, co-signed by the instructor, must be submitted on the appropriate proposal form for approval by the Department of Italian Studies. Application deadline April 30.

Prerequisite: Permission of Department

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

ITA495H1 - Directed Research

Hours: TBA

Based on a professor's research project currently in progress, this course will enable an undergraduate student to play a useful role in the project while receiving concrete training in research. This course is mandatory for all students enrolled in the specialist's program.

Prerequisite: Permission of Department

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

ITA496H1 - Research Methods

Hours: TBA

This course, linked to the instructor's research project, will provide training in a variety of research methods. This course includes a component designed to enhance students' research experience.

Prerequisite: Permission of Department

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Introduction

The undergraduate program at the Anne Tanenbaum Centre for Jewish Studies (CJS) builds on the expertise and range of the faculty. The program is organized around four areas of interest that reflect the diverse strengths of the CJS. The Specialist and Major programs of study requires one of the gateway courses, CJS200H1 or CJS201H1, and a half credit course at the 400-level. The Minor program of study requires either CJS200H1 or CJS201H1.

Four Areas of Interest:

I. Classical Judaism

The civilization of the people of the book has produced a rich, classical literature: the Hebrew Bible, the Dead Sea Scrolls, Hellenistic texts, as well as rabbinic literature from the earliest targumic and midrashic interpretations through the Talmuds and geonic traditions to medieval commentators on Talmudic texts. We situate these texts in their linguistic and cultural contexts, and study them with philological rigour. Our students learn to trace the development of the Jewish imagination in its interactions with surrounding cultures and to appreciate its many expressions: legal, exegetical, mythic, and mystical. Jewish civilization emerges as a highly variegated collection of phenomena and traditions.

II. Jewish Philosophy and Thought

Both in the ancient world and contemporary society, many vital questions have arisen from Jewish experience and its interaction with diverse religions and philosophies. Why would the perfect, all-sufficient God care to speak to human beings? How could God's inner life be described? What is the relationship between law and ethics? What future could a particular, religious identity have in a secular democracy based on universal values? What can traditional Jewish sources contribute to contemporary feminism and what does contemporary feminism have to say about the traditionally gendered view of Jewish commandments? In addressing these questions, we teach students to engage critically with the great figures in the history of Jewish thought, from Philo to Maimonides, from Spinoza to Rosenzweig.

III. Jewish History and Social Sciences

Covering the whole range of Jewish history, from ancient Israelites to modern Israel, from medieval Spain to the Holocaust and beyond, our courses explore both the ideal and material aspects of the many contexts in which Jewish civilization has survived and thrived, while offering a unique perspective on world history. Social sciences such as anthropology, political science, and sociology enrich our comprehension of today as well as yesterday by exploring phenomena such as collective memory, group identity, and inter-group conflict. Our courses give students the tools not only to understand the past but also to shape the future.

IV. Jewish Cultures, Languages, and Literatures

We offer a rich variety of courses in Jewish literature, film, and theatre, as well as Yiddish and Hebrew language. How have Jews expressed their resilience and imagination under the extreme conditions of the Holocaust or within communist societies? What is the Jewish contribution to North American popular culture? From the social lives of contemporary Russian Jews to the impact of Israeli folk dance on national identity, from experimental Jewish photography to Jewish involvement in Broadway musicals, we investigate the many ways in which Jews express their identity and creativity in cultures around the world.

Centre for Jewish Studies Programs

Jewish Studies Specialist (Arts Program) - ASSPE0385

Enrolment Requirements:

There are no specific first-year requirements; however, first-year students are welcome to take CJS200H1, CJS201H1, Hebrew Language courses ( MHB155H1 and MHB156H1) and Yiddish ( GER260Y1), which count towards the Jewish Studies Specialist.

Completion Requirements:

(10 FCEs, including at least 4 FCEs at the 300+ level and at least 1 FCE at the 400-level.)

1. CJS200H1/ CJS201H1

2. 1 FCE at the 400 level in any of the four areas of Jewish Studies (see CJS website for the list of approved and available courses:
www.cjs.utoronto.ca/undergraduate/courses).

3. 3 FCEs or proof of proficiency in one of the following languages: Aramaic, Hebrew, Yiddish. Other languages are accepted with special permission. Students entering the program with requisite linguistic proficiency in a Jewish language will choose any 3 FCEs in an area of concentration (see below) in addition to the regular requirements described in section 4.

4. 5 FCEs in any of the four areas of Jewish Studies.

5. Note: From section 3 and 4, at least 4 FCEs at the 300+ level.

6. DTS300H1 or 0.5 FCE to satisfy the Quantitative Reasoning competency of the program, to be chosen from courses in Jewish Studies developing this competency. If none is available, 0.5 FCE from Breadth Requirement Category #5: The Physical & Mathematical Universe, or 0.5 FCE approved by the Undergraduate Director.

Jewish Studies Major (Arts Program) - ASMAJ0385

Enrolment Requirements:

There are no specific first-year requirements; however, first-year students are welcome to take CJS200H1, CJS201H1, Hebrew Language courses ( MHB155H1 and MHB156H1), and Yiddish ( GER260Y1), which count towards the Jewish Studies Major.

Completion Requirements:

(6.5 FCEs, including at least 2 FCEs at the 300+ level, 0.5 of which must be at the 400-level)

1. CJS200H1/ CJS201H1

2. 0.5 FCE in a 400-level course in any area of Jewish Studies (see CJS website for the list of available courses for any given year:
www.cjs.utoronto.ca/undergraduate/courses)

3. 5 FCEs in any of the four areas of Jewish Studies, with at least 2 FCEs at the 300+ level.

4. DTS300H1 or 0.5 FCE to satisfy the Quantitative Reasoning competency of the program, to be chosen from courses in Jewish Studies developing this competency. If none is available, 0.5 FCE from Breadth Requirement Category #5: The Physical & Mathematical Universe, or 0.5 FCE approved by the Undergraduate Director.

Jewish Studies Minor (Arts Program) - ASMIN0385

Enrolment Requirements:

There are no specific first-year requirements; however, first-year students are welcome to take CJS200H1,

CJS201H1, and Hebrew Language courses ( MHB155H1 and MHB156H1) and Yiddish Language courses ( GER260Y1), which count towards the Jewish Studies Minor.

Completion Requirements:

(4 FCEs, including at least 1 FCE at the 300+ level)

1. CJS200H1/ CJS201H1

2. 3.5 FCEs in any of the four areas of Jewish Studies, including at least 1 FCE at the 300+ level (see CJS website for the list of available courses for any given year:

Centre for Jewish Studies Courses

CJS200H1 - Introduction to Jewish Thought

Hours: 24L

A balanced presentation of the multifaceted approach to the discipline by treating Jewish religion and thought. The course introduces students not only to a chronological and thematic overview of the subject, but also to different methodological approaches.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

CJS201H1 - Introduction to Jewish Culture

Hours: 24S

General introduction to history, literatures and cultures of Jewish people from antiquity to contemporary. A balanced presentation of multi-disciplinary approaches and multi-methodological approaches to Jewish studies, with a special emphasis on Jewish cultural studies and Jewish secularity.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

CJS220H1 - The Holocaust in Fiction

Hours: 24S

The course examines literary works written in different languages, in ghettos and concentration camps during the Holocaust, as well as those reflecting on the genocide in its aftermath. We focus on literature as a means of engaging with the unimaginable and on the cross analysis of eye-witness and memory writing.

Recommended Preparation: CJS200H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

CJS230H1 - God, Nation, and Self Transformed: The Secularization of the Jewish Experience

Hours: 24S

The course provides a theoretical background to the issue of secularization and examines the diverse attempts to define on a secular basis the Jew, the Jewish nation, and the Jewish God since the breakdown of traditional Jewish society. A variety of Jewish secularisms are examined in a larger, non-Jewish context.

Recommended Preparation: CJS200H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

CJS290H1 - Topics in Jewish Studies

Hours: 24L/24T

An examination of issues in Jewish Studies. Content in any given year depends on instructor.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

CJS330H1 - Who's a Jew? Theory, Myth, and Practice

Hours: 24L

This course introduces students to the host of core concepts in terms of which Jewish identity has been and continues to be defined and debated. Topics include: the difference between insiders and outsiders; collective vs individual identity; the nature of the bond between group members; identification across time, space, and disagreements; social and gendered hierarchies; joining and leaving the group; the identities of outsiders.

Exclusion: CJS290H1 (Topics in Jewish Studies: Who is a Jew?), offered in Fall 2014 and Fall 2015

Recommended Preparation: CJS200H1 or CJS201H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

CJS340H1 - Mizrahim in Israel: History, Politics, and Culture

Hours: 24L

What is the significance of the designation “Mizrahi” in Israel today? Does it refer to people who share a common geographical and ethnic origin or does it indicate a shared worldview that draws upon Middle Eastern Arabic culture? What are its relations with other terms, such as “Sephardi,” “Oriental,” or “Levantine”? What kind of political membership does it entail? Does it possess a certain cultural, religious, or political vocabulary? And, ultimately, does the diasporic concept of “Mizrahiyut” (mizrahihood) undermine national homogeneity or rather facilitate and enable its enforcement?

Exclusion: CJS390H1 (Special Topics in Jewish Studies: Mizrahim in Israel: History, Politics, and Culture), offered in Summer 2017

Recommended Preparation: CJS201H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

CJS383H1 - Jews and Power

Hours: 24L

This course will explore the relationship of Jews to political power. Among the themes to be covered are: How has the relationship of the Jewish community to political authority changed over time? What is the Jewish conception of political authority? How did Jews protect their communal and individual rights in the absence of sovereignty? How did the dynamics of antisemitism, philosemitism, and anti-Jewish violence change over time? How did Zionism and the revival of Jewish sovereignty change the position of Jews in the political order? What are the political and moral dilemmas posed by statehood? And what are the implications of Jewish sovereignty for Jews in the Diaspora?

Prerequisite: POL101Y1 or CJS200H1 or CJS201H1

Exclusion: POL383H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

CJS389H1 - Jewish Secularism and Messianic Thought: From Spinoza to Derrida

Hours: 24S

This course examines the critical role that Messianic thought plays in the emergence of modern Jewish secular thought. A study of the secular dimension of Messianism in the writings of Jewish philosophers, from Spinoza to Derrida, leading to the larger question of its place in the project of Jewish modernity.

Recommended Preparation: CJS200H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

CJS390H1 - Special Topics in Jewish Studies

Hours: 24L

An examination of issues in Jewish Studies. Content in any given year depends on instructor.

Prerequisite: Permission of the instructor/program

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

CJS400H1 - Research Seminar in Jewish Studies

Hours: 24S

An interdisciplinary seminar in which Jewish Studies topics are explored intensively, culminating in a major research paper by each student. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: JSP200H1; permission of the instructor/program

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

CJS401H1 - Community & Identity

Hours: 24S

Exploration of Jewish notions of community, identity, and humanity in classic and contemporary sources as well as through experiential learning in which students are placed in internships at organizations and institutions that identify themselves as Jewish and as serving the Jewish community in the GTA. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: CJS200H1 or CJS201H1 and at least two other half-courses in Jewish Studies; permission of instructor

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

CJS401Y1 - Community & Identity

Hours: 48S

Exploration of Jewish notions of community, identity, and humanity in classic and contemporary sources as well as through experiential learning in which students are placed in internships at organizations and institutions that identify themselves as Jewish and as serving the Jewish community in the GTA. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: CJS200Y1 or CJS201Y1 and at least two other half-courses in Jewish Studies; permission of instructor

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

CJS430H1 - Encounters between Jewish and Modern Thought

Hours: 24L

A detailed exploration of how Jewish thought develops in relationship to key figures or moments in modern European philosophy (e.g., Spinoza, Kant, Hegel, Kierkegaard, Marx, Nietzsche, Heidegger). The particular focus varies from year to year.

Exclusion: CJS490H1 (Advanced Topics in Jewish Studies: Kierkegaard and Modern Jewish Philosophy), offered in Fall 2015

Recommended Preparation: CJS201H1 or a course in either modern European philosophy

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

CJS440H1 - The Arab Jew: A History of a Concept

Hours: 24L

This course invites students to explore the debates around the term “Arab Jews.” A cultural, historical, and historiographical designation, the term encompasses a range of experiences for Arabic-speaking Jews. These Jews lived in diverse cultural worlds across the Middle East and North Africa, where they developed deep and enduring relationships with non-Jews, and were instrumental in shaping local, regional and national cultures and politics. By engaging with the term “Arab Jews” in its various incarnations, the course offers new perspectives on questions of Zionism and nationalism, colonialism and geography, religion and secularization, as well as historiography and memory.

Exclusion: CJS491H1 (Advanced Topics in Jewish Studies: The Arab Jew: A History of a Concept), offered in Winter 2017

Recommended Preparation: CJS201H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

CJS444H1 - Topics in the Study of Antisemitism

Hours: 24L

This seminar explores in depth one of the many theoretical or methodological issues that confront scholars of antisemitism. Possible topics include: definitions of antisemitism and their purposes; philosemitism and its conceptual and real connection with antisemitism; Jewish self-hatred; contextualist vs eternalist accounts of antisemitism; classic and contemporary theories of antisemitism.

Recommended Preparation: RLG344H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

CJS490H1 - Advanced Topics in Jewish Studies

Hours: 24S

An in-depth investigation of topics in Jewish Studies. Content in any given year depends on instructor.

Prerequisite: Permission of the instructor/program

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

CJS491H1 - Advanced Topics in Jewish Studies

Hours: 24S

An in-depth investigation of topics in Jewish Studies. Content in any given year depends on instructor.

Prerequisite: Permission of the instructor/program

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

CJS498Y1 - Independent Study

Hours: TBA

A scholarly project on an approved topic supervised by a faculty affiliated with the Centre for Jewish Studies. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: CJS200H1 and permission of the Centre

Recommended Preparation: CJS400H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

CJS499H1 - Independent Study

Hours: TBA

A scholarly project on an approved topic supervised by a faculty affiliated with the Centre for Jewish Studies. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: CJS200H1 and permission of the Centre

Recommended Preparation: CJS400H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Introduction

The Department of Laboratory Medicine and Pathobiology provides a bridge between the basic sciences and medicine. Investigating the molecular mechanisms of disease is an important priority of the department. Faculty are concerned with the biochemical changes that may be associated with cell and tissue injury and with the etiology, pathogenesis and behaviour of disease. Research is carried out in such areas as cardiovascular disease, immunopathobiology, neuropathology, endocrinology and metabolism, neoplasia, bone and connective tissue disease, clinical and molecular epidemiology, antibiotic resistance, and molecular pathogenesis of infectious disease.

The Pathobiology Specialist program gives students a broad understanding of contemporary medical research and basic scientific insights that have revolutionized our understanding of disease in recent years. Aspects of biochemistry, chemistry, cellular and molecular biology, and genetics are brought to bear upon human pathology. Graduates from the program will frequently pursue graduate studies in medical research and eventual research careers in academic, industrial, pharmaceutical, or governmental laboratories. A knowledge of cellular and molecular mechanisms of disease processes is also useful in a wide variety of multidisciplinary careers in government, regulatory agencies, law, and environment.

taken, three additional courses from the list are still required.)

Regarding Laboratory Medicine and Pathobiology Courses

First Year Seminars

The 199Y1 and 199H1 seminars are designed to provide the opportunity to work closely with an instructor in a class of no more than twenty-four students. These interactive seminars are intended to stimulate the students' curiosity and provide an opportunity to get to know a member of the professorial staff in a seminar environment during the first year of study. Details can be found at www.artsci.utoronto.ca/current/course/fyh-1/.

Laboratory Medicine and Pathobiology Programs

Pathobiology Specialist (Science Program) - ASSPE2025

Enrolment Requirements:

This is a limited enrolment program that can only accommodate a limited number of students. Eligibility will be competitive and based on a student's marks in the 3.0 required first-year courses:

BIO120H1, BIO130H1, (CHM135H1, CHM136H1)/
CHM151Y1; (MAT135H1, MAT136H1)/ MAT137Y1/
MAT157Y1.

Note: Students must apply to this program on the Arts & Science Faculty Registrars Office website (see the Arts & Science Program Enrolment web site for application procedures) from early April to mid-May. At later times, contact the LMP Undergraduate Office.

Completion Requirements:

(13.5 full courses or their equivalent, including at least two 400-series courses)

First Year:

(BIO120H1, BIO130H1); (CHM135H1, CHM136H1)/
CHM151Y1; (MAT135H1, MAT136H1)/ MAT137Y1/
MAT157Y1

First or Second Year:

(PHY131H1, PHY132H1)/(PHY151H1, PHY152H1)

Second Year:

BCH210H1; BIO230H1; BIO260H1/ HMB265H1;
CHM220H1; CHM247H1/ CHM249H1; PSL300H1;

Laboratory Medicine and Pathobiology Courses

LMP299Y1 - Research Opportunity Program

Hours: TBA

Credit course for supervised participation in faculty research project. Details at <http://www.artsci.utoronto.ca/current/course/rop>. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Distribution Requirements: Science

LMP300Y1 - Introduction to Pathobiology

Hours: 42L/6P

Concepts in pathogenesis; cell injury and death; tissue structure, repair and fibrosis, oxidative stress, ion channels and pumps. Molecular basis of major organ system pathology. The laboratory examines gross anatomical specimens and introduces histopathology. Enrolment is limited to students specializing in pathobiology who have completed the first and second year requirements of the program.

Exclusion: LMP301H1, LMP363H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

LMP301H1 - Introduction to the Biochemistry of Human Disease

Hours: 24L

Introduces concepts and mechanisms of disease processes as they arise from disturbances of normal biochemical and physiological functions. The rational use of the clinical biochemistry laboratory in the diagnosis and management of disease is explained. Not intended for students in the Pathobiology Specialist program.

Prerequisite: BCH210H1/ BCH242Y1

Exclusion: LMP300Y1

Recommended Preparation: PSL201Y1/ PSL300H1/ PSL301H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

LMP363H1 - Principles of Pathobiology

Hours: 24L

Pathological changes brought on by foreign compounds; mechanisms of pathologic, toxic and carcinogenic change.

Prerequisite: BIO230H1, CHM247H1/ CHM249H1

Exclusion: LMP300Y1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

LMP365H1 - Neoplasia

Hours: 20L/4P

A general introduction to the cellular and molecular aspects of cancer and its etiology. The laboratory component presents the range of benign and malignant tumor types at the gross and histological levels. Pathophysiology of cancer, invasion and metastases, role of the immune system.

Corequisite: LMP300Y1 or permission of department

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

LMP399Y1 - Research Opportunity Program

Hours: TBA

LMP402H1 - Inflammation and Infection

Hours: 24L

Mechanisms that allow microbial pathogens to cause disease and the host to detect infection, mount an inflammatory response and resolve the infection. Primary research articles are discussed. Topics include commensal bacteria, bacterial toxins, pattern recognition receptors, leukocyte emigration, chemotaxis, and the role of non-coding RNAs in immunity.

Prerequisite: ( IMM340H1, IMM350H1)/( IMM341H1, IMM351H1)/( MGY377H1, MGY378H1)

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

LMP403H1 - Immunopathology

Hours: 24L

The immune system in disease. Responses of the immune system to host invasion, injurious stimuli, and transplantation. Immunopathology of organ-specific diseases including pancreas, gut, liver, heart, kidney, and blood. Intended for students specializing in pathobiology or related programs.

Prerequisite: ( IMM340H1, IMM350H1)/( IMM341H1, IMM351H1)

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

LMP405Y1 - Project in Pathobiology

Hours: 154P

A self-contained research project to be completed under the supervision of a faculty member. The main areas of research are as listed in the description of the Department (above). The student will normally have completed three full years of study, and is expected to devote at least one full day per week to the project. Admission is by arrangement with the Department and with a particular supervisor. A list of potential supervisors is available from the Departmental Office and on our web site. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: BCH210H1/ BCH242Y1, LMP300Y1/ LMP363H1/ LMP365H1 and permission of department

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

LMP406H1 - Pathobiology of the Cardiovascular System

Hours: 24L

Pathobiology of the heart, blood vessels, and lymphatic system. Congenital diseases of the heart, ischemic injury, stroke. Treatments of vascular disease and cardiovascular biomaterials. Major focus on atherosclerosis and hypertension. The emphasis is on the underlying cell biology of these processes.

Prerequisite: ( PSL300H1, PSL301H1)/ PSL302Y1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

LMP408H1 - Genetic modelling of human development and disease

Hours: 24L

Introduces use of genetic model systems and organisms in exploring aspects of human reproduction, development, and disease. A major focus is on the impact of the genetic models on understanding human health, and disease. Ethical issues in animal research, genetic manipulation, and disease modeling are highlighted

Prerequisite: LMP300Y1/ BIO260H1/ HMB265H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

LMP410H1 - Pathobiology of Neurodegenerative Disease

Hours: 24L

Molecular basis of neurodegenerative diseases of the central and peripheral nervous systems. Emphasis on the molecular pathobiology of neurodegenerative diseases, current research developments and guidance with writing of research proposals. Mid-term and final exams will practice assembly of a succinct research proposal and query neurodegenerative disease material taught in course.

Prerequisite: BCH311H1/( PSL300H1, PSL301H1)

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

LMP436H1 - Microbial Pathogenesis

Hours: 36L

Molecular mechanism involved in pathogenesis of infectious disease. Topics include recurrent themes in the establishment of infectious disease, such as adherence and spread of pathogenic bacteria as well as evasion of host defences. Emphasis is placed on genetic characterization and expression of virulence determinants and on interactions between bacterial pathogens and their hosts.

Prerequisite: BCH210H1/ BCH242Y1, ( IMM340H1, IMM350H1)/( IMM341H1, IMM351H1)

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

LMP415H1 - Forensic Pathobiology

Hours: 24L

A thematic review of the major scientific areas and research controversies in forensic medicine. The approach is mechanistic analysis and evidence-based medicine. Classical forensic medicine is critically analyzed with emphasis on experimental methods to resolve controversies. We also explore how the justice system utilizes medical and scientific data.

Prerequisite: LMP300Y1 or permission of department

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

Introduction

The Latin American Studies program at the University of Toronto provides students in the social sciences and humanities an opportunity to engage and deepen their understanding of Latin American regions, their histories, politics, cultures, economies and societies. Courses encourage students to situate both their special interests and the contemporary debates in fields such as anthropology, political science, geography, literature, history, or sociology within a broader interdisciplinary framework, while at the same time committing themselves to an understanding of the historical, cultural and political experiences of Spanish and Portuguese America. Through an engagement with different texts and faculty expertise, this program trains students in current themes such as postcolonial thinking, critical readings of colonial histories, literary and anthropological genres, comparative politics, politics of indigeneity and human rights, as well as in environmental policies and political economy of Latin America and the Americas as a transnational whole. With the possibility to carry out curricula experience in Latin America and internship stages in Canada, this program also offers an important lead for career development experiences on Latin America. This knowledge is increasingly necessary for Canada, as the country enters into new trade, political, environmental, and academic agreements with our emerging hemispheric partners.

Students seeking counselling and information should visit the LAS website: <http://las.utoronto.ca> and/or contact the Program Coordinator at las.coord@utoronto.ca

Latin American Studies Programs

Latin American Studies Major (Arts Program) - ASMAJ0552

Completion Requirements:

There are no specific first-year requirements. However, first-year students are encouraged to take a Spanish or Portuguese language course ( SPA100Y1, SPA219Y1, SPA220Y1, SPA320Y1, PRT100Y1, PRT110Y1, PRT219Y1, or PRT220Y1), which counts towards the Latin American Studies Major.

(7 FCEs or equivalent. Includes a minimum of 2 FCEs at the 300+-level, at least 0.5 FCE of which must be at the 400-level.)

A. Course work: Students must successfully complete seven full courses or their equivalents sponsored or approved by LAS, as well as satisfy the requirements of their departmental specialization.

Of the required courses:

1. LAS200H1 and LAS201H1 (previously LAS200Y1).
2. LAS300H1 or LAS301H1. Please note that if the subject matter and/or instructor has changed, it will be possible to take, and be credited for, LAS300H1 or LAS301H1 more than once.
3. JQR360H1 or an alternative, but similar, 0.5 FCE course on a combination of quantitative and qualitative reasoning / research design can be taken in consultation with LAS administration.
4. LAS400H1, LAS401H1, or an equivalent 0.5 FCE fourth year-level course, approved by LAS administration.

B. Language: Students must successfully complete (with a minimum grade of 65%) at least the second level of language instruction in Spanish or Portuguese by the end of the third year of study ( SPA220Y1 or PRT220Y1). Spanish Heritage speakers must successfully complete (with a grade of at least 65%) SPA219Y1 (previously SPA319Y1), as this course is considered an equivalent of SPA220Y1. Portuguese Heritage speakers must successfully complete (with a minimum grade of 65%) PRT219Y1, as this course is considered an equivalent of PRT220Y1. Students can also demonstrate equivalent proficiency in the given language through completion of 1 FCE of Spanish and/or Portuguese courses in Latin American topics as approved by LAS administration at a second-year level of instruction or higher.

Latin American Studies Minor (Arts Program) - ASMIN0552

Completion Requirements:

There are no specific first-year requirements. However, first-year students are welcome to take a Spanish or Portuguese language course ( SPA100Y1, SPA219Y1, SPA220Y1, SPA320Y1, PRT100Y1, PRT110Y1, PRT219Y1, or PRT220Y1), which counts towards the Latin American Studies Minor.

(4 FCEs or their equivalent, including LAS200H1, LAS201H1, and at least one full course at the 300+ level.)

1. LAS200H1 and LAS201H1 (previously LAS200Y1).
2. LAS300H1 or LAS301H1.
3. 2.5 FCEs chosen from LAS courses of the list of approved courses eligible for programme credit. A minimum of 0.5 FCE must be from the Social Sciences; another 0.5 FCE must be from the Humanities. ( LAS300H1 can be used to cover the Social Science requirement and LAS301H1, towards the Humanities requirement).

Spanish or Portuguese language study is recommended, but not a requirement.

Courses eligible for programme credit

The following is a list of undergraduate courses offered by academic units affiliated with LAS. Courses not appearing below may be considered for credit in a Latin American Studies program with permission of the Director. For up-to-date information on this list, please check our website: <http://las.utoronto.ca> Students are responsible for checking the co- and prerequisites for all courses in this list. For updates on courses being offered by affiliated units, please check individual departmental websites.

Latin American Studies Courses

LAS200H1 - Introduction to Latin American Studies I: Foundational Themes

Hours: 24L/12T

An introductory course studying the development of Latin American societies from their precolumbian past to the 19th century building of modern nations. Cultural, historical, political, and social topics are examined combining historical documents with art, music and other texts from popular culture.

Exclusion: IAS200Y1, LAS200Y1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

LAS201H1 - Introduction to Latin American Studies II: Current Issues

Hours: 24L/12T

An introductory course studying the development of Latin American societies from the 20th century to the present. Cultural, historical, political, and social topics are examined combining historical documents with art, music and other texts from popular culture.

Exclusion: IAS200Y1 and LAS200Y1

Recommended Preparation: LAS200H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

LAS300H1 - Topics in the Social Sciences

Hours: 24S

The goal of this course is to critically analyze the current economic, social, and political realities of Latin America, based on an insightful knowledge of its past and present. Topics of the course vary depending on the needs of the program and the interests of students.

Prerequisite: IAS200Y1/ LAS200Y1/( LAS200H1, 201H1)/ POL305Y1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

LAS301H1 - Topics in the Humanities

Hours: 24S

The goal of this course is to critically analyze the Latin American social imaginaries as expressed in art, literature and/or film, based on close readings of texts. Topics of the course vary depending on the needs of the program and the interests of students.

Prerequisite: IAS200Y1/ LAS200Y1/ LAS201H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

LAS302H1 - Topics in Latin American Studies

Hours: 24S

The goal of this course is to critically explore debates and perspectives on development and on the politics of inequality in Latin American contexts. Topics of the course may vary, depending on the needs of the program and the interests of students and instructors.

Recommended Preparation: LAS200H1, LAS201H1, LAS300H1, POL305Y1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities; Social Science

JQR360H1 - The Canadian Census: Populations, Migrations and Demographics

Hours: 24L/12T

Examines the Canadian population census through the experience of diasporic groups in Canada. Approaches the census as a statistical tool, an historical source and an ideological project of citizenship and nationalism. Uses census data to explore mathematical and statistical concepts and to integrate numerical ways of thinking with qualitative analysis. (Jointly sponsored by African Studies, Diaspora and Transnational Studies, Caribbean Studies, Equity Studies and Latin American Studies).

Prerequisite: DTS200Y1/ HIS230H1/ HIS231H1/ LAS200H1/ LAS201H1/ NEW120Y1/ NEW150Y1/ NEW220H1/ NEW221H1/ NEW224Y1/ NEW225H1/ NEW226H1/ NEW240Y1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

LAS400H1 - Topics in Latin American Studies

Hours: 24S

An upper level seminar. Topics of the course vary from year to year, depending on the needs of the program and the interests of students. Offered in alternate years.

Prerequisite: LAS200Y1/( LAS200H1, LAS201H1) & LAS300H1/ LAS301H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities; Social Science

LAS401H1 - Latinos in Canada

Hours: 48T/24S

A historical survey of migration from Latin American countries to Canada, this course examines mediation strategies of Latinos as they adjust to a new home: negotiation of national identities, political participation, entrepreneurship, cultural representations, and charitable work. Students engage in service with organization working with/in LatAm communities.

Prerequisite: LAS200H1, LAS201H1, one LAS 300-level course, interview

Recommended Preparation: JQR360: The Canadian Census: Populations, Migrations, and Demographics

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

LAS410H1 - Independent Study

Hours: TBA

This course provides an opportunity for students to do academic research related to Latin American issues under the supervision of a faculty member. The intent is that the student, aided and advised by the supervisor, will read relevant literature, and plan, execute, analyze and report on an original and independent investigation of an appropriate topic. For application forms, please visit the "Resources" section of the programme's website. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: LAS200Y/( LAS200H1, 201H1) and LAS300H/LAS301H

Distribution Requirements: Humanities; Social Science

Life Sciences

The following Life Science departments and programs are listed in this Calendar:

- Biochemistry
- Biology
- Cell & Systems Biology
- Ecology & Evolutionary Biology
- Human Biology
- Immunology
- Laboratory Medicine & Pathobiology
- Molecular Genetics & Microbiology
- Nutritional Sciences
- Pharmaceutical Chemistry
- Pharmacology & Toxicology
- Physiology
- Psychology

Many of the Life Science programs are collaborative programs given by the Faculty of Arts and Science and departments in the Faculty of Medicine. The Life Sciences all focus on the scientific study of life. The study of biological processes has enormous importance for:

- Understanding one's own body and those of other organisms sharing our planet, both in health and sickness;
- Analysing the behaviour of humans and other organisms;
- Understanding the interdependent web of living organisms on the planet, and their evolutionary relationships;
- Preparing for ethical, social and political questions arising from our increasing ability to modify living systems;
- Enhancing our ability to protect the delicate and complex ecological balance that sustains this world.

Today, the biological sciences are experiencing a revolution. Important discoveries occur almost weekly as scientists and students around the world develop and use techniques, theories and approaches. Increasingly, we need people with advanced knowledge and training who can contribute to these discoveries and their application. Equally, we need people who know enough about life sciences generally to make informed judgments about critical issues such as global warming, population growth, the emergence of drug resistance and new diseases, and the degradation of the environment.

On the St. George campus, undergraduate education, graduate education and research in the Life Sciences is carried out in departments within the Faculty of Arts and Science and the Faculty of Medicine.

The programs offered in the Life Sciences are listed below. Admission to all programs occurs after completion of 4.0 credits. Admission to some programs is limited. Please see individual program listings for admission criteria and procedures. Also check the the Arts & Science Program Enrolment web site for details and application procedures.

For students with career goals in the health sciences, please see the "Admission to Other University Faculties/Programs" section under "Admission" in this Calendar.

Specialist Programs

Biochemistry, Biological Chemistry (Chemistry), Bioinformatics and Computational Biology (Biochemistry), Biology, Biophysics (Physics), Cell and Molecular Biology (Cell & Systems Biology), Developmental Biology (Cell & Systems Biology), Ecology and Evolutionary Biology (Ecology & Evolutionary Biology), Environment and Health (School of the Environment), Genes Genetics and Biotechnology (Human Biology), Global Health (Human Biology), Health and Disease (Human Biology), Immunology, Molecular Genetics & Microbiology, Molecular Biophysics (Biochemistry), Neuroscience (Human Biology), Pathobiology, Pharmaceutical Chemistry, Pharmacology, Physiology, Psychology, Psychology Research, Toxicology.

Major Programs

Animal Physiology (Cell & Systems Biology), Biochemistry, Biodiversity and Conservation Biology (Ecology & Evolutionary Biology), Biology, Cell and Molecular Biology (Cell & Systems Biology), Ecology & Evolutionary Biology, Environmental Biology (Ecology & Evolutionary Biology), Environment and Health (School of the Environment), Genes Genetics & Biotechnology (Human Biology), Genome Biology (Biology), Global Health (Human Biology), Health & Disease (Human Biology), Health Care Ethics (Human Biology), Human Biology, Immunology, Neuroscience (Human Biology), Nutritional Sciences, Pharmacology, Physiology, Psychology, Toxicology.

Minor Programs

Biology, Environmental Biology (Ecology & Evolutionary Biology), NUS Environmental Biology (Ecology & Evolutionary Biology), Immunology, Physiology, Psychology.

Animal Use in Laboratories

Laboratory investigations are part of life science programs at the University of Toronto. Programs in life sciences at the University of Toronto include courses that involve observation, handling, or experimentation on animals or on samples derived from animals. The use of animals in teaching and research is regulated by ethical and procedural guidelines and protocols. These are approved on an ongoing basis by the University Animal Care Committee, and follow provincial and federal government rules. We recognize, however, that some students may have strong reservations about personal exposure to any use of animal material in teaching. Students who want to avoid registration in programs or courses that include such labs are, therefore, encouraged to check in advance with the departments involved.

Introduction

Linguistics can trace its roots back to the ancient Sanskrit grammarians, and the study of language is probably as old as language itself. However, the twentieth century has produced an explosion in the scientific study of language. As our understanding of the nature and structure of human language develops, linguistics is becoming relevant to many other areas of research such as Cognitive Science, Artificial Intelligence, Speech-Language Pathology, Audiology, Psychology, and Philosophy.

On its own, linguistics represents an invaluable key to the nature of the mind and the diverse elements of human culture; as a tool, linguistics is unmatched in preparing one for the learning and teaching of languages and for integrating language with technology.

Part-time students should note that most of the summer and evening courses available to them are offered on a rotating basis only. Consequently, students wishing to take such courses should enroll in them at the earliest opportunity after completing the necessary prerequisites.

In addition to the undergraduate curriculum within the Department of Linguistics, there are courses relating to linguistics offered in other departments such as the language departments, Anthropology, Computer Science, Philosophy, and Psychology, and in the Cognitive Science and Artificial Intelligence program.

Students seeking counselling and information should contact the Undergraduate Coordinator (416-978-1767/lin.ungr@chass.utoronto.ca).

Linguistics Programs

Linguistics Specialist (Arts Program) - ASSPE0506

Completion Requirements:

(12 full courses or their equivalent)

Language Requirement (2 FCEs): Two years of study or its equivalent of one non-Germanic, non-Romance language in courses using the spoken language (courses must be approved by the Undergraduate Coordinator). We encourage you to begin this language study in your first or second year.

Required Courses (5.5 FCEs):

First Year: LIN101H1, LIN102H1

Second Year: LIN228H1, LIN229H1, LIN232H1, LIN241H1, LIN251H1

Third and Fourth Years: LIN322H1, LIN331H1, JAL401H1 plus at least one of JLP374H1 or JLP315H1

Elective Courses (4.5 FCEs):

A total of 4.5 FCEs in LIN/JAL/JFL/JLP/JLS (excluding LIN200H1, LIN203H1, LIN204H1) including:

- a 1.5 FCEs at the 300+ level

- a .5 FCE at the 400 level

Up to 1 FCE may be from other departments. Approved courses include ANT329H1, ANT425H1, ANT427H1;

COG250Y1; CSC384H1, CSC401H1, CSC448H1, CSC485H1; FIN220H1, FIN305H1; FRE272H1, FRE273H1, FRE274H1, FRE376H1, FRE378H1, FRE379H1, FRE379H1, FRE383H1, FRE386H1, FRE387H1, FRE388H1, FRE471H1, FRE487H1, FRE488H1, FRE489H1; GER400H1, GER426H1, GER462H1; HPS250H1, HPS322H1, HPS352H1; ITA360H1, ITA363H1; NML315H1, NML463H1; PHL210Y1, PHL245H1, PHL310H1, PHL311H1, PHL325H1, PHL326H1, PHL340H1, PHL342H1, PHL345H1, PHL347H1, PHL351H1, PHL355H1, PHL405H1, PHL451H1, PHL479H1, PHL480H1, PHL481H1; SLA255H1, SLA380H1, SLA452Y1; SPA322H1, SPA324H1, SPA421H1, SPA422H1, SPA423H1; VIC223Y1. Other courses might also qualify; consult the Department of Linguistics for approval.

Linguistics Major (Arts Program) - ASMAJ0506

Completion Requirements:

(7 full courses or their equivalent)

First Year: LIN101H1, LIN102H1

Second Year: LIN228H1, LIN229H1, LIN232H1, LIN241H1, LIN251H1

Third and Fourth Years: A total of 3.5 FCEs in LIN/JAL/JFL/JLP/JLS (excluding LIN200H1, LIN203H1, LIN204H1) including:

- at least one of JLP374H1 or JLP315H1

- 0.5 FCE at the 400 level

- a further 1 FCE at the 300+ level

Linguistics Minor (Arts Program) - ASMIN0506

Completion Requirements:

(4 full courses or their equivalent)

First Year: LIN101H1, LIN102H1

Higher Years: Three FCEs in LIN/JAL/JFL/JLP/JLS (excluding LIN200H1) at least one of which must be at the 300+ level

First Year Seminars

The 199Y1 and 199H1 seminars are designed to provide the opportunity to work closely with an instructor in a class of no more than twenty-four students. These interactive seminars are intended to stimulate the students' curiosity and provide an opportunity to get to know a member of the professorial staff in a seminar environment during the first year of study. Details can be found at www.artsci.utoronto.ca/current/course/fyh-1/.

Linguistics Courses

LIN101H1 - Introduction to Linguistics: Sound Structure

Hours: 24L/12T

Introduction to fundamental principles of linguistics with particular attention to sound structure and its acquisition, processing, and variation; practice in elementary analytic techniques using data from a broad spectrum of languages.

Exclusion: LIN100Y1, LIN101H5, LINA01H3, LINA02H3

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

LIN102H1 - Introduction to Linguistics: Sentence Structure and Meaning

Hours: 24L/12P

Introduction to fundamental principles of linguistics with particular attention to sentence and meaning structure, their acquisition, processing, and variation; practice in elementary analytic techniques using data from a broad spectrum of languages.

Exclusion: LIN100Y1, LIN102H5, LINA01H3, LINA02H3

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

LIN200H1 - Introduction to Language

Hours: 24L/12T

Introduction to Language is a general-interest course on language. Possible topics include: the structure of language; how language changes over time, the social and psychological aspects of language, language and culture, the origin of language, writing systems, and language acquisition. (This course cannot be used as an entrance to programs in linguistics, and cannot be used as a prerequisite to any linguistics courses unless otherwise indicated.)

Exclusion: LIN100Y1, LIN101H1, LIN102H1, LIN101H5, LIN102H5, LINA01H3, LINA02H3, ANT253H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

LIN201H1 - Canadian English

Hours: 24L

A study of English spoken in Canada. Topics include: vocabulary items, usage surveys, non-standard dialect enclaves, regional variation and historical development. Students will develop original research projects in linguistics.

Prerequisite: ( LIN101H1, LIN102H1)/ LIN200H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

LIN203H1 - English Words

Hours: 24L/12T

English has a rich vocabulary. We will learn how it has developed over time, and investigate aspects of the meaning and pronunciation of words. Most of all, we will study how words are put together, so that students will be able to recognize and analyze unfamiliar words.

Exclusion: LIN203H5

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

LIN204H1 - English Grammar

Hours: 24L/12T

How the English language works: students analyze a wide variety of English grammatical structures and learn how they vary across dialects and change through time.

Exclusion: LIN204H5, LINB18H3

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

LIN228H1 - Phonetics

Hours: 24L/12T

Phonetics is a linguistics course that investigates the sounds most commonly used in languages from an articulatory and acoustic point of view, with practice in their recognition and production. Students will learn the International Phonetic Alphabet (IPA) and practice transcribing a wide variety of speech sounds.

Exclusion: LIN228H5, LINB09H3

Recommended Preparation: LIN101H1/ LIN200H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

LIN229H1 - Sound Patterns in Language

Hours: 24L/12T

The nature and organization of phonological systems, with practical work in linguistic analysis.

Prerequisite: LIN101H1, LIN228H1

Exclusion: LIN229H5, LINB04H3

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

LIN232H1 - Syntactic Patterns in Language

Hours: 24L/12T

The nature and organization of syntactic systems; their relation to semantic systems and the linguistic organization of discourse; practical work in linguistic analysis.

Prerequisite: LIN102H1

Exclusion: LIN232H5, LINB06H3

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

LIN241H1 - Introduction to Semantics

Hours: 24L/12T

An introduction to meaning within linguistics and the interpretation of language in context. Topics include logical and semantic relations, pragmatic concepts such as presupposition and implicature, the nature of thematic roles, quantifiers and scope relations, the expressions of temporal and modal relations in natural language.

Prerequisite: LIN102H1

Exclusion: LIN247H5, LINC12H3

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

LIN251H1 - Introduction to Sociolinguistics

Hours: 24L/12T

How does linguistic variation construct identity? Introduction to recent sociolinguistic literature on language contact, multilingualism, code-switching, expressions of ethnic solidarity and regional identity, sex and gender differentiation, dialect geography, sociophonetics, perceptual dialectology, diffusion of norms in mobile populations, documentation of variation in lesser studied languages, and changes across the life-span.

Prerequisite: LIN101H1, LIN102H1

Exclusion: LIN256H5, LINB20H3

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

LIN299Y1 - Research Opportunity Program

Hours: TBA

Credit course for supervised participation in faculty research project in linguistics. Details at <http://www.artsci.utoronto.ca/current/course/rop>. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

LIN305H1 - Quantitative Methods in Linguistics

Hours: 36L

Principles of research design, data collection, and a wide variety of statistical techniques for research in various subfields of linguistics.

Prerequisite: LIN101H1, LIN102H1 and one full course in LIN/JAL/JFL/JLP

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

LIN306H1 - Language Diversity and Language Universals

Hours: 24L

This linguistics course examines cross-linguistic typological features found in the languages of the world. Special attention is given to describing morphological and syntactic patterns found cross-linguistically. The goal of the course is to draw on the diversity of languages in order to uncover language universals. (Not offered every year)

Prerequisite: LIN232H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

JLP315H1 - Language Acquisition

Hours: 36L

Infants' abilities at birth, prelinguistic development, the first words, phonological, syntactic and semantic development. Social variables influencing language acquisition, bilingualism, models of development, language play. (Sponsored by the Departments of Linguistics and Psychology, but administered solely by the Dept. of Linguistics).

Exclusion: PSY315H5, PLIC24H3

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

LIN322H1 - Phonological Theory

Hours: 36L

Basic issues in current phonological theory. Problems focusing on analysis and theory. (Students who want to pursue graduate studies in linguistics are strongly advised to include this course in their program.)

Prerequisite: LIN229H1

Exclusion: LIN322H5, LINC02H3

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

LIN323H1 - Acoustic Phonetics

Hours: 24L

This linguistics course is an introduction to the acoustic phonetics of the vocal tract, including acoustic properties of speech and its analysis using instrumental techniques.

Prerequisite: LIN101H1, LIN102H1, LIN228H1

Exclusion: LIN328H5

Distribution Requirements: Science

JAL328H1 - Writing Systems

Hours: 36L

Introduction to writing systems; their historical development, their relationship to language, and their role in culture and society. (Given by the Departments of Anthropology and Linguistics) (Not offered every year)

Prerequisite: ANT100Y1/ LIN101H1/ LIN200H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

LIN331H1 - Syntactic Theory

Hours: 36L

An introduction to the foundations and formal framework of current generative syntax, concentrating on Chomsky's Minimalist theory. (Students who want to pursue graduate studies in linguistics are strongly advised to include this course in their program.)

Prerequisite: LIN232H1

Exclusion: LIN331H5, LINC11H3

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

LIN333H1 - Morphological Patterns in Language

Hours: 36L

The nature and organization of morphological systems, with practical work in linguistic analysis.

Prerequisite: LIN229H1, LIN232H1

Exclusion: LIN231H5, LINB10H3

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

LIN341H1 - Semantic Theory

Hours: 36L

This linguistics course focuses on the study of natural language semantics and the relation between interpretation and syntactic structure. Topics include predication and quantification, scope and anaphora, problems of discourse analysis, the interpretation of different types of pronouns, and ellipsis.

Prerequisite: LIN241H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

LIN351H1 - Sociolinguistic Patterns in Language

Hours: 24L/12T

In this sociolinguistics course, we explore linguistic variation and its social implications, especially the quantitative study of phonological and grammatical features and their correlations with age, sex, ethnicity, and other social variables.

Prerequisite: LIN251H1, or permission of the instructor

Distribution Requirements: Humanities; Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

JAL353H1 - Conversational Structures

Hours: 36L

Conversational Structures in an introduction to the detailed observation of ordinary conversational interaction, and to some of the main ways in which such interaction is organized. The focus is on developing the capacity to discern orderliness in the details of everyday interaction, and beginning independent research in this area. (Given by the Departments of Anthropology and Linguistics). Not offered every year.

Prerequisite: ( LIN101H1, LIN102H1)/ LIN200H1/ ANT253H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

JAL355H1 - Language and Gender

Hours: 24L

An introduction to some of the principal questions of feminist theory, as viewed from sociolinguistics. Topics include: socialization into gendered discourse patterns, cultural and ethnic differences in gendered interactions; the role of language and gender in legal, medical and labour settings; multilingualism, migration, imperialism and nationalism; sexuality, desire and queer linguistics, language, gender and globalization.

Prerequisite: One FCE at the 200-level in LIN/ANT/JAL/SOC/WGS

Recommended Preparation: ANT204H1/ ANT253H1/ SOC200H1/ SOC214H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

LIN362H1 - Historical Linguistics

Hours: 36L

An introduction to diachronic linguistics. Theories of language change; the comparative method, internal reconstruction, linguistic geography, the origin of languages; language death.

Prerequisite: LIN229H1

Exclusion: LIN360H5

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

JLP374H1 - Psychology of Language

Hours: 36L

In Psychology of Language, we investigate human and other animal communication, structure of human language, word meaning and semantic memory, psychological studies of syntax, bilingualism, language and thought, language errors and disorders. (Sponsored by the Departments of Linguistics and Psychology, but administered solely by the Dept. of Linguistics).

Prerequisite: One FCE from LIN228H1, LIN229H1, LIN232H1, LIN241H1, PSY260H1, PSY270H1, PSY280H1, PSY290H1, COG250Y1

Exclusion: LIN258H5, PSY374H5, PLIC55H3

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

LIN398H0 - Research Excursions

Hours: TBA

An instructor-supervised group linguistics project in an off-campus setting. Details at <http://www.artsci.utoronto.ca/current/course/rep>. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

LIN398Y0 - Research Excursions

Hours: TBA

An instructor-supervised group project in an off-campus setting. Details at <http://www.artsci.utoronto.ca/current/course/rep>. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

LIN399Y1 - Research Opportunity Program

Hours: TBA

Credit course for supervised participation in faculty research project in linguistics. Details at <http://www.artsci.utoronto.ca/current/course/rop>. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

JAL401H1 - Field Linguistics

Hours: 48P

Field Linguistics provides practice in language analysis based on elicited data from a native speaker of an indigenous or foreign language, emphasizing procedures and techniques. (Given by the Departments of Anthropology and Linguistics)

Prerequisite: Completion of LIN322H1 and LIN331H1 or permission of the instructor

Exclusion: LIND46H3

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

LIN402H1 - Linguistic Typology and Constructed Languages

Hours: 36L

This course uses constructed languages (e.g., Esperanto, Klingon, Dothraki) to explore crosslinguistic patterns in language structure. Topics include phonological and morphosyntactic typology, language change over time, effects of culture and environment on language, history of language construction, standards in writing descriptive grammars, and critical analysis of research on language diversity.

Prerequisite: 5 required 200-level courses ( LIN228H1, LIN229H1, LIN232H1, LIN241H1, LIN251H1), AND LIN322H1 Phonological Theory OR LIN331H1 Syntactic Theory, or permission of the instructor.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

LIN405H1 - Advanced Quantitative Methods in Linguistics

Hours: 36L

This course introduces advanced statistical modeling techniques using the statistical software R, tailored specifically to the needs of linguistic research.

Prerequisite: LIN305H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

LIN409H1 - Structure of a Specific Language

Hours: 24L

Topics may include: the phonological, morphological, syntactic, and semantic systems; the writing system; a brief diachronic sketch; linguistic variation and sociolinguistic aspects. (Not offered every year).

Prerequisite: LIN228H1, LIN229H1, LIN232H1 + 1 FCE at THE 300+ level in LIN/JAL/JFL/JLP/JLS

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

LIN423H1 - Phonetic Analysis

Hours: 36S

This course provides students with hands-on experience with main methods of linguistic phonetic (acoustic and articulatory) analysis through project-based group work and training in writing up experimental results.

Prerequisite: LIN323H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities; Social Science

LIN429H1 - Research in Phonology

Hours: 24S

Research in Phonological Theory, including guided instruction in how to undertake critical reading of primary literature, develop an original topic, write a research paper, an abstract, a handout, and give an oral presentation. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: LIN322H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

LIN432H1 - Advanced Morphology

Hours: 24L

Current research involving morphology, including the role of morphology in the grammar, the nature of inflectional paradigms, affixes affecting grammatical relations constitute this linguistics course. Each year one topic will be a special focus and will be dealt with at length. (Not offered every year)

Prerequisite: LIN333H1

Corequisite: LIN331H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

LIN439H1 - Research in Syntax

Hours: 24S

Research in Syntactic Theory, including guided instruction in how to undertake critical reading of primary literature, develop an original topic, write a linguistics research paper, an abstract, a handout, and give an oral presentation. Not eligible for CR/NCR option. (Not offered every year)

Prerequisite: LIN331H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

LIN441H1 - Intensional Semantics

Hours: 24L

This linguistics course covers topics in intensional semantics, including formal semantics of tense, aspect, modality, and attitude verbs. (Not offered every year)

Prerequisite: LIN341H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

LIN451H1 - Urban Dialectology

Hours: 24L

Ways in which urban sub-cultures differ in their use of language. How speakers dialects reflect their ethnicity, group affiliation, and other social categories. Practice in dialect analysis based on data from the speech community, emphasizing procedures and techniques.

Prerequisite: LIN351H1 plus 2 FCE at the 200+ level in LIN/JAL/JLP

Distribution Requirements: Humanities; Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

LIN456H1 - Language Variation and Change: Theory and Analysis

Hours: 36L

The theory and practice of sociolinguistics. The inter-relationship between language and society from the perspective of collecting, organizing, and analyzing patterns in natural speech data, including field methods and quantitative methods for correlating linguistic and social variables.

Prerequisite: LIN351H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities; Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

LIN458H1 - Revitalizing Languages

Hours: 24L

A study of language endangerment and language revitalization efforts, focusing on Indigenous languages of Canada. Topics include language classification and a survey of major features of the languages, what it means for a language to be endangered, the factors that contribute to language shift, and efforts to reverse language shift, including discussion of literacy, documentary linguistics and dictionaries.

Prerequisite: LIN101H1, LIN102H1 plus 2 FCE at the 200+ level in LIN/JAL

Distribution Requirements: Humanities; Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

JLP471H1 - Advanced Psycholinguistics

Hours: 24S

Seminar in advanced topics in psycholinguistics. Content varies from year to year. (Sponsored by the Departments of Linguistics and Psychology, but administered solely by the Dept. of Linguistics).

Prerequisite: JLP374H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

JLS472H1 - Child Language Disorders

Hours: 36L

Students are introduced to the etiologies and characteristics of speech and language disorders in children, associated with autism, intellectual disabilities, and specific language impairment. Theoretical underpinnings of the major intervention approaches for children with speech and language disorders are discussed. (Given by the Departments of Linguistics and Speech Language Pathology)

Prerequisite: LIN101H1, LIN102H1, LIN228H1, and 1 FCE at the 300+ level

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

JLS473H1 - Adult Speech and Language Disorders

Hours: 36L

Students are introduced to the etiologies and characteristics of speech and language disorders in adults, associated with aphasia, neurodegenerative disorders, and head injuries. The effects of communication handicaps on the individual and theoretical underpinnings of the major intervention approaches for adults are discussed. (Given by the Departments of Linguistics and Speech Language Pathology)

Prerequisite: LIN101H1, LIN102H1, and one FCE at the 300+ level

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

JLS474H1 - Disorders of Speech and Language

Hours: 36L

Normal and deviant development of speech and language; a survey of the disorders of human communication; an overview of intervention for disorders of speech, voice, language, swallowing and hearing; the effects of human communication handicaps on the individual, family, and community; theoretical and philosophical aspects of disordered communication. (Given by the Departments of Linguistics and Speech Language Pathology) (Not offered every year).

Prerequisite: JLP315H1/ JLP374H1, and one FCE at the 300+ level

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

JLS475H1 - Literacy and Reading Disorders

Hours: 36L

Literacy and Reading Disorders is an introduction to the typical development of emergent literacy skills, including oral language, phonological awareness, narratives, and emergent writing in children; a discussion of the effects of language disorders on emergent literacy skills; a survey of approaches to intervention for children's emergent literacy skills. (Given by the Departments of Linguistics and Speech Language Pathology)

Prerequisite: LIN101H1, LIN102H1, and one FCE at the 300+ level

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

JLS476H1 - Linguistics in the Workforce: Clinical Practice and Research

Hours: 36S

This course exposes students to research and practical approaches in the context of health professions of relevance to linguistics students, especially audiology and speech-language pathology. Students learn about evidence-informed practice, research methodologies, practice approaches and theories in the health professions. Students will be poised to benefit from optional service learning placements during or following the course, in research laboratories or clinical settings. Successful completion of this course provides students with exposure and experience of use in their applications to audiology, speech-language pathology, and other clinical programs and in their future health or graduate studies. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: LIN101H1, LIN102H1, and one FCE at the 200+ level

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

LIN481H1 - Introduction to Analysis and Argumentation

Hours: 36L

Linguistic argumentation, practice in constructing and evaluating hypotheses, and critical evaluation of representative articles. Emphasis on the structure of arguments rather than on the analysis of a particular language.

Prerequisite: LIN322H1/ LIN331H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

LIN490H1 - Special Topics in Linguistics

Hours: 24S

A specific topic in linguistics will be explored in depth in Special Topics in Linguistics. Students will learn about a narrowly-focused area of linguistics, including guided instruction in how to undertake critical reading of primary literature, develop a research topic and write a linguistics research paper. Not eligible for CR/NCR option. (Not offered every year)

Prerequisite: LIN228H1, LIN229H1, LIN232H1, LIN241H1 and LIN251H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

LIN495Y1 - Individual Project

Hours: TBA

A research or reading project in linguistics undertaken by the student under the supervision of a staff member. Open only when a faculty member is willing and available to supervise. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: Permission of the Department

LIN496H1 - Individual Project

Hours: TBA

A research or reading project in linguistics undertaken by the student under the supervision of a staff member. Open only when a faculty member is willing and available to supervise. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: Permission of the Department

Distribution Requirements: Humanities; Social Science

LIN497Y1 - Individual Project

Hours: TBA

A research or reading project in linguistics undertaken by the student under the supervision of a staff member. Open only when a faculty member is willing and available to supervise. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: Permission of the Department

Distribution Requirements: Humanities; Social Science

LIN498H1 - Individual Project

Hours: TBA

A research or reading project in linguistics undertaken by the student under the supervision of a staff member. Open only when a faculty member is willing and available to supervise. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: Permission of the Department

Distribution Requirements: Humanities; Social Science

LIN499H1 - Individual Project

Hours: TBA

A research or reading project in linguistics undertaken by the student under the supervision of a staff member. Open only when a faculty member is willing and available to supervise. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: Permission of the Department

Distribution Requirements: Humanities; Social Science

Materials Science

Materials science is the study of the structure, properties and applications of all types of materials including metals, ceramics, glasses and polymers. Currently many exciting scientific developments are in the materials field. Notable advances have been made recently in studies of amorphous metals, the quasicrystalline state, liquid crystals, semiconductors, nanostructured materials, high critical temperature superconductors, biomaterials, high strength polymers, materials processing techniques such as ion implantation and laser melting, and in new categories of engineered materials such as advanced industrial ceramics or composite materials.

Materials science is interdisciplinary, drawing on the basic sciences of chemistry and physics and on more applied subjects such as metallurgy, ceramics and polymer science. Its tools and techniques include electron microscopy, x-ray diffraction, surface analysis using Auger emission spectroscopy, x-ray photoelectron spectroscopy, etc.

Introduction to Materials Science, MSE 101H1, is designed to appeal to a wide variety of student interests. Other materials science courses are available to students having the prescribed prerequisites and the approval of the Undergraduate Student Counsellor. The specialist program in Materials Science is coordinated jointly by the Departments of Chemistry and Materials Science and Engineering. For further information on the program, consult the undergraduate coordinators for both departments.

Materials Science Programs

Materials Science Specialist (Science Program) - ASSPE2424

Description:

Consult Professor Dwight Seferos, Department of Chemistry.

This program draws both on the basic sciences of chemistry and physics, and on the more applied areas such as metallurgy or ceramics. Courses dealing with these latter fields are offered through the Department of Materials Science in the Faculty of Applied Science and Engineering. This would be an appropriate program for students with career interests in solid state, polymer or composite materials industries, or for graduate work in either chemistry or materials science, with an appropriate choice of options. Students may follow the Materials Chemistry path by taking research course CHM499Y1 or the Materials Science and Engineering path by taking research course MSE498Y1.

Enrolment Requirements:

This is a limited enrolment program. All students who request the program and obtain at least the specified mark(s) in the required courses will be eligible to enrol. Consult see the Arts & Science Program Enrolment website for application procedures.

Courses for admission: CHM135H1/CHM139H and CHM136H1/CHM138H or CHM151Y1 with a minimum mark of 63%.

Completion Requirements:

(14 full courses or their equivalent, including at least one 400-series full-course equivalent)

First Year: ( BIO120H1, BIO130H1/ BIO220H1); CHM151Y1 (strongly recommended)/( CHM135H1/CHM139H, CHM136H1/CHM138H); ( MAT135H1, MAT136H1)/ MAT137Y1/ MAT157Y1

First or Second Year: ( PHY131H1, PHY132H1)/( PHY151H1, PHY152H1)

Second Year and Higher Years:

1. MSE101H1
2. ( CHM220H1/ CHM222H1, CHM223H1/MSE202H1), CHM238Y1, CHM247H1/CHM249H1
3. MSE219H1, MSE318H1, MSE335H1
4. CHM325H1, CHM327H1, CHM338H1, CHM343H1/ CHM348H1, CHM426H1, CHM434H1
5. At least three of the following one of which must be a 400-series: MSE302H1, MSE316H1, MSE343H1, CHM434H1, CHM446H1, MSE415H1, MSE430H1, MSE432H1, MSE440H1, MSE442H1, MSE451H1, MSE458H1, MSE459H1, MSE461H1
6. CHM499Y1/ MSE498Y1

Regarding Materials Science Courses

Notes

1. The MSE courses below are administered by the Faculty of Applied Science and Engineering, and are subject to the rules and regulations of that

Faculty, including those for term dates, examination periods and deferral practices.

2. The CHM courses listed for the Materials Science program are described in the Chemistry section of this Calendar.
3. Enrollment in MSE courses is done through your own College Registrar. It is not necessary to petition as the courses listed below have been pre-approved for this Specialist Program.
4. Deferment of Final Exams is NOT generally granted in the Faculty of Applied Science and Engineering.

Materials Science Courses

MSE101H1 - Introduction to Materials Science

Hours: 39L/13T/13P

This is an introductory course in materials science examining the fundamentals of atomic structure, the nature of bonding in materials, crystal structure and defects, and phase equilibria. These basic principles provide the foundation for an exploration of structure-property relationships in metals, ceramics, and polymers, with emphasis on mechanical properties. The properties of materials then form the basis for an introduction to materials selection in design.

Prerequisite: OAC/Grade 12 U Chemistry, Physics, and Calculus

MSE219H1 - Structure and Characterization of Materials

Hours: 39L/13T/39P

Introduction to two and three-dimensional crystallography and crystal structures of solids. Topics include: Pearson and Hermann-Mauguin symbols, reciprocal space, point group and space group symmetry analysis, stereographic projections. Introduction to tensor analysis of crystalline material properties, and symmetry breakdown by imperfections in crystals. Experimental techniques used to interpret structure and chemistry of solids and their defects will be covered theoretically and in the laboratory including: X-ray diffractometry, optical, electron and scanning probe microscopy, and surface/bulk spectroscopies based on optical, X-ray, electron and ion-beam analysis methods.

MSE316H1 - Mechanical Behaviour of Materials

Hours: 39L/13T/20P

The mechanical behaviour of engineering materials including metals, alloys, ceramics and polymeric materials. The following topics will be discussed: macro- and micro-structural response of materials to external loads; load-displacement and stress-strain relationships, processes and mechanisms of elastic, visco-elastic, plastic and creep deformation, crystallographic aspects of plastic flow, effect of defects on mechanical behaviour, strain hardening theory, strengthening mechanisms and mechanical testing.

MSE318H1 - Phase Transformations

Hours: 39L/13T/20P

Thermodynamics and phase stability. Free energy diagrams. Phase transformations in unary systems: primary crystallization, amorphization, crystallization of amorphous materials, recrystallization. Phase transformations in binary systems: solidification, precipitation from solid solution, binary invariant reactions. Diffusional transformations, nucleation and growth, diffusionless or martensitic transformations. Second order transformations. Spinodal, massive and order-disorder transformations. Influence of phase transformations on microstructure and properties.

MSE335H1 - Materials Physics

Hours: 39L/13T/0P

Application of solid state physics to describe properties of materials. Thermal properties of solids: lattice vibrations (phonons), heat capacity, thermal conductivity. Electrical properties of metals: simple circuits, resistivity of metals (classical and quantum descriptions), Seebeck, Peltier, and Thomson effects. Electrical properties of semiconductors: band structure and occupancy, conductivity, Hall effect, simple devices. Electrical properties of insulators: polarization, capacitance, optical properties, ferroelectric and piezoelectric materials. Magnetic properties: diamagnetism and paramagnetism, ferromagnetic and ferrimagnetic materials, magnetic domains, B-H curves.

MSE342H1 - Nanomaterials

Hours: 26L/13T

An introduction to nanostructured materials. Topics include: the different classes of nanomaterials, synthesis and characterization methods, changes in physical properties on the nanometer scale, areas of application of nanostructured materials and materials issues in nanotechnology. (Quarter term course taught over the entire Fall term, worth .25 credits).

MSE343H1 - Biomaterials

Hours: 26L/13P

The course will provide an overview of the applications of materials (metals, polymers, ceramics, composites and modified tissue-based materials) for surgical implant fabrication. The important considerations in selection of materials for fabrication of these devices with an introduction to the biological responses expected with implantation will also be discussed. The concept of biocompatibility will be introduced as well as the essential elements of biology related to an understanding of this criterion for biomaterial selection and implant design. (Quarter term course taught over the entire Fall term, worth .25 credits).

MSE351H1 - Design and Sim of Materials Processes

Hours: 36L/12T/24P

Various phenomena involved in materials processing and design will be modeled using a software package based on the finite element method. Examples will include aspects of solid state diffusion, structural stress, heat transfer, fluid flow and chemical reactions. The problems will involve unsteady state as well as 3 dimensional systems. Multi-physics phenomena such as heating of an electric component by an electric current, resulting in a change in physical properties affecting thermal properties will also be introduced. The main objective of this course is to introduce students to the use of a commercial software package to solve fairly common but complex physical and chemical phenomena related to the materials industry.

MSE430H1 - Electronic Materials

Hours: 26L/13T

Materials parameters and electronic properties of semiconductors are discussed as basic factors in the engineering of semiconductor devices. Materials parameters are related to preparation and processing methods, and thus to the electronic properties. The implications of materials parameters and properties on selected simple devices are discussed.

MSE440H1 - Biomaterial Processing and Properties

Hours: 39L/13T

Currently used biomaterials for formation of surgical implants and dental restorations include selected metals, polymers, ceramics, and composites. The selection and processing of these materials to satisfy biocompatibility and functional requirements for applications in selected areas will be presented. Materials used for forming scaffolds for tissue engineering, and strategies for repair, regeneration and augmentation of degenerated or traumatized tissues will be reviewed with a focus on biocompatibility issues and required functionality for the intended applications.

MSE451H1 - Advanced Physical Properties of Structural Nanomaterials

Hours: 39L/13T/39P

This course deals with the physical properties of bulk nanostructured materials. Included are mechanical properties (elastic behavior, tensile and compressive strength, creep, wear and fatigue properties) electrical properties (electrical transport phenomena, electrical resistivity) magnetic properties (paramagnetic, diamagnetic, soft and hard ferromagnetic, superparamagnetic and antiferromagnetic properties), thermodynamic properties (interfacial enthalpy, thermal stability, phase transformations, heat capacity). The considerable differences observed for nanocrystalline solids compared to conventional polycrystalline and amorphous solids will be discussed in terms of the microstructural differences for these materials.

MSE459H1 - Synthesis of Nanostructured Materials

Hours: 39L/26P

Various synthesis techniques to produce nanostructured materials will be introduced. These include methods involving the vapor phase (physical and chemical vapor deposition, organometallic chemical vapor deposition), the liquid phase (rapid solidification, spark erosion), the solid phase, (mechanical attrition, equal channel deformation) as well techniques producing these structures from solution (electrodeposition, electroless processing, precipitation). Secondary processing techniques to produce final products or devices will also be discussed.

MSE461H1 - Engineered Ceramics

Hours: 39L/24T

The unique combinations of physical, electrical, magnetic, and thermomechanical properties exhibited by advanced technical ceramics has led to a wide range of applications including automobile exhaust sensors and fuel cells, high speed cutting tool inserts and ball bearings, thermal barrier coatings for turbine engines, and surgical implants. This course examines the crystal and defect structures which determine the electrical and mass transport behaviours and the effects of microstructure on optical, magnetic, dielectric, and thermomechanical properties. The influence of these structure-property relations on the performance of ceramic materials in specific applications such as sensors, solid oxide fuel cells, magnets, and structural components is explored.

MSE498Y1 - Design and Research Project

Hours: 156P

The students, alone or preferably organized in small groups, select a project involving original research and design work which is normally closely related to the current work of a staff member, and in close collaboration with an external partner (e.g. local industry, hospital, government lab). The students conceive and carry out a research plan under the supervision of the academic staff member usually with an external liaison person as a resource person. The project must contain a significant design component. The project work may be carried out in the department, at the external site, or both locations. The final grade will be based on interim and final written reports, oral presentations at the end of each term and a final poster presentation.

Exclusion: CHM499Y1

Introduction

Mathematics is the study of shape, quantity, pattern and structure. It serves as a tool for our scientific understanding of the world. Knowledge of mathematics opens gateways to many different professions such as economics, finance, computing, engineering, and the natural sciences. Aside from practical considerations, mathematics can be a highly satisfying intellectual pursuit, with career opportunities in teaching and research.

The department counts many of Canada's leading research mathematicians among its faculty. Our mathematics programs are flexible, allowing students to select courses based on specialization and interest. Contents range from calculus and linear algebra in the non-specialist programs to more advanced topics such as real and complex analysis, ordinary and partial differential equations, differential geometry, topology, commutative algebra, graph theory, mathematical logic, number theory, and functional analysis.

The department offers eight specialist programs in addition to the major and minor programs.

In the Mathematics, Applied Mathematics, Mathematics and Physics, and Mathematics and Philosophy specialist programs, students acquire an in-depth knowledge and expertise in mathematical reasoning and the language of mathematics, with its emphasis on rigor and precision. These programs are designed for students wishing to pursue graduate studies; most of the graduates of these programs continue on to graduate school with some of them gaining admission to the world's best graduate schools.

The Mathematical Applications in Economics and Finance specialist program is designed to prepare students for direct entry into the world of finance. It can also serve as a gateway to an MBA or a Master of Finance degree, possibly followed by an eventual doctorate.

The Mathematics and its Applications specialist programs offer three areas of concentration: teaching, physical science, and probability/statistics. These specialist programs are designed as 'enhanced double majors.' The required courses for these concentrations are almost identical for the first two years, but they diverge in the upper years. Students in these programs can also continue on to graduate studies.

The Major and Minor programs are intended for students who want to combine mathematical skills with work in other subjects. These programs require less coursework than the specialist programs, but still require the completion of some upper year mathematics courses.

Students interested in becoming K-12 teachers should consider applying to the combined degree program --- a six-year program that leads to an Honours Bachelor of Science (HBS) from the University of Toronto and a Master of Teaching (MT) from the Ontario Institute for Studies in Education (OISE). The HBS part of this program involves completing a Math Major, a Minor in Education and Society (offered by Victoria College) and a Minor in an area that would lead to a second "teachable" subject. Please see the Victoria College website for more information.

The Professional Experience Year program (PEY: see <http://engineeringcareers.utoronto.ca/students/pey/>) is available to eligible full-time Specialist and Major students after their second or third year of study. The PEY program is an optional 12-16 month work term providing industrial experience. It gives students an opportunity to apply their skills in the context of a paid internship.

The Department of Mathematics offers introductory courses for incoming students to foster the development of mathematics skills.

PUMP Level 1 and PUMP Level 2 (Preparing for University Mathematics Program)

Both programs are non-credit courses that equip students with the necessary background knowledge required to succeed in first year mathematics courses. The content for the courses may be viewed at <http://www.math.toronto.edu/cms/undergraduate-program/current-students-ug/pump-courses-2/>.

PUMP Level 1 provides a quick math review during the months of July and August, for students who would like to take six weeks prior to the start of the first semester to practice pre-calculus math skills. During other terms, it is scheduled as a longer course, for students who have not taken the appropriate high school mathematics prerequisites for university calculus and linear algebra. This course is recommended for any student who wish to close any existing gap between high school math and University level math courses or anyone who wishes to review high school math before attempting University level math or other science courses.

PUMP Level 2, is an Introduction to Proofs course. The curriculum provides background knowledge that is a preparation for MAT137Y1, MAT157Y1, MAT240H1, MAT247H1, MAT237Y1, and other proof-oriented advanced courses. The course covers the reading and comprehension of mathematical statements, analyzing definitions and properties, formulation of arguments, and strategies for proofs. This course is recommended for any student who wish to add to their knowledge by joining the group of students who will commence their preparation for the more challenging concepts in the advance analytical programs, during the months of July and August.

Visit <http://www.math.toronto.edu/cms/potential-students-ug/> for up-to-date information on the availability of PUMP Level 1 and PUMP Level 2.

If you have questions about the content of these courses, e-mail inquiries@math.utoronto.ca.

Course Change Dates

Some of the more advanced first- and second-year courses have "change dates" during the first few weeks of the academic year. The "change date" occurs after the general "add date" for courses and before the "drop date" for courses. For example, a student enrolled in MAT157Y1 can change their enrolment to MAT137Y1 or MAT135H1 at any time on or before the change date. For deadlines and further details, see <http://www.math.toronto.edu/cms/change-dates>

Mathematics Programs

Mathematics Specialist (Science Program) - ASSPE1165

Completion Requirements:

(12.5 FCE, including at least 3.0 FCE at the 400-level)

The Specialist Program in Mathematics is directed toward students who hope to pursue mathematical research as a career.

First Year:

MAT157Y1, MAT240H1, MAT247H1

Second Year:

MAT257Y1, MAT267H1

Second and Higher Years:

1. At least 0.5 FCE with a significant emphasis on ethics and social responsibility: ENV333H1/ ETH201H1/ ETH210H1/ ETH220H1/ HPS200H1/ IMC200H1/ JPH441H1/ PHL265H1/ PHL273H1/ PHL275H1/ PHL281H1 or another H course approved by the Department.

NOTE: Students may use the CR/NCR option with this H course and have it count toward the Mathematics Specialist program. Students in the VIC program may also use VIC172Y1.

2. MAT327H1

Third and Fourth Years:

1. MAT347Y1, MAT354H1, MAT357H1, MAT363H1/ MAT367H1 ( MAT363H1 can be taken in the second year, if desired)

2. 2.0 FCE of: MAT309H1, MAT351Y1, ANY 400-level APM/MAT

3. 3.0 FCE of APM/MAT at the 300+ level, including at least 2.0 FCE at the 400 level (these may include options above not already chosen)

4. MAT477H1

NOTE:

1. The Department recommends that PHY151H1 and PHY152H1 be taken in the First Year, and that CSC148H1 and STA257H1 be taken during the program. If you do not have a year-long course in programming from high school, the Department strongly recommends that you take CSC108H1 prior to CSC148H1.

2. Students planning to take specific fourth year courses should ensure that they have the necessary second and third year prerequisites.

3. Students with a CGPA of 3.5 and above may apply to have graduate level math courses count towards their 400-level course requirements.

Applied Mathematics Specialist (Science Program) - ASSPE2053

Completion Requirements:

(13.0-13.5 FCE, including at least 1.5 FCE at the 400-level)

The Specialist Program in Applied Mathematics is directed toward students who hope to pursue applied mathematical research as a career.

First Year:

MAT157Y1, MAT240H1, MAT247H1, ( CSC108H1, CSC148H1)/ CSC150H1

Second Year:

MAT257Y1, MAT267H1, STA257H1, STA261H1

Second and Higher Years:

1. At least 0.5 FCE with a significant emphasis on ethics and social responsibility: ENV333H1/ ETH201H1/ ETH210H1/ ETH220H1/ HPS200H1/ IMC200H1/ JPH441H1/ PHL265H1/ PHL273H1/ PHL275H1/ PHL281H1 or another H course approved by the Department.

NOTE: Students may use the CR/NCR option with this H course and have it count toward the program. Students in the VIC program may also use VIC172Y1.

Third and Fourth Years:

1. MAT351Y1, MAT327H1, MAT347Y1, MAT354H1, MAT357H1, MAT363H1/ MAT367H1 ( MAT363H1 can be taken in the second year, if desired), STA347H1
2. At least 1.5 FCE chosen from: MAT332H1, MAT344H1, MAT454H1, MAT457H1, MAT458H1, MAT464H1, STA302H1, STA457H1, CSC336H1, CSC436H1, CSC446H1, CSC456H1
3. 1.0 FCE from: APM421H1, APM426H1, APM441H1, APM446H1, APM461H1, APM462H1, APM466H1

NOTE:

1. The Department recommends that PHY151H1 and PHY152H1 be taken in the First Year, and that CSC148H1 and STA257H1 be taken during the program. If you do not have a year-long course in programming from high school, the Department strongly recommends that you take CSC108H1 prior to CSC148H1.

2. Students planning to take specific fourth year courses should ensure that they have the necessary second and third year prerequisites.

3. Students with a CGPA of 3.5 and above may apply to have graduate level math courses count towards their 400-level course requirements.

Mathematics and Physics Specialist (Science Program) - ASSPE0397

Completion Requirements:

(14.5-15.5 FCE, including at least 1.0 FCE at the 400-level)

First Year:

MAT157Y1, MAT240H1, MAT247H1, PHY151H1, PHY152H1

Second Year:

MAT257Y1, MAT267H1, PHY224H1, PHY250H1, PHY252H1, PHY254H1, PHY256H1

Second and Higher Years:

1. At least 0.5 FCE with a significant emphasis on ethics and social responsibility: ENV333H1/ ETH201H1/ ETH210H1/ ETH220H1/ HPS200H1/ IMC200H1/ JPH441H1/ PHL265H1/ PHL273H1/ PHL275H1/ PHL281H1 or another H course approved by the Department.

NOTE: Students may use the CR/NCR option with this H course and have it count toward the program. Students in the VIC program may also use VIC172Y1.

2. Note: PHY252H1 and PHY324H1 may be taken in the 2nd or 3rd year.

Third Year:

1. MAT351Y1, MAT334H1/ MAT354H1, MAT357H1
2. One of: MAT327H1, MAT347Y1, MAT363H1/ MAT367H1 ( MAT363H1 can be taken in the second year, if desired)
3. PHY324H1, PHY350H1, PHY354H1, PHY356H1

Fourth Year:

1. Two of: APM421H1, APM426H1, APM446H1, APM441H1
2. Two of: PHY450H1, PHY452H1, PHY454H1, PHY456H1, PHY460H1
3. One of: MAT477H1, PHY424H1, PHY478H1, PHY479Y1

NOTE:

1. Students who are intending to apply to graduate schools in mathematics would be well-advised to take MAT347Y1.

2. Students planning to take specific fourth year courses should ensure that they have the necessary second and third year prerequisites.

3. Students with a CGPA of 3.5 and above may apply to have graduate level math courses count towards their 400-level course requirements.

Mathematics and Philosophy Specialist (Science Program) - ASSPE1361

Completion Requirements:

Consult the Undergraduate Coordinators of the Departments of Mathematics and Philosophy.

(12.0 FCE including at least 1.0 FCE at the 400-level)

First Year:

MAT157Y1, MAT240H1, MAT247H1; PHL232H1 or PHL233H1

Higher Years:

1. MAT257Y1, MAT327H1, MAT347Y1, MAT354H1/MAT357H1
2. PHL345H1, MAT309H1/ PHL348H1
3. Four of: PHL325H1, PHL331H1, PHL332H1, PHL346H1, PHL347H1, PHL349H1, PHL355H1, PHL451H1, PHL480H1
4. 1.0 FCE from PHL200Y1/ PHL205H1/ PHL206H1/PHL210Y1
5. PHL265H1/ PHL275H1
6. Additional 2.0 FCE from PHL or MAT to a total of 12.0 FCE

NOTE: Students with a CGPA of 3.5 and above may apply to have graduate level math courses count towards their 400-level course requirements.

Mathematical Applications in Economics and Finance Specialist (Science Program) - ASSPE1700

Completion Requirements:

(12-12.5 FCE, including at least 1.5 FCE at the 400-level)

First Year:

ECO100Y1/( ECO101H1, ECO102H1); MAT137Y1/MAT157Y1, MAT223H1, MAT224H1

(Please check the requirements for ECO206Y1 to ensure that you pass these first year courses with grades that allow registration in ECO206Y1)

Second Year:

ECO206Y1; MAT237Y1, MAT244H1, MAT246H1 (waived for students taking MAT157Y1); STA257H1, STA261H1

Second and Higher Years:

1. At least 0.5 FCE with a significant emphasis on ethics and social responsibility: ENV333H1/ ETH201H1/ ETH210H1/ ETH220H1/ HPS200H1/ IMC200H1/ JPH441H1/ PHL265H1/ PHL273H1/ PHL275H1/ PHL281H1 or another H course approved by the Department. Note: Students may use the CR/NCR option with this H course and have it count toward the program. Students in the VIC program may also use VIC172Y1.

Third Year:

1. APM346H1; ECO358H1; ECO359H1; MAT337H1; STA302H1/ ECO375H1; STA347H1
2. One of: MAT332H1, MAT344H1, MAT334H1, MAT475H1

Fourth Year:

APM462H1, APM466H1; STA457H1

NOTE:

1. Students planning to take specific fourth year courses should ensure that they have the necessary third year prerequisites.
2. Please note that STA457H1 lists STA302H1 as one of the prerequisites so you are encouraged to plan ahead.

Mathematics & Its Applications Specialist (Physical Science) (Science Program) - ASSPE1758

Completion Requirements:

(13.5-14.5 FCE, including at least 1.0 FCE at the 400 level)

Core Courses:

First Year:

( CSC108H1, CSC148H1)/ CSC150H1, MAT137Y1/MAT157Y1, MAT223H1/ MAT240H1, MAT224H1/ MAT247H1 (recommended, can also be taken in 2nd year)

Second Year:

MAT235Y1/ MAT237Y1/ MAT257Y1, MAT246H1 (waived for students taking MAT157Y1), MAT244H1/ MAT267H1, STA257H1

Second and Higher Years:

1. At least 0.5 FCE with a significant emphasis on ethics and social responsibility: ENV333H1/ ETH201H1/ ETH210H1/ ETH220H1/ HPS200H1/ IMC200H1/ JPH441H1/ PHL265H1/ PHL273H1/ PHL275H1/ PHL281H1 or another H course approved by the Department. Note: Students may use the CR/NCR option with this H course and have it count toward the program. Students in the VIC program may also use VIC172Y1.

Higher Years:

MAT301H1, MAT334H1

NOTE:

1. Students planning to take specific fourth year courses should ensure that they have the necessary second and third year prerequisites.

Physical Sciences Concentration:

2. PHY151H1, PHY152H1, AST221H1
3. Three of: AST222H1, PHY250H1, PHY252H1, PHY254H1, PHY256H1
4. APM346H1/ MAT351Y1
5. Three of: AST320H1, AST325H1, MAT337H1, MAT363H1/ MAT367H1, PHY350H1, PHY354H1, PHY356H1, PHY357H1, PHY358H1
6. Two of: APM421H1, APM426H1, APM441H1, APM446H1, PHY407H1, PHY408H1, PHY456H1

Mathematics & Its Applications Specialist (Probability/Statistics) (Science Program) - ASSPE1890

Completion Requirements:

(11.5-13.0 FCE, including at least 1.0 FCE at the 400 level)

Core Courses:*First Year:

( CSC108H1, CSC148H1/ CSC150H1; MAT137Y1/ MAT157Y1, MAT223H1/ MAT240H1

Second Year:

MAT224H1/ MAT247H1, MAT235Y1/ MAT237Y1/ MAT257Y1, MAT246H1 (waived for students taking MAT157Y1), MAT244H1/ MAT267H1; STA257H1

Second and Higher Years:

1. At least 0.5 FCE with a significant emphasis on ethics and social responsibility: ENV333H1/ ETH201H1/ ETH210H1/ ETH220H1/ HPS200H1/ IMC200H1/ JPH441H1/ PHL265H1/ PHL273H1/ PHL275H1/ PHL281H1 or another H course approved by the Department. Note: Students may use the CR/NCR option with this H course and have it count toward the program. Students in the VIC program may also use VIC172Y1.

Higher Years:

MAT301H1, MAT334H1

NOTE:

1. Students planning to take specific fourth year courses should ensure that they have the necessary second and third year prerequisites.

Probability/Statistics Concentration:

1. APM346H1/ MAT351Y1/ APM462H1; MAT337H1; STA261H1, STA302H1, STA347H1, STA352Y1/ ( STA452H1, STA453H1)
2. Additional 1.0 FCE at the 300+level from APM/MAT/STA
3. Two of: STA437H1, STA442H1, STA447H1, STA457H1

Mathematics & Its Applications Specialist (Teaching) (Science Program) - ASSPE1580

Completion Requirements:

(11.5-12.0 FCE, including at least 1.0 FCE at the 400 level)

Core Courses:*First Year:

CSC108H1; MAT137Y1/ MAT157Y1, MAT223H1/ MAT240H1, MAT224H1/ MAT247H1 (recommended, can also be taken in 2nd year)

Second Year:

MAT235Y1/ MAT237Y1/ MAT257Y1, MAT246H1 (waived for students taking MAT157Y1), MAT244H1/ MAT267H1; STA257H1

NOTE:

1. MAT237Y1/ MAT257Y1 is a direct or indirect prerequisite for many courses in each of the areas of concentration except the Teaching Concentration. Students are advised to take MAT237Y1/ MAT257Y1 unless they have planned their program and course selection carefully and are certain that they will not need it.

Second and Higher Years:

1. At least 0.5 FCE with a significant emphasis on ethics and social responsibility: ENV333H1/ ETH201H1/ ETH210H1/ ETH220H1/ HPS200H1/ IMC200H1/ JPH441H1/ PHL265H1/ PHL273H1/ PHL275H1/ PHL281H1 or another H course approved by the Department. Note: Students may use the CR/NCR option with this H course and have it count toward the program. Students in the VIC program may also use VIC172Y1.

Higher Years:

MAT301H1, MAT334H1

NOTE:

1. Students planning to take specific fourth year courses should ensure that they have the necessary second and third year prerequisites.

Teaching Concentration:

For course selection, note that OISE requires students to have a second teachable subject.

1. MAT329Y1, HPS390H1/ MAT390H1, HPS391H1/ MAT391H1

2. Two of: MAT332H1/ MAT344H1, MAT335H1, MAT337H1, MAT363H1/ MAT367H1

3. Two of: MAT309H1, MAT315H1; STA302H1/ STA347H1

4. MAT401H1/ MAT402H1 and 0.5 FCE at the 400-level from MAT, APM, STA

Mathematics Major (Science Program) - ASMAJ1165

Completion Requirements:

(7.5 full courses or their equivalent. These must include at least 2.5 full course equivalent (FCE) at the 300+ level. Of those 2.5 FCE, at least 0.5 FCE must be at the 400 level).

First Year:

( MAT135H1, MAT136H1/ MAT137Y1/ MAT157Y1, MAT223H1/ MAT240H1

Second Year:

MAT224H1/ MAT247H1, MAT235Y1/ MAT237Y1/ MAT257Y1, MAT244H1, MAT246H1

NOTE:

1. MAT224H1 may be taken in first year

Second and Higher Years:

1. At least 0.5 FCE with a significant emphasis on ethics and social responsibility: ENV333H1/ ETH201H1/ ETH210H1/ ETH220H1/ HPS200H1/ JPH441H1/ PHL265H1/ PHL273H1/ PHL275H1/ PHL281H1 or another H course approved by the Department. Note: Students may use the CR/NCR option with this H course and have it count toward the program. Students in the VIC program may use VIC172Y1.

Higher Years:

1. MAT301H1, MAT309H1/ MAT315H1, MAT334H1
 2. Additional 0.5 FCE at the 200+ level from: ACT240H1/ ACT230H1 APM236H1, MAT309H1/ MAT315H1/ MAT335H1/ MAT337H1, STA247H1/ STA257H1
 3. Additional 0.5 FCE at the 300+ level from: APM346H1, APM462H1, MAT309H1, MAT315H1, MAT332H1/ MAT344H1, MAT335H1, MAT337H1, MAT363H1, MAT475H1, HPS390H1, HPS391H1, PSL432H1
 4. MAT401H1/ MAT402H1 or any other MAT/APM 400-level course

NOTES:

1. Students using MAT157Y1 towards the first year program requirements must replace the exclusion course MAT246H1 with a different H level MAT/APM course at the 200+ level.

2. In the major program, higher level courses within the same topic are acceptable substitutions. With a judicious choice of courses, usually including introductory computer science, students can fulfill the requirements for a double major in mathematics and one of several other disciplines.

3. Students planning to take specific fourth year courses should ensure that they have the necessary second and third year prerequisites.

4. Students interested in becoming K-12 teachers should consider applying to the combined degree program --- a six-year program that leads to an Honours Bachelor of Science (H B Sc) from the University of Toronto and a Master of Teaching (M T) from the Ontario Institute for Studies in Education (OISE). The HBSc part of this program involves completing a Math Major, a Minor in Education and Society (offered by Victoria College) and a Minor in an area that would lead to a second "teachable" subject. Please see the Victoria College website for more information.

Mathematics Minor (Science Program) - ASMIN1165

Completion Requirements:

(4.0 FCE)

1. ( MAT135H1, MAT136H1/ MAT137Y1/ MAT157Y1
2. MAT221H1(80%+)/ MAT223H1/ MAT240H1,
MAT235Y1/ MAT237Y1/ MAT257Y1, MAT224H1/
MAT244H1/ MAT246H1/ APM236H1/ MAT247H1
- Note: MAT221H1/ MAT223H1 should be taken in first year
3. Additional 1.0 FCE at the 300+ level from APM/MAT/HPS390H1/ HPS391H1/ PSL432H1 [note that APM306Y1 will be counted as 0.5 FCE towards this requirement.].

NOTE:

1. In the minor program, higher level courses within the same topic are acceptable substitutions.
2. Students planning to take specific third and fourth year courses should ensure that they have the necessary first, second and third year prerequisites.
3. APM306Y1 will be counted for 0.5 credits of Society and its Institutions (BR3) and 0.5 credits of The Physical and Mathematical Universes (BR5).

Joint Programs

- Economics and Mathematics, see Economics
- Statistics and Mathematics, see Statistics
- Combined Degree Program: STG, Honours Bachelor of Science, Major in Mathematics / Master of Teaching

Combined Degree Program (CDP) in Science and Education: Mathematics (Major), Honours Bachelor of Science/Master of Teaching

The Combined Degree Program in Arts/Science and Education is designed for students interested in studying the intersections of teaching subjects and Education, coupled with professional teacher preparation. Students earn an Honours Bachelor's degree from the Faculty of Arts and Science (St. George) and an accredited professional Master of Teaching (MT) degree from the Ontario Institute for Studies in Education (OISE). They will be recommended to the Ontario College of Teachers for an Ontario Teacher's Certificate of Qualifications as elementary or secondary school teachers. The CDP permits the completion of both degrees in six years with 1.0 FCE that may be counted towards both the undergraduate and graduate degrees.

Program requirements:

1. Minor in Education and Society, Victoria College
2. Major in Mathematics (first teaching subject)
3. Minor in an area corresponding to the second teaching subject as determined by OISE
(see http://pepper.oise.utoronto.ca/~jhewitt/mtresources/intermediate\_senior\_teaching\_subject\_prerequisites\_2016-17.pdf)

See here for additional information on the CDP, including admission, path to completion and contact information.

Mathematics Courses

MAT133Y1 - Calculus and Linear Algebra for Commerce

Hours: 72L

Mathematics of finance. Matrices and linear equations. Review of differential calculus; applications. Integration and fundamental theorem; applications. Introduction to partial differentiation; applications.

NOTE: please note Prerequisites listed below. Students without the proper prerequisites for MAT133Y1 may be deregistered from this course.

Note that MAT133Y is not a valid prerequisite for a number of more advanced quantitative courses. Students who are considering a quantitative non-Commerce PoSt, such as a math minor or a stats minor, may want to consider MAT135H and MAT136H, MAT137Y, or MAT157Y instead of MAT133Y. Specifically, a student who took MAT133Y may need to subsequently take MAT135H and MAT136H as "extra" or take MAT137Y or MAT157Y in order to proceed in non-Commerce PoSts.

Prerequisite: High school level calculus

Exclusion: MAT135H1, MAT136H1, MAT137Y1, MAT157Y1, MATA30H3, MATA31H3, MATA32H3, MATA33H3, MATA35H3, MATA36H3, MATA37H3, MAT133Y5, MAT134Y5, MAT135Y5, MAT137Y5, MAT138Y5, MAT186H, MAT187H, MAT194H, MAT195H, MAT196H & MAT197H

Distribution Requirements: Science

MAT135H1 - Calculus 1(A)

Hours: 36L/12T

Review of trigonometric functions, trigonometric identities and trigonometric limits. Functions, limits, continuity. Derivatives, rules of differentiation and implicit differentiation, related rates, higher derivatives, logarithms, exponentials. Trigonometric and inverse trigonometric functions, linear approximations. Mean value theorem, graphing, min-max problems, l'Hôpital's rule; anti-derivatives. Examples from life science and physical science applications.

Prerequisite: High school level calculus

Exclusion: MAT133Y1, MAT136H1, MAT137Y1, MAT157Y1, MATA30H3, MATA31H3, MATA32H3, MATA33H3, MATA35H3, MATA36H3, MATA37H3, MAT133Y5, MAT134Y5, MAT135Y5, MAT137Y5, MAT138Y5, MAT186H, MAT187H, MAT194H, MAT195H, MAT196H & MAT197H

Distribution Requirements: Science

MAT136H1 - Calculus 1(B)

Hours: 36L/12T

Definite Integrals, Fundamental theorem of Calculus, Areas, Averages, Volumes. Techniques: Substitutions, integration by parts, partial fractions, improper integrals. Differential Equations: Solutions and applications. Sequences, Series, Taylor Series. Examples from life science and physical science applications.

Prerequisite: MAT135H1

Exclusion: MAT133Y1, MAT137Y1, MAT157Y1, MATA32H3, MATA33H3, MATA36H3, MATA37H3, MAT133Y5, MAT134Y5, MAT135Y5, MAT137Y5, MAT138Y5, MAT186H, MAT187H, MAT194H, MAT195H, MAT196H & MAT197H

Distribution Requirements: Science

MAT137Y1 - Calculus

Hours: 72L/24T

A conceptual approach for students with a serious interest in mathematics. Attention is given to computational aspects as well as theoretical foundations and problem solving techniques. Review of Trigonometry. Limits and continuity, mean value theorem, inverse function theorem, differentiation, integration, fundamental theorem of calculus, elementary transcendental functions, Taylor's theorem, sequence and series, power series. Applications.

Prerequisite: High school level calculus

Exclusion: MAT135H1, MAT136H1, MAT157Y1, MATA35H3, MATA36H3, MATA37H3, MAT135Y5, MAT137Y5, MAT138Y5, MAT187H, MAT194H, MAT195H, MAT196H & MAT197H

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

MAT138H1 - Introduction to Proofs

Hours: 36L/12T

The reading and understanding mathematical statements, analyzing definitions and properties, formulating conjectures and generalizations, providing and writing reasonable and precise arguments, modelling and solving proofs. This course is an excellent preparation for MAT157Y1, MAT237Y1, MAT240H1, and other proof-oriented courses.

Note: students may take this course concurrently with MAT157Y1 or prior to registering in MAT157Y1.

Prerequisite: High school level calculus

Exclusion: MAT157Y1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

MAT157Y1 - Analysis I

Hours: 72L/48T

A theoretical course in calculus; emphasizing proofs and techniques, as well as geometric and physical understanding. Trigonometric identities. Limits and continuity; least upper bounds, intermediate and extreme value theorems. Derivatives, mean value and inverse function theorems. Integrals; fundamental theorem; elementary transcendental functions. Techniques of integration. Taylor's theorem; sequences and series; uniform convergence and power series.

Exclusion: MAT137Y1, MATA37H3, MAT137Y5, MAT195H1, & MAT197H1

Recommended Preparation: Students should consider taking the Preparing for University Math Level II in order to prepare in advance for MAT157Y1. Students may also take MAT138H1 concurrently with MAT157Y1. Students will receive credit for both MAT157Y1 and MAT138H1 if MAT138H1 is taken before or along with MAT157Y1.

Distribution Requirements: Science

JMB170Y1 - Biology, Models, and Mathematics

Hours: 48L/24T

Applications of mathematics to biological problems in physiology, genetics, evolution, growth, population dynamics, cell biology, ecology, and behaviour. Mathematical topics include: power functions and regression; exponential and logistic functions; binomial theorem and probability; calculus, including derivatives, max/min, integration, areas, integration by parts, substitution; differential equations, including linear constant coefficient systems; dynamic programming; Markov processes; and chaos. This course is intended for students in Life Sciences.

Corequisite: BIO120H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

JUM202H1 - Mathematics as an Interdisciplinary Pursuit

Hours: 24L/12T

A study of the interaction of mathematics with other fields of inquiry: how mathematics influences, and is influenced by, the evolution of science and culture. Art, music, and literature, as well as the more traditionally related areas of the natural and social sciences may be considered. (Offered every three years)

JUM202H1 is particularly suited as a Science Distribution Requirement course for Humanities and Social Science students.

Exclusion: JUM102H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

JUM203H1 - Mathematics as a Recreation

Hours: 24L/12T

A study of games, puzzles and problems focusing on the deeper principles they illustrate. Concentration is on problems arising out of number theory and geometry, with emphasis on the process of mathematical reasoning. Technical requirements are kept to a minimum. A foundation is provided for a continuing lay interest in mathematics. (Offered every three years)

JUM203H1 is particularly suited as a Science Distribution Requirement course for Humanities and Social Science students.

Exclusion: JUM103H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

JUM205H1 - Mathematical Personalities

Hours: 24L/12T

An in-depth study of the life, times and work of several mathematicians who have been particularly influential. Examples may include Newton, Euler, Gauss, Kowalewski, Hilbert, Hardy, Ramanujan, Gödel, Erdős, Coxeter, Grothendieck. (Offered every three years)

JUM205H1 is particularly suited as a Science Distribution Requirement course for Humanities and Social Science students.

Exclusion: JUM105H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

MAT221H1 - Applied Linear Algebra

Hours: 36L/12T

An application-oriented approach to linear algebra, based on calculations in standard Euclidean space. Systems of linear equations, matrices, Gauss-Jordan elimination, subspaces, bases, orthogonal vectors and projections. Matrix inverses, kernel and range, rank-nullity theorem. Determinants, eigenvalues and eigenvectors, Cramer's rule, diagonalization. This course has strong emphasis on building computational skills in the area of algebra. Applications to curve fitting, economics, Markov chains and cryptography.

Prerequisite: High school level calculus

Exclusion: MAT223H1, MAT224H1, MAT240H1, MAT247H1, MAT223H5

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

MAT223H1 - Linear Algebra I

Hours: 36L/12T

Systems of linear equations, matrix algebra, real vector spaces, subspaces, span, linear dependence and independence, bases, rank, inner products, orthogonality, orthogonal complements, Gram-Schmidt, linear transformations, determinants, Cramer's rule, eigenvalues, eigenvectors, eigenspaces, diagonalization.

Prerequisite: High school level calculus

Exclusion: MAT240H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

MAT224H1 - Linear Algebra II

Hours: 36L/12T

Fields, complex numbers, vector spaces over a field, linear transformations, matrix of a linear transformation, kernel, range, dimension theorem, isomorphisms, change of basis, eigenvalues, eigenvectors, diagonalizability, real and complex inner products, spectral theorem, adjoint/self-adjoint/normal linear operators, triangular form, nilpotent mappings, Jordan canonical form.

Prerequisite: MAT221H1(80%)/ MAT223H1/ MAT240H1

Exclusion: MAT247H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

MAT235Y1 - Calculus II

Hours: 72L

Parametric equations and polar coordinates. Vectors, vector functions and space curves. Differential and integral calculus of functions of several variables. Line integrals and surface integrals and classic vector calculus theorems. Examples from life sciences and physical science applications.

Prerequisite: ( MAT135H1, MAT136H1)/ MAT137Y1/ MAT157Y1

Exclusion: MAT237Y1, MAT257Y1, MATB41H3, MATB42H3, MAT232H5, MAT233H5, MAT236H5, MAT368H5, MAT291H & MAT294H

Distribution Requirements: Science

APM236H1 - Applications of Linear Programming

Hours: 36L

Introduction to linear programming including a rapid review of linear algebra (row reduction, matrix inversion, linear independence), the simplex method with applications, the duality theorem, complementary slackness, the dual simplex method and the revised simplex method.

Prerequisite: MAT221H1/ MAT223H1/ MAT240H1 (Note: no waivers of prerequisites will be granted)

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

MAT237Y1 - Multivariable Calculus

Hours: 72L

Sequences and series. Uniform convergence. Convergence of integrals. Elements of topology in  $\mathbb{R}^2$  and  $\mathbb{R}^3$ . Differential and integral calculus of vector valued functions of a vector variable, with emphasis on vectors in two and three dimensional euclidean space. Extremal problems, Lagrange multipliers, line and surface integrals, vector analysis, Stokes' theorem, Fourier series, calculus of variations.

Prerequisite: MAT137Y1/ MAT157Y1/( MAT135H1, MAT136H1(90%)), MAT223H1/ MAT240H1

Exclusion: MAT235Y1, MAT257Y1, MATB41H3, MATB42H3, MATB43H3 & MAT368H5

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

MAT240H1 - Algebra I

Hours: 36L/24T

A theoretical approach to: vector spaces over arbitrary fields, including  $\mathbb{C}$  and  $\mathbb{Z}_p$ . Subspaces, bases and dimension. Linear transformations, matrices, change of basis, similarity, determinants. Polynomials over a field (including unique factorization, resultants). Eigenvalues, eigenvectors, characteristic polynomial, diagonalization. Minimal polynomial, Cayley-Hamilton theorem.

Prerequisite: High school level calculus

Corequisite: MAT157Y1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

MAT244H1 - Introduction to Ordinary Differential Equations

Hours: 36L

First order ordinary differential equations: Direction fields, integrating factors, separable equations, homogeneous equations, exact equations, autonomous equations, modeling. Existence and uniqueness theorem. Higher order equations: Constant coefficient equations, reduction of order, Wronskian, method of undetermined coefficients, variation of parameters. Solutions by series and integrals. First order linear systems, fundamental matrices. Non-linear equations, phase plane, stability. Applications in life and physical sciences and economics.

Prerequisite: ( MAT135H1, MAT136H1)/ MAT137Y1/ MAT157Y1, MAT223H1/ MAT240H1

Corequisite: MAT235Y1/ MAT237Y1/ MAT257Y1

Exclusion: MAT267H1, MAT212H5, MAT258Y5

Distribution Requirements: Science

MAT245H1 - Mathematical Methods in Data Science

Hours: 36L/24P

An introduction to the mathematical methods behind scientific techniques developed for extracting information from large data sets. Elementary probability density functions, conditional expectation, inverse problems, regularization, dimension reduction, gradient methods, singular value decomposition and its applications, stability, diffusion maps. Examples from applications in data science and big data.

Prerequisite: MAT137Y1/ MAT157Y1, MAT223H1/ MAT240H1, MAT224H1/ MAT247H1

Corequisite: MAT237Y1/ MAT257Y1

Distribution Requirements: Science

MAT246H1 - Concepts in Abstract Mathematics

Hours: 36L/12T

Designed to introduce students to mathematical proofs and abstract mathematical concepts. Topics may include modular arithmetic, sizes of infinite sets, and a proof that some angles cannot be trisected with straightedge and compass.

Prerequisite: MAT133Y1/( MAT135H1, MAT136H1)/ MAT137Y1, MAT223H1

Exclusion: MAT157Y1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

MAT247H1 - Algebra II

Hours: 36L

A theoretical approach to real and complex inner product spaces, isometries, orthogonal and unitary matrices and transformations. The adjoint. Hermitian and symmetric transformations. Spectral theorem for symmetric and normal transformations. Polar representation theorem. Primary decomposition theorem. Rational and Jordan canonical forms. Additional topics including dual spaces, quotient spaces, bilinear forms, quadratic surfaces, multilinear algebra.

Prerequisite: MAT240H1

Corequisite: MAT157Y1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

MAT257Y1 - Analysis II

Hours: 72L/48T

Topology of  $\mathbb{R}^n$ ; compactness, functions and continuity, extreme value theorem. Derivatives; inverse and implicit function theorems, maxima and minima, Lagrange multipliers. Integration; Fubini's theorem, partitions of unity, change of variables. Differential forms. Manifolds in  $\mathbb{R}^n$ ; integration on manifolds; Stokes' theorem for differential forms and classical versions.

Prerequisite: MAT157Y1, MAT247H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

MAT267H1 - Advanced Ordinary Differential Equations

Hours: 36L/12T

A theoretical course on Ordinary Differential Equations. First-order equations: separable equations, exact equations, integrating factors. Variational problems, Euler-Lagrange equations. Linear equations and first-order systems. Fundamental matrices, Wronskians. Non-linear equations. Existence and uniqueness theorems. Method of power series. Elementary qualitative theory; stability, phase plane, stationary points. Oscillation theorem, Sturm comparison. Applications in mechanics, physics, chemistry, biology and economics.

Prerequisite: MAT157Y1, MAT247H1

Corequisite: MAT257Y1

Exclusion: APM288H, MAT244H1, MATB44H3, MAT242H5, MAT252H5, MAT234H, MAT292H

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

MAT271H1 - Insights from Mathematics

Hours: 36L/6T

This breadth course is accessible to students with limited mathematical background. Various mathematical techniques will be illustrated with examples from humanities and social science disciplines. Some of the topics will incorporate user friendly computer explorations to give participants the feel of the subject without requiring skill at calculations.

Note: This course cannot be used to satisfy requirements of program in the math department.

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

MAT282H1 - Topics in Mathematics

Hours: 36L

A course in mathematics on a topic outside the current undergraduate offerings. For information on the specific topic to be studied and possible additional prerequisites, go to <http://www.math.toronto.edu/cms/current-students-ug/>

Prerequisite: 1.0 FCE in 100-level MAT courses.

Possible additional topic-specific prerequisites.

Distribution Requirements: Science

MAT295H1 - Independent Reading in Mathematics

Hours: TBA

Independent study under the direction of a faculty member. Topic must be outside undergraduate offerings. Similar workload to a 36L course. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: Minimum GPA of 3.5 in APM and MAT courses. Permission of the Associate Chair for Undergraduate Studies and of the prospective supervisor.

Distribution Requirements: Science

MAT296H1 - Independent Reading in Mathematics

Hours: TBA

Independent study under the direction of a faculty member. Topic must be outside undergraduate offerings. Workload equivalent to a 36L course. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: Minimum GPA of 3.5 in APM and MAT courses. Permission of the Associate Chair for Undergraduate Studies and of the prospective supervisor.

Distribution Requirements: Science

MAT297Y1 - Research Project in Mathematics

Hours: TBA

Independent research under the direction of a faculty member. Similar workload to a 72L course. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: Minimum GPA of 3.5 in APM and MAT courses. Permission of the Associate Chair for Undergraduate Studies and of the prospective supervisor.

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

MAT299Y1 - Research Opportunity Program

Hours: TBA

Credit course for supervised participation in faculty research project. Details at <http://www.artsci.utoronto.ca/current/course/rop>. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Distribution Requirements: Science

MAT301H1 - Groups and Symmetries

Hours: 36L

Congruences and fields. Permutations and permutation groups. Linear groups. Abstract groups, homomorphisms, subgroups. Symmetry groups of regular polygons and Platonic solids, wallpaper groups. Group actions, class formula. Cosets, Lagrange theorem. Normal subgroups, quotient groups. Classification of finitely generated abelian groups. Emphasis on examples and calculations.

Prerequisite: MAT224H1/ MAT247H1, MAT235Y1/ MAT237Y1, MAT246H1/ CSC236H1/ CSC240H1. (These Prerequisites will be waived for students who have MAT257Y1)

Exclusion: MAT347Y1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

APM306Y1 - Mathematics and Law

Hours: 72L

This course examines the relationship between legal reasoning and mathematical logic; provides a mathematical perspective on the legal treatment of interest and actuarial present value; critiques ethical issues; analyzes how search engine techniques on massive databases transform legal research and considers the impact of statistical analysis and game theory on litigation strategies.

NOTE

This course counts as 0.5 FCE in BR3 and 0.5 FCE in BR5.

This course will only contribute 0.5FCE to the Math Minor program.

Prerequisite: ( MAT135H1/ MAT136H1)/ MAT137Y1/ MAT157Y1, MAT221H1/ MAT223H1/ MAT240H1

Exclusion: JUM206Y1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5); Society and its Institutions (3)

MAT309H1 - Introduction to Mathematical Logic

Hours: 36L

Predicate calculus. Relationship between truth and provability; Gödel's completeness theorem. First order arithmetic as an example of a first-order system. Gödel's incompleteness theorem; outline of its proof. Introduction to recursive functions.

Prerequisite: MAT223H1/ MAT240H1, MAT235Y1/ MAT237Y1, MAT246H1/ CSC236H1/ CSC240H1 (These Prerequisites will be waived for students who have MAT257Y1)

Exclusion: CSC438H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

MAT315H1 - Introduction to Number Theory

Hours: 36L

Elementary topics in number theory: arithmetic functions; polynomials over the residue classes modulo  $m$ , characters on the residue classes modulo  $m$ ; quadratic reciprocity law, representation of numbers as sums of squares.

Prerequisite: ( MAT223H1/ MAT240H1, MAT235Y1/ MAT237Y1, MAT246H1/ CSC236H1/ CSC240H1)/ MAT157Y1/ MAT247H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

MAT327H1 - Introduction to Topology

Hours: 36L

Metric spaces, topological spaces and continuous mappings; separation, compactness, connectedness. Fundamental group and covering spaces. Brouwer fixed-point theorem. Students in the math specialist program wishing to take additional topology courses are advised to obtain permission to take MAT1300H, MAT1301H.

Prerequisite: MAT157Y1/( MAT237Y1, MAT246H1 and permission of the instructor).

Distribution Requirements: Science

MAT329Y1 - Concepts in Elementary Mathematics

Hours: 72L

This course is aimed at students intending to become elementary school teachers. Emphasis is placed on the formation and development of fundamental reasoning and learning skills required to understand and to teach mathematics at the elementary level. Topics may include: Problem Solving and Strategies, Sets and Elementary Logic, Numbers and Elements of Number Theory, Introductory Probability and Fundamentals of Geometry.

The course may include an optional practicum in school classrooms.

Prerequisite: MAT137Y1/ MAT138H1/ MAT223H1/ MAT246H1 and any 7.0 FCE with a CGPA of at least 2.5
Exclusion: MAT382H5

Recommended Preparation: Participation in the practicum requires the presentation of an Ontario Police Report that declares suitability to work with minors and other special groups.

Distribution Requirements: Science

MAT332H1 - Introduction to Graph Theory

Hours: 36L

This course will explore the following topics: Graphs, subgraphs, isomorphism, trees, connectivity, Euler and Hamiltonian properties, matchings, vertex and edge colourings, planarity, network flows and strongly regular graphs. Participants will be encouraged to use these topics and execute applications to such problems as timetabling, tournament scheduling, experimental design and finite geometries.

Prerequisite: MAT224H1/ MAT247H1

Corequisite: Recommended Corequisite: MAT301H1/ MAT347Y1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

MAT334H1 - Complex Variables

Hours: 36L

Theory of functions of one complex variable, analytic and meromorphic functions. Cauchy's theorem, residue calculus, conformal mappings, introduction to analytic continuation and harmonic functions.

Prerequisite: MAT223H1/ MAT240H1, MAT235Y1/ MAT237Y1/ MAT257Y1

Exclusion: MAT354H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

MAT335H1 - Chaos, Fractals and Dynamics

Hours: 36L

An elementary introduction to a modern and fast-developing area of mathematics. One-dimensional dynamics: iterations of quadratic polynomials. Dynamics of linear mappings, attractors. Bifurcation, Henon map, Mandelbrot and Julia sets. History and applications.

Prerequisite: MAT137Y1/ MAT157Y1/200-level calculus, MAT223H1/ MAT240H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

MAT336H1 - Elements of Analysis

Hours: 36L/12T

This course provides the foundations of analysis and rigorous calculus for students who will take subsequent courses where these mathematical concepts are central of applications, but who have only taken courses with limited proofs. Topics include topology of  $\mathbb{R}^n$ , implicit and inverse function theorems and rigorous integration theory.

Prerequisite: MAT223H1/ MAT240H1, MAT235Y1/ MAT237Y1

Exclusion: MAT257Y1, MAT337H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

MAT337H1 - Introduction to Real Analysis

Hours: 36L

Construction of Real Numbers. Metric spaces; compactness and connectedness. Sequences and series of functions, power series; modes of convergence. Interchange of limiting processes; differentiation of integrals. Function spaces; Weierstrass approximation; Fourier series. Contraction mappings; existence and uniqueness of solutions of ordinary differential equations. Countability; Cantor set; Hausdorff dimension.

Prerequisite: MAT224H1/ MAT247H1, MAT235Y1/ MAT237Y1, MAT246H1; NOTE: These Prerequisites will be waived for students who have MAT257Y1

Exclusion: MAT357H1 & MAT378H5

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

MAT344H1 - Introduction to Combinatorics

Hours: 36L

Basic counting principles, generating functions, permutations with restrictions. Fundamentals of graph theory with algorithms; applications (including network flows). Combinatorial structures including block designs and finite geometries.

Prerequisite: MAT223H1/ MAT240H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

APM346H1 - Partial Differential Equations

Hours: 36L

Sturm-Liouville problems, Green's functions, special functions (Bessel, Legendre), partial differential equations of second order, separation of variables, integral equations, Fourier transform, stationary phase method.

Prerequisite: MAT235Y1/ MAT237Y1/ MAT257Y1, MAT244H1/ MAT267H1

Exclusion: MAT351Y1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

MAT347Y1 - Groups, Rings and Fields

Hours: 72L/24T

Groups, subgroups, quotient groups, Sylow theorems, Jordan-Hölder theorem, finitely generated abelian groups, solvable groups. Rings, ideals, Chinese remainder theorem; Euclidean domains and principal ideal domains: unique factorization. Noetherian rings, Hilbert basis theorem. Finitely generated modules. Field extensions, algebraic closure, straight-edge and compass constructions. Galois theory, including insolvability of the quintic.

Prerequisite: MAT257Y1/(85% in MAT247H1)

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

MAT351Y1 - Partial Differential Equations

Hours: 72L

This is a first course in Partial Differential Equations, intended for Mathematics students with interests in analysis, mathematical physics, geometry, and optimization. The examples to be discussed include first-order equations, harmonic functions, the diffusion equation, the wave equation, Schrodinger's equation, and eigenvalue problems. In addition to the classical representation formulas for the solutions of these equations, there are techniques that apply more broadly: the notion of well-posedness, the method of characteristics, energy methods, maximum and comparison principles, fundamental solutions, Green's functions, Duhamel's principle, Fourier series, the min-max characterization of eigenvalues, Bessel functions, spherical harmonics, and distributions. Nonlinear phenomena such as shock waves and solitary waves are also introduced.

Prerequisite: MAT257Y1/85% in MAT237Y1, MAT267H1

Exclusion: APM351Y1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

MAT354H1 - Complex Analysis I

Hours: 36L

Complex numbers, the complex plane and Riemann sphere, Möbius transformations, elementary functions and their mapping properties, conformal mapping, holomorphic functions, Cauchy's theorem and integral formula. Taylor and Laurent series, maximum modulus principle, Schwarz' lemma, residue theorem and residue calculus.

Prerequisite: MAT257Y1

Distribution Requirements: Science

MAT357H1 - Foundations of Real Analysis

Hours: 36L

Function spaces; Arzela-Ascoli theorem, Weierstrass approximation theorem, Fourier series. Introduction to Banach and Hilbert spaces; contraction mapping principle, fundamental existence and uniqueness theorem for ordinary differential equations. Lebesgue integral; convergence theorems, comparison with Riemann integral,  $L^p$  spaces. Applications to probability.

Prerequisite: MAT257Y1/( MAT327H1 and permission of instructor)

Exclusion: MAT438H5

Distribution Requirements: Science

MAT363H1 - Geometry of Curves and Surfaces

Hours: 36L

Curves and surfaces in 3-spaces. Frenet formulas. Curvature and geodesics. Gauss map. Minimal surfaces. Gauss-Bonnet theorem for surfaces. Surfaces of constant curvature.

Prerequisite: MAT224H1/ MAT247H1, MAT237Y1/ MAT257Y1 ( MAT257Y1 can be taken concurrently)

Exclusion: MAT367H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

MAT367H1 - Differential Geometry

Hours: 36L

Manifolds, partitions of unity, submersions and immersions, vector fields, vector bundles, tangent and cotangent bundles, foliations and Frobenius' theorem, multilinear algebra, differential forms, Stokes' theorem, Poincaré-Hopf theorem

Prerequisite: MAT257Y1/( MAT224H1, MAT237Y1, MAT246H1, and permission of instructor)

Recommended Preparation: Multivariable calculus ( MAT257Y1), Linear algebra ( MAT240H1, MAT247H1)

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

MAT377H1 - Mathematical Probability

Hours: 36L/12T

This course introduces students to various topics in mathematical probability theory. Topics include basic concepts (such as probability, random variables, expectations, conditional probability) from a mathematical point of view, examples of distributions and stochastic processes and their properties, convergence results (such as the law of large numbers, central limit theorem, random series, etc.), various inequalities, and examples of applications of probabilistic ideas beyond statistics (for example, in geometry and computer science).

Prerequisite: MAT247H1, MAT257Y1

Exclusion: STA347H1

MAT382H1 - Topics in Mathematics

Hours: 36L

A course in mathematics on a topic outside the current undergraduate offerings. For information on the specific topic to be studied and possible additional prerequisites, go to <http://www.math.toronto.edu/cms/current-students-ug/>

Prerequisite: 2.5 FCE in 100-level or 200-level APM or MAT courses. Possible additional topic-specific prerequisites.

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

MAT390H1 - History of Mathematics up to 1700

Hours: 36L

A survey of ancient, medieval, and early modern mathematics with emphasis on historical issues. (Offered in alternate years)

Prerequisite: At least 1.0 FCE in APM/MAT at the 200 level.

Exclusion: HPS309H1, HPS310Y1, HPS390H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

MAT391H1 - History of Mathematics after 1700

Hours: 24L/12T

A survey of the development of mathematics from 1700 to the present with emphasis on technical development. (Offered in alternate years)

Prerequisite: At least 1.0 FCE in APM/MAT at the 200 level.

Exclusion: HPS309H1, HPS310H1, HPS391H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

MAT395H1 - Independent Reading in Mathematics

Hours: TBA

Independent reading under the direction of a faculty member. Topic must be outside current undergraduate offerings. Similar workload to a 36L course. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: Minimum GPA of 3.5 in APM and MAT courses. Permission of the Associate Chair for Undergraduate Studies and of the prospective supervisor

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

APM396H1 - Independent Reading in Applied Mathematics

Hours: TBA

Independent study under the direction of a faculty member. Topic must be outside undergraduate offerings. Similar workload to a 36L course. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: Minimum GPA 3.5 for APM and MAT courses. Permission of the Associate Chair for Undergraduate Studies and of the prospective supervisor.

Distribution Requirements: Science

MAT396H1 - Independent Reading in Mathematics

Hours: TBA

Independent study under the direction of a faculty member. Topic must be outside undergraduate offerings. Similar workload to a 36L course. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: Minimum GPA of 3.5 in APM and MAT courses. Permission of the Associate Chair for Undergraduate Studies and of the prospective supervisor

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

MAT397Y1 - Research Project in Mathematics

Hours: TBA

Independent research under the direction of a faculty member. Workload similar to a 72L course. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: Minimum GPA of 3.5 in APM and MAT courses. Permission of the Associate Chair for Undergraduate Studies and of the prospective supervisor.

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

MAT398H0 - Research Excursions

Hours: TBA

An instructor-supervised group project in an off-campus setting. Details at <http://www.artsci.utoronto.ca/current/course/rep>. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Distribution Requirements: Science

MAT398Y0 - Research Excursions

Hours: TBA

An instructor-supervised group project in an off-campus setting. Details at <http://www.artsci.utoronto.ca/current/course/rep>. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Distribution Requirements: Science

MAT399Y1 - Research Opportunity Program

Hours: TBA

MAT401H1 - Polynomial Equations and Fields

Hours: 36L

Commutative rings; quotient rings. Construction of the rationals. Polynomial algebra. Fields and Galois theory: Field extensions, adjunction of roots of a polynomial. Constructibility, trisection of angles, construction of regular polygons. Galois groups of polynomials, in particular cubics, quartics. Insolvability of quintics by radicals.

Prerequisite: MAT301H1

Exclusion: MAT347Y1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

MAT402H1 - Classical Geometries

Hours: 36L

Euclidean and non-euclidean plane and space geometries. Real and complex projective space. Models of the hyperbolic plane. Connections with the geometry of surfaces.

Prerequisite: MAT301H1/ MAT347Y1, MAT235Y1/ MAT237Y1/ MAT257Y1

Distribution Requirements: Science

MAT409H1 - Set Theory

Hours: 36L

Set theory and its relations with other branches of mathematics. ZFC axioms. Ordinal and cardinal numbers. Reflection principle. Constructible sets and the continuum hypothesis. Introduction to independence proofs. Topics from large cardinals, infinitary combinatorics and descriptive set theory.

Prerequisite: MAT357H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

MAT415H1 - Algebraic Number Theory

Hours: 36L

A selection from the following: finite fields; global and local fields; valuation theory; ideals and divisors; differentials and discriminants; ramification and inertia; class numbers and units; cyclotomic fields; diophantine equations.

Prerequisite: MAT347Y1 or permission of instructor

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

MAT417H1 - Analytic Number Theory

Hours: 36L

A selection from the following: distribution of primes, especially in arithmetic progressions and short intervals; exponential sums; Hardy-Littlewood and dispersion methods; character sums and L-functions; the Riemann zeta-function; sieve methods, large and small; diophantine approximation, modular forms.

Prerequisite: MAT334H1/ MAT354H1/permission of instructor

Distribution Requirements: Science

APM421H1 - Mathematical Foundations of Quantum Mechanics

Hours: 36L

Key concepts and mathematical structure of Quantum Mechanics, with applications to topics of current interest such as quantum information theory. The core part of the course covers the following topics: Schroedinger equation, quantum observables, spectrum and evolution, motion in electro-magnetic field, angular momentum and  $O(3)$  and  $SU(2)$  groups, spin and statistics, semi-classical asymptotics, perturbation theory. More advanced topics may include: adiabatic theory and geometrical phases, Hartree-Fock theory, Bose-Einstein condensation, the second quantization, density matrix and quantum statistics, open systems and Lindblad evolution, quantum entropy, quantum channels, quantum Shannon theorems.

Prerequisite: ( MAT224H1, MAT337H1)/ MAT357H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

MAT425H1 - Differential Topology

Hours: 36L

Smooth manifolds, Sard's theorem and transversality. Morse theory. Immersion and embedding theorems. Intersection theory. Borsuk-Ulam theorem. Vector fields and Euler characteristic. Hopf degree theorem. Additional topics may vary.

Prerequisite: MAT257Y1, MAT327H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

APM426H1 - General Relativity

Hours: 36L

Einstein's theory of gravity. Special relativity and the geometry of Lorentz manifolds. Gravity as a manifestation of spacetime curvature. Einstein's equations. Cosmological implications: big bang and inflationary universe. Schwarzschild stars: bending of light and perihelion precession of Mercury. Topics from black hole dynamics and gravitational waves. The Penrose singularity theorem.

Prerequisite: MAT363H1/ MAT367H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

MAT436H1 - Introduction to Linear Operators

Hours: 36L

The course will survey the branch of mathematics developed (in its abstract form) primarily in the twentieth century and referred to variously as functional analysis, linear operators in Hilbert space, and operator algebras, among other names (for instance, more recently, to reflect the rapidly increasing scope of the subject, the phrase non-commutative geometry has been introduced). The intention will be to discuss a number of the topics in Pedersen's textbook Analysis Now. Students will be encouraged to lecture on some of the material, and also to work through some of the exercises in the textbook (or in the suggested reference books).

Prerequisite: 5.0 FCE from MAT, including MAT224H1/ MAT247H1 and MAT237Y1/ MAT257Y1.

Distribution Requirements: Science

MAT437H1 - K-Theory and C* Algebras

Hours: 36L

The course will begin with a description of the method (K-theoretical in spirit) used by Murray and von Neumann to give a rough initial classification of von Neumann algebras (into types I, II, and III). It will centre around the relatively recent use of K-theory to study Bratteli's approximately finite-dimensional C*-algebras---both to classify them (a result that can be formulated and proved purely algebraically), and to prove that the class of these C*-algebras---what Bratteli called AF algebras---is closed under passing to extensions (a result that uses the Bott periodicity feature of K-theory). Students will be encouraged to prepare oral or written reports on various subjects related to the course, including basic theory and applications.

Prerequisite: MAT436H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

APM441H1 - Asymptotic and Perturbation Methods

Hours: 36L

Asymptotic series. Asymptotic methods for integrals: stationary phase and steepest descent. Regular perturbations for algebraic and differential equations. Singular perturbation methods for ordinary differential equations: W.K.B., strained co-ordinates, matched asymptotics, multiple scales. (Emphasizes techniques; problems drawn from physics and engineering)

Prerequisite: APM346H1/ MAT351Y1, MAT334H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

MAT445H1 - Representation Theory

Hours: 36L

A selection of topics from: Representation theory of finite groups, topological groups and compact groups. Group algebras. Character theory and orthogonality relations. Weyl's character formula for compact semisimple Lie groups. Induced representations. Structure theory and representations of semisimple Lie algebras. Determination of the complex Lie algebras.

Prerequisite: MAT347Y1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

APM446H1 - Applied Nonlinear Equations

Hours: 36L

Partial differential equations appearing in physics, material sciences, biology, geometry, and engineering. Nonlinear evolution equations. Existence and long-time behaviour of solutions. Existence of static, traveling wave, self-similar, topological and localized solutions. Stability. Formation of singularities and pattern formation. Fixed point theorems, spectral analysis, bifurcation theory. Equations considered in this course may include: Allen-Cahn equation (material science), Ginzburg-Landau equation (condensed matter physics), Cahn-Hilliard (material science, biology), nonlinear Schroedinger equation (quantum and plasma physics, water waves, etc). mean curvature flow (geometry, material sciences), Fisher-Kolmogorov-Petrovskii-Piskunov (combustion theory, biology), Keller-Segel equations (biology), and Chern-Simmons equations (particle and condensed matter physics).

Prerequisite: APM346H1/ MAT351Y1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

MAT448H1 - Introduction to Commutative Algebra and Algebraic Geometry

Hours: 36L

Basic notions of algebraic geometry, with emphasis on commutative algebra or geometry according to the interests of the instructor. Algebraic topics: localization, integral dependence and Hilbert's Nullstellensatz, valuation theory, power series rings and completion, dimension theory. Geometric topics: affine and projective varieties, dimension and intersection theory, curves and surfaces, varieties over the complex numbers. This course will be offered in alternating years.

Prerequisite: MAT347Y1

Distribution Requirements: Science

MAT449H1 - Algebraic Curves

Hours: 36L

Projective geometry. Curves and Riemann surfaces. Algebraic methods. Intersection of curves; linear systems; Bezout's theorem. Cubics and elliptic curves. Riemann-Roch theorem. Newton polygon and Puiseux expansion; resolution of singularities. This course will be offered in alternating years.

Prerequisite: MAT347Y1, MAT354H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

MAT454H1 - Complex Analysis II

Hours: 36L

Harmonic functions, Harnack's principle, Poisson's integral formula and Dirichlet's problem. Infinite products and the gamma function. Normal families and the Riemann mapping theorem. Analytic continuation, monodromy theorem and elementary Riemann surfaces. Elliptic functions, the modular function and the little Picard theorem.

Prerequisite: MAT354H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

MAT457H1 - Advanced Real Analysis I

Hours: 36L

Lebesgue measure and integration; convergence theorems, Fubini's theorem, Lebesgue differentiation theorem, abstract measures, Caratheodory theorem, Radon-Nikodym theorem. Hilbert spaces, orthonormal bases, Riesz representation theorem, compact operators,  $L^p$  spaces, Hölder and Minkowski inequalities.

Prerequisite: MAT357H1

Exclusion: MAT457Y1

Distribution Requirements: Science

MAT458H1 - Advanced Real Analysis II

Hours: 36L

Fourier series and transform, convergence results, Fourier inversion theorem,  $L^2$  theory, estimates, convolutions. Banach spaces, duals, weak topology, weak compactness, Hahn-Banach theorem, open mapping theorem, uniform boundedness theorem.

Prerequisite: MAT457H1

Exclusion: MAT457Y1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

APM461H1 - Combinatorial Methods

Hours: 36L

A selection of topics from such areas as graph theory, combinatorial algorithms, enumeration, construction of combinatorial identities.

Prerequisite: MAT224H1/ MAT247H1, MAT137Y1/ MAT157Y1, MAT301H1/ MAT347Y1

Recommended Preparation: MAT344H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

APM462H1 - Nonlinear Optimization

Hours: 36L

An introduction to first and second order conditions for finite and infinite dimensional optimization problems with mention of available software. Topics include Lagrange multipliers, Kuhn-Tucker conditions, convexity and calculus variations. Basic numerical search methods and software packages which implement them will be discussed.

Prerequisite: MAT223H1, MAT224H1, MAT235Y1,

Recommended Preparation: MAT336H1/ MAT337H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

MAT464H1 - Riemannian Geometry

Hours: 36L

Riemannian metrics. Levi-Civita connection. Geodesics. Exponential map. Second fundamental form. Complete manifolds and Hopf-Rinow theorem. Curvature tensors. Ricci curvature and scalar curvature. Spaces of constant curvature.

Prerequisite: MAT367H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

APM466H1 - Mathematical Theory of Finance

Hours: 36L

Introduction to the basic mathematical techniques in pricing theory and risk management: Stochastic calculus, single-period finance, financial derivatives (tree-approximation and Black-Scholes model for equity derivatives, American derivatives, numerical methods, lattice models for interest-rate derivatives), value at risk, credit risk, portfolio theory.

Prerequisite: APM346H1, STA347H1

Corequisite: STA457H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

MAT475H1 - Problem Solving Seminar

Hours: TBA

This course addresses the question: How do you attack a problem the likes of which you have never seen before? Students will apply Polya's principles of mathematical problem solving, draw upon their previous mathematical knowledge, and explore the creative side of mathematics in solving a variety of interesting problems and explaining those solutions to others.

Prerequisite: MAT224H1/ MAT247H1, MAT235Y1/ MAT237Y1/ MAT257Y1, and at least 1.0 FCE at the 300+ level in APM/MAT

Distribution Requirements: Science

MAT477H1 - Seminar in Mathematics

Hours: TBA

Seminar in an advanced topic. Content will generally vary from semester to semester. Student presentations are required.

Prerequisite: MAT347Y1, MAT354H1, MAT357H1; or permission of instructor.

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

MAT478H1 - Seminar in Mathematics

Hours: TBA

Seminar in an advanced topic. Content will generally vary from semester to semester. Student presentations are required.

Prerequisite: MAT347Y1, MAT354H1, MAT357H1; or permission of instructor.

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

MAT482H1 - Topics in Mathematics

Hours: 36L

A course in mathematics on a topic outside the current undergraduate offerings. For information on the specific topic to be studied and possible additional prerequisites, go to <http://www.math.toronto.edu/cms/current-students-ug/>

Prerequisite: 6.0 FCE in 100-level, 200-level, and 300-level APM and MAT courses. Possible additional topic-specific prerequisites.

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

MAT483H1 - Topics in Mathematics

Hours: 36L

A course in mathematics on a topic outside the current undergraduate offerings. For information on the specific topic to be studied and possible additional prerequisites, go to <http://www.math.toronto.edu/cms/current-students-ug/>

Prerequisite: 6.0 FCE in 100-level, 200-level, and 300-level APM and MAT courses. Possible additional topic-specific prerequisites.

Distribution Requirements: Science

MAT495H1 - Independent Reading in Mathematics

Hours: TBA

Independent study under the direction of a faculty member. Topic must be outside undergraduate offerings. Workload equivalent to a 36L course. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: Minimum GPA of 3.5 in APM and MAT courses. Permission of the Associate Chair for Undergraduate Studies and of the prospective supervisor

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

APM496H1 - Independent Readings in Applied Mathematics

Hours: TBA

Independent study under the direction of a faculty member. Topic must be outside current undergraduate offerings. Similar workload to a course that has 36 lecture hours. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: minimum GPA 3.5 for APM and MAT courses. Permission of the Associate Chair for Undergraduate Studies and of the prospective supervisor

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

MAT496H1 - Independent Reading in Mathematics

Hours: TBA

Independent study under the direction of a faculty member. Topic must be outside undergraduate offerings. Workload equivalent to a 36L course. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: Minimum GPA of 3.5 in APM and MAT courses. Permission of the Associate Chair for Undergraduate Studies and of the prospective supervisor.

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

MAT497Y1 - Research Project in Mathematics

Hours: TBA

Independent research under the direction of a faculty member. Not eligible for CR/NCR option. Similar workload to a 72L course.

Prerequisite: Minimum GPA of 3.5 in APM and MAT courses. Permission of the Associate Chair for Undergraduate Studies and of the prospective supervisor

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

Introduction

Molecular biology has revolutionized the fields of genetics and microbiology. The Department of Molecular Genetics offers Specialist and Major programs in Molecular Genetics and Microbiology, which emphasize the molecular aspects of both disciplines. Genetics, the science of heredity, and microbiology, the study of microorganisms (microbes), have long served as meeting grounds for a variety of biological disciplines. Developments in genetics and microbiology have contributed greatly to our basic understanding of the fundamental processes of life as well as to the treatment of genetic and infectious diseases.

Of particular significance in molecular genetics has been the development of techniques that permit the isolation, through cloning, of the genes responsible for specific traits, and the detailed analysis of their regulation, interactions, and products. More recently the advent of genome sequencing has fueled efforts to understand in full the information content of the genome and to assign function to every gene, using methods that allow systematic, genome-scale analyses of gene expression, the phenotypic consequences of gene disruption, and the interactions between genes and gene products. Molecular techniques have increased our ability to diagnose and understand viral and bacterial disease, and the complex microbe/host interactions that are involved. The impact of these and other technological advances extend to such diverse fields as plant and animal developmental biology, virology, immunology, cancer biology, and biotechnology. Studies at a molecular level are essential to understanding the consequences to life when fundamental processes are altered by mutation, by infection, or by the environment.

The Molecular Genetics and Microbiology Specialist program is a research-intensive program and is designed to provide strong in-depth training in science, including critical analyses of scientific concepts and literature, advanced laboratory experience, and detailed understanding and application of molecular biology. Specialists enter the program in 2nd year and then choose one of two Streams, called Genetics and Microbiology, by the start of the third year. Each Stream provides focused training, but there is considerable overlap between the streams, reflective of both the cross-disciplinary requirements of these two rapidly evolving disciplines and the impact of each on areas spanning modern biomedical science.

The Molecular Genetics and Microbiology Major program offers students fundamental training in molecular genetics and microbiology. Students tailor their own program and may focus on a microbiology major, a genetic major, or a combination; they choose a path to suit their specific interests. Students take several advanced courses in these disciplines, but the Major allows them to choose the breadth of their training by combining the MGY Major with another Major of interest.

The Department of Molecular Genetics is also a cosponsor of the Major program in Genome Biology, with the Departments of Cell and Systems Biology (CSB), and Ecology and Evolutionary Biology (EEB). See the Biology program listings for details of the Genome Biology Major.

Career opportunities for graduates include employment in research institutes, universities and other educational institutions, and industry. The programs provide excellent preparation for post-graduate research and professional programs.

Molecular Genetics and Microbiology Programs

Molecular Genetics and Microbiology Specialist (Science Program) - ASSPE1387

Enrolment Requirements:

This is a limited enrolment program that can only accommodate a limited number of students. Eligibility will be competitive and based on a student's marks in the 3.0 required first-year courses:

BIO120H1, BIO130H1, ( CHM135H1, CHM136H1)/
CHM151Y1, and ( MAT135H1, MAT136H1)/ MAT135Y1/
MAT137Y1/ MAT157Y1 with an average of at least 80%
on these 3.0 full-course equivalents (FCEs) and a final
mark of at least 75% in each course.

While it is difficult to predict what will constitute "competitive" course marks in a given year, based on previous years the estimate is: course marks = mid 80s;
average = mid 80s.

Achieving these estimated marks does not guarantee admission to the program in any given year.

Note: Students must apply to this program on the Arts &
Science Faculty Registrars Office website (see the Arts & Science Program Enrolment web site for application procedures).

At later times, contact the Undergraduate Coordinator.

Completion Requirements:

(14 full courses or their equivalent)

First Year:

BIO120H1, BIO130H1; ( CHM135H1, CHM136H1)/

This is a limited enrolment program that can only accommodate a limited number of students. Eligibility will be competitive and based on a students marks in the 3.0 required first-year courses:

BIO120H1, BIO130H1, ( CHM135H1, CHM136H1)/
CHM151Y1, and ( MAT135H1, MAT136H1)/ MAT135Y1/
MAT137Y1/ MAT157Y1, with an average of at least 70%
on these 3.0 full-course equivalents (FCEs) and a final
mark of at least 60% in each course.

While it is difficult to predict what will be competitive course marks and average in a given year, based on previous years, the estimate is: course marks = mid 70s;

average = mid 70s.

Achieving these estimated marks does not guarantee admission to the program in any given year.

Note: Students must apply to this program on the Arts & Science Faculty Registrars Office website (see the Arts & Science Program Enrolment web site for application procedures).

At later times, contact the Undergraduate Coordinator.

Molecular Genetics and Microbiology Courses

MGY200H1 - An Introduction to Molecular Genetics and Microbiology

Hours: 24L

Introduction to the core concepts of genetics and microbiology. Included are also topical biological problems and cutting-edge scientific approaches with some examples from world-class Toronto labs. Historical context is often used to deliver material. Topics include: core concepts in genetics, an introduction to cancer and stem cells; the genetic regulation of aging; core concepts in microbiology; emerging and recurring microbial threats; genetic engineering.

Prerequisite: BIO120H1, BIO230H1/ BIO255H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

MGY250H1 - Introduction to Medical Genetics

Hours: 36L

An introduction to medical genetics including the “omics” revolution, stem cells, cancer genetics, finding disease-causing mutations, genetic counselling and gene therapy. The course material is delivered online and is approximately equivalent to 36 lecture hours. Midterm and final exam are taken on campus or at a pre-approved site off-campus.

Prerequisite: BIO120H1, BIO130H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

MGY277H1 - Introduction to Medical Microbiology

Hours: 36L

An online introductory survey course that explores the agents of infectious disease including bacteria, viruses, and parasites as well as the host immune response. Other topics include the fundamentals of disease diagnosis and epidemiology. This course will use web-based delivery of lectures and tutorials and utilize a range of communication tools equivalent to approximately three lectures per week. The final exam will require student attendance on the St. George campus.

Prerequisite: BIO120H1, BIO130H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

MGY280H1 - Second Year Specialist Research

Hours: TBA

This course gives Specialists enrolled in the Molecular Genetics and Microbiology an opportunity to conduct an original research project in the second semester of their second year in one of the active research laboratories in the Department. Laboratory assignments are chosen during the first semester of second year by agreement with a Departmental faculty member and the Undergraduate Coordinator. Attendance at a weekly meeting is mandatory and students will present a report at the end of term. Details can be found on the departmental website. Not eligible for CR/NCR.

Prerequisite: Admission to the Specialist in Molecular Genetics and Microbiology Program. Student cannot have completed more than 8.5 FCE

Exclusion: MGY299Y1 and other ROP299Y1 courses

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

MGY299Y1 - Research Opportunity Program

Hours: TBA

Credit course for supervised participation in faculty research project. Details at <http://www.artsci.utoronto.ca/current/course/rop>. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Distribution Requirements: Science

MGY311Y1 - Molecular Biology

Hours: 72L

This course examines the design and interpretation of experiments that have led to our current understanding of the biological roles of DNA, RNA and proteins. Intended for students considering graduate or professional work in molecular biology or a related field or wanting a deeper understanding of these topics.

Prerequisite: BIO120H1, BIO230H1/ BIO255H1, BCH242Y1 (Note: BCH210H1 may be acceptable with permission of instructor)

Exclusion: BCH311H1, CSB349H1, JBC372H5(UTM), PSL350H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

MGY314H1 - Principles of Genetic Analysis I

Hours: 12T/36P

Laboratory experiments in genetics, with the focus on microbial and prokaryotic genetics. Topics and experiments include mutagenesis and genetic selection, linkage and recombination, genetic crosses, gene regulation, suppressor analyses, and genetic mapping. (Lab fee: $25)

Prerequisite: BIO230H1/ BIO255H1, BIO260H1/ HMB265H1

Exclusion: MGY312H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

MGY315H1 - Principles of Genetic Analysis II

Hours: 12T/36P

Laboratory experiments in eukaryotic genetics, using two of the most powerful eukaryotic model systems, the yeast Saccharomyces cerevisiae and fruit fly Drosophila melanogaster. The course follows MGY314H1; topics include analysis of genetic networks and pathways, meiotic segregation analysis, recombination mapping, genetic crosses, and phenotypic analyses. (Lab fee: $25)

Prerequisite: BIO230H1/ BIO255H1, BIO260H1/ HMB265H1, MGY314H1/ MGY340H1

Exclusion: MGY312H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

MGY340H1 - Molecular Genetics

Hours: 36L

This course gives students an in-depth understanding of how genetics, the study of mutations and their resulting phenotypes, are used to probe and understand a variety of biological phenomena ranging from metabolism, to development, to cancer.

Prerequisite: BIO120H1, BIO130H1, BIO230H1/ BIO255H1, BIO260H1/ HMB265H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

MGY350H1 - Model Organisms to Disease

Hours: 36L

The concepts of genetics in the context of human development, disease and evolution. Topics include genetic interactions and complex traits, variation in disease phenotype, signalling and development, stem cells and epigenetic regulation.

Prerequisite: BIO120H1, BIO230H1/ BIO255H1, BIO260H1/ HMB265H1

Corequisite: BCH311H1/ CSB349H1/ MGY311Y1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

MGY360H1 - Whole-Genome Sequencing and Analysis Laboratory

Hours: 36P

The principles and practice of whole-genome sequencing. Each student team will sequence an entire eukaryotic genome and analyze it. Topics will include: modern sequencing technology, yeast husbandry, genomic library construction and quality control, 'next-generation' sequencing, sequence assembly using a reference genome, principles of genome organization, mutation detection and interpretation.

Prerequisite: BIO230H1/ BIO255H1, BIO260H1/ HMB265H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

MGY377H1 - Microbiology I: Bacteria

Hours: 36L

An in depth study of bacteria including their structure, their biology, their ability to adapt, and their effects on human health. Provides a foundation for advanced studies in bacterial physiology, bacterial genetics, molecular pathogenesis of disease, immunology, and environmental studies.

Prerequisite: BCH210H1/ BCH242Y1, BIO120H1, BIO230H1/ BIO255H1

Exclusion: BIO370Y5 (UTM)

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

MGY378H1 - Microbiology II: Viruses

Hours: 36L

Detailed study of viruses in terms of structure, classification, replication and interaction with the host. Basis for advanced study in virology. Requires some familiarity with molecular and cellular biology. A concurrent course in immunology (IMM340H1, IMM350H1) or (IMM341H1, IMM351H1) is recommended.

Prerequisite: BCH210H1/ BCH242Y1; BIO120H1, BIO230H1/ BIO255H1; BIO260H1/ HMB265H1

Corequisite: BCH311H1/ CSB349H1/ MGY311Y1

Exclusion: BIO351Y1, CSB351Y1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

MGY379Y1 - Microbiology Laboratory

Hours: 24L/72P

Laboratory experiments will teach important concepts and provide students with hands-on experience in working safely with medically-important bacteria and viruses. Analysis of the results will help to develop skills in data analysis. Valuable not only for advanced work in microbiology but also in related fields that make use of bacteria and viruses as research tools. Topics include molecular techniques for identification and characterization of bacteria and viruses, biofilms, antibiotic resistance, site-directed mutagenesis, communication of bacteria with each other and their environment, propagation and assay of viruses, host response to infection, viral vectors. (Lab fee: $50)

Prerequisite: BIO120H1, BIO230H1/ BIO255H1, BIO260H1/ HMB265H1

Corequisite: MGY377H1, MGY378H1

Exclusion: MGY376H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

MGY399Y1 - Research Opportunity Program

Hours: TBA

MGY420H1 - Regulation of Gene Expression

Hours: 24L

Regulatory mechanisms controlling gene expression in eukaryotes; students will read, discuss, and present the primary research literature in class. Topics include: assembly of the initiation complex; roles of transcription factors, co-activators and cis-acting regulatory elements; promoter escape; mechanisms that control elongation, termination and anti-termination of transcription; chromatin control of transcription.

Prerequisite: BCH311H1/ CSB349H1/ MGY311Y1

Exclusion: BIO477H5 (UTM)

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

MGY425H1 - Signal Transduction and Cell Cycle Regulation

Hours: 24L

This course presents and integrates molecular aspects of signal transduction and cell cycle regulation in eukaryotic cells from yeast to humans. Emphasis is on recent advances in growth factor receptor signalling, modular protein domains, and the recurrent role of protein phosphorylation and protein-protein interactions in cell regulation.

Prerequisite: BCH311H1/ MGY311Y1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

MGY428H1 - Functional Genomics

Hours: 24L

A broad-ranging course that covers many aspects of genomics and functional genomics, which is the discipline of defining and attributing function to all of the heritable material of an organism on a genome-wide scale, as applied to invertebrates and vertebrates. The primary and review literature will be the basis of all lectures.

Prerequisite: BCH210H1/ BCH242Y1; BIO260H1/ HMB265H1; MGY311Y1/ CSB349H1/ BCH311H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

MGY434H1 - Bacterial Signalling and Physiological Regulation

Hours: 36L

An in-depth look at bacteria, their evolution and genomes, and how they sense their environment and adapt to environmental stimuli. Topics discussed include the human microbiome, modern bacterial genomics and metagenomics and how they affect diagnosis and treatment of disease, bacterial community structures including biofilms and quorum sensing, and the contribution of metabolism to disease and stress resistance.

Prerequisite: BCH210H1/ BCH242Y1, BCH311H1/ CSB349H1/ MGY311Y1, MGY377H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

MGY440H1 - Virus-Host Interactions

Hours: 36L

Analysis of virus/host interactions at the molecular level with a view to understanding how viruses cause disease. Course material is based on recent research publications. Topics may include: virus entry and intracellular trafficking, activation of host cell signalling pathways, viral and host determinants of tissue tropism within the host and transmission between hosts.

Prerequisite: BCH311H1/ CSB349H1/ MGY311Y1; CSB351Y1/ MGY378H1

Recommended Preparation: IMM340H1/ IMM341H1, IMM350H1/ IMM351H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

MGY460H1 - Genetic Analysis of Development

Hours: 24L

Basic and advanced principles of genetic analysis applied to the study of the best-understood eukaryotic model organisms including the nematode worm Caenorhabditis elegans, the zebrafish, and the laboratory mouse. We emphasize the use of genetic approaches to address problems in cell biology and development, such as the regulation of cell fate and tissue development. Much of the knowledge gained from these experimentally tractable organisms has proven broadly applicable, and the same principles of developmental genetic analysis underlie efforts to understand the development of humans.

Prerequisite: BIO260H1/ HMB265H1, MGY311Y1/ CSB349H1/ BCH311H1

Exclusion: MGY451H1, MGY452H1

Recommended Preparation: MGY340H1, MGY350H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

MGY470H1 - Human and Molecular Genetics

Hours: 24L

Current aspects of human and molecular genetics including: chromosome structure and function, inheritance of mutations and disease, the human genome and disease gene mapping, cancer genetics, mouse disease models and gene based diagnostics and therapies.

Prerequisite: BCH311H1/ MGY311Y1 (Note: CSB349H1 is acceptable with permission of the instructor)

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

MGY480Y1 - Special Research Project

Hours: TBA

An opportunity for specialized individual research in molecular genetics and microbiology by arrangement with the course coordinator. Students are required to perform an original research project and attend relevant research seminars. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: BCH371H1/ MGY312H1/ MGY314H1/ MGY315H1/ MGY376H1/ MGY379Y1, MGY311Y1/ BCH311H1/ CSB349H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

MIJ485H1 - Vaccines and Immunity

Hours: 36L

Analysis of the strategies used by pathogenic microbes to evade specific and innate immune responses, and the strategies used to combat infectious disease using vaccines, with an emphasis on molecular and immunological aspects. Special topics include: molecular basis of pathogenicity and immune-evasion strategies; vaccination strategies; challenges to vaccine implementation (given jointly by the Departments of Molecular Genetics and Immunology).

Prerequisite: ( IMM340H1/ IMM341H1), ( IMM350H1/ IMM351H1), MGY377H1, MGY378H1

Exclusion: MBY480H1, MGY485H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

Introduction

Munk One, provided by the Munk School of Global Affairs, provides first-year students with an interdisciplinary program focused on innovation and global problem-solving, investigating the central questions that lie at the heart of teaching and research in the Munk School of Global Affairs, namely issues of global institutions, markets and civil society. Through case studies of some of the most complex challenges worldwide, students in Munk One will examine innovations that have succeeded and failed, when innovation occurs, how innovation can be fostered, and how obstacles to innovation can be overcome. Students, faculty members, and practitioners working together draw on the breadth of interdisciplinary research and teaching in the Munk School to examine problems and solutions for complex global problems.

The Munk One experience integrates small group seminars with hands-on research and analysis of global problems. Limited to an enrolment of 25, students in Munk One enroll in the two (2.0 FCE) courses offered in the Program. The seminar courses promote small-group discussion and emphasize research, analytical, and presentation skills. A lab course gives students the unique opportunity to tackle real-world problems with faculty and graduate students, building connections with their coursework through research-based opportunities that identify problems around the globe and seek to address them through innovative and empirically-grounded solutions. Beyond the classroom, Munk One engages students in the dynamic global conversation occurring in the Munk School, and offers students a vast array of co-curricular offerings such as access to the Munk School's 500 events each year, insights from leading practitioners, field visits, leadership events, curated readings and films. In the summer following their first year, Munk One offers students opportunities to apply these skills in the field by taking part in courses offered in places like Argentina, Israel and Singapore.

By focusing on innovation throughout their foundational year, undergraduate students will receive early immersion in leading thinking on the current global architecture across the sciences, professional fields, humanities, and with perspectives drawn from around the world. Because of the intensive intellectual experience that Munk One will provide, we deliver these offerings through collaboration with the School's flagship Master of Global Affairs Program. The result is a unique bridging of foundational year undergraduate education with the insights being developed in the School's professional graduate program. In so doing, we expect that Munk One: Global Innovation will build a community of undergraduate students who are passionate about the increasingly interconnected and multipolar world in which we live, and who are also linked in closely with the graduate and professional student cohorts pursuing related questions across the Munk School.

The course offerings for Munk One are specifically designed to meet these goals. Global Innovation I: Issues and Perspectives emphasizes innovation as a key driver of economic growth, population health, and societal success. Relying on contemporary and historical cases across the globe, this course engages students on the question of when innovation occurs, how to identify moments of innovation, motivates students to explore who benefits from innovation and how innovation can be fostered. Global Innovation II: Challenges and Solutions, pushes students to explore the potential problems that often limit or hamper innovation – such as the challenges of implementation and scale. In so doing, students engage directly with the problem-solving approach that is also core to the Munk School's graduate program, by relying on case studies of some of the most complex challenges worldwide, and examining interventions that have succeeded and failed to address them.

As identified above, in addition to seminar courses and co-curricular activities, students in Munk One will each be placed in research labs working on real-world global problems, such as digital governance, environment, global health, ethnic conflict and security, and economic development. Through these laboratory opportunities students will work with interdisciplinary teams to conduct research, develop reports, participate in roundtables, and learn how to identify and address complex global problems. These labs uniquely provide students a platform to draw from and refine their Foundational Year experience. Students will gain experience in a structured multidisciplinary approach to addressing global problems, engage in innovative global problem-solving, and drill down on substantive areas of interest within the field of global affairs.

Munk One students intending to pursue Peace, Conflict and Justice or Contemporary Asian Studies programs (undergraduate programs run through the Munk School of Global Affairs), are also eligible to count some of their Munk One coursework toward their degree requirements.

All first-year students in the faculty of Arts and Science (St. George campus) are eligible for admission. Students must submit an online application with a resume and personal statement.

Munk One Courses

MUN101H1 - Global Innovation I: Issues and Perspectives

Hours: 24L

Innovation has always been a key driver of economic growth, population health, and societal success. Transformative change has historically been linked to major innovations such as urban sanitation, pasteurization, the printing press and the industrial revolution. Currently, the opportunity to enhance life chances worldwide relies on innovating for the poor, social innovation, and the ability to harness scientific and technological knowledge. What precisely is innovation? When does innovation happen? Who benefits from innovation? How can innovation be fostered, and how do innovations spread? Relying on major global transformations and country-specific case studies (for example, South Korea, Taiwan, Israel and India), this course examines the drivers of innovation, the political, social, economic, and scientific and technological factors that are critical to promoting innovation and addressing current global challenges, and the consequences of innovation. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: Admission to Munk One
Exclusion: Innis One, New One, St. Mike's One, Trinity One, UC One, Vic One, Woodsworth One
Distribution Requirements: Social Science
Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

MUN102H1 - Global Innovation II: Challenges and Solutions

Hours: 24L

Governing public goods has been an age-old concern for social scientists and policymakers alike. This is not surprising since the provision of global public goods is riddled by problems of collective action. In this course, we focus on how to implement solutions through states, markets and communities.

The first objective is to familiarize students with the concept of global public goods, the different mechanisms that can provide these goods and the challenges that emerge from lacking incentives to secure their provision. To this end, the course will introduce theories from sociology, political science, philosophy, and history to help us understand different types of governance mechanisms and how they may be used to scale global solutions. Theories can help us explain the tensions between cooperating for the public good at the expense of sacrificing individual goals, or why certain areas of our lives, like the Internet, seem to produce public goods without any formal mechanism of cooperation.

The second objective is to use the class and subject of study as an arena to model and practice the kind of learning that is expected of university students. The main skills that the course will help students target and develop are: research (finding, evaluating and assimilating reliable information); writing (developing ideas into logically written arguments); and critical analysis of arguments presented in the readings and debated in class (this includes identifying the key assumptions that are implicit in different theories as well as inherent in our own positions on various questions related to governance). Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: Admission to Munk One
Exclusion: Innis One, New One, St. Mike's One, Trinity One, UC One, Vic One, Woodsworth One
Distribution Requirements: Social Science
Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

MUN105Y1 - Global Problem-Solving: Laboratory Opportunities

Hours: 48L

This course teaches students how to conduct analytically rigorous social science research to improve their insights into complex global problems and devise innovative solutions to address them. A unique feature of this class is that students have the opportunity to learn by doing. Students work hands-on in one of several labs dealing with some of the most intractable global problems of our time in the areas of the environment, health, digital governance, security and the gap between rich and poor. By the end of this course students will be able to:

1. Experience and practice the process of social science research
2. Narrow the scope of a complex global challenge into a manageable research problem that can be tackled over the course of the semester
3. Improve their knowledge and insights on a particular global problem
4. Develop a viable, compelling and implementable solution that can help address an aspect of a global problem
5. Pitch a solution in a compelling way to a jury of experts in global affairs

Students will work with their peers in small seminar classes and lab group settings, mentored by graduate teaching assistants specializing in global affairs, expert faculty and senior policy advisors dedicated to addressing global issues in the fields of the environment, health, security, digital governance and political economy. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: Admission to Munk One

Exclusion: Exclusion: Innis One, New One, St. Mike's One, Trinity One, UC One, Vic One, Woodsworth One

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

Introduction

In the Faculty of Arts and Science, Music is approached as one of the liberal arts and taught as cultural history.

This humanistic emphasis aims at a high degree of correlation with other disciplines such as Fine Art, Cultural Anthropology, Languages and Literatures, History, and Philosophy. Note that unlike students in the Mus.Bac. program at the Faculty of Music, students in the Specialist and Major programs are not given individual applied music instruction (e.g. piano or voice lessons). They are, however, offered a thorough grounding in musicology, and strong training in both ethnomusicology and music theory, with the option of increasing their exposure to the latter two disciplines via their upper-year option courses.

The courses with the prefix MUS are open to any student of the University. Even students with a strong music background should find them stimulating explorations of the world of music.

Students wishing to enter the Specialist or Major Program should examine the courses listed under HMU History of Music and TMU Theory of Music in the Faculty of Music Calendar. First-year specialist/major courses are available to a small number of students, who are admitted to them by audition and interview during Registration week. Those interested in ethnomusicology and the study of world music may audition on the basis of their comparable accomplishments in a non-Western instrumental or vocal performing tradition. All students are required to have completed Level 8 Theory (formerly Advanced Rudiments) from the Royal Conservatory of Music or acceptable equivalent as prerequisite, prior to the audition-interview. Knowledge of Western music history and theory ensures that students are not disadvantaged when facing the curricular requirements of the program. In this program the humanistic and historical approach is supported by courses in music theory which provide craft and analytical tools. The Specialist Program provides excellent preparation for a variety of professional activities including music criticism, library science, positions in the publishing, broadcasting, and recording industries, as well as for graduate studies in musicology, ethnomusicology, and music theory, leading to careers in university teaching. The program leads to the degree of Bachelor of Arts (honours). For programs leading to the degree of Bachelor of Music, the student should consult the Calendar of the Faculty of Music.

Students are encouraged to attend events sponsored by the Faculty of Music such as the Thursday Noon and Faculty Artists' Series, opera productions and numerous concerts. For information refer to www.music.utoronto.ca or telephone 416-978-3744. Faculty of Music Representative: Professor R. McClelland, Associate Dean, Edward Johnson Building, Room 256 (416-946-0802); email: ryan.mcclelland@utoronto.ca Enquiries: Jennifer Panasiuk, Admissions Officer, Edward Johnson Building, Room 145 (416-978-3741); email: undergrad.music@utoronto.ca

Regarding Music Programs

Enrolment in HMU and TMU courses, and, therefore, in the Specialist and Major programs, is limited to students who pass the audition-interview, held on September 4, 2018. Students are required to complete and submit the Student Profile available on-line at www.music.utoronto.ca prior to August 17, 2018. Hard copies are available from the Faculty of Music Registrar's Office. You will then be assigned an audition time. Prospective candidates must perform at the Royal Conservatory of Music Grade Eight level, and demonstrate that they have RCM Advanced Rudiments (formerly Grade Two Rudiments) and RCM Basic Harmony (formerly Grade Three Harmony) or equivalents. Students interested in pursuing the Major or Specialist with the Ensemble option are required to pass an additional audition-interview for ensemble placement. Please refer to MUS120Y1. An information sheet is available at the Faculty of Music and online at www.music.utoronto.ca under "Music for Arts & Science Students". ## Regarding Music Courses

HMU and TMU Courses

HMU111H1, TMU115H1, and TMU140Y1 are Prerequisites for all other HMU/TMU courses which are offered annually. Full details on these, and other HMU/TMU courses may be found in the Calendar of the Faculty of Music. (The link can be found here: <https://music.utoronto.ca/#students>.)

HMU111H, TMU115H1, and TMU140Y1, for the purposes of an Arts & Science degree, are considered category 1 (Creative and Cultural Representations) for breadth requirements, and are considered as Humanities courses for distribution requirements.

First Year Seminars

The 199Y1 and 199H1 seminars are designed to provide the opportunity to work closely with an instructor in a class of no more than twenty-four students. These interactive seminars are intended to stimulate the students' curiosity and provide an opportunity to get to know a member of the professorial staff in a seminar environment during the first year of study. Details can be found at www.artsci.utoronto.ca/current/course/fyh-1/.

Introduction

The Department of Near and Middle Eastern Civilizations is concerned with the interdisciplinary study of the civilizations and cultures of the Near and Middle East from Neolithic times until the present, including their archaeology, history, mythology, religion and thought, art and architecture, and languages and literatures (Akkadian, Babylonian, Sumerian, ancient Egyptian, Coptic, Aramaic, Syriac, Hebrew, Arabic, Ge'ez, Persian and Turkish). The Department's programs provide students with a unique opportunity to study non-Western complex societies and civilizations.

The Near East is generally understood to refer to the region at the eastern end of the Mediterranean and beyond, from ancient times up to the advent of Islam in the seventh century CE. The Middle East begins with the advent of Islam and refers to a much broader geographical area whose predominant Islamic culture in medieval and modern times has stretched to North Africa and Spain in the west and to Central Asia, India, and Southeast Asia in the east. p

The Department welcomes students of all academic backgrounds who wish to learn about the Near and Middle East. NMC101H1, NMC102H1 and NMC104H1 introduce students to the ancient Near East, including ancient Egypt, Mesopotamia, and Israel, while NMC103H1 introduces students to the Islamic world. Students pursuing a Specialist or Major program are required to take two of these Gateway courses and are given the option to enrol in one of four streams: an open stream, an ancient stream, a medieval stream, or a modern stream.

Many courses offered in the Department do not require any knowledge of the languages of the region. However, the Department strongly believes that a deeper understanding of the civilizations and cultures of the Near and Middle East can be achieved through the study of one or more of its languages. In fact, admission to a graduate program in NMC requires the applicant to have acquired a background in the relevant languages. For more detailed information about programs and courses offered in a particular year, students should consult the Department's web site: www.nmc.utoronto.ca.

Undergraduate Enquiries should be directed to the Undergraduate Co-ordinator, 4 Bancroft Avenue, Room 200 (nmc.ug@utoronto.ca)

Faculty of Arts & Science Language Citation

The Department of Near & Middle Eastern Civilizations participates in the Faculty of Arts & Science's Language Citation initiative.

The study of Ancient languages is a demanding and intellectually rewarding educational experience that makes available to the modern student the rich resources of classical texts in the original languages. The "living" languages offered by NMC provide invaluable insights into the varieties of human culture and expression and offer myriad directions in which to take the study of a foreign language.

Successful study of these languages demonstrates intelligence, discipline, analytical sophistication, and an excellent memory. In each language the Language Citation recognizes a significant level of achievement in language study with a high level of academic success.

For details on the languages available for Citation and detailed requirements, contact the department directly.

Students should note that the Language Citation is not equivalent to an academic program and that enrolment in a program is not necessary in order to earn the recognition bestowed by the Citation.

Regarding Near and Middle Eastern Civilizations Courses

First Year Seminars

The 199Y1 and 199H1 seminars are designed to provide the opportunity to work closely with an instructor in a class of no more than twenty-four students. These interactive seminars are intended to stimulate the students' curiosity and provide an opportunity to get to know a member of the professorial staff in a seminar environment during the first year of study. Details can be found at www.artsci.utoronto.ca/current/course/fyh-1/.

Gateway Courses

These courses are designed to introduce students to the major civilizations and cultures of the Near and Middle East, ancient, medieval, and modern, and to present students with the range of possibilities for further study in their chosen areas of interest.

Language Courses

The Department reserves the right to place students in the course level best suited to their linguistic preparation.

NMC355H1 - The Ottoman Empire in the Age of Reform, 1808-1918

Hours: 24L

The last phase of the Ottoman empire has long been viewed by Orientalists and Middle East nationalists as a period of inevitable decline. More recently, cultural historians of the Middle East have framed the long 19th century as a period of grand reforms - or Tanzimat. This course seeks to critically examine the notions of reform of the state and reform of the individual between Sultan Mahmud II's accession and the defeat of the Ottoman empire in World War I. Focusing largely on Istanbul and the Ottoman capitals political relations with the Arab provinces, we will relate economic, social and intellectual transformations to state laws and policies, Mediterranean capitalism and the rise of sectarianism and nationalism in the Middle East.

Recommended Preparation: NMC278H1, NMC377Y1, NMC378H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

Hours: 24S

This course probes the contemporaneous formation of modern Oriental Studies in Europe and the emergence of discourses on Europe (Ifrañj/Farang) in the Middle East from the eighteenth century to the present. Special emphasis will be devoted to encounters between scholars in Western Europe, Iran, India, and the Ottoman Empire. This seminar-style course explains that Orientals gazed and returned the gaze, and in the process of cultural looking, they, like their Occidental counterparts, exoticized and eroticized the Farangi-Other. In the interplay of looks between Orientals and Occidentals, there was no steady position of spectatorship, no objective observer, and noaperspectival position. Intended for upper year students.

Prerequisite: Permission of the instructor.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

NMC476H1 - Politics of Archaeology in the Modern Middle East

Hours: 24S

This course examines the role nineteenth and twentieth-century archaeology played in Middle Eastern politics, the culture of colonialism and in nationalist struggles. The course will first familiarize the students with the diplomatic and intellectual context of the formation of archaeology as a field of study in Europe and analyse the role archaeology played in the production of knowledge about the Middle East. Next, the course will examine the archaeological practices on the ground (and underground) and inquire what happens in the contact zone between foreign and local archaeologists. Finally, we will trace the ways in which emergent nationalist discourse challenge, appropriate and imitate the historical narratives of Western archaeology.

Prerequisite: Permission of instructor is required.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

NMC477H1 - Modern Turkey

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

NMC479H1 - Nationalism in the Arab World

Hours: 24S

A seminar that critically examines the types and varieties of national expression in Arab societies of the Middle East and North Africa, through a reading of common texts and students' individual research projects. (Offered in alternate years)

Prerequisite: NMC378H1 and permission of instructor

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

NMC481H1 - Muslim Gnostics and Mystics

Hours: 24L

This course will present for study a different prominent figure each year: Hallaj, Ghazali, Suhrawardi, Ibn Arabi, Rumi, Mulla Sadra, and so on. Attention will be given to their respective social and historical milieux, their modes of expression and experience, and the nature of their literary productions. There is no prerequisite, but students must be advanced undergraduates in the Humanities.

Prerequisite: Permission of instructor

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

NMC484H1 - Gender-related Topics in Law and Religion

Hours: 36L

Abortion, rape, family violence and similar topics from the perspective of historical and legal development, scientific theory, socio-ethical attitudes and anthropological comparison in the Bible and other ancient Near Eastern sources, through Jewish legal texts to modern responses. (Offered in alternate years)

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

NMC491H1 - Mesopotamian Material Culture: Art

Hours: 24S

This course focuses on a comprehensive introduction and discussion of Mesopotamian artwork from the Neolithic to the Iron Age periods (ca. 6000 - 300 BCE). Following an introduction of major artifact classes (including sculpture, relief, and glyptics [seals and sealings]), students will learn to describe and catalogue works of Mesopotamian art, allowing them to critically use and evaluate primary and secondary publications. Systematic descriptions and labels for key characteristics such as the object materials, size, iconography, genre, style, and theme will be established to show how meaningful artifact typologies can be constructed. The potential as well as limitations of art-historical approaches for archaeological work, especially for the chronology and interpretation of archeological contexts, will be discussed and examined on selected cases. Several classes will be taught at the Royal Ontario Museum to demonstrate the handling and physical analysis of artifacts.

Prerequisite: Permission of the instructor

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

Research Courses

NMC299Y1 - Research Opportunity Program

Hours: TBA

Credit course for supervised participation in faculty research project. Details at <http://www.artsci.utoronto.ca/current/course/rop>. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

NMC398Y0 - Research Excursions

Hours: TBA

An instructor-supervised group project in an off-campus setting. Details at <http://www.artsci.utoronto.ca/current/course/rep>. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

NMC462H1 - Polarized-light Microscopy in Archaeology I: Foundations

Hours: 24L/24P

Provides students with training in the use of polarized-light microscopy in the examination of archaeological materials, particularly pottery (ceramic petrology). Students will apply the knowledge they gain from lectures to hands-on work with materials in the lab, covering instruction in crystallography, optics, mineralogy, lithology, and other aspects of the petrology of ceramics and other materials. Labs comprise eight three-hour sessions during the term, working with the polarized-light microscope to examine and analyze thin-sections. No prior knowledge of geology is required.

Prerequisite: NMC264H1 or permission of the instructor.

Exclusion: NMC462Y1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

NMC470H1 - Polarized-light Microscopy in Archaeology II: Applications

Previous Course Number: NMC462Y1

Hours: 24L/24P

Explores further applications of polarized-light microscopy in the examination of archaeological materials, particularly pottery (ceramic petrology). The focus is on seminal case-studies of materials from around the world, and in particular on material from the Middle East, Central America, and East Asia that UofT researchers have studied, ranging in date from Neolithic to modern. Labs comprise eight three-hour sessions during the term, working with the polarized-light microscope to examine and analyze thin-sections. No prior knowledge of geology is required.

Prerequisite: NMC462H1

Exclusion: NMC462Y1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

NMC495Y1 - Independent Studies

Hours: TBA

Open only when an NMC full-time faculty member is willing and available to supervise. Student must find an appropriate NMC supervisor for the desired topic and obtain the approval of the departmental Associate Chair/Undergraduate Coordinator. Obtain details and a course form from the Department Undergraduate Administrator. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: Permission of Department

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

NMC496H1 - Independent Studies

Hours: TBA

Open only when an NMC full-time faculty member is willing and available to supervise. ## Introduction

New College courses have in common a commitment to socially engaged learning and to explorative and inventive pedagogy that widens students' experience by critically examining relationships among academic disciplines. We offer four degree programs: African Studies; Buddhism, Psychology and Mental Health; Caribbean Studies; and Equity Studies. These programs are open to all students in the Faculty of Arts and Science.

We also offer interdisciplinary courses that can enhance any degree program. Integration of student experience is a major priority in a college with students from all faculties in the University. The Independent Studies courses provide an opportunity for students to design their own programs and to test their research, analytic, synthetic, and creative skills by writing a major research paper. The Community Engaged Learning program supports course-based service learning and independent community engaged learning opportunities. These allow students to integrate their theoretical knowledge with practical experience, while engaging in meaningful work in campus and community organizations.

New One: Learning Without Borders

New One provides first year students with a comprehensive foundation for successful undergraduate study. It encourages active, engaged learning and creative forms of inquiry, and support students in developing their research, writing and oral communication abilities. In the second semester particularly, students will practice and develop skills in research and knowledge presentation, showcasing their projects at the annual end-of-year "Knowledge Fair."

New One gives students the tools to think deeply, critically, and creatively about these topics and what they can teach us about the ways our lives are connected "beyond borders." Inspired by the social advocacy focus of New College's academic programs, the program grapples with the core question: how do we imagine responsible global citizenship and build a more equitable and just society?

New One offers up to eight interdisciplinary small-class seminars annually. In the first semester, students accepted into the program select one out of four half-credit courses that introduce key concepts and analytic frameworks in the scholarly study of food, language, digital technology, science, art or another current issue. In the half courses offered in the second semester, students have the opportunity to deepen their understanding of contemporary questions that arise within each of the four topics. Students may select any one of the four second semester courses on offer, either continuing the same theme from first semester or exploring a new course topic.

New One courses meet for 3 hours each week. A portion of those sessions will occasionally be allocated to "Learning Labs." All students in the program come together in these Learning Labs to engage in joint activities and explore issues that are common to the four topics. Both in seminars and Learning Labs, students will experience a variety of ways of learning (through, for example, guest lectures, group work, workshops, field trips to local community organizations, and panels of senior students sharing their experience and insights).

study. It encourages active, engaged learning and creative forms of inquiry, and supports students in developing their research, writing and oral communication abilities. In the second semester particularly, students will practice and develop skills in research and knowledge presentation, showcasing their projects at the annual end-of-year "Knowledge Fair."

New One requires a specific application. All first-year students in the Faculty of Arts and Science on the St. George campus are eligible for admission. Students can apply to more than one College One program; they can accept admission to only one program. For more information about the program, application process and criteria of selection, go to <http://uoft.me/NewOne> or contact new.one@utoronto.ca.

The African Studies Program

(Specialist, Major, Minor) The African Studies Program examines the dynamics, challenges and processes of socio-economic, environmental and political transformations in Africa, the varied histories, societies, ideas, institutions of Africa and its diasporas through interdisciplinary lenses. The interdisciplinary courses, through innovative and critical pedagogies deal with cutting edge subjects such as political economy, African inventions, development, aid, humanitarianism, NGOs, conflict and peacemaking, activism and political struggles, politics, African cultures, migration and displacement, gender and development, environment, health, black freedom, urbanization, African systems of thought, the slave trade, colonialism, the post-colonial state, Africa and its diaspora, Pan-Africanism, and globalization. Innovative pedagogies nurturing students' intellectual curiosity, cultivating engaged, creative and critical thinking and teaching cutting edge courses that recognize Africa as a living place rather than merely as a site for intellectual speculation and study inform our teaching. The program also offers practical courses in African languages. Additional cross-listed courses, drawn from disciplines in humanities, social sciences and sciences complement the program offerings.

The Buddhism, Psychology and Mental Health Program

(Minor) An interdisciplinary Minor program, BPMH focuses on the growing convergence between western psychology and the psychological aspects of Buddhism as expressed in the recent interest in mindfulness meditation as a means of enhancing health and wellness. The program allows students to investigate the diverse ways that Buddhist and western psychology and science intersect, bringing together academic, clinical and contemplative traditions. Students choose from a wide range of courses on mind, consciousness, mindfulness meditation, social implications and applications of Buddhism, cognitive science, psychotherapy and the psychology of religion. The program encourages a critical examination of the ways that Buddhist psychology can contribute to the modern understanding of consciousness, wisdom, mental health and physical health.

The Caribbean Studies Program

(Specialist, Major, Minor) Caribbean Studies is an interdisciplinary undergraduate program that consists of courses on Caribbean history and society, politics and economic development, literature and thought. Our courses deal with a wide range of issues including gender, religion, culture, ethnicity, race, development, language, colonialism, the environment and regional common markets. Caribbean Studies equips students to think about broad, theoretical and challenging intellectual issues and, at the same time, to ground that expansive thinking in deep understanding of the particular historical, political, economic, geographical, cultural and linguistic realities of the Caribbean and its diasporas. This combined interdisciplinary and area studies approach prepares students to think across disciplines about these kinds of questions, and to base their comparative, transnational and interdisciplinary thinking in concrete knowledge of the Caribbean and its people. The study of the Caribbean equips students to question the order of things, reflect on their own place in the world, and see past the Caribbean's size or current level of geo-political influence to recognize the inherent value and intellectual significance of all places and all people.

The Equity Studies Program

(Major, Minor) How do we think about social justice in an increasingly globalized world? Equity Studies is an interdisciplinary undergraduate program that focuses on social justice theories and practices in a variety of local and global contexts. Cutting across a spectrum of academic disciplines, the program brings together scholarship, community work and activism in a unique approach to undergraduate education that values student experiential learning and community knowledge. Through engagement with theoretical and historical texts in equity, students are trained in postcolonial studies, transnational feminism, critical race theory, queer studies and other bodies of knowledge that have much to say about social justice. Course offerings in disability studies, global food equity and social advocacy equip students with the skills to apply their academic learning to real-life situations. By defining 'education' in the broadest sense, Equity Studies creates a dynamic learning environment that extends far beyond the university walls. With a vibrant student body, a wide range of community partners and a bold curriculum, Equity Studies at New College is a leader in social justice education in Canada.

Community Engaged Learning (CEL)

New College offers several community engaged courses. These provide students the opportunity to integrate academic, experiential and practice-based learning as they participate in meaningful work in community or campus organizations.

Two forms of community engaged learning courses are offered: embedded and independent. In the former, a community service component is either a mandatory or optional component of the course syllabus. (Examples of such courses are NEW342H1 and NEW232Y1). In the independent community engaged learning courses, upper level students, with various academic backgrounds, are placed with a social purpose community or campus-based organization for several hours per week, contributing to the mission of that organization in program support work or research. Through seminar discussions and critical reflection on their experiences, students learn how to mobilize their academic knowledge, deepen their appreciation of community engagement and social justice, explore social and ethical issues, and build professional dispositions and work-place skills relevant to the social sector.

Information about CEL can be found at <http://www.newcollege.utoronto.ca/academics/new-college-academic-programs/community-engaged-learning>.

Independent Studies

New College Independent Study courses are designed both to complement regular offerings in New College Programs and to provide an opportunity for New College students in any program to enrich their studies. The normal expectation of a project course is that the student, aided and advised by their supervisor, will read relevant literature, and plan, analyze and report on an original and independent investigation of an appropriate topic. Written applications, including a detailed proposal, should be made through the Programs Office for approval by the Vice Principal of New College or a designate by April 15 for the Summer Session; by July 15 for the Fall Term; or by November 15 for the Winter Term. Should the deadline fall on a weekend, applications will be accepted until the following Monday. Students will be notified of the acceptance or rejection of an application. If the project requires ethics approval, please be advised that you should find and consult with a supervisor about meeting this requirement at least a semester in advance of these deadlines. For more information and application forms, please see the Independent Studies website: <http://www.newcollege.utoronto.ca/new-college-academic-programs/independent-studies>.

Interdisciplinary Courses on Jungian Theory

This suite of courses offers students opportunities for sustained, interdisciplinary engagement with the thought of Carl Jung. Courses invite students to consider Jung's thought and practice in relation to a range of disciplinary and cultural issues in order to open up conversations about models of consciousness and mind.

The International Foundation Program

is designed for international students who need to meet the University's English language requirement. Students will acquire the academic and language skills necessary for full admission to undergraduate studies. Core courses include one first year history credit course (IFP100Y1), three non-credit language courses and one non-credit discipline-specific course. Courses are open only to students admitted to the program. For program and admission information, please see <http://www.ifp.utoronto.ca>.

The Human Biology Programs

offer a broad education in life sciences with courses offered by departments in both the Faculties of Arts and Science, and Medicine (see Human Biology section of the Calendar.)

The Women and Gender Studies Program

(Specialist, Major, Minor) provides an interdisciplinary and culturally inclusive approach to understanding gender (see Women and Gender Studies section of the Calendar.)

New One: Learning Without Borders

NEW101H1 - Food Matters I

Hours: 12L/24S

Exploring key themes and different kinds of knowledge implied by the notion of "learning without borders", this interdisciplinary course looks at food as a system that impacts every element of life. It makes connections with other New One topics, links students' own food choices to global forces, and considers what global citizenship might mean in the context of food.

Prerequisite: Admission to New One

Exclusion: INI/Munk/SMC/TRN/UNI/VIC/WDW One; NEW102H1/ NEW103H1/ NEW104H1/ NEW105H1/ NEW106H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

NEW102H1 - Language and Diversity I

Hours: 12L/24S

Exploring key themes and different kinds of knowledge implied by the notion of "learning without borders", this interdisciplinary course looks at the place of language in connecting and dividing people, places and communities. Defining language broadly, it makes connections with other New One topics, and explores students' own language experience in relation to global forces.

Prerequisite: Admission to New One

Exclusion: INI/Munk/SMC/TRN/UNI/VIC/WDW One; NEW101H1/ NEW103H1/ NEW104H1/ NEW105H1/ NEW106H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

NEW103H1 - Digital Technology and Society I

Hours: 12L/24S

Exploring key themes and different kinds of knowledge implied by the notion of "learning without borders", this interdisciplinary course considers how digital technology connects us to others around the globe, shaping how we live, think, see, relate and imagine in the world. It makes connections with other New One topics, and engages students' own experience of digital technology.

Prerequisite: Admission to New One

Exclusion: INI/Munk/SMC/TRN/UNI/VIC/WDW One; NEW101H1/ NEW102H1/ NEW104H1/ NEW105H1/ NEW106H1

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

NEW104H1 - Art and Community I

Hours: 12L/24S

Exploring key themes and different kinds of knowledge implied by the notion of "learning without borders", this interdisciplinary course explores the concepts of home and belonging and how art is involved in creating a sense of community. It makes connections with other New One topics, and engages students in their own social interactive artistic practice.

Prerequisite: Admission to New One

Exclusion: INI/Munk/SMC/TRN/UNI/VIC/WDW One; NEW101H1/ NEW102H1/ NEW103H1/ NEW105H1/ NEW106H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

NEW105H1 - Current Issues Without Borders I

Hours: 12L/24S

This interdisciplinary course addresses a current issue that exemplifies the themes of "Learning Without Borders" in New One. It investigates how this issue is implicated in connecting us with others around the globe; it engages different kinds of knowledge and community perspectives; and integrates students' own experience as related to the issue.

Prerequisite: Admission into New One

Exclusion: INI/Munk/SMC/TRN/UNI/VIC/WDW One; NEW101H1/ NEW102H1/ NEW103H1/ NEW104H1/ NEW106H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

NEW106H1 - Science and Social Justice I

Hours: 12L/24S

Exploring key themes and different kinds of knowledge implied by the notion of "learning without borders" in New One, this interdisciplinary course looks at how scientific knowledge and technology are mobilized to deal with global problems such as disease, mental health, discrimination, economic inequality and threats to our environment.

Prerequisite: Admission to New One

Exclusion: INI, SMC, TRI, UC, VIC, WDW One, Munk One; NEW101H1/ NEW102H1/ NEW103H1/ NEW104H1/ NEW105H1

Recommended Preparation: None

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

NEW111H1 - Food Matters II

Hours: 12L/24S

What is at stake in achieving ethical food production, access to nutritious and environmentally sustainable food, and global food security? Building on integrated learning from any New One I course, this course engages more deeply with such questions, along with community-led alternatives to dominant food systems, animal rights, biotechnology, and health and wellness.

Prerequisite: NEW101H1/ NEW102H1/ NEW103H1/ NEW104H1/ NEW105H1/ NEW106H1/Permission of the New One Coordinator

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

NEW112H1 - Language and Diversity II

Hours: 12L/24S

Building on the integrated learning from any New One I course, this course considers various language issues that arise as people migrate around the globe, including the relationship of language and culture, the question of language preservation, the politics of minority and global languages, language policy and norms, disability and diverse ways of communicating.

Prerequisite: NEW101H1/ NEW102H1/ NEW103H1/ NEW104H1/ NEW105H1/ NEW106H1/Permission of the New One Coordinator

Exclusion: INI/Munk/SMC/TRN/UNI/VIC/WDW One; NEW111H1/ NEW113H1/ NEW114H1/ NEW115H1/ NEW116H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

NEW113H1 - Digital Technology and Society II

Hours: 12L/24S

Building on the integrated learning from any New One I course, this course explores the historical development and social implications of digital technology including such questions as the effects of increased surveillance on notions of privacy, open access and control over knowledge, new media and social activism, and the potential of media arts, biometrics and digitizing healthcare.

Prerequisite: NEW101H1/ NEW102H1/ NEW103H1/ NEW104H1/ NEW105H1/ NEW106H1/Permission of the New One Coordinator

Exclusion: INI/Munk/SMC/TRN/UNI/VIC/WDW One; NEW111H1/ NEW112H1/ NEW114H1/ NEW115H1/ NEW116H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

NEW115H1 - Current Issues Without Borders II

Hours: 12L/24S

Building on the integrated learning from any New One I course, this course explores, in more depth, the social and ethical implications of a current issue exemplifying the themes of "Learning without Borders." Normally, this course would address the same current issues as offered in NEW105H1 in the preceding term. The course also considers examples of policy and community organizing responses.

Prerequisite: NEW101H1/ NEW102H1/ NEW103H1/ NEW104H1/ NEW105H1/ NEW106H1/Permission of the New One Coordinator

Exclusion: INI/Munk/SMC/TRN/UNI/VIC/WDW One; NEW111H1/ NEW112H1/ NEW113H1/ NEW114H1/ NEW116H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

NEW114H1 - Art and Community II

Hours: 12L/24S

Building on the integrated learning from any New One I course, through various art forms and research tools such as mapping, walking, and listening, this course explores the layered historical, cultural, and social landscapes of the city, including processes of inclusion and exclusion, as well as ways in which art might intervene to effect positive social change.

Prerequisite: NEW101H1/ NEW102H1/ NEW103H1/ NEW104H1/ NEW105H1/ NEW106H1/Permission of the New One Coordinator

Exclusion: INI/Munk/SMC/TRN/UNI/VIC/WDW One; NEW111H1/ NEW112H1/ NEW113H1/ NEW115H1/ NEW116H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

NEW116H1 - Science and Social Justice II

Hours: 12L/24S

Building on the integrated learning from any New One I course, this course considers the scientific debates and social justice implications of selected contemporary transnational issues such as climate change, pandemics, gender identities, disability, and pharmaceutical research. Research projects allow students to focus on an issue of particular interest.

Prerequisite: NEW101H1/ NEW102H1/ NEW103H1/ NEW104H1/ NEW105H1/ NEW106H1, or permission of the New One Coordinator

NEW341H1 - Theorizing Equity

Hours: 24S

Explores theories that inform Equity Studies and situates them historically to examine both the social conditions and practices that generate inequities and the responses by equity advocates. Examines texts in relevant fields such as post-colonial theory, queer theory, disability studies, feminist theory and transnational studies.

Prerequisite: NEW240Y1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities; Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

NEW342H1 - Theory and Praxis in Food Security

Hours: 24S

Explores the concept of food security in the context of equity issues related to global food systems. Students participate in food-related field work activities outside of regular classroom time.

Prerequisite: NEW240Y1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

NEW344H1 - Equity and the Body

Hours: 24L

An analysis of the body as the product of complex social organizations, processes and structures. Examines cultural stories recounted about the body through topics that include genetics, beauty, health, pathology and the multiple identities that intersect at the site of the body.

Prerequisite: NEW240Y1/ NEW241Y1

Exclusion: NEW344Y1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

NEW344Y1 - Equity and the Body

Hours: 48L

An analysis of the body as the product of complex social organizations, processes and structures. Examines cultural narratives recounted about the body through topics that include genetics, beauty, health, pathology and the multiples identities that intersect at the site of the body.

Prerequisite: NEW240Y1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1); Society and its Institutions (3)

NEW345H1 - Equity and Activism in Education

Hours: 24L

Examines contemporary issues in education and schooling from a social justice and equity perspective. Engages with a variety of theoretical frameworks including anti-homophobia education, critical pedagogy, critical race theory, decolonizing knowledges, and intersectionality. Includes an overview of educational activist projects.

Prerequisite: NEW240Y1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities; Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

NEW346H1 - Community Development in Local and Global Contexts

Hours: 24L

An interdisciplinary approach to community development that considers the changing roles of community organizations and non-profits in the context of neoliberalism. Examines the political economy of community development in Canada, the impact on marginalized groups, and emerging forms of collaboration across sectors and geographic (including national) localities.

Prerequisite: NEW240Y1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

NEW347H1 - Critical Race and Anti-Racism Studies

Hours: 36L

Considers what it means to pursue integrative anti-racism in organizational/institutional settings such as the workplace, justice system, media and education through a study of theories on race and philosophical tenets of anti-racism. Examines the concept of race as a pedagogical discourse and social-political practice across local, national and global contexts.

Prerequisite: NEW240Y1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

NEW348H1 - Special Topics in Equity Studies

Hours: 24L

An upper level course. Topics of study vary from year to year.

Prerequisite: NEW240Y1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities; Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

NEW349H1 - Disability and Representation

Hours: 24S

Explores the connection between disability and representation through contemporary social theories and methods in disability studies. Problematizes disability representation to challenge the taken-for-granted cultural assumption that disability is a problem that requires a solution.

Prerequisite: NEW240Y1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities; Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

JQR360H1 - The Canadian Census: Populations, Migrations and Demographics

Hours: 24L/12T

Examines the Canadian population census through the experience of diasporic groups in Canada. Approaches the census as a statistical tool, an historical source and an ideological project of citizenship and nationalism. Uses census data to explore mathematical and statistical concepts and to integrate numerical ways of thinking with qualitative analysis. (Jointly sponsored by African Studies, Diaspora and Transnational Studies, Caribbean Studies, Equity Studies and Latin American Studies).

Prerequisite: DTS200Y1/ HIS230H1/ HIS231H1/ LAS200H1/ LAS201H1/ NEW120Y1/ NEW150Y1/ NEW220H1/ NEW221H1/ NEW224Y1/ NEW225H1/ NEW226H1/ NEW240Y1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

NEW440Y1 - Advanced Special Topics in Equity Studies

Hours: 72L

An advanced level seminar course. Topics of study vary from year to year.

Prerequisite: NEW240Y1 and an additional 0.5 Equity Studies Core Group 300+ level course

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3); Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

NEW441H1 - Advanced Topics in Equity Studies

Hours: 24S

An advanced level seminar course. Topics vary from year to year.

Prerequisite: NEW240Y1 or permission of instructor

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

NEW442H1 - Food Systems and the Politics of Resistance

Hours: 36L

Examines the food we eat in the local and global context of food systems, food sovereignty and food movements. Explores the possibilities for food as a catalyst for learning, resistance and social change.

Note: This is a joint graduate/undergraduate course.

Prerequisite: NEW240Y1, NEW342H1, and an additional 0.5 Equity Studies Core Group 300+ level course. Students must have completed 14.0 credits, be enrolled in the Equity Studies Major Program, and will normally have a CGPA of at least 3.5. Enrolment is by application.

Consult the Program Office

(nc.undergradadmin@utoronto.ca or 416-978-5404) for course enrolment procedures.

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

NEW443H1 - Advanced Special Topics in Equity Studies

Hours: 36S

An advanced level seminar course. Topics of study vary from year to year.

Prerequisite: NEW240Y1 and an additional 0.5 Equity Studies Core Group 300+ level course.

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

NEW444H1 - Social Change and Non-Violence

Hours: 24S

Examines theories and practices that promote the building of cooperative, non-violent communities. Grounded in a series of historical cases studies, the course critically considers Gandhian principles and the ways in which these have been translated into collective action.

Prerequisite: NEW240Y1 and an additional 0.5 Equity Studies Core Group 300+ level course

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

NEW446H1 - Community Development and Social Change

Hours: 36L

Explores the significance of community development as a social change strategy, through a critical social analysis of local and global case studies and policies.

Note: This is a joint graduate/undergraduate course.

Prerequisite: NEW240Y1, NEW346H1, and an additional 0.5 Equity Studies Core Group 300+ level course.

Students must have completed 14.0 credits, be enrolled in the Equity Studies Major Program, and will normally have a CGPA of at least 3.5. Enrolment is by application.

Consult the Program Office

(nc.undergradadmin@utoronto.ca or 416-978-5404) for course enrolment procedures.

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

NEW447H1 - Race, Ethnicity and Educational Praxis

Hours: 36L

An application of critical race, ethnicity and social difference discourse to educational praxis. Examines the articulation of theoretical perspectives to explain particular incidents in society, and to understand forms of institutional racism and emerging minority responses. Explores the implications for pedagogical practices in education.

Prerequisite: NEW240Y1, NEW347H1 and one additional half-course at the 300+ level in Equity Studies; permission of Program Director

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

NEW448H1 - Advanced Special Topics in Disability Studies

Hours: 24L

An advanced level seminar course. Topics of study vary from year to year.

Prerequisite: NEW240Y1/ NEW241Y1 and an additional 0.5 Equity Studies Core Group 300+ level course

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

NEW449H1 - Contemporary Theories in Disability Studies

Hours: 24S

Explores the influence of contemporary social theory in the formation of Disability Studies and its contemporary expressions. Examines how contemporary feminist theory, queer theory, and post-colonial theory intersect with Disability Studies to develop an understanding of disability as a socio-political phenomenon.

Prerequisite: NEW240Y1 and 0.5 FCE from Equity Studies Core Group: Disability Studies

Distribution Requirements: Humanities; Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

JNS450H1 - Sexuality & Disability

Hours: 24S

An interdisciplinary and intersectional approach to the study of disability and sexuality. Students will engage with historical, mainstream and critical discourses and explore complex issues and representations pertaining to disability, sexuality, sexual practices and desire. Draws from a range of writings and cultural texts in queer, crip and sexuality studies.

Prerequisite: SDS255H1/ SDS256H1 ( UNI255H1/ UNI256H1) or NEW240Y1/ NEW241Y1 or permission of the instructor

Exclusion: SDS455H1: Special Topics in Sexual Diversity: Sexuality & Disability (2015)

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

NEW469Y1 - Senior Research Project in Equity Studies

Hours: 48S

Supervised research project undertaken in the final year of study. Students attend a seminar to present their on-going research and to discuss the research process. Final projects will be presented in a public student research symposium. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: NEW240Y1, 1.0 FCE Equity Studies Core Group 300+ level course, and a minimum cGPA of 3.0.

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1); Society and its Institutions (3)

Community Engaged Learning (CEL) Courses

NEW270H1 - Foundations for Community Engagement

Hours: 24L/12T

Examines issues in community-based organizing, partnerships and advocacy. Drawing on interdisciplinary theory, methodology and case studies, develops skills both to analyze the social, economic, political, ethical and cultural dimensions of working with communities and to critically evaluate organizing practices and strategic approaches in community engagement.

Distribution Requirements: Social Science
Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

NEW495Y1 - Independent Community Engaged Learning

Hours: 96P/24S

A placement-based course in which students develop knowledge, practice and professional skills appropriate to the social purpose sector while working to support programming for community partners. The accompanying seminar considers social justice issues and models community-engagement practice, supporting students' experiential, participatory and reflective learning. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Recommended Preparation: NEW120Y1/ NEW150Y1/ NEW220H1/ NEW221H1/ NEW224Y1/ NEW225H1/ NEW226H1/ NEW232Y1/ NEW240Y1/ NEW241Y1/ NEW270H1/ HIS230H1/ HIS231H1/other NEW courses
Distribution Requirements: Humanities; Social Science
Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

NEW496H1 - Independent Community Engaged Learning

Hours: 48P/12S

Note: Offered only in special circumstances. See description under NEW495Y1 above. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Recommended Preparation: NEW120Y1/ NEW150Y1/ NEW220H1/ NEW221H1/ NEW224Y1/ NEW225H1/ NEW226H1/ NEW232Y1/ NEW240Y1/ NEW241Y1/ NEW270H1/ HIS230H1/ HIS231H1/other NEW courses
Distribution Requirements: Humanities; Social Science
Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

NEW497Y1 - Independent Community Engaged Research

Hours: 96P/24S

A placement-based course in which students gain experience and develop social research and professional skills working on projects initiated by community partners. The accompanying seminar reviews conventional and creative interdisciplinary research methodologies relevant to the social purpose sector while supporting students' participatory- and reflective learning. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: Completion of a minimum of 9.0 FCE and successful completion of the application process.
Recommended Preparation: NEW120Y1/ NEW150Y1/ NEW220H1/ NEW221H1/ NEW224Y1/ NEW225H1/ NEW226H1/ NEW232Y1/ NEW240Y1/ NEW241Y1/ NEW270H1/ HIS230H1/ HIS231H1/ other NEW courses
Distribution Requirements: Social Science
Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

NEW498H1 - Independent Community Engaged Research

Hours: 48P/12S

See description under NEW497Y1 above. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: Completion of a minimum of 9.0 FCE and successful completion of the application process.

Recommended Preparation: NEW120Y1/ NEW150Y1/ NEW220H1/ NEW221H1/ NEW224Y1/ NEW225H1/ NEW226H1/ NEW232Y1/ NEW240Y1/ NEW241Y1/ NEW270H1/ HIS230H1/ HIS231H1/ other NEW courses

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

NEW391H1 - New College Independent Studies

Hours: TBA

New College Independent Studies. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: Minimum of 8.0 FCEs completed and permission of College

NEW490Y1 - New College Independent Studies

Hours: TBA

New College Independent Studies. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: Minimum of 12.0 FCEs completed and permission of College

Independent Studies Courses

NEW299Y1 - Research Opportunity Program

Hours: TBA

Credit course for supervised participation in faculty research project. Details at <http://www.artsci.utoronto.ca/current/course/rop>. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

NEW390Y1 - New College Independent Studies

Hours: TBA

New College Independent Studies. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: Minimum of 8.0 FCEs completed and permission of College

NEW491H1 - New College Independent Studies

Hours: TBA

New College Independent Studies. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: Minimum of 12.0 FCEs completed and permission of College

Interdisciplinary Courses

NEW271H1 - Interdisciplinary Special Topics

Hours: 24L

Topics vary from year to year depending on the instructor. Consult timetable for current offering information.

JQR360H1 - The Canadian Census: Populations, Migrations and Demographics

Hours: 24L/12T

Examines the Canadian population census through the experience of diasporic groups in Canada. Approaches the census as a statistical tool, an historical source and an ideological project of citizenship and nationalism. Uses census data to explore mathematical and statistical concepts and to integrate numerical ways of thinking with qualitative analysis. (Jointly sponsored by African Studies, Diaspora and Transnational Studies, Caribbean Studies, Equity Studies and Latin American Studies).

Prerequisite: DTS200Y1/ HIS230H1/ HIS231H1/ LAS200H1/ LAS201H1/ NEW120Y1/ NEW150Y1/ NEW220H1/ NEW221H1/ NEW224Y1/ NEW225H1/ NEW226H1/ NEW240Y1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

NEW370Y1 - Interdisciplinary Special Topics

Hours: 48L

Topics vary from year to year depending on the instructor.

NEW371H0 - International Field Course

Hours: TBA

Provides opportunities for students to engage in an international experiential learning program related to their academic areas of study. The course involves seminars, group exercises, site visits and a final project. Some sessions will be held in Toronto prior to and following the trip. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: Foundational course from participating programs (Indigenous Studies; African Studies; Buddhism, Psychology and Mental Health; Caribbean Studies; Equity Studies; Human Biology)

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

NEW372H1 - Interdisciplinary Special Topics

Hours: 24L

Topics vary from year to year depending on the instructor. Consult timetable for current offering information.

Prerequisite: None

NEW471H1 - Interdisciplinary Special Topics

Hours: 24S

Topics vary from year to year depending on the instructor.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Interdisciplinary Courses in Jungian Theory

NEW302Y1 - C.G. Jung: Stories, Patterns, Symbols

Hours: 48L/24S

Impact of Jung's analytical psychology, critical methodology and interpretative practice on issues in religion, anthropology, art and literature, popular culture, gender studies and postmodernist critique. Theoretical studies include traditional Jungian and contemporary post-Jungian texts together with feminist and non-Jungian sources.

Prerequisite: Four FCEs, at least one of which should be in the humanities

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1); Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

NEW303H1 - Hypotheses of the Unconscious

Hours: 12L/12S

Current discussions of the hypotheses, starting with Freud's and Jung's hypotheses, especially Jung's collective unconscious; critical examination through retrospective analysis of the evolution and development of the concept in works from philosophy, psychology, poetry, ethnology, science and popular culture that anticipated, influenced or were influenced by the work of Freud and Jung, post-Freudians and post-Jungians.

Prerequisite: Four FCEs, at least one of which should be in the humanities

Recommended Preparation: NEW302Y1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

NEW402Y1 - Advanced Special Topics in Jungian Theory

Hours: 48S

Topics vary from year to year, depending on the interests of students and instructors.

Prerequisite: Permission of instructor

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

NEW403H1 - Advanced Special Topics in Jungian Theory

Hours: 24S

Topics vary from year to year depending on the interests of students and instructors.

Prerequisite: Permission of instructor

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

International Foundation Program Courses

IFP100H1 - Themes in World History

Hours: 24L

Surveys the development of human societies from their origins to the present. Topics may include the environment, cultural development and interaction, the creation and nature of belief systems, political, economic and social structures, gender relations, and the relationship between global patterns and local development. Restricted to students enrolled in the summer offering of the International Foundation Program (IFP). Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Exclusion: IFP100Y1/ UTP100H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

IFP100Y1 - Themes in World History

Hours: 48L/36T

Surveys the development of human societies from their origins to the present using examples from across the world. Topics may include the environment, cultural development and interaction, the creation and nature of belief systems, political, economic and social structures, gender relations, and the relationship between global patterns and local developments. Enrolment is restricted to students registered in the International Foundation Program. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities; Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3); Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

UTP100H1 - Themes in World History

Hours: 24L

Surveys the development of human societies from their origins to the present. Topics may include the environment, cultural development and interaction, the creation and nature of belief systems, political, economic and social structures, gender relations, and the relationship between global patterns and local development. Restricted to students enrolled in the UTPrep program.

Exclusion: IFP100H1/ IFP100Y1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

Introduction

Nutritional Sciences represents an exciting and challenging area of study of a truly interdisciplinary nature. Understanding of the impact of nutrition on health and its role in disease is based upon a knowledge of the metabolic processes involved (nutrient requirements and utilization, food additive metabolism and safety), of the chemistry of foods (food preservation, food production) and of social and behavioural factors (determinants of food selection). Thus, in this program, the physical, biological and social sciences are integrated in consideration of the national and international goals of achieving optimal health through proper nutrition.

Most career opportunities in Nutritional Sciences require training beyond the undergraduate level. The Major Program provides excellent preparation for entry into postgraduate studies in nutrition research or for a professional faculty such as Medicine and Dentistry.

Please note that this Department does not offer an undergraduate dietetics program. Students interested in this qualification should contact Dietitians of Canada for information (www.dietitians.ca).

Students interested in applying to the MPH-Nutrition and Dietetics Program, through the Dalla Lana School of Public Health, are advised to contact the program director during their second year of undergraduate studies.

Nutritional Sciences Programs

Nutritional Sciences Major (Science Program) - ASMAJ1068

Enrolment Requirements:

Eligibility for the nutritional sciences major program is based on a student's marks in the required first-year courses:

BIO120H1, BIO130H1, (CHM135, CHM136)/(CHM138H1, CHM139H1)/CHM151Y1 with an average of at least 70% on these 2.0 full-course equivalents (FCEs) and a final mark of at least 60% in each course.

Note: Students must apply to this program on the Arts & Science Faculty Registrars Office website (See <http://www.artsci.utoronto.ca/current/course> for application procedures).

Completion Requirements:

First Year:

(BIO120H1, BIO130H1);(CHM135, CHM136)/(CHM138H1, CHM139H1)/CHM151Y1

Second Year:

NFS284H1; BCH210H1; (STA220H1, STA221H1)/(PSY201H1, PSY202H1)

Third Year:

(PSL300H1, PSL301H1)/PSL302Y1; CSB349H1/ PSL350H1/ BCH311H1; any two of: NFS382H1, NFS386H1, NFS301H1; NFS302H1; NFS394Y1

Fourth Year:

Any three of: NFS400H1, NFS484H1, NFS485H1,

NFS486H1, NFS487H1, NFS488H1, NFS489H1,
NFS490H1, NFS494Y1

Nutritional Sciences Courses

NFS284H1 - Basic Human Nutrition

Hours: 36L

An introductory course to provide the fundamentals of human nutrition to enable students to understand and think critically about the complex interrelationships between food, nutrition, health and the environment.

Exclusion: HLTB11H3

Recommended Preparation: ( BIO120H1, BIO130H1)/
 BIO150Y1; ( CHM138H1, CHM139H1)/( CHM135H1, CHM136H1)/ CHM151Y1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

NFS301H1 - Nutrition Literacy: Sorting Science from Snake Oil

Hours: 36L

This course will help students learn how to recognize the strengths and limitations of various nutrition research methods, find reliable nutrition information on the Internet and develop systematic thinking skills to critically evaluate the quality of nutrition information in both the scientific literature and popular media.

Prerequisite: NFS284H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

NFS302H1 - Nutrition, Athletics, Performance and Behaviour

Hours: 36L

This course will give an overview of the emerging and advancing role of chronic diet and supplements in athletics, performance and behavior.

Prerequisite: NFS284H1

Exclusion: KPE328H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

NFS382H1 - Vitamin and Mineral Metabolism Throughout the Life Cycle

Hours: 36L

Micronutrients are essential for health throughout the life cycle. This course examines the role of micronutrients during development and ageing with some emphasis on disease prevention and pathogenesis. Students develop critical appraisal skills, an understanding of the principles of study design and learn to write in a scientific style.

Prerequisite: NFS284H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

NFS386H1 - Food Chemistry

Hours: 36L

Structure, composition and chemical and biochemical reactions in foods during postharvest/postmortem, processing, storage and utilisation. Implications for organoleptic properties, nutritional value, toxicity and human health.

Prerequisite: CHM138H1/ CHM139H1/ CHM135H1/
 CHM136H1

Recommended Preparation: NFS284H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

NFS394Y1 - Research Course in Nutritional Science

Hours: 144P

Research experience under the supervision of a Departmental staff member. The course entails designing and carrying out a small research project and the preparation and presentation of both a research proposal and a final report. Note that the research project NFS394Y1 requires the prior consent of a staff member who will supervise the project and departmental approval before enrolment. The student is responsible for locating a supervisor. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: NFS284H1, Permission of Department and Project Supervisor

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

NFS400H1 - Functional Foods and Nutraceuticals in Human Nutrition

Hours: 36L

This course will demonstrate the rationale, including health benefits, development and marketing of functional foods and nutraceuticals.

Prerequisite: BCH210H1, NFS284H1, ( PSL300H1, PSL301H1)/ PSL302Y1

Recommended Preparation: CSB349H1/ PSL350H1/ BCH311H1, NFS386H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

NFS484H1 - Advanced Nutrition

Hours: 24L/12T

Physiological and biochemical features of nutrient needs. The roles of nutrients in the development and adaptability of the whole body, organs and cells. Interpretation of current research data.

Prerequisite: BCH210H1, CSB349H1/ PSL350H1/ BCH311H1, NFS284H1, ( PSL300H1, PSL301H1)/ PSL302Y1, ( STA220H1, STA221H1/ JBS229H1) or permission of instructor

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

NFS485H1 - Diet, Microbiome & Health (formerly Nutritional Microbiology)

Hours: 36L

Provides an integrated approach to how prokaryotes modulate nutrient availability and how they interact with the host to impact human health from a molecular perspective.

Prerequisite: BCH210H1, CSB349H1/ PSL350H1/ BCH311H1/ MGY311Y1, NFS284H1, ( PSL300H1, PSL301H1)/ PSL302Y1 or permission of the instructor

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

NFS486H1 - Obesity: Metabolic and Clinical Aspects

Hours: 36L

Obesity and its co-morbidities illustrated with pathophysiological and biochemical principles and clinical case studies.

Prerequisite: BCH210H1, NFS284H1, ( PSL300H1, PSL301H1)/ PSL302Y1

Recommended Preparation: CSB349H1/ PSL350H1/ BCH311H1,( STA220H1, STA221H1)

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

NFS487H1 - Nutrigenomics and Personalized Nutrition

Hours: 36L

The impact of the human genome on nutrition research. Experimental approaches to investigating gene-diet interactions. Understanding how genetic variability affects nutrient response, and how dietary factors regulate gene expression. Application of the various 'omics' technologies to nutrition research as well as exploring the social, legal and ethical issues associated with direct-to-consumer marketing of genetic tests for personalized nutrition.

Prerequisite: NFS284H1, CSB349H1/ PSL350H1/ BCH311H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

NFS488H1 - Nutritional Toxicology

Hours: 36L

Occurrence, mechanism of action, safety and health implications of chemicals naturally present in or added to foods. Interactions of nutrients and toxicants and the effects on their metabolism and utilization. Food safety evaluation and regulatory control.

Prerequisite: BCH210H1, NFS284H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

NFS489H1 - Nutritional Neurosciences

Hours: 36L

This course provides an integrated approach to how brain function regulates and in turn is regulated by nutrition from a biochemical perspective.

Prerequisite: BCH210H1, BCH311H1/ CSB349H1/ PSL350H1, NFS284H1, PSL302Y1/( PSL300H1, PSL301H1)

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

NFS490H1 - International and Community Nutrition

Hours: 36L

This course focuses on current issues in international and community nutrition including global and domestic food security, micronutrient deficiencies and other forms of undernutrition, maternal and infant/child nutrition, dietary guidance, and food and nutrition policy. The course will consider the environmental, sociopolitical, cultural and biosocial contexts of nutrition.

Prerequisite: NFS284H1

Recommended Preparation: GGR107Y1/ POL103Y1/ SOC101Y1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

NFS494Y1 - Research Projects in Nutritional Sciences

Hours: 144P

Research experience under the supervision of a Departmental staff member. The course entails designing and carrying out a small research project and the preparation and presentation of both a research proposal and a final report. Note that the research project NFS494Y1 requires the prior consent of a staff member who will supervise the project and departmental approval before enrolment. The student is responsible for locating a supervisor. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: NFS284H1, Permission of Department and Project Supervisor

Distribution Requirements: Science

Introduction

The Trudeau Centre for Peace, Conflict and Justice administers the program in Peace, Conflict and Justice, in the Munk School of Global Affairs.

The Peace, Conflict and Justice program provides undergraduates with an interdisciplinary education covering three central pillars: the meanings and causes of conflict, peace, and justice; the lived experiences of living in the context of conflict and struggles for peace and justice; and approaches to resolving conflict and producing peace and/or justice. The topics of study are wide-ranging, including the study of peacemaking and peace-building, interstate war and intrastate conflicts, insurgencies, revolutions and rebellions, ethnic strife, global justice, and negotiation theory. In so doing, we address some of the world's most urgent humanitarian problems, and train students to deeply analyze these issues across several levels of analysis, from the local through the national and the global. Students interested in this program are strongly encouraged to consider pursuing a double major in related fields, especially International Relations. Other related fields include: Political Science, Sociology, Anthropology, Geography, History, Diaspora and Transnational Studies, Nutritional Sciences, and Psychology.

Peace, Conflict and Justice Programs

Peace, Conflict and Justice Specialist (Arts Program) - ASSPE1228

Enrolment Requirements:

This is a limited enrolment program that can only accommodate a limited number of students. Admission is determined by a range of criteria, including at the initial stage a student's academic background, a statement of interest in the program, and as a later stage of the process, a personal interview on invitation of the Program Director. In some cases, reference letters may be requested by the Program Director. In the past, enrolment in Peace, Conflict and Justice has proven to be extremely competitive across all these dimensions, and an applicant's success in any one of these dimensions does not necessarily guarantee admission to the program in any given year.

Completion Requirements:

(12 full courses or their equivalent, including at least one 400-series course)

1. HIS103Y1/ ECO100Y1/ ECO105Y1; ( PSY100H1 + PSY220H1)/ SOC101Y1/( SOC102H1 + SOC103H1); POL208Y1. Except for POL208Y1, substitutions may be permitted for other introductory courses in relevant disciplines, based on a student's rationale and on approval of the Program Director.

2. PCJ260Y1; PCJ360H1+ PCJ362H1/ PCJ363H1; PCJ460H1; PCJ461H1

3. Three FCEs from one of Groups A, B, C, D, E or F (below), or substitutions with a rationale that must be approved by the Program Director. Students may substitute from different disciplines or with different courses from within these disciplines. At least one FCE must be at the 300+-level.

4. Three complementary FCEs with either a disciplinary, regional, or thematic focus relevant to Peace, Conflict and Justice (on approval of the Director, based on the needs of students interdisciplinary programs of study). At least two FCEs must be at the 300+-level. Up to 1.0 FCEs of MUN courses may be used to fulfill this requirement, subject to approval by the Director.

Disciplinary focus:

3 FCEs from one of ANT, ECO, GGR and Environmental Studies (combined), HIS, HPS, PHL, POL, PSY, RLG, SLA, SOC, or from other units with a rationale approved by the Program Director.

(Note: The disciplinary focus in this cluster must be different from the discipline chosen in requirement 3. For instance, HIS is excluded for students who have taken 3 HIS FCEs to meet requirement 3; POL is excluded for students who have taken 3 POL FCEs, etc. )

Regional Studies focus:

3 FCEs on, for example, Canada, Southern Africa, the Middle East, Latin America, or the Slavic countries.

Thematic focus:

3 FCEs on a thematic topic proposed by the student and approved by the Program Director. Examples include negotiation and conflict resolution, diplomatic history, gender and conflict, morality of war, quantitative analysis, group-identity conflict, economic development and conflict, literature, culture, and everyday life of conflict, or environmental change and conflict.

Peace, Conflict and Justice Major (Arts Program) - ASMAJ1228

Enrolment Requirements:

This is a limited enrolment program that can only accommodate a limited number of students. Admission is determined by a range of criteria, including at the initial stage a student's academic background, a statement of interest in the program, and as a later stage of the process, a personal interview on invitation of the Program Director. In some cases, reference letters may be requested by the Program Director. In the past, enrolment in Peace, Conflict and Justice has proven to be extremely competitive across all these dimensions, and an applicant's success in any one of these dimensions does not necessarily guarantee admission to the program in any given year.

Completion Requirements:

(7.5 full courses or their equivalent)

1. HIS103Y1/ ECO100Y1/ ECO105Y1; ( PSY100H1 + PSY220H1)/ SOC101Y1/( SOC102H1 + SOC103H1);

POL208Y1. Except for POL208Y1, substitutions will be considered for other introductory courses in relevant disciplines, based on a student's rationale and on approval of the Program Director.

2. PCJ260Y1; PCJ360H1+ PCJ362H1/ PCJ363H1; PCJ460H1

3. 2.0 FCE of complementary courses, at least 1.0 FCE of which must be at the 300+ series level, from: MUN101H1/ MUN102H1; GGR239H1; GGR439H1; HIS241H1; HIS242H1; HIS300H1; HIS343Y1; HIS344Y1; HIS377Y1; HIS401Y1; HIS412Y1; HIS445H1; HIS482Y1; HPS306H1; PHL278H1; PHL378H1; POL201Y1; POL304H1; POL310Y1; POL313Y1; POL321H1; POL323H1; POL326Y1; POL340Y1; POL346H1; POL417Y1; POL437Y1; POL454Y1; PSY220H1; PSY270H1; PSY322H1; RLG100Y1; SOC210Y1; SOC330Y1; SOC340Y1; or alternative courses on the approval of the Program Director, based on the needs of students interdisciplinary programs of study.

Peace, Conflict and Justice Groups

Note: Substitutions for any of the below (Groups A through F) are allowable, if accompanied by a rationale regarding a student's specific program of study that must be approved by the Program Director. This is not a strict list, and students may in their program rationale substitute courses from different disciplines or with different courses from within these disciplines below. Please note that not all courses may be offered in a given year, and students are responsible for checking and meeting co- and prerequisites for all courses.

Peace, Conflict and Justice Courses

PCJ260Y1 - Introduction to Peace and Conflict Studies (formerly PCS260Y1, UNI110Y1, UNI260Y1)

Hours: 72L

A review of the full range of theories explaining the nature and causes of conflict and possibilities for its resolution; provides students with a set of theoretical tools for effective analysis of interpersonal, civil, and international conflict.

Prerequisite: Only for current PCJ program students in second year and higher/permission of the Program Director

Exclusion: PCS260Y1, UNI110Y1, UNI260Y1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

PCJ360H1 - Topics in Peace, Conflict, and Justice

Hours: 24L

An in-depth exploration of selected issues in the field of Peace, Conflict, and Justice. Topics may include: negotiation theory, ethnic and inter-group identity conflict, feminist perspectives on peace, war, and justice; mathematical modeling of arms races, war, and peacemaking; decision-making theory and conflict; environmental change and conflict; global justice institutions; and traditional perspectives on statecraft.

Prerequisite: PCJ260Y1 or permission of the Program Director.

Exclusion: PCS360Y1, UNI360Y1

Recommended Preparation: POL208Y1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

PCJ361H1 - Special Topics in Peace and Conflict Studies (formerly PCS361H1, UNI361H1)

Hours: 24S

An exploration of selected issues in the field of Peace, Conflict and Justice involving an overseas and/or practicum component.

Exclusion: PCS361H1, UNI361Y1

Recommended Preparation: POL208Y1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

PCJ361Y1 - Special Topics in Peace and Conflict Studies (formerly PCS361Y1, UNI361Y1)

Hours: 48S

An exploration of selected issues in the field of Peace, Conflict and Justice involving an overseas and/or practicum component.

Prerequisite: PCJ260Y1 or permission from the Program Director

Exclusion: PCS361H1, PCS361Y1, UNI361Y1

Recommended Preparation: POL208Y1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

PCJ362H1 - Service Learning

Hours: TBA

In cooperation with the Center for Community Partnerships, students will be given a service learning placement that aligns with their academic interests. These placements will happen in community organizations and other organizations based in the GTA. Class will meet once a week and students will serve up to 10 hours total per week in their placements. The course will emphasize how groups work to achieve community goals, how grassroots politics works, the power of social capital, and how these topics link to questions of conflict resolution, brokering piece, and achieving justice.

Prerequisite: PCJ260Y1

Exclusion: PCJ361H1, PCJ363H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

PCJ363H1 - Study Abroad Module

Hours: TBA

Using Blackboard, students will meet once a week online in a virtual class that will assign readings, provide writing assignments, and culminate in a group assignment that situates the training from the PCJ program within the new materials that each student is experiencing in their new university. Each student will have to reflect on how their thinking has changed, what they will do with their new perspectives when they come back to U of T, and how this affects their thinking about peace, conflict, and justice.

Prerequisite: PCJ260Y1

Exclusion: PCJ361H1, PCJ362H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

PCJ399Y1 - Research Opportunity Program

Hours: TBA

PCJ444H1 - Special Topics in Peace and Conflict Studies

Previous Course Number: PCS444H1

Hours: TBA

Topics vary annually. The objective of the course is to explore emerging issues in Peace and Conflict Studies. The focus of the course will be on a specific topic, rather than a broad survey of the field.

Prerequisite: PCJ260Y1, PCJ360Y1 or permission of the instructor

Exclusion: PCS444H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

PCJ460H1 - Contemporary Issues in Peace and Conflict (formerly PCS460H1, UNI460H1)

Hours: 24S

A colloquium (fall term) on selected issues in the field of Peace and Conflict Studies. Topics to be considered include planetary, ecospheric, state, societal, and human security.

Prerequisite: PCJ360Y1, or PCJ360H1 and PCJ362H1, or permission of the Program Director; enrolment restricted to students enrolled in Peace, Conflict and Justice Specialist program

Exclusion: PCS460H1, PCS460Y1, UNI460H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

PCJ461H1 - Contemporary Issues in Peace and Conflict (formerly PCS461H1, UNI460Y1)

Hours: 48S

A research seminar (spring term) on selected issues in the field of Peace and Conflict Studies. Topics to be considered include planetary, ecospheric, state, societal, and human security.

Prerequisite: PCJ360Y1 and PCJ460H1; enrolment restricted to students enrolled in the Peace, Conflict and Justice Specialist program

Exclusion: PCS460Y1, PCS461H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

PCJ499H1 - Peace and Conflict Studies Independent Study Course

Previous Course Number: PCS499H1

Hours: TBA

Independent study in the area of Peace and Conflict Studies. It is designed to provide students with the opportunity to explore topics not covered in the curriculum, or to develop a more detailed focus on topics covered. Approval of the Program Director is required. The student must obtain the written agreement of the instructor who will supervise the independent study. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: PCJ260Y1

Exclusion: PCS499H1

Recommended Preparation: For students enrolled in the Peace, Conflict and Justice Major or Specialist program.

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

PCJ499Y1 - Peace and Conflict Studies Independent Study Course

Pharmaceutical Chemistry

Collaborative Program of the Faculty of Arts & Science and the Leslie Dan Faculty of Pharmacy

Pharmaceutical Chemistry combines knowledge of the biological, medical, and physical sciences in the study of drug therapy. The emphasis is on the chemical nature of the reactions and interactions involved in drug therapy. The students will receive a solid background in the facets of chemistry the most relevant to drugs: physical, organic, and analytical chemistry. They will also learn the fundamental aspects of the synthesis, manufacture, use, and mode of action of drugs.

Program Director: Dr. Rob Macgregor, (416-978-7332) rob.macgregor@utoronto.ca

Regarding Pharmaceutical Chemistry Programs

Pharmaceutical Chemistry combines knowledge of the biological, medical and physical sciences in the study of the scientific aspect of drug therapy. The emphasis is on the chemical nature of the reactions and interactions involved in drug therapy.

This program is offered jointly by the Leslie Dan Faculty of Pharmacy and the Faculty of Arts and Science. Students in the Pharmaceutical Chemistry Specialist program will receive a solid background in physical, organic and analytical chemistry, and will also learn the fundamental aspects of the synthesis, manufacture, use and mode of action of drugs. The fourth-year project course gives students direct involvement in research.

We also offer an internship in which qualified students may spend 12 or 16 months working at a pharmaceutical company or research lab. This is a project-based, paid employment placement that takes place between the third and fourth years of undergraduate study. It provides the student with an opportunity to apply the knowledge acquired in the first three years of university to private- or public-sector settings. Placements are available in pharmaceutical and biotechnology companies, university research labs, university-affiliated organizations, or government research agencies.

Pharmaceutical Chemistry Programs

Pharmaceutical Chemistry Specialist (Science Program) - ASSPE1211

Enrolment Requirements:

This is a limited enrolment program. Eligibility is based on a student's mark(s) in the required course(s). The precise mark thresholds outlined below are an estimate of what will be required in the coming program admission cycle.

While it is difficult to predict what will be competitive course marks and average in a given year, based on previous years, the estimate is: course marks = mid 70s ; average = high 70s.

Achieving these estimated marks does not guarantee admission to the program in any given year.

Visit the Pharmaceutical Chemistry Program web site for updated information about requirements, course offerings, and events: <http://pharmacy.utoronto.ca/pharmchem>.

Completion Requirements:

(13.0 full courses or their equivalent, including at least one 400-series course)

Fourth Year:

1. PHC489Y1
2. Two full course equivalents from: CHM317H1; CHM342H1; CHM347H1; CHM379H1; CHM410H1; CHM414H1; CHM417H1; PCL362H1; PHC331H1; PHC401H1; PHC420H1; PHC421H1; PHC430H1; PHC431H1; PHC432H1; PHC435H1; PHC460H1; PHC462H1; PHC470H1; PSL300H1; PSL301H1

Note that not all of the 400-series PHC courses are offered every academic year.

We also offer an optional 12- or 16-month internship program to qualified students. This is a project-based, paid employment placement that takes place between the third and fourth years of undergraduate study. It provides the student with an opportunity to apply the knowledge acquired in the first three years of university to private- or public-sector settings. Placements are available in pharmaceutical and biotechnology companies, university research labs, university-affiliated organizations, or government research agencies.

Regarding Pharmaceutical Chemistry Courses

First Year Seminars

The 199Y1 and 199H1 seminars are designed to provide the opportunity to work closely with an instructor in a class of no more than twenty-four students. These interactive seminars are intended to stimulate the students' curiosity and provide an opportunity to get to know a member of the professorial staff in a seminar environment during the first year of study. Details can be found at www.artsci.utoronto.ca/current/course/fyh-1/.

Pharmaceutical Chemistry Courses

PHC230H1 - Pharmaceutics 1

Hours: 36L/12T

An introduction to the key concepts in the design, manufacture, and use of efficacious dosage forms. The course covers the characteristics of different delivery routes.

Prerequisite: ( CHM135H1, CHM136H1)/( CHM138H1, CHM139H1)/ CHM151Y1; CHM220H1/ CHM222H1

Exclusion: PHM141H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PHC300H1 - Molecular Pharmacology 1

Hours: 24L/12T

Structural and mechanistic determinants of drug action at the molecular level. Topics include the physicalchemical properties of drugs per se as they relate to therapeutic intervention and the biophysical and biochemical properties of enzymes and nucleic acids that underlie and are affected by their interactions with drugs.

Prerequisite: ( CHM135H1, CHM136H1)/( CHM138H1, CHM139H1)/ CHM151Y1; CHM220H1/ CHM222H1

Exclusion: PCL302H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PHC301H1 - Molecular Pharmacology 2

Hours: 36L/12T

Structural and mechanistic determinants of drug action via macromolecules that effect cellular signalling. Neurohumoral receptors and other signalling proteins are grouped according to their structure and mechanism of action. Native properties and their modulation by drugs are discussed in the context of basic principles of molecular pharmacology.

Prerequisite: ( CHM135H1, CHM136H1)/( CHM138H1, CHM139H1)/ CHM151Y1; CHM220H1/ CHM222H1;

BCH210H1

Exclusion: PCL302H1, PHM140H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PHC320H1 - Medicinal Chemistry

Hours: 36L

Modern discovery and synthesis of antibiotics, antineoplastics, antiviral and other therapeutic agents.

Prerequisite: BCH210H1, CHM247H1/ CHM249H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PHC330H1 - Pharmaceutics 2

Hours: 36L/12T

This course presents a detailed examination of the material properties of pharmaceuticals and the role of cellular processes in delivery of a drug to its site of action.

Prerequisite: ( CHM135H1, CHM136H1)/( CHM138H1, CHM139H1)/ CHM151Y1; CHM220H1/ CHM222H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PHC331H1 - Establishing the Bioequivalence of Pharmaceutical Products

Hours: 48L

Introduction to human clinical trial design for the demonstration of pharmaceutical bioequivalence of drug products. Students will learn the principles underlying the regulations and methods employed in bioequivalence studies.

Prerequisite: BCH210H1, CHM247H1/ CHM249H1, ( MAT135H1, MAT136H1)/ MAT137Y1, PHC230H1, PHC330H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PHC340Y1 - Pharmaceutical Chemistry Laboratory

Hours: 24L/96P

The scientific basis and practical techniques relevant to modern pharmaceutical development. This course is restricted to Pharmaceutical Chemistry Specialist program students.

Prerequisite: CHM247H1/ CHM249H1; ( CHM220H1/ CHM222H1), CHM223H1; BCH210H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PHC401H1 - Drug Transport across Biological Membranes

Hours: 24L

The goal of this course is to provide students with knowledge of the molecular processes involved in drug transport across biological cell membranes with emphasis on their physiological and clinical significance. This course is restricted to Pharmaceutical Chemistry Specialist program students.

Prerequisite: PHC301H1, and enrolled as a Year 4 student in the Pharmaceutical Chemistry specialist program.

Corequisite: PHC300H1

Exclusion: JFK1122H

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PHC420H1 - Application of Medicinal Chemistry to Pharmacology

Hours: 24L

This course shows students the links between basic science and the drugs used therapeutically to treat clinical problems. This course is restricted to Pharmaceutical Chemistry specialist program students.

Prerequisite: PHC301H1, PHC320H1, and enrolled as a Year 4 student in the Pharmaceutical Chemistry specialist program.

Exclusion: PHM240H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PHC421H1 - Biomolecular Interactions and Thermodynamics I

Hours: 36L

This course will consider many of the topics presented in the first half in much greater detail including a rigorous examination of the interpretation of experimental data. This course is intended for students whose research or interest is in the thermodynamics of biological molecules. This course is restricted to Pharmaceutical Chemistry specialist program students.

Prerequisite: Enrolled as a Year 4 student in the Pharmaceutical Chemistry specialist program.

Exclusion: PHM1130H

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PHC430H1 - Recent Developments in Dosage Form Design

Hours: 24L

Introduction to controlled drug delivery: Mechanisms and kinetics of controlled drug release. Fundamental theories and mathematical tools for the design of modern dosage forms. Development and applications of controlled drug delivery dosage forms. This course is restricted to Pharmaceutical Chemistry specialist program students.

Prerequisite: Enrolled as a Year 4 student in the Pharmaceutical Chemistry specialist program.

Exclusion: PHM324H1, PHM1109H

Recommended Preparation: PHC230H1, PHC330H1, PHC340Y1.

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PHC431H1 - Selected Topics in Drug Development

Hours: 24L

In-depth discussion of implementation of pharmaceutical sciences in drug development strategies. Students will apply fundamental principles of pharmaceutics and drug delivery to current problems in the pharmaceutical industry. This course is restricted to Pharmaceutical Chemistry specialist program students.

Prerequisite: Enrolled as a Year 4 student in the Pharmaceutical Chemistry specialist program.

Exclusion: JFK1120H

Recommended Preparation: PHC230H1, PHC330H1, PHC340Y1.

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PHC432H1 - Nanomedicines in Oncology

Hours: 24L

This course covers a range of topics that pertain to the development and application of nanomedicines in oncology. Students will gain an understanding of the biological barriers to drug delivery in oncology as well as the tremendous heterogeneity in cancer and the challenge this presents for treatment. The concepts of passive and active targeting of nanomedicines will be covered with critical assessment of the enhanced permeability and retention effect. A detailed overview of the most advanced nanotechnology-platforms for drug delivery (i.e., liposomes, block copolymer micelles and polymer-drug conjugates) will be provided with additional discussion of new emerging platforms. The integration of imaging in drug development and development of theranostics and therapeutic-diagnostic pairs will also be discussed. Special emphasis on critical evaluation of scientific literature and pre-clinical/clinical studies will be made throughout the course.

Prerequisite: PHC230H1, PHC330H1 and enrolled as a Year 4 student in the Pharmaceutical Chemistry specialist program.

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PHC435H1 - Pharmaceutical Data Acquisition and Analysis

Hours: 26P

Application and development of devices for the purpose of collecting and analyzing experimental data in pharmaceutical development and manufacture.

Prerequisite: BCH210H1, CHM247H1/ CHM249H1, ( MAT135H1, MAT136H1)/ MAT137Y1, PHC340Y1 and enrolled as a Year 4 student in the Pharmaceutical Chemistry specialist program.

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

PHC460H1 - Fundamentals of Drug Discovery

Hours: 24L

Lectures by scientists from academia and industry, and student seminars based on journal articles dealing with strategies for discovering new drugs for therapy and diagnosis. This course is restricted to Pharmaceutical Chemistry specialist program students.

Prerequisite: BIO120H1, BIO130H1, PHC301H1 and enrolled as a Year 4 student in the Pharmaceutical Chemistry program.

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PHC462H1 - Clinical Drug Development

Hours: 24L

This course is designed to broaden student's understanding of the development and licensing of new drugs and how scientific principles, ethics, governmental regulations and commercial considerations are coordinated for designing clinical trails. The format involves lectures, group discussion and student presentations. This course is restricted to Pharmaceutical Chemistry specialist program students.

Prerequisite: PHC230H1, PHC301H1, PHC340Y1 and enrolled as a Year 4 student in the Pharmaceutical Chemistry specialist program.

Exclusion: JFK1120H

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

PHC470H1 - Global Pharmaceutical Policy

Hours: 24L/2T

This course is designed for students who are interested in the critical analysis of global health policy and the interrelationship between global and domestic policy issues. The course will introduce students generally to the basic concepts and issues in global health with a particular focus on pharmaceutical policy. We will address key issues in health and discuss core institutional and transnational actors, how governments in different jurisdictions manage public health responsibilities, the tension between economic imperatives and health objectives, global obligations, and pressure from special interest groups. More narrowly, we will analyse a breadth of complex policies questions. Examples include: the research and development global divide, policy issues influences on pharmaceutical policy, how global commitments, such as membership in the World Trade Organization, conflict with or correspond to domestic policy directions and national sovereignty. Guest speakers will lead some sessions. This course will consist of lectures, guest discussions, case studies and student-led presentations. This is restricted to students in the Pharmaceutical Chemistry specialist program.

Prerequisite: Enrolled as a Year 4 student in the Pharmaceutical Chemistry specialist program.

Exclusion: PHM320H1, PHM1124H

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

PHC489Y1 - Pharmaceutical Chemistry Research

Hours: 144P

This course will provide research experience under the supervision of a Departmental staff member. The goal is to deepen the student's understanding of the scientific basis and practical techniques relevant to modern pharmaceutical development. This course is restricted to Pharmaceutical Chemistry specialist program students. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: Permission from the Course Coordinator and enrolled as a Year 4 student in the Pharmaceutical Chemistry specialist program.

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

Introduction

Pharmacology and Toxicology are integrative biological sciences that examine the properties of chemical compounds and their interactions with living systems. They provide the scientific basis for the study of chemical actions in the health sciences, the use of drugs as therapeutic agents or as tools in scientific research, the development and control of pharmaceutical products, and the investigation and control of pollutants and poisons in natural and social environments. The Department of Pharmacology and Toxicology offers four Specialist and two Major undergraduate programs of study that are jointly sponsored by the Faculties of Arts and Science and Medicine. The Specialist programs have the added benefit of providing students with opportunities to learn advanced laboratory techniques and to gain real-world experience through supervised independent research projects and participation in the Professional Experience Year Internship (see below). Students who intend to pursue graduate research and/or careers in pharmacology or toxicology are encouraged to enroll in a Specialist program because of the opportunities for additional experiential learning.

Students wishing to enroll in the Biomedical Toxicology Specialist or in the Pharmacology Specialist will initially apply to the Specialist in Pharmacology and Biomedical Toxicology (ASSPE2340). After completion of first year pre-requisite courses and during the spring of their second year of study (and completion of PCL201H1) students can then choose to apply to the Biomedical Toxicology Specialist or the Pharmacology Specialist. Students wishing to enroll in the Biomedical Toxicology Major or in the Pharmacology Major will initially apply to a general departmental Major (ASMAJ2675) and then after completion of first year pre-requisite courses and during the spring of their second year of study (and completion of PCL201H1) will select the focus for their future studies (Biomedical Toxicology or Pharmacology). Students will follow the calendar year in which they initially enter one of our programs (for students in a Specialist that will be ASSPE2340; for students in a Major that will be ASMAJ2675). First and second year courses are the same for students within either the Specialist programs (ASSPE2082/ASSPE2340/ASSPE2573) or the Major program (ASMAJ2675/ ASMAJ2082/ ASMAJ2573) within the Department.

For students interested in our Specialist programs after their first year, a program ranked as their first choice will be considered before a program for which they have provided a lower ranking. The top-ranked students who meet the program requirements will be sent an invitation to join the program. If a student is not selected, his or her application will be forwarded to the administrator of the program listed as the second choice. This process continues until an invitation is sent or all Specialist programs have been considered.

Regarding Pharmacology and Toxicology Programs

The Professional Experience Year (PEY) internship program is a 12-16 month paid employment placement within pharmaceutical/ biotechnology/chemical companies, university research laboratories, university-affiliated organizations, consulting companies or government research agencies. The PEY takes place between the 3rd and 4th years of undergraduate study and is open to Specialists in Pharmacology, Biomedical Toxicology and Environment and Toxicology who have a cGPA of at least 3.0. Students who participate in this program agree to return to their SPE program within the Department to complete their 4th year and degree program as enrolled prior. The PEY internship provides an excellent opportunity for real-world experience in drug development, project management, client relations, basic and clinical research, information management and regulatory affairs.

NOTE: Students cannot combine any MAJOR from this program with another MAJOR or SPECIALIST from this program for their degree.

Pharmacology and Toxicology Programs

Biomedical Toxicology Specialist (Science Program) - ASSPE2573

Description:

Biomedical toxicology has emerged as an important science addressing drug safety and the adverse consequences of chemical exposure. The Biomedical Toxicology Specialist program examines the harmful effects of chemicals on the health and behaviour of individuals and society. The safety/toxicity of a wide array of chemicals is examined including pharmaceutical preparations, herbal products, natural toxins and environmental contaminants, with a focus on their effects on human health. This program emphasizes the application of toxicological knowledge and risk assessment and prepares students for a variety of job opportunities following its completion as well as for further study in graduate research or professional programs such as Medicine, Dentistry, and Pharmacy. (Note: Students interested in professional programs should contact the respective faculties to inquire about specific transfer credits.) Many graduates of the Biomedical Toxicology Specialist program pursue careers in scientific research, forensic science, nutrition and food sciences, governmental agencies, consulting agencies, and industrial settings including the pharmaceutical and chemical industries. Students learn about basic and clinical toxicology and related areas through lectures, tutorials, laboratories, and independent research projects. The senior research project course enables students to gain valuable research experience while working under the supervision of an individual faculty member in either a laboratory-based or a non-laboratory-based setting.

Enrolment Requirements:

This is a limited enrolment program that can only accommodate a limited number of students. Eligibility will be competitive and based on a student's marks in the 3.0 required first-year courses:

BIO120H1, BIO130H1, ( CHM135H1, CHM136H1)/( CHM138H, CHM139H)/ CHM151Y1, and 1.0 FCE from ( MAT135H1, MAT136H1)/ MAT137Y1/ MAT157Y1/( PHY131H1, PHY132H1)/( PHY151H1, PHY152H1) with an average of at least 70% on these 3.0 full-course equivalents (FCEs) and a final mark of at least 60% in each course.

Achieving these estimated marks does not guarantee admission to the program in any given year.

While it is difficult to predict what will be competitive course marks and average in a given year, based on previous years, the estimate is: course marks = mid 80s; average = mid 80s.

Students must apply to this program on the Arts & Science Faculty Registrar's Office website (see the Arts & Science Program Enrolment website for application procedures). Students wishing to enroll in the Biomedical Toxicology Specialist will initially apply to the Specialist in Pharmacology and Biomedical Toxicology (ASSPE2340). After completion of first year pre-requisite courses and during the spring of their second year of study (and completion of PCL201H1) students can then choose to apply to the Biomedical Toxicology Specialist. First and second year courses are the same for all Specialist programs within the Department (ASSPE2082/ASSPE2340/ASSPE2573).

Students will follow the calendar year in which they initially enter one of our programs (students who are enrolled in the Biomedical Toxicology or the Pharmacology Specialist will follow the requirements for the calendar year in which they first enrolled in the Specialist in Pharmacology and Biomedical Toxicology (ASSPE2340)).

Students cannot combine the Biomedical Toxicology Specialist with either departmental Major programs (Biomedical Toxicology or Pharmacology).

Students wishing to enrol after their second year who have taken PCL201H1 will be considered on a case by case basis. Successful completion of required pre-requisite courses is required to further enroll in upper level program courses. Students may not transfer to the Major program from the Specialist after completion of PCL465H1, PCL474Y1 courses or PEY.

Completion Requirements:

(14.5 full courses or their equivalent)

First Year: BIO120H1; BIO130H1; ( CHM135H1, CHM136H1)/( CHM138H, CHM139H)/ CHM151Y1; and 1 FCE from any combination of ( MAT135H1, MAT136H1); PHY131H1/ PHY151H1; PHY132H1/ PHY152H1 (see NOTE 1)

Second Year: BCH210H1; BIO230H1/( BIO240H, BIO241H); BIO260H1/ HMB265H1; CHM247H1/ CHM249H1; STA288H1; PCL201H1; ( PSL300H1, PSL301H1)/ PSL302Y (NOTE: PSL201Y1 is not acceptable).

Third Year: PCL302H1; PCL362H1; PCL366H1

Third or Fourth Year: LMP363H1 and two and a half (2.5 FCE) full-credit equivalent with at least 1.5 full credit equivalent from PCL courses: PCL345H1/ PCL389H1/ PCL461H1/ PCL475Y1 / PCL477H1/ PCL484H1/

PCL486H1/ PCL490H1/ PCL491H1/ ANA301H1/ BCH370H1/ CHM310H1/ ESS463H1/ LMP301H1.

Fourth Year: PCL402H1; PCL473Y1; PCL474Y1 (see NOTE 2); PCL481H1.

An Integrative, Inquiry-Based Activity Requirement must be satisfied.

The requirement for an integrative, inquiry-based and/or experiential activity must be met by completing at least one of the following: PCL297H1, PCL389H1, PCL397Y0, PCL472Y1, PCL474Y1, Professional Experience Year

NOTES

1. Any PHY/MAT courses should be completed during the first year and included for program enrollment.
2. Enrollment in the Research Project Course (PCL474Y1) is limited and requires permission from the Department of Pharmacology and Toxicology. Students must receive prior consent of an approved supervisor according to departmental guidelines before the Department of Pharmacology and Toxicology will register them in the course. It is the students responsibility to initiate all necessary preparations before the session starts (see course description).

Professional Experience Year:

The Professional Experience Year (PEY) internship program is a 12-16 month paid employment placement within pharmaceutical/biotechnology/chemical companies, university research laboratories, university-affiliated organizations, consulting companies or government research agencies. The PEY takes place between the 3rd and 4th years of undergraduate study and is open to Specialists in Biomedical Toxicology who have a cGPA of at least 3.0. Students who participate in this program agree to return to their SPE program in the Department to complete their 4th year and their degree. The PEY internship provides an excellent opportunity for real-world experience in drug development, project management, client relations, basic and clinical research, information management and regulatory affairs.

Environment & Toxicology Specialist (Science Program) - ASSPE0605

Description:

This program is jointly sponsored by the Department of Pharmacology and Toxicology and the School of the Environment. For additional information see School of the Environment (www.environment.utoronto.ca) or consult our website: www.pharmtox.utoronto.ca

The Environment and Toxicology Specialist program is an interdisciplinary program which spans the social, physical and life sciences and integrates study of the effects of chemicals not only on the health and behaviour of human beings but on whole ecosystems as the adverse effects associated with therapeutic and environmental chemicals are discussed. This program emphasizes the application of knowledge of environmental toxicology and risk assessment and prepares students for a variety of job opportunities following its completion. Graduates of the Environment and Toxicology program may pursue careers in scientific research, environmental science, conservation science, governmental agencies, consulting agencies, and within chemical, manufacturing or agriculture industries. Students learn to integrate basic environmental and life science with particular aspects of clinical toxicology and related areas through lectures, tutorials, and laboratory and independent research project experience. The senior independent research project course enables students to gain valuable research experience while working under the supervision of an individual faculty member in either a laboratory-based or a non-laboratory-based setting.

The Professional Experience Year (PEY) internship program is a 12-16 month paid employment placement within pharmaceutical/ biotechnology/chemical companies, university research laboratories, university-affiliated organizations, consulting companies or government research agencies. The PEY takes place between the 3rd and 4th years of undergraduate study and is open to Specialists in Pharmacology and Biomedical Toxicology who have a cGPA of at least 3.0. Students who participate in this program agree to return to their SPE program in the Department to complete their 4th year and their degree. The PEY internship provides an excellent opportunity for real-world experience in drug development, project management, client relations, basic and clinical research, information management and regulatory affairs.

Enrolment Requirements:

The Environment and Toxicology Specialist is a Type 2L program and can only accommodate a limited number of students. Admission into this program is determined by a students average in the following courses: BIO120H1, BIO130H1, CHM138H1, CHM139H1, and one of PHY131H1, MAT135H1, or GGR100H1. It is expected that a cumulative average 70% in the selected courses will be required for admission; however, achieving that mark does not necessarily guarantee admission to the program in any given year. Entry into the program requires completion of BIO120H1, BIO130H1; CHM135H1, CHM136H1, one of PHY131H1, MAT135H1, or GGR100H1 and 0.5 FCE from among the other first year course requirements. Completion of the program requires completion of all 4 FCE of the first year required courses. See the Arts & Science Program Enrolment website for application procedures.

NOTE: Students cannot combine a Biomedical Toxicology Major program with an Environment and Toxicology Specialist program for their degree.

Students who wish to enroll in the program after their second year will be considered on a case-by-case basis. Successful completion of required prerequisite courses is required to enroll in further upper-level program courses.

Completion Requirements:

(15 full courses or their equivalent, including 4.0 300+-level courses, 1.0 of which must be at the 400-level).

First Year: BIO120H1; BIO130H1; ( CHM135H1, CHM136H1)/( CHM138H1, CHM139H1); and at least 0.5 FCE from PHY131H1; MAT135H1; JEG100H1

First or Second Year: At least 1.5 FCE from GGR100H1 (if not counted in First Year, above); GGR101H1; MAT135H1 (if not counted in First Year, above); MAT136H1/ JMB170Y1; PHY131H1 (if not counted in First Year, above); PHY132H1

Second Year: BCH210H1; BIO230H1/( BIO240H1, BIO241H1); ENV221H1; ENV222H1, PCL201H1 and CHM247H1. One FCE from ( BIO270H1, BIO271H1)/( PSL300H1, PSL301H1)/PSL302Y (see NOTE 1)

Third and Fourth Years: BIO220H1; ENV234H1; JGE321H1; ENV334H1; CHM210H1; PCL302H1; PCL362H1; PCL473Y1.
One from STA220H1/ STA221H1/ STA288H1/ EEB225H1 (see NOTE 2).
One from ENV421H1/ PCL366H1/ PCL474Y1 (see NOTE 2).
At least 1.0 FCE from: ENV341H1; ENV235H1/ PHY231H1; JGE236H1/ JEE337H1; CHM310H1; ESS463H1; PCL477H1; PCL481H1; PCL484H1; PCL486H1; PCL490H1; LMP301H1; LMP363H1 (see NOTE 3)

An Integrative, Inquiry-Based Activity Requirement must be satisfied.

The requirement for an integrative, inquiry-based and/or experiential activity must be met by completing at least one of the following: PCL297H1, PCL366H1, PCL397Y0, ENV421H1, PCL474Y1, Professional Experience Year
NOTES:

1. PSL300H1 and PSL301H1 require MAT100 /PHY100 - series courses.
2. PCL302H1 is a required co-requisite of PCL366H1; STA288H1, PCL201H1, and PCL302H1 are pre-requisites for students intending to take PCL474Y1. Students intending to take PCL474Y1 must obtain permission from the Undergraduate Student Advisor of the School of the Environment 3 months prior to the intended date of enrolment. Students must also consult with the Department of Pharmacology and Toxicology at least 3 months prior to the intended date of enrolment.

3. Students taking PCL481H1 must take BCH210H1, PCL302H1 and PCL362H1 as prerequisites. Students taking PCL477H1 must take BCH210H1 prior. Students taking ENV421H1 or PCL366H1 must take 1.5 FCE from program electives (group 7) to ensure 15 FCE program credits

Pharmacology Specialist (Science Program) - ASSPE2082

Description:

Pharmacology is an integrative medical science that builds upon the core foundational disciplines of the basic life sciences. The Pharmacology Specialist program aims to provide students with an understanding of the therapeutic properties and clinical uses of externally administered chemical substances in the whole body, as well as the mechanisms of their actions and interactions with molecular, cellular and tissue targets. This understanding prepares students for a variety of either research-based or non-research-based careers, including positions in the pharmaceutical and biotechnology industries, in government agencies, in research institutes and in universities. Students learn about both basic and clinical pharmacology through lectures, tutorials, laboratories and independent research projects. The senior research project course enables students to gain valuable research experience while working under the supervision of an individual faculty member in either a laboratory-based or a non-laboratory-based setting.

Pharmacology (and its application in clinical therapeutics) plays a prominent role in society, and a comprehension of drug mechanisms and uses is fundamental to career success in the fields of medicine, dentistry, pharmacy and nursing. While some students take the Pharmacology Specialist program in preparation for these professional programs, students are advised to contact the respective Faculties directly for questions related to transfer credits.

Enrolment Requirements:

This is a limited enrolment program that can only accommodate a limited number of students. Eligibility will be competitive and based on a student's marks in the 3.0 required first-year courses:

BIO120H1, BIO130H1, ( CHM135H1, CHM136H1)/ ( CHM138H1, CHM139H1)/ CHM151Y1, and 1.0 FCE from ( MAT135H1, MAT136H1)/ MAT137Y1/ MAT157Y1/ ( PHY131H1, PHY132H1)/ ( PHY151H1, PHY152H1) with an average of at least 70% on these 3.0 full-course equivalents (FCEs) and a final mark of at least 60% in each course.

Achieving these estimated marks does not guarantee admission to the program in any given year.

While it is difficult to predict what will be competitive course marks and average in a given year, based on previous years, the estimate is: course marks = mid 80s; average = mid 80s.

Students must apply to this program on the Arts & Science Faculty Registrar's Office website (see the Arts & Science Program Enrolment website for application procedures). Students wishing to enroll in the Pharmacology Specialist will initially apply to the Specialist in Pharmacology and Biomedical Toxicology (ASSPE2340). After completion of first year pre-requisite courses and during the spring of their second year of study (and completion of PCL201H1) students can then choose to apply to the Pharmacology Specialist. First and second year courses are the same for all Specialist programs within the Department (ASSPE2082/ASSPE2340/ASSPE2573).

Students will follow the calendar year in which they initially enter one of our programs (students who are enrolled in the Biomedical Toxicology or the Pharmacology Specialist will follow the requirements for the calendar year in which they first enrolled in the Specialist in Pharmacology and Biomedical Toxicology (ASSPE2340)). Students cannot combine the Biomedical Toxicology Specialist with either departmental Major programs (Biomedical Toxicology or Pharmacology).

Students wishing to enroll after their second year who have taken PCL201H1 will be considered on a case by case basis. Successful completion of required pre-requisite courses is required to further enroll in upper level program courses. Students may not transfer to the Major program from the Specialist after completion of PCL461H1, PCL472Y1 courses or PEY.

Completion Requirements:

Students will follow the calendar year in which they initially enter one of our programs (ie for the majority of students that will be ASMAJ2675/ASSPE2675).

(14.5 full courses or their equivalent)

First Year: BIO120H1; BIO130H1; ( CHM135H1, CHM136H1)/(CHM138H, CHM139H)/ CHM151Y1; and 1 FCE from any combination of ( MAT135H1, MAT136H1); PHY131H1/ PHY151H1; PHY132H1/ PHY152H1 (see NOTE 1)

Third or Fourth Year: PCL469H1 and 3.5 full-course equivalents with at least 1.5 full credit equivalents from PCL courses: PCL345H1/ PCL389H1/ PCL461H1/ PCL475Y1/ PCL477H1/ PCL484H1/ PCL486H1/ PCL490H1/ PCL491H1/ ANA300Y1/ BCH340H1/ BCH350H1/ BCH370H1/ CSB328H1 (See NOTE 2)/ PSL372H1.

Fourth Year: PCL402H1; PCL470H1/ PCL470Y1; PCL472Y1 (see NOTE 3)

An Integrative, Inquiry-Based Activity Requirement must be satisfied.

The requirement for an integrative, inquiry-based and/or experiential activity must be met by completing at least one of the following: PCL297H1, PCL389H1, PCL397Y0, PCL472Y1, PCL474Y1, Professional Experience Year

Notes

1. Any PHY/MAT courses should be completed during the first year and included for program enrollment.
2. Some of the choices listed above are only available to students who are enrolled in a POST sponsored by the department or unit offering the course, and/or who have completed specified prerequisites
3. Enrollment in the Research Project Course ( PCL472Y1 ) is limited and requires permission from the Department of Pharmacology and Toxicology. Students must receive prior consent of an approved supervisor according to Departmental guidelines before the Department will register them in the course. It is the student's responsibility to make all necessary preparations before the session starts (see course description).

Professional Experience Year:

The Professional Experience Year (PEY) internship program is a 12-16 month paid employment placement within pharmaceutical/ biotechnology/chemical companies, university research laboratories, university-affiliated organizations, consulting companies or government research agencies. The PEY takes place between the 3rd and 4th years of undergraduate study and is open to Specialists in Pharmacology who have a cGPA of at least 3.0. Students who participate in this program agree to return to their SPE program in the Department to complete their 4th year and their degree. The PEY internship provides an excellent opportunity for real-world experience in drug development, project management, client relations, basic and clinical research, information management and regulatory affairs.

Specialist in Pharmacology and Biomedical Toxicology (Science Program) - ASSPE2340

Description:

Pharmacology and Biomedical Toxicology are complementary sciences, and the Pharmacology and Biomedical Toxicology Specialist combines the requirements of the two distinct specialist programs. The Specialist program integrates knowledge of pharmacology – the understanding of the therapeutic properties and clinical applications of externally administered chemical substances in the whole body and the mechanisms of their actions and interactions with their intended targets, while biomedical toxicology examines the harmful effects of exogenous chemicals on the health and behaviour of individuals and society, addressing drug safety and the adverse consequences of chemical exposure. Biomedical toxicology includes understanding the safety/toxicity of a wide array of chemicals (pharmaceutical preparations, herbal products, natural toxins and environmental contaminants) with a focus on their effects and adverse consequences on human health.

Both Pharmacology and Biomedical Toxicology are integrative life sciences which build on the core foundational disciplines of the basic life sciences and the prominent role each science plays in society. A comprehension of the biological mechanisms of action and potential uses of chemicals are key to career success in the fields of medicine, dentistry, pharmacy and nursing. The Specialist program prepares students for a variety of job opportunities following its completion as well as for further study in graduate research or professional programs such as Medicine, Dentistry, and Pharmacy. (Note: Students interested in professional programs should contact the respective faculties to inquire about specific transfer credits.) Graduates of this rigorous program will have access to an impressive variety of job opportunities in either research-based or non-research-based careers, including scientific research in research institutes and in universities, positions in the pharmaceutical, biotechnology and chemical industries, forensic science, nutrition and food sciences, government or consulting agencies. Students learn about both basic and clinical pharmacology and biomedical toxicology through lectures, tutorials, small group sessions, laboratories and independent research projects. The senior research project course enables students to gain valuable research experience while working under the supervision of an individual faculty member in either a laboratory-based or a non-laboratory-based setting.

Enrolment Requirements:

This is a limited enrolment program that can only accommodate a limited number of students. Eligibility will be competitive and based on a student's marks in the 3.0 required first-year courses:

Students will follow the calendar year in which they initially enter one of our programs. Students cannot combine the Biomedical Toxicology Specialist with either departmental Major programs (Biomedical Toxicology or Pharmacology).

Students wishing to enroll after their second year who have taken PCL201H1 will be considered on a case by case basis. Successful completion of required pre-requisite courses is required to further enroll in upper level program courses. Students may not transfer to the Major program from the Specialist after completion of PCL461H1 or PCL472Y1/ PCL474Y1 courses or PEY.

Completion Requirements:

(15 full courses or their equivalent)

First Year: BIO120H1; BIO130H1; ( CHM135H1, CHM136H1)/(CHM138H, CHM139H)/ CHM151Y1; and 1 FCE from any combination of ( MAT135H1, MAT136H1); PHY131H1/ PHY151H1; PHY132H1/ PHY152H1 (see NOTE 1)

Second Year: BCH210H1; BIO230H1/(BIO240H, BIO241H); BIO260H1/ HMB265H1; CHM247H1/ CHM249H1; STA288H1; PCL201H1; ( PSL300H1, PSL301H1)/PSL302Y (NOTE: PSL201Y1 is not acceptable).

Third Year: BCH311H1; PCL302H1; PCL362H1; PCL366H1

Third or Fourth Year: LMP363H1, PCL469H1, and a one and half (1.5 FCE) full-credit equivalent from the following courses: PCL345H1/ PCL389H1/ PCL461H1/ PCL475Y1/ PCL477H1/ PCL484H1/ PCL486H1/ PCL490H1/ PCL491H1/ LMP301H1. Additional courses that may strengthen your background in this program can be taken, but will not count towards your program: ANA300Y1/ ANA301H1/ BCH340H1/ BCH370H1/ CHM310H1/ CSB328H1(see NOTE 3)/ ESS463H1/ PSL372H1

Fourth Year: PCL402H1; PCL470H1/ PCL470Y1; PCL473Y1; PCL472Y1/ PCL474Y1 (see NOTE 2); PCL481H1.

An Integrative, Inquiry-Based Activity Requirement must be satisfied.

The requirement for an integrative, inquiry-based and/or experiential activity must be met by completing at least one of the following: PCL297H1, PCL389H1, PCL397Y0, PCL472Y1, PCL474Y1, Professional Experience Year.

NOTES

1. Any PHY/MAT courses should be completed during the first year and included for program enrollment.
2. Enrollment in the Research Project Course (PCL472Y1/ PCL474Y1) is limited and requires permission from the Department of Pharmacology and Toxicology. Students must receive prior consent of an approved supervisor according to Departmental guidelines before the Department will register them in the course. It is the student's responsibility to make all necessary preparations before the session starts (see course description).

The PEY internship provides an excellent opportunity for real-world experience in drug development, project management, client relations, basic and clinical research, information management and regulatory affairs.

Biomedical Toxicology Major (Science Program) - ASMAJ2573

Description:

Biomedical toxicology has emerged as an important science addressing drug safety and the adverse consequences of chemical exposure. The Biomedical Toxicology Major program examines the harmful effects of chemicals on the health and behavior of individuals and society. The safety/toxicity of a wide array of chemicals is examined including pharmaceutical preparations, herbal products, natural toxins, and environmental contaminants, with a focus on their effects on human health. Students learn about basic and clinical toxicology and related areas through lectures, tutorials and class discussions/debates.

This program includes the application of toxicological knowledge and risk assessment and prepares students for a variety of job opportunities following its completion as well as for further study in graduate research or professional programs such as Medicine, Dentistry, and Pharmacy. (Note: Students interested in professional programs should contact the respective faculties to inquire about specific transfer credits.) Many graduates of the Biomedical Toxicology major program pursue careers in scientific research, forensic science, nutrition and food sciences, governmental agencies, consulting agencies, and industrial settings including the pharmaceutical and chemical industries.

Enrolment Requirements:

This is a limited enrolment program that can only accommodate a limited number of students. Eligibility will be competitive and based on a student's marks in the 2.0 required first-year courses:

BIO120H1, BIO130H1, ( CHM135H1, CHM136H1)/(CHM138H, CHM139H)/ CHM151Y1, with an average of at least 70% on these 2.0 full-course equivalents (FCEs) and a final mark of at least 60% in each course.

Achieving these estimated marks does not guarantee admission to the program in any given year.

While it is difficult to predict what will be competitive course marks and average in a given year, based on previous years, the estimate is: course marks = mid 80s; average = mid 80s.

Students must apply to this program on the Arts & Science Faculty Registrar's Office website (see the Arts & Science Program Enrolment website for application procedures). Students wishing to enroll in this program will initially apply to a general departmental Major (ASMAJ2675) after their first year and during the spring of their second year of study (and completion of PCL201H1) students will select the focus for their future studies (Biomedical Toxicology or Pharmacology). First and second year courses are the same for all Major programs within the Department (ASMAJ2675/ASMAJ2082/ASMAJ2573). Students cannot combine a Biomedical Toxicology Major program with a Pharmacology Major or Specialist program for their degree. Students will follow the calendar year in which they initially enter one of our programs (i.e., the ASMAJ2675).

Students wishing to enroll after their second year who have taken PCL201H1 will be considered on a case by case basis. Successful completion of required pre-requisite courses is required to further enroll in upper level program courses.

Completion Requirements:

(8 full courses or their equivalent)

First Year: BIO120H1; BIO130H1; ( CHM135H1, CHM136H1)/(CHM138H, CHM139H)/ CHM151Y1

Second Year: BCH210H1; BIO230H1/(BIO240H, BIO241H); PCL201H1; CHM247H1/ CHM249H1; ( PSL300H1, PSL301H1)/PSL302Y (NOTE: PSL201Y1 is not acceptable).

Third Year: PCL302H1; PCL362H1. (See NOTE 1)

Third or Fourth Year: 1.0 full-credit equivalent with at least one-half credit equivalent from PCL courses: PCL345H1/ PCL389H1/ PCL402H1/ PCL475Y1/ PCL477H1/ PCL481H1/ PCL484H1/ PCL486H1/ PCL490H1/ ANA301H1/ BCH370H1/ LMP301H1/ LMP363H1.

Fourth Year: PCL473Y1

NOTES

1. Although LMP301H1 (Introduction to the Biochemistry of Human Disease) and LMP363H1 (Principles of Pathobiology) are not prerequisites to enroll in PCL473Y1, students are recommended to enroll in at least one of these courses.

2. Students are not allowed to enroll concurrently in the Major Program in Pharmacology and the Major Program in Toxicology

3. Students are not allowed to enroll concurrently in the Major Program in Pharmacology and a Specialist Program in Toxicology.

4. Students are not permitted to take PCL472Y1 or PCL474Y1.

Pharmacology Major (Science Program) - ASMAJ2082

Description:

Pharmacology is an integrative medical science that builds upon the core foundational disciplines of the basic life sciences. This program is intended for students who want to gain knowledge in Pharmacology in combination with a separate and complementary area of study and is designed for students interested in broad, multidisciplinary training. The Pharmacology Major program is designed to provide students with a broad understanding of the therapeutic properties and clinical uses of externally administered chemical substances in the whole body, as well as the mechanisms of their actions and interactions with molecular, cellular and tissue targets. Students learn about both basic and clinical pharmacology through lectures, tutorials and small group sessions.

Third Year: PCL302H1; BCH311H1

Third or Fourth Year: PCL469H1 and 1.0 full course equivalent from: PCL345H1/ PCL389H1/ PCL402H1/ PCL475Y1/ PCL477H1/ PCL484H1/ PCL486H1/ PCL490H1/ BCH370H1

Fourth Year: PCL470H1/ PCL470Y1

NOTES

1. Students are not allowed to enroll concurrently in the Major Program in Pharmacology and the Major Program in Toxicology.
2. Students are not allowed to enroll concurrently in the Major Program in Pharmacology and a Specialist Program in Toxicology.
3. Students are not permitted to take PCL472Y1 or PCL474Y1.

Regarding Pharmacology and Toxicology Courses

First Year Seminars

The 199Y1 and 199H1 seminars are designed to provide the opportunity to work closely with an instructor in a class of no more than twenty-four students. These interactive seminars are intended to stimulate the students' curiosity and provide an opportunity to get to know a member of the professorial staff in a seminar environment during the first year of study. Details can be found at www.artsci.utoronto.ca/current/course/fyh-1/.

Pharmacology and Toxicology Courses

PCL102H1 - The Art of Drug Discovery

Hours: 24L

This course introduces students to the processes and strategies for discovering new drugs with a special focus on current and emerging approaches for the rational design of drugs that are both effective and safe.

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PCL200H1 - Drugs & the Brain

Hours: 24L

Lectures introduce students to prescribed and illicit drugs that affect the brain. Lectures cover drug pharmacology and explain how drugs alter mood, perception, cognition, and arousal by affecting different aspects of brain function. The societal impact of these prescribed and illicit drugs is also discussed

Prerequisite: None

Exclusion: PSY396H1, PCL302H1, BCH210H1, BCH242Y1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PCL201H1 - Introduction to Pharmacology and Pharmacokinetic Principles

Hours: 36L/6T

A general introduction to the principles of pharmacology and pharmacokinetics. Topics include chemical (drug) absorption, distribution, biotransformation, elimination; the calculation of dosages and pharmacokinetic parameters, variability in drug response, adverse drug reactions and special interest topics.

Prerequisite: BIO120H1, BIO130H1, CHM135H1, CHM136H1

Corequisite: Recommended Co-requisites: BIO230H1/ (BIO240H1, BIO241H1), CHM247H1/ CHM249H1, PSL300H1/ PSL301H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PCL297H1 - Research Experience in Pharmacology & Toxicology

Hours: 60P

A formal opportunity to gain hands-on experience and develop their skills within a research laboratory setting. Students will have a chance to become familiar and efficient at good lab practices, develop critical thinking and evaluation skills while applying their knowledge and developing trouble shooting skills to practical research questions. This course is Pass/Fail. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: None; Permission of Faculty Supervisor and Departmental Undergraduate Coordinator required.

Corequisite: None

Recommended Preparation: Completion of at least first year of Life Sciences program.

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PCL299Y1 - Research Opportunity Program

Hours: TBA

Credit course for supervised participation in faculty research project. Details at <http://www.artsci.utoronto.ca/current/course/rop>. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Distribution Requirements: Science

PCL302H1 - Pharmacodynamic Principles

Hours: 36L

Topics include biological action of drugs on membranes, enzymes, receptors, neural and hormonal systems, transmission and modulation.

Prerequisite: BIO230H1/(BIO240H1, BIO241H1), CHM247H1/ CHM249H1, (PSL300H1, PSL301H1)/ PSL302Y1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PCL345H1 - Experimental Approaches in Drug Discovery

Hours: 24L

Lecturers use their own research to demonstrate how they approach a biological question. The lectures emphasize why one approach is chosen over other possible approaches, and explain the strengths and limitations of techniques. Following the one-hour lecture there is an interactive discussion of the experimental approach covered in the lecture.

Prerequisite: BCH210H1; completion of at least 10 FCE
Recommended Preparation: PSL300H1/ PSL301H1 or BIO270H1/ BIO271H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PCL362H1 - Introductory Toxicology

Hours: 27L/5T

Toxicological problems encountered in animals and humans; biochemical mechanisms and clinical factors of toxicological significance; models of drug-related diseases.

Prerequisite: BCH210H1, BIO230H1/( BIO240H1, BIO241H1), CHM247H1/ CHM249H1, PCL201H1 or Permission of the Course Coordinator

Corequisite: Recommended Co-requisite: PCL302H1, BCH311H1/ CSB349H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PCL366H1 - Basic Pharmacology and Toxicology Laboratory

Hours: 16T/32P

Through practical hands-on laboratory experiments and tutorials, students will be introduced to some basic experimental techniques and laboratory skills that are used within pharmacology and toxicology research. (Ancillary lab fee $25)

Prerequisite: PCL201H1, PSL300H1/ PSL301H1

Corequisite: PCL302H1

Exclusion: PCL365Y1/ PCL471Y1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PCL376H1 - Experimental Design and Data Analysis for Pharmacology and Toxicology

Hours: 30L/6T

This course includes lectures focused on experimental design and the analysis of pharmacological and toxicological data. Topics include: principles of experimental design, data analysis and statistical tests appropriate for each type, use of computing statistical packages, analysis of dose-response and time-response curves and analysis of receptor binding assays. Practical applications and problem sets will be taken up in class and in tutorials.

Prerequisite: PCL201H1

Corequisite: PCL302H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PCL389H1 - Understanding the Role of Pharmacology and Toxicology in Society

Hours: 24L

This service learning course explores issues surrounding the effects that pharmaceuticals and chemicals have in society. Specifically, it integrates pharmacology and toxicology with social, health and political issues as they relate to drug abuse and addiction. Students are required to interact and work with community partners during the semester (approx 20hrs). Classroom discussions will integrate community experiences with lecture material.

Prerequisite: PCL201H1

Corequisite: PCL302H1; ( PSL300H1, PSL301H1)/ PSL302Y1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PCL397Y0 - Research Abroad in Pharmacology and Toxicology

Hours: 200P

An independent research project in a pharmacology and/or toxicology laboratory in an approved partner university. This international research experience will be supervised by a faculty member at the partner institution and will allow students to develop critical thinking and evaluation skills while applying their knowledge and trouble shooting skills to practical research questions. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: PCL201H1 (65%), PCL302H1 (65%), PSL300H1 (65%), PSL301H1 (65%); permission from the Undergraduate Coordinator
Distribution Requirements: Science
Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PCL399Y1 - Research Opportunity Program

Hours: TBA

Credit course for supervised participation in faculty research project. Details at <http://www.artsci.utoronto.ca/current/course/rop>. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

PCL402H1 - Pharmacology and Toxicology in Drug Development

Hours: 24L

This course provides the basic principles of drug development, with a primary focus on the application of fundamental principles of pharmacology and toxicology to the design and conduct of early phase clinical trials. This is the phase of the drug development process where much of the innovation and science occurs.

Prerequisite: PCL201H1, PCL302H1
Corequisite: PCL470H1 or PCL473Y1
Recommended Preparation: PSL300H1, PSL301H1
Distribution Requirements: Science
Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PCL461H1 - Advanced Pharmacology and Toxicology Laboratory

Hours: 12T/36P

Advanced laboratory exercises and discussions through tutorials and presentations in selected areas of pharmacology. Enrollment in this course is generally restricted to students enrolled in the Pharmacology Specialist and Pharmacology and Biomedical Toxicology Specialist programs. (Ancillary lab fee $25).

Prerequisite: PCL201H1, PCL302H1, PSL300H1/PSL301H1, PCL366H1
Exclusion: PCL365Y1/ PCL471Y1
Recommended Preparation: PCL469H1
Distribution Requirements: Science
Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PCL469H1 - Systems Pharmacology I

Previous Course Number: PCL470Y1
Hours: 31L/4T

A culmination of pharmacological principles discussing concepts of drug properties and their interactions within the body. The mechanism of action, pharmacological properties including clinical use and adverse effects of drugs acting on the autonomic nervous systems, cardiovascular, renal, respiratory, gastrointestinal and endocrine systems will be examined. Critical evaluation of primary literature and examination of clinical problem-based case studies will be integrated with lecture material through small group sessions.

Prerequisite: PCL201H1, PCL302H1, (PSL300H1, PSL301H1)/ PSL302Y1, BCH210H1
Exclusion: PCL470Y1
Distribution Requirements: Science
Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PCL470H1 - Systems Pharmacology II

Previous Course Number: PCL470Y1

Hours: 31L/4T

A culmination of pharmacological principles discussing concepts of drug properties and their interactions within the body. The mechanism of action, pharmacological properties including clinical use and adverse effects of drugs acting on the central nervous systems and immunological system; antimicrobial and cancer chemotherapeutic agents as well as the potential therapeutic use of endogenous/herbal compounds will be examined. Critical evaluation of primary literature and examination of clinical problem-based case studies will be integrated with lecture material through small group sessions.

Prerequisite: PCL201H1, PCL302H1, ( PSL300H1, PSL301H1)/( PSL302H1), BCH210H1

Exclusion: PCL470Y1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PCL472Y1 - Project in Pharmacology

Hours: TBA

This course affords students an opportunity for hands-on research experience in a laboratory or applied pharmacology setting. Students will work under the supervision of a faculty member and will submit a final written report and oral presentation. Enrollment is limited and requires permission from the Department of Pharmacology and Toxicology. It is the student's responsibility to secure a placement with an approved supervisor before the course begins (a list of potential supervisors can be obtained from the Department of Pharmacology and Toxicology). Students will be registered in the course once their ballot form (obtained from the Department of Pharmacology and Toxicology) is signed by an approved supervisor and approved by the Department of Pharmacology and Toxicology. Students are expected to spend approximately 200 hours towards this project but this will be project/supervisor dependent. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: PCL201H1, PCL302H1, PCL366H1, STA288H1/ PCL376H1, and permission of Department

Exclusion: PCL474Y1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PCL473Y1 - Interdisciplinary Toxicology

Hours: 48L

This course explores several contemporary topics in biomedical and environmental toxicology with emphasis on how chemicals affect human health. Lectures cover principles of toxicology, the mechanisms of toxicity of a wide variety of toxic agents and the associated toxicities, methodologies used to examine chemical toxicities, risk assessment, and the applications of toxicology. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: BCH210H1, PCL201H1, PCL302H1, PCL362H1 or Permission of the Course Coordinator

Recommended Preparation: BCH311H1/ CSB349H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PCL474Y1 - Project in Toxicology

Hours: TBA

This course affords students an opportunity for hands-on research experience in a laboratory or applied toxicology setting. Students will work under the supervision of a staff member and will submit a final written report and oral presentation. Enrollment is limited and requires permission from the Department of Pharmacology and Toxicology. It is the student's responsibility to secure a placement with an approved supervisor before the course begins (a list of potential supervisors can be obtained from the Department of Pharmacology and Toxicology). Students will be registered in the course once their ballot form (obtained from the Department of Pharmacology and Toxicology) is signed by an approved supervisor and approved by the Department of Pharmacology and Toxicology. Students are expected to spend approximately 200 hours towards this project but this will be project/supervisor dependent. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: PCL201H1, PCL302H1, PCL366H1, STA288H1/ PCL376H1, and permission of Department

Exclusion: PCL472Y1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PCL475Y1 - Neuropsychopharmacology

Hours: 72L/24T

Major neuro-psychiatric disease syndromes: clinical pathology and neuronal abnormalities; CNS drugs: theories and mechanisms of action.

Prerequisite: A minimum of 9.0 FCE

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PCL477H1 - The DNA Damage Response in Pharmacology and Toxicology

Hours: 24L

Many anticancer drugs and environmental agents exert their cytotoxic effects through DNA damage. This course explores specific pharmacological and toxicological agents that damage DNA and discusses how mammalian cells respond to this DNA damage.

Prerequisite: BCH210H1/ BCH242Y1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PCL481H1 - The Molecular and Biochemical Basis of Toxicology

Hours: 24L

The biochemical principles and molecular mechanisms underlying the toxicity of drugs and foreign agents. The sequence of events at the molecular level leading to impairment of cell function and the factors which determine and affect toxicity.

Prerequisite: PCL302H1, PCL362H1, BCH210H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PCL484H1 - Seminars in Pharmacokinetics and Toxicokinetics

Hours: 24S

Each week a scientist affiliated with the Department of Pharmacology and Toxicology will discuss the application of pharmacokinetic and/or toxicokinetic principles to their research. This area of study plays an important role in clinical medicine and drug development

Prerequisite: PCL201H1

Recommended Preparation: PCL302H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PCL486H1 - Pharmacology of Cancer Signaling

Hours: 24L

This course will expand on both classical and cutting edge pharmacological strategies proposed to mitigate the consequences of altered signal transduction in cancer. Students will have the opportunity to develop knowledge on these molecular events and how they can be targeted to improve clinical outcomes. Students will integrate lecture material with assigned readings and assignments.

Prerequisite: BCH210H1/ BCH242Y1, PCL302H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PCL490H1 - Advanced Topics in Pharmacology and Toxicology

Hours: 12L/12S

An opportunity to expand on innovative and unique topics in Pharmacology and Toxicology that are not already extensively addressed. The course will reveal the dynamic nature of the field and the diverse interests of our faculty. Students will be introduced to leading edge topics and research within the discipline of Pharmacology and Toxicology.

Prerequisite: PCL302H1, and one of STA288H1/ STA220H1/ PCL376H1

Recommended Preparation: PCL469H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PCL491H1 - Clinical Pharmacology Principles and Practice

Hours: 8L/8T/24P

This course will examine the practical and experimental aspects of clinical pharmacology and toxicology. Through practical applications and experiments, students will develop their knowledge in Good Laboratory Practice/Good Clinical Practice, critical evaluation and analysis skills through: performing pharmacokinetic experiments (evaluating Vd, half-life, and clearance); examining case studies and primary literature in regards to drug-drug interactions and adverse drug reactions.

This elective course can apply towards their program requirements in our Specialist and Major streams and will only be available to fourth year students. The course will meet a need for expanding students' comprehension in clinical pharmacology and pharmacokinetics in a hands-on, practical and advanced manner. Students will be evaluated on both written and oral communication skills, team work as well as data analysis and interpretation and critical thinking skills.

(Ancillary lab fee $25)

Prerequisite: PCL201H1, PCL302H1, at least 15 FCE and completion of upper level laboratory course.

Recommended Preparation: PCL469H1, PCL470H1 or PCL473Y1. Completion of an upper level laboratory course ( PCL366H1, PSL372H1, BCH370H1)

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

Introduction

The Greek words from which “Philosophy” is formed mean “love of wisdom” and all great philosophers have been moved by an intense devotion to the search for wisdom. Philosophy takes no belief for granted, but examines the grounds for those beliefs which make up people’s fundamental views of the world. Philosophers think about these beliefs as thoroughly and systematically as possible, using methods of conceptual analysis, reasoning, and detailed description.

What distinguishes Philosophy from the physical and social sciences is its concern not only with the truths which are discovered by means of specialized methods of investigation, but with the implications that such discoveries have for human beings in their relations with one another and the world. Moreover, Philosophy has an abiding interest in those basic assumptions about the nature of the physical and social world, and about the nature of enquiry itself, which underlie our scientific and practical endeavours.

The Philosophy Department at the University of Toronto offers courses in most of the main periods and areas of Philosophy, which are listed here with a typical question or the name of one or two central figures: Ancient Philosophy (Plato, Aristotle); Mediaeval Philosophy (Augustine, Aquinas); Early Modern Philosophy (Descartes, Hume, Kant); Nineteenth-Century Philosophy (Hegel, Mill, Marx); Asian Philosophy (Chinese Philosophy) Continental Philosophy and Phenomenology (Husserl, Heidegger, Sartre); Analytic Philosophy (Quine, Russell, Wittgenstein); Epistemology and Metaphysics (What can be known? What is the ultimate nature of reality?); Moral Philosophy (How should we argue rationally about right and wrong?); Philosophy of Mind (What is mind? Is there free will?); Logic and Philosophy of Mathematics (What is sound reasoning? Do numbers exist?); Philosophy of Language (What is the meaning of “meaning?”); Philosophy of Natural Science (What is scientific method?); Social and Political Philosophy (What justifies the state?); Aesthetics (What is art? Must it be beautiful?). In addition, the Department offers Seminars (numbered PHL400H1 - PHL488H1), Individual Studies courses (numbered PHL495H1 - PHL499H1) and the Socrates Project (PHL489Y1).

Counselling is available in the main departmental office, 170 St. George St., 4th floor. In particular, students may wish to get advice about how best to combine philosophy programs with other majors or minors, given that various co-specialist programs with other disciplines have been discontinued. In addition, the Department publishes an annual Bulletin. It contains full and up-to-date information on programs and courses, including names of instructors and descriptions of particular course sections. The Bulletin is published in the summer (for the succeeding year) and is available on the Department’s website and at 170 St. George Street.

Philosophy Programs

Bioethics Specialist (Arts Program) - ASSPE1001

Completion Requirements:

10 full courses or their equivalent including at least 4.0 FCEs at the 300+ level of which 1.0 FCE must be at the 400 level

First year (recommended):

PHL100Y1/ PHL101Y1
BIO120H1, BIO220H1

Higher Years (required):

1. PHL281H1, PHL271H1, PHL275H1
2. PHL245H1/ PHL246H1
3. 1.5 FCEs from Group 1 (Advanced Bioethics)
4. 1.0 FCE from Group 2 (Value Theory)
5. 0.5 FCEs from Group 3 (Metaphysics and Epistemology).
6. Additional philosophy courses, to a total of 10 FCEs, or else additional philosophy courses to a total of 9.0 FCEs and 1.0 FCE from Group 4 (Interdisciplinary)

Philosophy Specialist (Arts Program) - ASSPE0231

Completion Requirements:

(10 full courses or their equivalent, including PHL100Y1/PHL101Y1 if taken)

First year (recommended):

PHL100Y1/ PHL101Y1

Higher Years (required):

1. 2.0 FCEs from the following: PHL200Y1/( PHL205H1, PHL206H1)/ PHL210Y1
2. 1.0 FCE from the following: PHL217H1/ PHL232H1/PHL233H1/ PHL240H1
3. PHL265H1/ PHL275H1

4. PHL245H1/ PHL246H1

5. Additional philosophy courses, to a total of 10 FCEs, including 4.0 PHL FCEs at the 300+ level, of which 1.0 FCE must be at the 400 level.

Physics and Philosophy Specialist (Science Program) - ASSPE2584

Completion Requirements:

Physics has deep historical roots in natural philosophy and many aspects of contemporary Physics raise profound philosophical questions about the nature of reality. The interdisciplinary Physics and Philosophy Program allows the student to engage with both Physics and Philosophy at their deepest levels, and to more fully explore the connections between them.

Consult Associate Chair (Undergraduate Studies), Department of Physics or Philosophy.

(16.0 full courses or their equivalent, including at least 2.0 full courses at the 400 level)

First Year: (3.5 FCE)

( MAT135H1, MAT136H1/ MAT137Y1/ MAT157Y1, MAT223H1/ MAT240H1, PHY131H1/ PHY151H1, PHY132H1/ PHY152H1, PHL100Y1/ PHL101Y1

(The courses MAT137Y1, MAT223H1, PHY151H1, PHY152H1 are recommended.)

Second Year: (3.5 FCE)

MAT237Y1/ MAT257Y1/ MAT235Y1, MAT244H1/ MAT267H1, PHY250H1, PHY254H1, PHY256H1, HPS250H1

(The courses MAT237Y1, MAT244H1 are recommended.)

Third Year: (2.5 FCE)

MAT334H1/ MAT354H1, PHY252H1, PHY354H1, PHY350H1, PHY356H1

Fourth Year: (1.5 FCE)

PHY456H1, ( PHY483H1/ PHY452H1), PHY491H1

Any Year: (5.0 FCE)

PHL245H1, ( PHL345H1/ PHL347H1/ PHL348H1/ PHL349H1), PHL355H1, PHL356H1, ( PHL415H1/

PHL482H1), plus 2.5 FCE additional PHL courses, including at least 0.5 at the 300+ level

Bioethics Major (Arts Program) - ASMAJ1001

Completion Requirements:

7 full courses or their equivalent including at least 2.0 FCEs at the 300+ level of which 0.5 FCE must be at 400 level.

First year (recommended):

PHL100Y1/ PHL101Y1
BIO120H1, BIO220H1

Higher Years (required):

1. PHL281H1
2. PHL245H1/ PHL246H1
3. 1.0 FCE from Group 1 (Advanced Bioethics)
4. 1.5 FCEs from PHL271H1 / PHL275H1 / Group 2 (Value Theory)
5. 0.5 FCE from Group 3 (Metaphysics and Epistemology).
6. Additional philosophy courses, to a total of 7.0 FCEs, or else additional philosophy courses to a total of 6.5 FCEs, plus 0.5 FCE from Group 4 (Interdisciplinary).

Philosophy Major (Arts Program) - ASMAJ0231

Completion Requirements:

(7 full courses or their equivalent, including PHL100Y1/ PHL101Y1 if taken)

First year (recommended):

PHL100Y1/ PHL101Y1

Higher Years (required):

1. 1.0 FCE from the following: PHL200Y1/ ( PHL205H1, PHL206H1)/ PHL210Y1
2. 1.0 FCE from the following: PHL217H1/ PHL232H1/ PHL233H1/ PHL240H1
3. PHL265H1/ PHL275H1
4. PHL245H1/ PHL246H1
5. Additional philosophy courses, to a total of 7.0 FCEs, including 2.0 PHL FCEs at the 300+ level, of which 0.5 FCE must be at the 400 level.

Bioethics Minor (Arts Program) - ASMIN1001

Completion Requirements:

(4 full courses or their equivalent including at least 1.0 FCE at 300+ level)

1. PHL281H1
2. PHL245H1/ PHL246H1
3. 0.5 FCE from Group 1 (Advanced Bioethics)
4. 1.0 FCE from PHL271H1 / PHL275H1 / Group 2 (Value Theory)
5. Additional philosophy courses to a total of 4.0 FCEs.

Philosophy Minor (Arts Program) - ASMIN0231

Completion Requirements:

(4 full courses or their equivalent, including PHL100Y1/ PHL101Y1 if taken)

1. 1.0 FCE from the following: PHL200Y1/ PHL205H1/ PHL206H1/ PHL210Y1/ PHL217H1/ PHL232H1/ PHL233H1/ PHL240H1/ PHL265H1/ PHL275H1
2. Additional philosophy courses, to a total of 4.0 FCE's, including 1.0 FCE at the 300+ level.

Mathematics and Philosophy Specialist (Science Program) - ASSPE1361

Completion Requirements:

Consult the Undergraduate Coordinators of the Departments of Mathematics and Philosophy.

(12.0 FCE including at least 1.0 FCE at the 400-level)

First Year:

MAT157Y1, MAT240H1, MAT247H1; PHL232H1 or PHL233H1

Higher Years:

1. MAT257Y1, MAT327H1, MAT347Y1, MAT354H1/ MAT357H1
2. PHL345H1, MAT309H1/ PHL348H1
3. Four of: PHL325H1, PHL331H1, PHL332H1, PHL346H1, PHL347H1, PHL349H1, PHL355H1, PHL451H1, PHL480H1
4. 1.0 FCE from PHL200Y1/ PHL205H1/ PHL206H1/ PHL210Y1
5. PHL265H1/ PHL275H1

6. Additional 2.0 FCE from PHL or MAT to a total of 12.0 FCE

NOTE: Students with a CGPA of 3.5 and above may apply to have graduate level math courses count towards their 400-level course requirements.

Regarding Philosophy Courses

The following courses do not have PHL prefixes but may still be counted towards a philosophy program. Students should consult the primary listings for their course descriptions: COG250Y1, COG401H1, HPS250H1, HPS350H1, TRN200Y1.

300-SERIES COURSES

All 300-series courses have a prerequisite of three half credits (or equivalent) in philosophy, with the exception of PHL345H1 - PHL349H1 and PHL356H1. There is also a general prerequisite of 7.5 courses (in any field). Only specific courses required or recommended are listed below. Students who do not meet the prerequisite for a particular course but believe that they have adequate preparation must obtain the permission of the instructor to gain entry to the course.

400-SERIES COURSES

1. The general prerequisite for ALL 400-level courses is eight half-courses in philosophy. Most courses also have specific prerequisites. Students who do not meet the prerequisite for a particular course but believe that they have adequate preparation must obtain the permission of the instructor in order to gain entry to the course.
2. PHL400H1-PHL451H1 are undergraduate-level courses. PHL470H1-PHL488H1 are cross-listed graduate courses, available to undergraduates as well. Enrolment in cross-listed graduate courses requires the permission of the instructor and the Department in addition to the completion of the prerequisites indicated below.

3. Students in 400-level courses must attend the first class, or contact the instructor to explain their absence. Failure to do so may result in removal from the course.
4. Individual Studies courses (PHL495H1/PHL496H1/PHL497H1), which involve directed study and research, are available to advanced students. Arrangements must be made with a faculty supervisor, and approval of the Undergraduate Coordinator obtained before registration.
5. No more than one individual studies credit can be counted towards any philosophy program and normally, no more than one individual studies half credit can be counted towards the 400-level course requirement for any Specialist or Combined Specialist Philosophy program.
6. The Socrates Project (PHL489Y1) is a special enrolment course. If you are interested in this course, please contact the department.

Hours: 36L

A survey of philosophical topics related to the emotions, from a range of philosophical perspectives. Questions to be considered may include the following: What exactly is an emotion? Are emotions feelings? What emotions are there, and how are they shaped by culture and society? How are emotions related to reason, the brain and the body? What role do -- and should -- the emotions play in decision-making? Can an emotion be morally right or wrong, and what makes it so?

Prerequisite: PHL240H1/ PHL244H1/ PHL342H1, 7.5 courses (in any field) with at least 1.5 in philosophy

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PHL345H1 - Intermediate Logic

Hours: 36L

A survey of several major areas of formal logic and their application to philosophical problems, applying formal techniques and building directly on PHL245. Possible topics include set theory, non-classical logics, modal logic and metalogic.

Prerequisite: PHL245H1/ MAT157Y1 and a full course in PHL/CSC/MAT

Exclusion: PHLC51H3, PHL345H5

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PHL346H1 - Philosophy of Mathematics

Hours: 36L

Platonism versus nominalism, the relation between logic and mathematics, implications of Gödel's theorem, formalism and intuitionism.

Prerequisite: PHL245H1/ MAT157Y1 and a full course in PHL/CSC/MAT

Exclusion: PHL346H5

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PHL347H1 - Modal Logic

Hours: 36L

Formal study of the concepts of necessity and possibility; modal, propositional and quantificational logic; possible-worlds semantics; the metaphysics of modality.

Prerequisite: PHL245H1/ MAT157Y1 and a full course in PHL/CSC/MAT

Exclusion: PHL347H5

Recommended Preparation: PHL345H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PHL348H1 - Logic and Computation

Hours: 36L

Topics will include Kurt Gödel's celebrated incompleteness theorems, the technical ideas and methods involved in proving them, their relation to the abstract theory of computation, and their philosophical implications. Are there mathematical truths that cannot be known? Are mathematical concepts such as number and set indeterminate to some extent? Are there limits to what can be modeled formally?

Prerequisite: PHL245H1/ MAT157Y1 and a full course in PHL/CSC/MAT

Exclusion: MAT309H1/ CSC438H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PHL349H1 - Set Theory

Hours: 36L

An introduction to set theory emphasizing its philosophical relevance as a unifying framework for mathematics and logic. Topics examined may include the paradoxes of the 'naïve' conception of sets and their resolution through axiomatization, the construction of natural numbers and real numbers in set theory, equivalents of the axiom of choice, and model theory.

Prerequisite: PHL245H1/ MAT157Y1 and a full course in PHL/CSC/MAT

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PHL351H1 - Philosophy of Language

Hours: 36L

The nature of language as a system of human communication, theories of meaning and meaningfulness, the relation of language to the world and to the human mind.

Prerequisite: PHL245H1/ MAT157Y1 and one of PHL232H1/ PHL233H1/ PHL240H1, 7.5 courses (in any field) with at least 1.5 in philosophy

Exclusion: PHLC80H3, PHL350H5

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PHL355H1 - Philosophy of Natural Science

Hours: 36L

The structure and methods of science: explanation, methodology, realism and instrumentalism.

Prerequisite: 7.5 courses (in any field) with at least 1.5 in philosophy

Exclusion: PHL355H5

Recommended Preparation: A solid background in science or HPS250H1/ PHL246H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PHL356H1 - Philosophy of Physics

Hours: 36L

Introduction to philosophical issues which arise in modern physics, especially in Relativity and Quantum Mechanics. Topics include: the nature of spacetime, conventionality in geometry, determinism, and the relation between observation and existence.

Prerequisite: One full course in MAT/PHY; two full courses are recommended.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PHL357H1 - Philosophy of Biology

Hours: 36L

Philosophical issues in the foundations of biology, e.g., the nature of life, evolutionary theory; controversies about natural selection; competing mechanisms, units of selection; the place of teleology in biology; biological puzzles about sex and sexual reproduction; the problem of species; genetics and reductionism; sociobiology; natural and artificial life.

Prerequisite: 7.5 courses (in any field) with at least 1.5 in philosophy. Students with a background in Biology are exempt from the prerequisite of 1.5 courses in Philosophy

Exclusion: PHL357H5

Recommended Preparation: HPS250H1/ PHL246H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PHL362H1 - Philosophy of History

Hours: 36L

Typical questions include: Has history any meaning? Can there be general theories of history? How are the findings of historians related to the theories of metaphysics and of science? Is history deterministic? Must the historian make value judgements? Is history science or an art? Are there historical forces or spirits of an epoch?

Prerequisite: 7.5 courses (in any field) with at least 1.5 in philosophy

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PHL365H1 - Political Philosophy

Hours: 36L

A study of some of the central problems of political philosophy, addressed by historical and contemporary political theorists.

Prerequisite: PHL265H1/ POL200Y1, 7.5 courses (in any field) with at least 1.5 in philosophy

Exclusion: PHLC92H3

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PHL366H1 - Topics in Political Philosophy

Hours: 39L

A focused examination of a selected issue in political philosophy.

Prerequisite: PHL265H1/ POL200Y1, 7.5 courses (in any field) with at least 1.5 in philosophy

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PHL367H1 - Philosophy of Feminism

Previous Course Number: PHL267H1

Hours: 36L

Prerequisite: PHL265H1/ PHL268H1, 7.5 courses (in any field) with at least 1.5 in philosophy

Exclusion: PHL267H1, PHLC13H3, PHL367H5

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PHL370H1 - Issues in Philosophy of Law

Hours: 36L

Major issues in philosophy of law, such as legal positivism and its critics, law and liberalism, feminist critiques of law, punishment and responsibility.

Prerequisite: PHL271H1, 7.5 courses (in any field) with at least 1.5 in philosophy

Exclusion: PHL370H5

Recommended Preparation: PHL265H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PHL373H1 - Issues in Environmental Ethics

Hours: 36L

An intermediate-level examination of key issues in environmental philosophy, such as the ethics of animal welfare, duties to future generations, deep ecology, ecofeminism, sustainable development and international justice.

Prerequisite: PHL273H1, 7.5 courses (in any field) with at least 1.5 in philosophy

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PHL375H1 - Ethics

Hours: 36L

An intermediate-level study of selected issues in moral philosophy, or of influential contemporary or historical works in ethical theory.

Prerequisite: PHL275H1, 7.5 courses (in any field) with at least 1.5 in philosophy

Exclusion: PHLC05H3

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PHL376H1 - Topics in Moral Philosophy

Hours: 36L

A focused examination of a selected issue in moral philosophy.

Prerequisite: PHL275H1, 7.5 courses (in any field) with at least 1.5 in philosophy

Exclusion: PHLC06H3

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PHL378H1 - War and Morality

Hours: 36L

Moral and political issues concerning warfare: the theory of the just war, pacifism, moral constraints on the conduct of war, war as an instrument of foreign policy, the strategy of deterrence. Special attention to the implications of nuclear weapons.

Prerequisite: PHL265H1/ PHL275H1, 7.5 courses (in any field) with at least 1.5 in philosophy

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PHL380H1 - Global Bioethics

Hours: 36L

An intermediate-level study of moral problems that arise in international contexts, including issues of special interest in bioethics: moral universalism and relativism; global distributive justice; poverty relief and international aid; international health disparities; globalization and health; HIV/AIDS; intellectual property and access to essential medicines; clinical trials in developing countries; exploitation and the 10/90 gap.

Prerequisite: PHL281H1, 7.5 courses (in any field) with at least 1.5 in philosophy

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PHL381H1 - Ethics and Medical Research

Hours: 36L

An intermediate-level study of problems in biomedical and behavioural research with human subjects: informed voluntary consent, risk and benefit, experimental therapy, randomized clinical trials, research codes and legal issues, dependent groups (human embryos, children, the aged, hospital patients, the dying, prisoners, the mentally ill).

Prerequisite: PHL281H1, 7.5 courses (in any field) with at least 1.5 in philosophy

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PHL382H1 - Ethics: Death and Dying

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

PHL408H1 - Seminar in Philosophy

Hours: 36S

Topics vary but bridge two or more areas or traditions of philosophy.

Prerequisite: 4.0 credits in philosophy

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

PHL409H1 - New Books Seminar

Hours: 36S

Advanced study of key philosophical works published within the last five years.

Prerequisite: 4.0 credits in philosophy

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

PHL410H1 - Seminar in Continental Philosophy

Hours: 36S

Advanced study of recent philosophical discussions within the continental tradition.

Prerequisite: PHL217H1/ PHL315H1/ PHL316H1/ PHL319H1/ PHL320H1/ PHL321H1/ PHL322H1, 4.0 credits in philosophy

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

PHL411H1 - Seminar in Analytic Philosophy

Hours: 36S

Advanced study of some topic of current philosophical interest within the analytic tradition.

Prerequisite: PHL245H1/ MAT157Y1 and one of PHL232H1/ PHL233H1/ PHL240H1, 4.0 credits in philosophy

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

PHL412H1 - Seminar in Political Philosophy

Hours: 36S

Advanced study of some topic in social or political philosophy.

Prerequisite: PHL265H1/ PHL271H1, 4.0 credits in philosophy

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

PHL413H1 - Seminar in Applied Ethics

Hours: 36S

Advanced study of some topic in an area of applied ethics, including bioethics, environmental ethics, and so on.

Prerequisite: PHL271H1/ PHL273H1/ PHL275H1/

PHL281H1, 4.0 credits in philosophy

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

PHL414H1 - Seminar in Philosophy of Religion

Hours: 36S

Advanced study of topics in the philosophy of religion.

Prerequisite: PHL235H1/ PHL335H1, 4.0 credits in philosophy

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

PHL415H1 - Seminar in Philosophy of Science

Hours: 36S

Advanced study of some area or problem in the philosophy of science.

Prerequisite: One of PHL355H1 PHL357H1 or HPS250H1, 4.0 credits in philosophy

Introduction

Physics forms the bedrock of our understanding of Nature. Any physical object or process, or even the structure of the whole universe itself, can be the subject of physics. Physicists study an extremely diverse array of systems, from the simplest subatomic particles to the most complex processes found in biological cells or in the Earth's climate. Physics provides a comprehensive set of fundamental tools that can be brought to bear on many problems across a wide variety of fields.

Students can choose between Specialist Programs in Physics or Physics combined with numerous other sciences, as well as Philosophy. In addition, the Physics Major and Minor programs give the student the option of mixing Physics with the nearly limitless array of science and non-science programs available across the University. As well, students have the opportunity to do original research and to undertake independent supervised studies for course credit.

A program in physics has much to offer. Beyond the traditional careers of teaching and research, a knowledge of physics is a powerful asset in professions like Medicine or Law, or for careers involving the environmental, geological or biological sciences. An understanding of physics is essential for those who are concerned about how society is affected by climate change or advanced technology. The conceptual problem-solving tools one acquires as a physicist can be applied with great success to many occupations.

The Physics Specialist Program offers intensive training in all aspects of physics. Courses can be selected in order to emphasize the experimental, theoretical or applied sides of physics. In fourth year, students intending to undertake graduate studies are encouraged to take advanced optional courses. These courses, which reflect the excellence and research diversity of the faculty, are offered in areas such as Relativity, High Energy Physics, Quantum Optics, Condensed Matter, Geophysics and Atmospheric Physics.

The Specialist Program in Biological Physics combines the analytical problem solving skills of the physicist with sound backgrounds in relevant biology and biochemistry. The interface between biology and physics lies at the forefront of the rapidly growing field of quantitative biology.

The Professional Experience Year program ("PEY": see also <http://www.engineeringcareers.utoronto.ca/programs/pey.htm>) is available to eligible, full-time Arts & Science Specialist students after their second year of study. Physics students are encouraged to take advantage of this opportunity to apply their scientific and mathematical skills in a 12-16 month professional internship.

The Departmental website gives detailed information on programs and courses, and describes the operation of the Department and the counseling services available. All students, most particularly those entering first year, are strongly urged to consult the web site before term begins.

Physics Programs

Biological Physics Specialist (Science Program) - ASSPE1420

Description:

The Biological Physics specialist program focuses on the physical principles that organize complex biological phenomena. How do cells use chemical energy to generate motion? How does diffusion limit the ability of cells to measure the concentration of chemicals? How do neurons transmit and process information? How does blood flow through a beating heart? Biological Physics deals with problems at the interface of Physics, Molecular Biology, and Physiology, and covers the full range of scales, from the molecular, to the organismic. Students in this program will be trained to think rigorously and quantitatively about a wide range of interdisciplinary problems, will be well prepared to work in a variety of fields such as medicine and biotechnology, and will be ready to undertake graduate work in the fast-emerging field of Biological Physics and its related specialties including Immunology, Physiology, Neuroscience, and Bioengineering..

The program is offered as a partnership between the Departments of Physics, Biochemistry, Chemistry, and Physiology (referred to as "partner departments"). All students take the Core courses in Physics, Mathematics, Biology, Biochemistry, and Chemistry. The Core also includes a specialized course in Biological Physics (PHY331H1) and a third-year laboratory course from one of the partner departments. Students then choose one of four Streams (below) consisting of additional courses from the partner departments.

Biological Physics Specialist: Advanced Physics Stream (Science Program) - ASSPE2739

Completion Requirements:

Core Biological Physics Courses (11.5 FCE)

First Year (3.0 FCE): (CHM138H1/ CHM136H1, CHM139H1/ CHM135H1/ CHM151Y1, (MAT135H1, MAT136H1/ MAT137Y1, PHY131H1/ PHY151H1, PHY132H1/ PHY152H1 (PHY151H1, PHY152H1 recommended)

First or Second Year (1.0 FCE): BIO130H1, MAT223H1

Second Year (3.0 FCE): BCH210H1, (MAT235Y1/ MAT237Y1), MAT244H1, PHY250H1, PHY252H1

Second or Third Year (0.5 FCE): BIO230H1/ BIO255H1

Third Year (2.0 FCE): PHY224H1, PHY254H1, PHY256H1, PHY354H1

Third or Fourth Year (2.0 FCE):

1. PHY331H1
2. PHY324H1/ BCH370H1/ CHM327H1/ PSL372H1
3. 1.0 FCE, including at least 0.5 FCE at the 400 level, from APM346H1/ MAT334H1/ MAT354H1/PHY-300 level courses/PHY-400 level courses.

Additional Requirements for the Advanced Physics Stream (2.5 FCE):

1. (BCH311H1, BCH340H1/ PSL300H1, PSL301H1)
2. PHY431H1 and 1.0 FCE from additional courses from APM346H1/ MAT334H1/ MAT354H1/PHY300-level courses /PHY 400-level courses/ JPE395H1/ JPE493H1

Integrative, Inquiry-Based Activity Requirement

The choices in the program must satisfy the requirement for an integrative, inquiry-based activity by including at least one of the following courses: IMM435H1, PHY371Y1, PHY372H1, PHY396Y0, PHY397Y0, PHY398H0, PHY399Y0, PHY407H1, PHY424H1, PHY426H1, PHY428H1, PHY429H1, PHY471Y1, PHY472H1, PHY478H1, PHY479Y1, PSL304H1, PSL305H1, and PSL372H1

Notes:

Students are encouraged but not required to enroll in the independent project courses PHY478H1/ PHY479Y1. These students may be supervised by faculty in the Departments of Physics, Biochemistry, Chemistry, Immunology, and Physiology. Students are required to have a B average in the program courses, identify a supervisor, and consult the Associate Chair of Physics (Undergraduate Studies) before enrolling in PHY478H1/ PHY479Y1.

Students might wish to enroll in 300- and 400-level courses in the partner life science departments that are not listed above. These students will need approval to take these courses from the Associate Chair (Undergraduate Studies) prior to enrollment in the course.

On approval of the Department of Physics, students who enroll in CHM222H1/ CHM225Y1 will not have to take PHY252H1. PHY 252H1 is required for the Life Science and Advanced Physics Stream.

Biological Physics Specialist: Biochemistry Stream (Science Program) - ASSPE2737

Completion Requirements:

Core Biological Physics Courses (11.5 FCE):

First Year (3.0 FCE): (CHM138H1/ CHM136H1, CHM139H1/ CHM135H1/ CHM151Y1, (MAT135H1, MAT136H1/ MAT137Y1, PHY131H1/ PHY151H1, PHY132H1/ PHY152H1 (PHY151H1, PHY152H1 recommended)

First or Second Year (1.0 FCE): BIO130H1, MAT223H1

Second Year (3.0 FCE): BCH210H1, (MAT235Y1/ MAT237Y1), MAT244H1, PHY250H1, PHY252H1

Second or Third Year (0.5FCE): BIO230H1/ BIO255H1

Third Year (2.0 FCE): PHY224H1, PHY254H1, PHY256H1, PHY354H1

Third or Fourth Year (2.0 FCE):

1. PHY331H1
2. PHY324H1/ BCH370H1/ CHM327H1/ PSL372H1
3. 1.0 FCE, including at least 0.5 FCE at the 400 level, from APM346H1/ MAT334H1/ MAT354H1/PHY-300 level courses/PHY-400 level courses.

Additional Courses for the Biochemistry Stream (2.5 FCE):

1. BCH311H1, BCH340H1
2. 1.5 FCE from BCH370H1/BCH400-level BCH courses. Excludes BCH472Y1, BCH473Y1, BCH478H1, BCH479H1

Integrative, Inquiry-Based Activity Requirement

The choices in the program must satisfy the requirement for an integrative, inquiry-based activity by including at least one of the following courses: IMM435H1, PHY371Y1, PHY372H1, PHY396Y0, PHY397Y0, PHY398H0, PHY399Y0, PHY407H1, PHY424H1, PHY426H1, PHY428H1, PHY429H1, PHY471Y1, PHY472H1, PHY478H1, PHY479Y1, PSL304H1, PSL305H1, and PSL372H1

Notes:

Students are encouraged but not required to enroll in the independent project courses PHY478H1/ PHY479Y1. These students may be supervised by faculty in the Departments of Physics, Biochemistry, Chemistry, Immunology, and Physiology. Students are required to have a B average in the program courses, identify a supervisor, and consult the Associate Chair of Physics (Undergraduate Studies) before enrolling in PHY478H1/ PHY479Y1.

Students might wish to enroll in 300- and 400-level courses in the partner life science departments that are not listed above. These students will need approval to take these courses from the Associate Chair (Undergraduate Studies) prior to enrollment in the course.

On approval of the Department of Physics, students who enroll in CHM222H1/ CHM225Y1 will not have to take PHY252H1. PHY 252H1 is required for the Life Science and Advanced Physics Stream.

Biological Physics Specialist: Immunology Stream (Science Program) - ASSPE2740

Completion Requirements:

Core Biological Physics Courses (11.5 FCE)

First Year (3.0 FCE): ( CHM138H1/ CHM136H1, CHM139H1/ CHM135H1) / CHM151Y1, ( MAT135H1, MAT136H1) / MAT137Y1, PHY131H1/ PHY151H1, PHY132H1/ PHY152H1 ( PHY151H1, PHY152H1 recommended)

First or Second Year (1.0 FCE): BIO130H1, MAT223H1

Second Year (3.0 FCE): BCH210H1, ( MAT235Y1/ MAT237Y1), MAT244H1, PHY250H1, PHY252H1

Second or Third Year (0.5FCE): BIO230H1/ BIO255H1

Third Year (2.0 FCE): PHY224H1, PHY254H1, PHY256H1, PHY354H1

Third or Fourth Year (2.0 FCE):

1. PHY331H1
2. PHY324H1/ BCH370H1/ CHM327H1/ PSL372H1
3. 1.0 FCE, including at least 0.5 FCE at the 400 level, from APM346H1/ MAT334H1/ MAT354H1/PHY-300 level courses/PHY-400 level courses.

Additional Courses for the Immunology Stream (2.5 FCE):

1. BIO230H1, IMM341H1, IMM351H1 (Students in the Biological Physics Specialist Immunology Stream are permitted to take BIO230H1 as a co-requisite to IMM341H1, instead of as a prerequisite, by permission of the Department of Immunology)
2. 1.0 FCE from IMM400-level courses.

Integrative, Inquiry-Based Activity Requirement

The choices in the program must satisfy the requirement for an integrative, inquiry-based activity by including at least one of the following courses: IMM435H1, PHY371Y1, PHY372H1, PHY396Y0, PHY397Y0, PHY398H0, PHY399Y0, PHY407H1, PHY424H1, PHY426H1, PHY428H1, PHY429H1, PHY471Y1, PHY472H1, PHY478H1, PHY479Y1, PSL304H1, PSL305H1, and PSL372H1

Notes:

Students are encouraged but not required to enroll in the independent project courses PHY478H1/ PHY479Y1. These students may be supervised by faculty in the Departments of Physics, Biochemistry, Chemistry, Immunology, and Physiology. Students are required to have a B average in the program courses, identify a supervisor, and consult the Associate Chair of Physics (Undergraduate Studies) before enrolling in PHY478H1/PHY479Y1.

On approval of the Department of Physics, students who enroll in CHM222H1/CHM225Y1 will not have to take PHY252H1. PHY 252H1 is required for the Life Science and Advanced Physics Stream.

Biological Physics Specialist: Physiology Stream (Science Program) - ASSPE2738

Completion Requirements:

Core Biological Physics Courses (11.5 FCE):

First Year (3.0 FCE): ( CHM138H1/CHM136H1, CHM139H1/CHM135H1)/ CHM151Y1, ( MAT135H1, MAT136H1)/ MAT137Y1, PHY131H1/PHY151H1, PHY132H1/PHY152H1 ( PHY151H1, PHY152H1 recommended)

First or Second Year (1.0 FCE): BIO130H1, MAT223H1

Second Year (3.0 FCE): BCH210H1, ( MAT235Y1/ MAT237Y1), MAT244H1, PHY250H1, PHY252H1

Second or Third Year (0.5FCE): BIO230H1/ BIO255H1

Third Year (2.0 FCE): PHY224H1, PHY254H1, PHY256H1, PHY354H1

Third or Fourth Year (2.0 FCE):

1. PHY331H1
2. PHY324H1/ BCH370H1/ CHM327H1/ PSL372H1
3. 1.0 FCE, including at least 0.5 FCE at the 400 level, from APM346H1/ MAT334H1/ MAT354H1/PHY-300 level courses/PHY-400 level courses.

Additional Courses for the Physiology Stream (2.5 FCE):

1. PSL300H1, PSL301H1
2. 1.5 FCE, including at least 0.5 FCE at the 400 level, from PSL304H1/ PSL305H1/ PSL372H1/PSL400-level courses

Integrative, Inquiry-Based Activity Requirement

The choices in the program must satisfy the requirement for an integrative, inquiry-based activity by including at least one of the following courses: IMM435H1, PHY371Y1, PHY372H1, PHY396Y0, PHY397Y0, PHY398H0, PHY399Y0, PHY407H1, PHY424H1, PHY426H1, PHY428H1, PHY429H1, PHY471Y1, PHY472H1, PHY478H1, PHY479Y1, PSL304H1, PSL305H1, and PSL372H1

Notes:

Students are encouraged but not required to enroll in the independent project courses PHY478H1/ PHY479Y1. These students may be supervised by faculty in the Departments of Physics, Biochemistry, Chemistry, Immunology, and Physiology. ## Physics and Philosophy Specialist (Science Program) - ASSPE2584

Completion Requirements:

Physics has deep historical roots in natural philosophy and many aspects of contemporary Physics raise profound philosophical questions about the nature of reality. The interdisciplinary Physics and Philosophy Program allows the student to engage with both Physics and Philosophy at their deepest levels, and to more fully explore the connections between them.

Consult Associate Chair (Undergraduate Studies), Department of Physics or Philosophy.

(16.0 full courses or their equivalent, including at least 2.0 full courses at the 400 level)

First Year: (3.5 FCE)

( MAT135H1, MAT136H1/ MAT137Y1/ MAT157Y1,
MAT223H1/ MAT240H1, PHY131H1/ PHY151H1,
PHY132H1/ PHY152H1, PHL100Y1/ PHL101Y1

(The courses MAT137Y1, MAT223H1, PHY151H1,
PHY152H1 are recommended.)

Second Year: (3.5 FCE)

MAT237Y1/ MAT257Y1/ MAT235Y1, MAT244H1/
MAT267H1, PHY250H1, PHY254H1, PHY256H1,

Third Year: (2.5 FCE)

MAT334H1/ MAT354H1, PHY252H1, PHY354H1,
PHY350H1, PHY356H1

Fourth Year: (1.5 FCE)

PHY456H1, ( PHY483H1/ PHY452H1), PHY491H1

Any Year: (5.0 FCE)

PHL245H1, ( PHL345H1/ PHL347H1/ PHL348H1/
PHL349H1), PHL355H1, PHL356H1, ( PHL415H1/
PHL482H1), plus 2.5 FCE additional PHL courses, including at least 0.5 at the 300+ level

Physics Specialist (Science Program) - ASSPE1944

Completion Requirements:

The Physics Specialist Program offers rigorous training in the full spectrum of core physics subfields, as well as their numerous important applications. Practical courses treat the experimental and computational aspects and complement the lecture courses. Physics concerns many of the most fundamental questions in our scientific understanding of the universe. What is the nature of matter and energy at the smallest scales? What are the physical processes that govern the Earth's climate? What is the nature of light and how can it be controlled? How do the collective properties of solids emerge from those of individual atoms? How do biological processes organize themselves to maintain their survival? What is the structure and evolution of the Earth and the other planets? How can quantum information be used for computation? Physics seeks answers to these questions using a combination of theory, computation and precise experimental work, and the results find application across all of science.

Consult the Associate Chair (Undergraduate Studies),
Department of Physics.

(13.5 FCE, including at least one full course at the 400 level)

First Year: (2.5 FCE)

( MAT135H1, MAT136H1/ MAT137Y1/ MAT157Y1,
MAT223H1/ MAT240H1, PHY131H1/ PHY151H1,
PHY132H1/ PHY152H1

(The courses MAT137Y1, MAT223H1, PHY151H1,
PHY152H1 are recommended.)

Second Year: (4.0 FCE)

MAT237Y1/ MAT257Y1/ MAT235Y1, MAT244H1/
MAT267H1, PHY224H1, PHY250H1, PHY252H1,
PHY254H1, PHY256H1

(The courses MAT237Y1, MAT244H1 are recommended.)

Second or Third Year: (0.5 FCE)

PHY324H1

Third Year: (3.0 FCE)

1. APM346H1, MAT334H1/ MAT354H1, PHY350H1,
PHY354H1, PHY356H1

2. Additional 0.5 FCE from PHY-300 level courses/PHY-
400 level courses/ JPE395H1/ JPE493H1, excluding
JPH311H1,

JPH441H1

Third or Fourth Year: (3.5 FCE)

1. PHY424H1

2. 1.0 FCE from PHY450H1, PHY452H1, PHY454H1,
PHY456H1, PHY460H1

3. PHY405H1/ PHY407H1/ PHY408H1/ PHY426H1/
PHY478H1. See Note 2.

4. 1.0 FCE, including at least 0.5 FCE at the PHY-400
level, from PHY-300 level courses/PHY-400 level courses/
JPE395H1/ JPE493H1, excluding JPH311H1, JPH441H1

5. Ethics and Social Responsibility Requirement: The Physics course JPH441H1 meets this requirement as well as any of the following courses: ETH201H1/ ETH210H1/
ETH220H1/ HPS200H1/ PHL265H1/ PHL273H1/
PHL275H1/ PHL281H1/ IMC200H1/ VIC172Y1/
ENV333H1. See Note 3.

Notes:

1. Students are encouraged but not required to enrol in the independent study and project courses such as PHY371Y1, PHY478H1, etc.
2. PHY479Y1 (Undergraduate Research Project) satisfies Requirement 3 in Third or Fourth Year and counts as 0.5 FCE at the PHY-400 level for Requirement 4 in Third or Fourth Year. Students may use MAT351Y1 instead of APM346H1 for Requirement 1 in Third Year.
3. Requirement 5 in Third or Fourth Year represents 0.5 FCE with a significant emphasis on "Ethics and Social Responsibility". Students may use the CR/NCR option towards any of the courses listed in Requirement 5. Another Arts & Science course with a significant emphasis on "Ethics and Social Responsibility" may be substituted subject to approval from the Associate Chair (Undergraduate Studies).
4. The requirement for an integrative, inquiry-based activity is satisfied by the required course PHY424H1.

Physics Major (Science Program) - ASMAJ1944

Completion Requirements:

(8.0 FCE including at least 2.0 FCE at the 300+ level, with at least 0.5 FCE at the 400 level)

A Physics Major program is appropriate for students interested in a more flexible and diverse undergraduate physics program. A Physics Major may be tailored to be a natural counterpart to a second Major in mathematics, astronomy, computer science, environmental science, geology or the life sciences. Students should consult the Associate Chairs (Undergraduate Studies) of Physics and the respective departments for advice on course selections.

First Year: (2.0 FCE)

(MAT135H1, MAT136H1)/ MAT137Y1/ MAT157Y1, PHY131H1/ PHY151H1, PHY132H1/ PHY152H1

Second Year: (3.0 FCE)

1. MAT235Y1/ MAT237Y1/ MAT257Y1, MAT223H1/ MAT240H1, PHY224H1

2. 1.0 FCE from PHY231H1, PHY331H1, PHY250H1, PHY252H1, PHY254H1, PHY256H1

Third Year: (2.5 FCE)

1. MAT244H1/ MAT267H1, PHY324H1/ PHY405H1/ PHY407H1/ PHY408H1

2. 1.5 FCE, including at least 0.5 FCE at the PHY400 level, from APM346H1/ MAT334H1/ MAT354H1; PHY-300 level courses/PHY-400 level courses/ JPE395H1/ JPE493H1, excluding JPH311H1, JPH441H1

Third or Fourth Year: (0.5 FCE)

1. Ethics and Social Responsibility Requirement: The Physics course JPH441H1 meets this requirement as well as any of the following courses: ETH201H1/ ETH210H1/ ETH220H1/ HPS200H1/ PHL265H1/ PHL273H1/ PHL275H1/ PHL281H1/ IMC200H1/ VIC172Y1/ ENV333H1. See Note 2.

Notes:

1. Students in the Physics Major program who are intending to pursue graduate studies in Physics should consult with the Associate Chair (Undergraduate Studies).

2. Requirement 1 in Third or Fourth Year represents 0.5 FCE with a significant emphasis on "Ethics and Social Responsibility". Students may use the CR/NCR option towards any of the courses listed in Requirement 1. Another Arts & Science course with a significant emphasis on "Ethics and Social Responsibility" may be substituted subject to approval from the Associate Chair (Undergraduate Studies).

Physics Minor (Science Program) - ASMIN1944

Completion Requirements:

(4.0 FCE)

First Year: (1.0 FCE)

PHY131H1/ PHY151H1, PHY132H1/ PHY152H1

Second Year: (2.0 FCE)

1. PHY224H1

2. 1.5 FCE from PHY231H1, PHY250H1, PHY252H1, PHY254H1, PHY256H1

Third Year: (1.0 FCE)

1. PHY324H1/ PHY405H1/ PHY407H1/ PHY408H1

Physics Courses

Regarding Physics Courses

Note

More detailed and current information on courses is available through the Physics Department website. Many course numbers have changed in recent years: check the course descriptions and exclusions below for course equivalencies. Pre- and co-requisites are strictly enforced and may only be waived in special circumstances. Students should consult the Physics Associate Chair (Undergraduate Studies) with questions about pre- and co-requisites prior to the beginning of term if they are requesting a waiver. Students without the required pre- and co-requisites will be removed from courses.

First Year Seminars

The 199Y1 and 199H1 seminars are designed to provide the opportunity to work closely with an instructor in a class of no more than twenty-four students. These interactive seminars are intended to stimulate the students' curiosity and provide an opportunity to get to know a member of the professorial staff in a seminar environment during the first year of study. Details can be found at www.artsci.utoronto.ca/current/course/fyh-1/.

PHY100H1 - The Magic of Physics

Hours: 24L/12T

This course provides a survey of Physics, including both Classical and Modern Physics. It is designed for non-scientists, and assumes no background in either science or mathematics. The approach to the course is broad rather than deep. We will concentrate on the concepts underlying such fascinating topics as planetary motion, chaos, the nature of light, time travel, black holes, matter waves, Schrodinger's cat, quarks, and climate change. We will uncover the wonders of the classical and the quantum worlds courtesy of Galileo, Newton, Maxwell, Einstein, Heisenberg and many others.

(PHY100H1 is primarily intended as a Breadth Requirement course for students in the Humanities and Social Science)

Exclusion: PHY131H1/ PHY132H1/ PHY151H1/ PHY152H1 taken previously or concurrently

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

PHY101H1 - Emergence in Nature

Hours: 24L/12T

The universe is not a rigid clockwork, but neither is it formless and random. Instead, it is filled with highly organized, evolved structures that have somehow emerged from simple rules of physics. Examples range from the structure of galaxies to the pattern of ripples on windblown sand, to biological and even social processes. These phenomena exist in spite of the universal tendency towards disorder. How is this possible? Self-organization challenges the usual reductionistic scientific method, and begs the question of whether we can ever really understand or predict truly complex systems.

PHY101H1 is primarily intended as a Breadth Requirement course for students in the Humanities and Social Sciences.

Exclusion: PHY131H1/ PHY132H1/ PHY151H1/ PHY152H1 taken previously or concurrently

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

PHY131H1 - Introduction to Physics I

Hours: 36L/20P

A first university physics course primarily for students not intending to pursue a Specialist or Major program in Physical or Mathematical Sciences. Topics include: classical kinematics & dynamics, momentum, energy, force, friction, work, power, angular momentum, oscillations, waves, sound.

Corequisite: MAT135H1/ MAT137Y1/ MAT157Y1 recommended, but may be required prerequisite in 2nd year Physics courses

Exclusion: PHY151H1

Recommended Preparation: MCV4U Calculus & Vectors / MHF4U Functions & Calculus, SPH4U Physics

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

PHY132H1 - Introduction to Physics II

Hours: 36L/20P

The second university physics course primarily for students not intending to pursue a Specialist or Major program in Physical or Mathematical Sciences. Topics include: electricity, magnetism, light, optics, special relativity.

Prerequisite: PHY131H1/ PHY151H1

Corequisite: MAT136H1/ MAT137Y1/ MAT157Y1 recommended, but may be required prerequisite in 2nd year Physics courses

Exclusion: PHY152H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

PHY151H1 - Foundations of Physics I

Hours: 36L/30P

The first physics course in many of the Specialist and Major Programs in Physical Sciences. It provides an introduction to the concepts, approaches and tools the physicist uses to describe the physical world while laying the foundation for classical and modern mechanics. Topics include: mathematics of physics, energy, momentum, conservation laws, kinematics, dynamics, and special relativity.

Prerequisite: MCV4U Calculus & Vectors / MCB4U Functions & Calculus; SPH4U Physics

Corequisite: MAT137Y1/ MAT157Y1

Exclusion: PHY131H1/ PHY110Y1/ PHY138Y1/ PHY140Y1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

PHY152H1 - Foundations of Physics II

Hours: 36L/30P

The concept of fields will be introduced and discussed in the context of gravity and electricity. Topics include rotational motion, oscillations, waves, electricity and magnetism.

Prerequisite: PHY131H1/ PHY151H1/ PHY180H1

Corequisite: MAT137Y1/ MAT157Y1

Exclusion: PHY132H1/ PHY110Y1/ PHY138Y1/ PHY140Y1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

PHY201H1 - Concepts of Physics

Hours: 24L/12T

A conceptual overview of some the most interesting advances in physics and the intellectual background in which they occurred. The interrelationship of the actual practice of physics and its cultural and intellectual context is emphasized.

PHY201H1 is primarily intended as a Breadth Requirement course for students in the Humanities and Social Sciences

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

PHY202H1 - The Physics of Science Fiction and Gaming

Hours: 24L/12T

The physics of time travel, teleportation, levitation, invisibility, special effects, and other physics related topics found in literature, film, and gaming. The course will analyze the realism of physical phenomena in these media, and consider the impact of these concepts on science and society.

PHY202H1 is primarily intended as a Breadth Requirement course for students in the Humanities and Social Sciences.

Exclusion: PHY131H1/ PHY132H1/ PHY151H1/ PHY152H1 taken previously or concurrently.

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

PHY205H1 - The Physics of Everyday Life

Hours: 24L/12T

An introduction to the physics of everyday life. This conceptual course looks at everyday objects to learn about the basis for our modern technological world. Topics may include anything from automobiles to weather.

PHY205H1 is primarily intended as a Breadth Requirement course for students in the Humanities and Social Sciences.

Exclusion: PHY131H1/ PHY132H1/ PHY151H1/ PHY152H1 or equivalent, taken previously or concurrently

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

PHY207H1 - The Physics of Music

Hours: 24L/12T/0P

An online course intended to provide non-science students with a basic understanding of the science behind sound and music. Topics include oscillations, waves, human hearing and perception of music, musical scales, musical instruments, recording and storing sound digitally, producing sound and broadcasting. Lectures will be delivered via the web and mandatory tutorials will require live webinar participation. The final exam will require attendance on the St. George campus.

Exclusion: PHY131H1/ PHY132H1/ PHY151H1/

PHY152H1 or equivalent, taken previously or concurrently

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

IVP210H1 - Holography for 3D Visualization

Hours: 24L/36P

An introduction to the theory and practice of holography. Human perception & 3D visualization; fundamentals of 3D modeling; ray and wave optics; interference, diffraction, coherence; transmission and reflection holograms; colour perception; stereograms. Applications of holography in art, medicine, and technology. Computer simulation, design, and construction of holograms. In this course an additional fee of up to $50 may be charged for activities outside of the classroom (e.g., field trips). Such fees will be confirmed in the course syllabus.

Exclusion: JOP210H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

PHY224H1 - Practical Physics I

Hours: 72P

Develops the core practical experimental and computational skills necessary to do physics. Students tackle simple physics questions involving mathematical models, computational simulations and solutions, experimental measurements, data and uncertainty analysis.

Prerequisite: PHY132H1/ PHY152H1, ( MAT135H1, MAT136H1)/ MAT137Y1/ MAT157Y1

Corequisite: PHY231H1/ PHY250H1/ PHY252H1/ PHY254H1/ PHY256H1/ ENV235H1

Exclusion: PHY225H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

PHY231H1 - Physics of Living Systems

Hours: 24L/18P

An introductory course for students interested in understanding the physical phenomena occurring in biological systems and the applications of physics in life sciences. Topics may include physical processes inside living cells and systems, medical physics and imaging.

Prerequisite: PHY132H1/ PHY152H1,( MAT135H1, MAT136H1)/ MAT137Y1/ MAT157Y1

Exclusion: PHY238YH1

Recommended Preparation: BIO130H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

PHY250H1 - Electricity and Magnetism

Hours: 24L/12T

An introductory course in Electromagnetism. Topics include: Point charges, Coulomb's law, electrostatic field and potential, Gauss's Law, conductors, electrostatic energy, magnetostatics, Ampere's Law, Biot-Savart Law, the Lorentz Force Law, Faraday's Law, Maxwell's equations in free space.

Prerequisite: PHY132H1/ PHY152H1, ( MAT135H1, MAT136H1)/ MAT137Y1/ MAT157Y1

Corequisite: MAT235Y1/ MAT237Y1/ MAT257Y1

Exclusion: PHY238Y1, PHY251H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

PHY252H1 - Thermal Physics

Hours: 24L/12T

The quantum statistical basis of macroscopic systems; definition of entropy in terms of the number of accessible states of a many particle system leading to simple expressions for absolute temperature, the canonical distribution, and the laws of thermodynamics. Specific effects of quantum statistics at high densities and low temperatures.

Prerequisite: PHY132H1/ PHY152H1, ( MAT135H1, MAT136H1)/ MAT137Y1/ MAT157Y1

Corequisite: MAT235Y1/ MAT237Y1/ MAT257Y1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

PHY254H1 - Classical Mechanics

Hours: 24L/12T

The course analyzes the linear, nonlinear and chaotic behaviour of classical mechanical systems such as harmonic oscillators, rotating bodies, and central field systems. The course will develop the analytical and numerical tools to solve such systems and determine their basic properties. The course will include mathematical analysis, numerical exercises using Python, and participatory demonstrations of mechanical systems.

Prerequisite: PHY132H1/ PHY152H1 ( PHY152H1 recommended), ( MAT135H1, MAT136H1)/ MAT137Y1/ MAT157Y1

Corequisite: MAT235Y1/ MAT237Y1/ MAT257Y1

Exclusion: PHY255H1

Recommended Preparation: MAT244H1/ MAT267H1, PHY224H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

PHY256H1 - Introduction to Quantum Physics

Hours: 24L/12T

Failures of classical physics; the Quantum revolution; Stern-Gerlach effect; harmonic oscillator; uncertainty principle; interference packets; scattering and tunneling in one-dimension.

Prerequisite: PHY132H1/ PHY152H1, ( MAT135H1, MAT136H1)/ MAT137Y1/ MAT157Y1

Corequisite: MAT235Y1/ MAT237Y1/ MAT257Y1, ( MAT223H1/ MAT240H1 recommended)

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

PHY289H1 - Physics at the Cutting Edge

Previous Course Number: PHY189H1

Hours: 36L

A limited enrollment seminar course for First Year Science students interested in current research in Physics.

Students interested in taking this course must fill out the online application (see department website) and submit it by the November 15 just before the course starts.

Students will meet active researchers studying the universe from the centre of the earth to the edge of the cosmos. Topics may range from string theory to experimental biological physics, from climate change to quantum computing, from superconductivity to earthquakes. The course may involve both individual and group work, essays and oral presentations.

Prerequisite: PHY131H1/ PHY151H1

Corequisite: PHY132H1/ PHY152H1

Exclusion: PHY189H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

PHY299Y1 - Research Opportunity Program

Hours: TBA

Credit course for supervised participation in faculty research project. Details at <http://www.artsci.utoronto.ca/current/course/rop>. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Distribution Requirements: Science

JPH311H1 - History of Physics

Hours: 24L

Topics in the history of physics from antiquity to the 20th century, including Aristotelian physics, Galileo, Descartes, electromagnetism, thermodynamics, statistical mechanics, relativity, quantum physics, and particle physics. The development of theories in their intellectual and cultural contexts.

Prerequisite: At least one-half PHY course at university level

Exclusion: HPS311H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities; Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

PHY324H1 - Practical Physics II

Hours: 72P

A modular practical course that further develops the core experimental and computational skills necessary to do physics. Modules include: experimental skills building, computational tools in data and uncertainty analysis, and independent experimental projects.

Prerequisite: PHY224H1

Exclusion: PHY225H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

PHY331H1 - Introduction to Biological Physics

Hours: 24L/18P

A course for students interested in a deeper understanding of physical phenomena occurring in biological systems. Thermodynamics, diffusion, entropic forces, fluids, biological applications.

Prerequisite: PHY252H1/ CHM222H1/ CHM225Y1, PHY231H1/ PHY250H1/ PHY254H1/ PHY256H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

PHY350H1 - Electromagnetic Theory

Hours: 24L/12T

This course builds upon the knowledge and tools developed in PHY250H1. Topics include: solving Poisson and Laplace equations via method of images and separation of variables, multipole expansion for electrostatics, atomic dipoles and polarizability, polarization in dielectrics, multipole expansion in magnetostatics, magnetic dipoles, magnetization in matter, Maxwell's equations in matter, conservation laws in electrodynamics, and electromagnetic waves.

Prerequisite: MAT223H1/ MAT240H1, MAT244H1/ MAT267H1, MAT235Y1/ MAT237Y1/ MAT257Y1, PHY250H1, PHY254H1

Exclusion: PHY352H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

PHY354H1 - Advanced Classical Mechanics

Hours: 24L/12T

Symmetry and conservation laws, stability and instability, generalized coordinates, Hamilton's principle, Hamilton's equations, phase space, Liouville's theorem, canonical transformations, Poisson brackets, Noether's theorem.

Prerequisite: MAT244H1/ MAT267H1, PHY254H1

Exclusion: PHY351H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

PHY356H1 - Quantum Mechanics I

Hours: 24L/12T

The general structure of wave mechanics; eigenfunctions and eigenvalues; operators; orbital angular momentum; spherical harmonics; central potential; separation of variables; hydrogen atom; Dirac notation; operator methods; harmonic oscillator and spin.

Prerequisite: MAT223H1/ MAT240H1, PHY250H1, PHY256H1/( CHM222H1, CHM223H1)/ CHM225Y1, ( PHY256H1 recommended)

Corequisite: MAT244H1/ MAT267H1

Exclusion: CHM326H1, PHY355H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

PHY357H1 - Nuclear and Particle Physics

Hours: 24L/12T

The subatomic particles; nuclei, baryons and mesons, quarks, leptons and bosons; the structure of nuclei and hadronic matter; symmetries and conservation laws; fundamental forces and interactions, electromagnetic, weak, and strong; a selection of other topics: CP violation, nuclear models, standard model, proton decay, supergravity, nuclear and particle astrophysics. This course is not a prerequisite for any PHY400-level course.

Prerequisite: PHY356H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

PHY358H1 - Atoms, Molecules and Solids

Hours: 24L/12T

Quantum theory of atoms, molecules, and solids; variational principle and perturbation theory; hydrogen and helium atoms; exchange and correlation energies; multielectron atoms; simple molecules; bonding and antibonding orbitals; rotation and vibration of molecules; crystal binding; electron in a periodic potential; reciprocal lattice; Bloch's theorem; nearly-free electron model; Kronig-Penney model; energy bands; metals, semiconductors, and insulators; Fermi surfaces. This course is not a prerequisite for any PHY400-level course.

Prerequisite: PHY356H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

PHY371Y1 - Supervised Study in Physics

Hours: TBA

An individual study program chosen by the student with the advice of, and under the direction of, a staff member. A student may take advantage of this course either to specialize further in a field of interest or to explore interdisciplinary fields not available in the regular syllabus. Consult the department web pages for some possible topics. This course may also be available in the summer. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: Consult the Physics Associate Chair (Undergraduate Studies)

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

PHY372H1 - Supervised Study in Physics

Hours: TBA

An individual study program chosen by the student with the advice of, and under the direction of, a staff member. A student may take advantage of this course either to specialize further in a field of interest or to explore interdisciplinary fields not available in the regular syllabus. Consult the department web site for some possible topics. This course may also be available in the summer. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: Consult the Physics Associate Chair (Undergraduate Studies)

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

PHY385H1 - Introductory Optics

Hours: 24L/20P

An introduction to the physics of light. Topics covered include: electromagnetic waves and propagation of light; the Huygens and Fermat principles; geometrical optics and optical instruments; interference of waves and diffraction; polarization; introduction to photons, lasers, and optical fibers.

Prerequisite: PHY250H1, PHY254H1

Exclusion: ECE318H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

PHY392H1 - Physics of Climate

Hours: 24L

This course provides an introduction to climate physics and the earth-atmosphere-ocean system. Topics include solar and terrestrial radiation; global energy balance; radiation laws; radiative transfer; atmospheric structure; convection; the meridional structure of the atmosphere; the general circulation of the atmosphere; the ocean and its circulation; and climate variability.

Prerequisite: PHY250H1/ PHY252H1, MAT235Y1/ MAT237Y1/ MAT257Y1

Exclusion: PHY315H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

JPE395H1 - Physics of the Earth

Hours: 24L

Designed for students interested in the physics of the Earth and the planets. Study of the Earth as a unified dynamic system; determination of major internal divisions in the planet; development and evolution of the Earth's large scale surface features through plate tectonics; the age and thermal history of the planet; Earth's gravitational field and the concept of isostasy; mantle rheology and convection; Earth tides; geodetic measurement techniques, in particular modern space-based techniques.

Prerequisite: PHY132H1/ PHY152H1/ PHY180H1/ MIE100H1, MAT235Y1/ MAT237Y1/ MAT291H1/ AER210H1, PHY254H1/ PHY293H1/ MAT244H1/ MAT267H1/ MAT290H1/ MAT292H1

Exclusion: PHY359H1, PHY395H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

PHY396Y0 - Research Topic Abroad

Hours: TBA

Course credit for research or field studies abroad under the supervision of a faculty member. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: At least 8.5 FCEs and no more than 14.0 FCEs

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

PHY397Y0 - Exchange Research Project Abroad

Hours: TBA

Course credit for research or field studies abroad under the supervision of a faculty or staff member from an exchange institution. Consult the Physics Department web pages for information about opportunities. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: Consult the Physics Associate Chair (Undergraduate Studies)

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

PHY398H0 - Research Excursions

Hours: TBA

An instructor-supervised group project in an off-campus setting. Details at <http://www.artsci.utoronto.ca/current/course/rep>. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Distribution Requirements: Science

PHY398Y0 - Research Excursions

Hours: TBA

An instructor-supervised group project in an off-campus setting. Details at <http://www.artsci.utoronto.ca/current/course/rep>. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Distribution Requirements: Science

PHY399Y1 - Research Opportunity Program

Hours: TBA

Credit course for supervised participation in faculty research project. Details at <http://www.artsci.utoronto.ca/current/course/rop>. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

PHY405H1 - Electronics Lab

Hours: 12L/36P

Electrical circuits, networks and devices are all-pervasive in the modern world. This laboratory course is an introduction to the world of electronics. Students will learn the joys and perils of electronics, by designing, constructing and debugging circuits and devices. The course will cover topics ranging from filters and operational amplifiers to micro-controllers, and will introduce students to concepts such as impedance, transfer functions, feedback and noise. The course will include lectures, assigned readings, and a final circuit project.

Prerequisite: PHY224H1, PHY250H1. PHY405H1 may be taken in third or fourth year

Exclusion: PHY305H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

PHY407H1 - Computational Physics

Hours: 12L/36P

This is an introduction to scientific computing in physics. Students will be introduced to computational techniques used in a range of physics research areas. By considering selected physics topics, students will learn computational methods for function analysis, ODEs, PDEs, eigenvalue problems, non-linear equations and Monte Carlo techniques. A physicist's "computational survival toolkit" will also be developed to introduce students to topics such as command line programming, bash scripting, debugging, solution visualization, computational efficiency and accuracy. The course is based on python and will involve working on a set of computational labs throughout the semester as well as a final project.

Prerequisite: PHY224H1/ PHY254H1

Corequisite: Any third or fourth year course in Physics

Exclusion: PHY307H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

PHY408H1 - Time Series Analysis

Hours: 12L/24P

The analysis of digital sequences; filters; the Fourier Transform; windows; truncation effects; aliasing; auto and cross-correlation; stochastic processes, power spectra; least squares filtering; application to real data series and experimental design.

Prerequisite: PHY407H1/ PHY224H1/ PHY250H1/ PHY254H1/ PHY324H1. PHY408H1 may be taken in third or fourth year

Corequisite: Any third or fourth year lecture course in Physics

Exclusion: PHY308H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

PHY424H1 - Advanced Physics Laboratory

Hours: 72P

Experiments in this course are designed to form a bridge to current experimental research. A wide range of exciting experiments relevant to modern research in physics is available. The laboratory is open from 9 a.m. - 5 p.m., Monday to Friday.

Prerequisite: PHY250H1, PHY256H1, PHY324H1

Exclusion: PHY326H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

PHY426H1 - Advanced Practical Physics I

Hours: 72P

This course is a continuation of PHY424H1, but students have more freedom to progressively focus on specific areas of physics, do extended experiments, projects, or computational modules.

Prerequisite: PHY424H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

PHY428H1 - Advanced Practical Physics II

Hours: 72P

This course is a continuation of PHY426H1, but students have more freedom to progressively focus on specific areas of physics, do extended experiments, projects, or computational modules.

Prerequisite: PHY426H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

PHY429H1 - Advanced Practical Physics III

Hours: 72P

This course is a continuation of PHY428H1, but students have more freedom to progressively focus on specific areas of physics, do extended experiments, projects, or computational modules.

Prerequisite: PHY428H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

PHY431H1 - Topics in Biological Physics

Hours: 24L/12T

An introduction to the physical phenomena involved in the biological processes of living cells and complex systems. Models based on physical principles applied to cellular processes will be developed. Biological computational modeling will be introduced.

Prerequisite: PHY250H1, PHY252H1/ CHM222H1/ CHM225Y1, PHY331H1

Exclusion: PHY346H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

JPH441H1 - Physical Science in Contemporary Society

Hours: 24S

Complex nature of the scientific method; connection between theory, concepts and experimental data; insufficiency of reductionism; characteristics of pathological and pseudo-science; public perception and misperception of science; science and public policy; ethical issues; trends in modern science.

Prerequisite: PHY224H1/ PHY250H1/ PHY252H1/ PHY254H1/ PHY256H1/ ENV235H1, or by permission of the instructor.

Exclusion: PHY341H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

PHY450H1 - Relativistic Electrodynamics

Hours: 24L/12T

The course illustrates, using classical electromagnetism, how symmetry principles and scaling arguments combine to determine the basic laws of physics. It is shown that the electromagnetic action (from which follow the equations of motion) is uniquely fixed by the principles of special relativity, gauge invariance, and locality. Additional topics include motion of relativistic particles in external electric and magnetic fields, radiation from point charges, and the breakdown of classical electromagnetism.

Prerequisite: PHY350H1

Exclusion: PHY353H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

PHY452H1 - Statistical Mechanics

Hours: 24L

Classical and quantum statistical mechanics of noninteracting systems; the statistical basis of thermodynamics; ensembles, partition function; thermodynamic equilibrium; stability and fluctuations; formulation of quantum statistics; theory of simple gases; ideal Bose and Fermi systems.

Prerequisite: PHY252H1, PHY256H1

Exclusion: PHY480H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

PHY454H1 - Continuum Mechanics

Hours: 24L/12T

The theory of continuous matter, including solid and fluid mechanics. Topics include the continuum approximation, dimensional analysis, stress, strain, the Euler and Navier-Stokes equations, vorticity, waves, instabilities, convection and turbulence.

Prerequisite: PHY254H1, MAT235Y1/ MAT237Y1/ MAT257Y1, APM346H1/ APM351Y1

Exclusion: PHY459H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

PHY456H1 - Quantum Mechanics II

Hours: 24L/12T

Quantum dynamics in Heisenberg and Schrödinger pictures; WKB approximation; variational method; time-independent perturbation theory; spin; addition of angular momentum; time-dependent perturbation theory; scattering.

Prerequisite: PHY356H1

Exclusion: PHY457H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

PHY460H1 - Nonlinear Physics

Hours: 36L

The theory of nonlinear dynamical systems with applications to many areas of physics. Topics include stability, bifurcations, chaos, universality, maps, strange attractors and fractals. Geometric, analytical and computational methods will be developed.

Prerequisite: PHY354H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

PHY471Y1 - Supervised Study in Physics

Hours: TBA

An individual study program chosen by the student with the advice of, and under the direction of, a staff member. A student may take advantage of this course either to specialize further in a field of interest or to explore interdisciplinary fields not available in the regular syllabus. Consult the department web pages for some possible topics. This course may also be available in the summer. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: Consult the Physics Associate Chair (Undergraduate Studies).

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

PHY472H1 - Supervised Study in Physics

Hours: TBA

An individual study program chosen by the student with the advice of, and under the direction of, a staff member. A student may take advantage of this course either to specialize further in a field of interest or to explore interdisciplinary fields not available in the regular syllabus. Consult the department web pages for some possible topics. This course may also be available in the summer. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: Consult the Physics Associate Chair (Undergraduate Studies).

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

PHY478H1 - Undergraduate Research Project

Hours: TBA

An individual experimental or theoretical research project undertaken with the advice of, and under the direction of, a staff member. A student may take advantage of this course either to specialize further in a field of interest or to explore independent research. Consult the department web site for some possible topics. This course may also be available in the summer. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: Consult the Physics Associate Chair (Undergraduate Studies)

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

PHY479Y1 - Undergraduate Research Project

Hours: TBA

An individual experimental or theoretical research project undertaken with the advice of, and under the direction of, a faculty member. A student may take advantage of this course either to specialize further in a field of interest or to explore independent research. Consult the department web site for possible topics. This course may also be available in the summer. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: Consult the Physics Associate Chair (Undergraduate Studies)

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

PHY483H1 - Relativity Theory I

Hours: 24L

Basis of Einstein's theory: differential geometry, tensor analysis, gravitational physics leading to General Relativity. Theory starting from solutions of Schwarzschild, Kerr, etc.

Prerequisite: PHY350H1, PHY354H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

PHY484H1 - Relativity Theory II

Hours: 24L

Applications of General Relativity to Astrophysics and Cosmology. Introduction to black holes, large-scale structure of the universe.

Prerequisite: PHY483H1

Recommended Preparation: APM346H1/ APM351Y1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

PHY485H1 - Laser Physics

Hours: 24L

This course, which is intended to be an introduction to research in optical sciences, covers the statistics of optical fields and the physics of lasers. Topics include the principles of laser action, laser cavities, properties of laser radiation and its propagation, the diffraction of light, and spatial and temporal coherence.

Prerequisite: PHY350H1, PHY358H1, PHY385H1/ ECE318

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

PHY487H1 - Condensed Matter Physics

Hours: 24L

Introduction to foundational concepts of condensed matter physics in the solid state. Main topics to be covered: crystal structure, reciprocal lattice, x-ray diffraction, crystal binding, lattice vibrations, phonons and electrons in solids, Fermi surfaces, energy bands, semiconductors and magnetism. Special topics to be surveyed: superconductivity and nanoelectronic transport.

Prerequisite: PHY256H1, PHY252H1, PHY250H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

PHY489H1 - Introduction to High Energy Physics

Hours: 24L

This course introduces the basics of fundamental particles and the strong, weak and electromagnetic forces that govern their interactions in the Standard Model of particle physics. Topics include relativistic kinematics, conservation laws, particle decays and scattering processes, with an emphasis on the techniques used for calculating experimental observables.

Prerequisite: PHY354H1, PHY356H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

PHY491H1 - Current Interpretations of Quantum Mechanics

Hours: 24L/24T

Review of conventional, textbook quantum mechanics. Formal measurement theory and wave function collapse; quantum states and nonseparability, violation of local causality; Bell theorems; quantum tricks; decoherence and the emergence of classical behaviour. Hidden variables; deBroglie-Bohm theory and generalizations; many-worlds interpretation and other theories of beables. Consistent histories approach of Omnes and Gell-Mann and Hartle; nature of True and Reliable statements.

Prerequisite: PHY456H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

PHY492H1 - Advanced Atmospheric Physics

Hours: 24L

A preparatory course for research in experimental and theoretical atmospheric physics. Content will vary from year to year. Themes may include techniques for remote sensing of the Earth's atmosphere and surface; theoretical atmosphere-ocean dynamics; the physics of clouds, precipitation, and convection in the Earth's atmosphere.

Exclusion: PHY498H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

JPE493H1 - Seismology

Hours: 24L

Why do earthquakes occur and how are they related to tectonic motion of the Earth's surface? What is the physics behind the propagation of seismic waves through the Earth, and how can it be used to determine the internal structures of the Earth? This introductory course is aimed at understanding the physics behind seismic wave propagation, as well as asymptotic and numerical solutions to the elastodynamic equation. Travel time and amplitude of seismic waves are discussed based on seismic ray theory, while numerical methods are introduced to obtain accurate solutions to more complex velocity structures. Seismic tomographic methods, including their applications to hydrocarbon reservoir imaging, are also covered.

Prerequisite: JPE395H1, APM346H1/ APM351Y1/ MAT351Y1

Exclusion: PHY493H1

Recommended Preparation: ESS345H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

PHY494H1 - Geophysical Imaging: EM and Potential Fields

Hours: 24L

How to investigate Earth structure at depths ranging from metres to tens of kilometres using gravity, magnetic, electrical, electromagnetic and nuclear geophysical methods. Current methodologies and the theoretical basis for them are presented.

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

Introduction

Physiology is the study of living matter in action. It integrates physical and life science disciplines in order to understand body functions and the origins of disease. Beyond the study of control mechanisms, compensations, and cooperation among body molecules, cells, tissues and organs, the interaction between the body's external and internal environments is a key theme in Physiology. Most importantly, Physiology unifies the life sciences from molecule to organism, providing the link from genomics and molecular signaling pathways to behaviour and disease. Emerging fields for physiologists are the analysis of the functional implications of genomic sequence variation, developmental factors leading to chronic illness, and novel approaches for regenerative medicine.

Biological function -- of molecules, cells, and organs -- is at the heart of Physiology, and this knowledge is fundamental to the life sciences in general. Accordingly, Physiology provides an excellent and often necessary background for subsequent training in Medicine, Dentistry, Pharmacy, Nursing, Physical or Occupational Therapy, and other health-related professions. It is also excellent preparation for graduate work in Physiology and related areas; or for the teaching of Biological Science in secondary schools. Physiologists are needed in hospitals and departments of medicine as teachers and research personnel. Other outlets would be in agriculture and veterinary medicine, in military research establishments and in life science-based industry. The development of air and space travel, the exploration of the continental shelf, the development of Northern regions, and increased emphasis on exercise and fitness, all provide business and research opportunities for the person trained in Physiology.

Physiology at the research level covers a variety of specialties (e.g. Endocrinology, Cardiovascular Physiology, Neurophysiology, Respiratory Physiology, Reproductive Physiology, Sensory Physiology), each with a wide variety of technical and analytical methods. More information is available on the departmental website (www.physiology.utoronto.ca).

Physiology Programs

Physiology Specialist (Science Program) - ASSPE0482

Enrolment Requirements:

The Physiology Specialist program is a Type 3 program. Only students with an average of at least 70% in the required first-year courses and a minimum of 60% in each of these courses will be considered for entrance into the specialist program. Enrolment is limited and selection is based on performance in the following first-year required courses: BIO130H1, ( CHM135H1/ CHM139H1), ( CHM136H1/ CHM138H1) or their equivalents, and 1.5 full course equivalents from: BIO120H1, MAT135H1, MAT136H1, MAT137Y1, MAT157Y1, PHY131H1, PHY132H1, PHY151H1, PHY152H1. Students apply via the Facultys Program Enrolment website. See the Arts & Science Program Enrolment website for application procedures. For more information, refer to the Physiology website at www.physiology.utoronto.ca.

Completion Requirements:

(14 full courses or their equivalent)

First Year:

BIO120H1/ PSL190H1, BIO130H1; ( CHM135H1/ CHM139H1), ( CHM136H1/CHM138H1), ( PHY131H1, PHY132H1)/( PHY151H1, PHY152H1)

First Year or Upper Years:

( MAT135H1, MAT136H1)/ MAT137Y1/ MAT157Y1*

Second Year:

1. 2.5 full course equivalents from BCH210H1; BIO230H1/ BIO255H1; CHM220H1/ CHM247H1/ CHM249H1;

PSL300H1, PSL301H1

2. 1.5 full course equivalents from BIO220H1, BIO260H1/ HMB265H1; MAT235Y1, PHY231H1, PSL299Y1/ PSL399Y1, STA220H1/ STA250H1

Third Year:

1. 3 full course equivalents from BCH370H1; PSL304H1, PSL305H1, PSL350H1/ CSB349H1/ BCH311H1, PSL372H1, PSL374H1

2. 1 full course equivalent from the following list:
ANA300Y1, ANA301H1; BME498Y1; CSB325H1, CSB332H/ CJH332H1, CSB343H1, CSB345H1/ CSB445H1, CSB346H1, CSB347H1; IMM340H1/ IMM341H1, IMM350H1/ IMM351H1; PCL201H1, PCL285H, PCL302H1; PHY331H1, PSL310H1; PSL378H1/ PSL379H1/ PSL398H1; PSY397H1

Fourth Year: (at least 2 FCEs at 400-level)

1. PSL496Y/ PSL497H1/ PSL498Y1/ PSL499H1
 2. 1-1.5 full course equivalents from PSL400-series or HMB430H1/ HMB470H1/ HMB472H1

* These courses may be taken in the first year or subsequent years, and are not required for entrance into the specialist program.

Physiology Major (Science Program) - ASMAJ0482

Enrolment Requirements:

This is a limited enrolment program that can only accommodate a limited number of students. Eligibility will be competitive and based on a student's marks in the 3.0 FCE required first-year courses:

BIO120H1, BIO130H1, ( CHM135H1, CHM136H1)/ CHM151Y1, and 1.0 FCE from any of the following: MAT135H1, MAT136H1, MAT137Y1, MAT157Y1, PHY131H1, PHY132H1, PHY151H1, PHY152H1 with an average of at least 70% on these 3.0 full-course equivalents (FCEs) and a final mark of at least 60% in each course.

While it is difficult to predict what will be competitive course marks and average in a given year, based on previous years, the estimate is: course marks = mid 70s; average = mid 70s.

Achieving these estimated marks does not guarantee admission to the program in any given year.

Note: Students must apply to this program on the Arts & Science Faculty Registrars Office website (see the Arts & Science Program Enrolment website for application procedures).

Completion Requirements:

(8 full courses or their equivalent, including 0.5 FCE at the 400-level)

First Year:

1. 2 full course equivalents from ( BIO120H1, BIO130H1)/BIO150Y; ( CHM135H1, CHM136H1)/ CHM151Y1
 2. 1 full course equivalent from any of the following: MAT135H1, MAT136H1, MAT137Y1, MAT157Y1, PHY131H1, PHY132H1, PHY151H1, PHY152H1

Second Year:

2 full course equivalents from BCH210H1; BIO230H1/ BIO255H1; PSL300H1, PSL301H1

Higher Years:

1. 1 full course equivalent from PSL372H1, PSL350H1/ BCH311H1/ CSB349H1
 2. 1 full course equivalent from ANA300Y1, ANA301H1; CSB325H1, CSB330H1, CSB332H/ CJH332H1, CSB343H1, CSB345H1/ CSB445H1, CSB346H1, CSB347H1; IMM340H1/ IMM341H1, IMM350H1/ IMM351H1; NFS284H1; PCL201H1, PCL285H, PCL302H1; PSY201H1; PSY397H1; STA220H1
 3. 1 full course equivalent from HMB430H1/ HMB470H1/ HMB472H1; PSL304H1, PSL305H1, PSL310H1, PSL374H1, PSL378H1/ PSL379H1/ PSL379H0/ PSL398H0, PSL399Y1, PSL400-series courses

Physiology Minor (Science Program) - ASMIN0482

Completion Requirements:

(4 full courses or their equivalent; one 300+ level FCE must be included in the program)

1. 2 full course equivalents from: ( BIO120H1, BIO130H1); PSL201Y1/( PSL300H1, PSL301H1)
 2. 2 full course equivalents from: BIO251H1, BIO270H1, BIO271H1; CSB325H1, CSB332H/ CJH332H1, CSB343H1, CSB344H, CSB345H1/ CSB445H1, CSB346H1, CSB347H; EEB328H1; HMB200H1/ HMB220H, HMB430H1, HMB470H1, HMB472H1; PSL280H1, PSL299Y1, PSL304H1, PSL305H1, PSL310H1, PSL350H1, PSL372H1, PSL374H1, PSL378H1/ PSL379H0/ PSL379H1/ PSL398H0, PSL399Y1, PSL400-series; PSY290H1, PSY396H1, PSY397H1, PSY369H1/PSY399H, PSY490H1, PSY492H1, PSY494H1, PSY497H1

Regarding Physiology Courses

First Year Seminars

The 199Y1 and 199H1 seminars are designed to provide the opportunity to work closely with an instructor in a class of no more than twenty-four students. These interactive seminars are intended to stimulate the students' curiosity and provide an opportunity to get to know a member of the professorial staff in a seminar environment during the first year of study. Details can be found at www.artsci.utoronto.ca/current/course/fyh-1/.

Physiology Courses

PSL190H1 - Biomedical Research at the Cutting Edge

Hours: 24L/6S

Explore the thought processes, logic, motivation, techniques, analysis and impact of recent high-profile publications to gain insight into the enterprise of science. Outstanding scientists present recent high-impact papers, and students will examine the research in depth, focusing on the underlying questions, experimental approach, results and significance.

Prerequisite: SBI4U and SCH4U (Grade 12 University Preparation Biology and Chemistry); permission of Department

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PSL201Y1 - Basic Human Physiology

Hours: 48L

A survey course intended for students who are not proceeding further in Physiology.

Exclusion: Any 300-level PSL course taken previously or concurrently

Recommended Preparation: 100-level course in BIO or equivalent

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PSL280H1 - Introduction to Physiologic Adaptations of Marine Mammals

Hours: 24L/14P

Systems approach to physiology of marine mammals in their aquatic environment. Highlights unique features of cardiovascular, respiratory, renal, urinary, and reproductive systems. Introduces relevant physiology, and makes comparisons to human condition and disease.

Prerequisite: ( BIO120H1, BIO130H1), CHM136H1/ CHM138H1/ CHM151Y1 or permission of the course coordinator.

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PSL299Y1 - Research Opportunity Program

Hours: TBA

Credit course for supervised participation in faculty research project. Details at <http://www.artsci.utoronto.ca/current/course/rop>. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Distribution Requirements: Science

PSL300H1 - Human Physiology I

Hours: 36L/5T

Principles of neurophysiology, endocrinology and reproductive physiology for students enrolled in Life Science programs.

Exclusion: PSL201Y1, PSL302Y1

Recommended Preparation: BIO130H1; CHM136H/ CHM138H1/ CHM151Y1; and 1 FCE from any of the following: MAT135H1, MAT136H1, MAT137Y1, MAT157Y1, PHY131H1, PHY132H, PHY151H1, PHY152H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PSL301H1 - Human Physiology II

Hours: 36L/4T

Principles of respiratory, cardiovascular, gastrointestinal, and renal physiology for students enrolled in Life Science programs.

Exclusion: PSL201Y1, PSL302Y1

Recommended Preparation: BIO130H1; CHM136H1/ CHM138H1/ CHM151Y1; and 1 FCE from any of the following: MAT135H1, MAT136H1, MAT137Y1, MAT157Y1, PHY131H1, PHY132H, PHY151H1, PHY152H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PSL304H1 - Topics in Cellular, Molecular and Organismic Physiology I

Hours: 32L/16T

Control systems, feedback, networks, and both neonatal and adult cardiovascular and respiratory control are the topics examined in detail using homeostasis as a unifying theme. Tutorials involve computer simulations, case studies and/or experimental design. This course is designed for students in the Physiology Specialist and Biological Physics Specialist Programs, although permission is granted to students in other programs upon approval by the Department.

Prerequisite: BCH210H1, PSL300H1, PSL301H1, MAT100-series

Exclusion: PSL303Y1

Recommended Preparation: PSL372H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PSL305H1 - Topics in Cellular, Molecular and Organismic Physiology II

Hours: 32L/16T

Molecular, cellular and organismic physiology of the central nervous system, gut, pancreas and glucose-sensing tissues; CNS diseases, obesity and diabetes are used as model systems. Tutorials involve computer simulations. This course is designed for students in the Physiology Specialist and Biological Physics Specialist Programs, although permission is granted to students in other programs upon approval by the Department.

Prerequisite: BCH210H1, PSL300H1, PSL301H1, MAT100-series

Exclusion: PSL303Y1

Recommended Preparation: PSL372H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PSL310H1 - Clinical Reasoning

Hours: 24L/12S

Improved clinical reasoning will reduce the current likelihood that most people will suffer at least one medical diagnostic error, errors that contribute to ~10% of patient deaths. Learn to apply strategies of critical thinking and principles of physiology to solve clinical cases. Shadow a healthcare professional. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: BCH210H1, BIO230H1/ BIO255H1, PSL300H1, PSL372H1, PSL301H1

Corequisite: PSL301H1

Exclusion: HMB322H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PSL350H1 - Mammalian Molecular Biology

Hours: 18L/12T/6S

Extend molecular biology concepts to current scientific literature in mammalian physiology. Apply these principles to disease and complex behaviours. Discuss bioethical issues raised by these techniques and their application. Benefit from three weeks in small group seminars lead by research professors focusing on current advances in mammalian molecular biology.

Prerequisite: BIO230H1/ BIO255H1, PSL300H1, BCH210H1

Corequisite: PSL301H1

Exclusion: BCH311H1/ BIO349H1/ CSB349H1/ MGY311Y1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PSL372H1 - Mammalian Physiology Laboratory

Hours: 12L/36P

A laboratory course covering selected topics in physiology.

Prerequisite: BIO230H1/( BIO240H1, BIO241H1)/ BIO255H1, BCH210H1/ BCH242Y1, MAT100-series/PHY100-series, PSL300H1, PSL301H1

Corequisite: BCH370H1 (recommended)

Exclusion: CSB348H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PSL374H1 - Advanced Physiology Laboratory

Hours: 12L/36P/12S

A problem-based laboratory course focused on the integration and control of organ systems to understand body functions. Enrollment in this course is restricted to students in the Physiology Specialist and Major Programs although permission is granted to students in other programs upon approval by the Department.

Prerequisite: BIO230H1/( BIO240H1, BIO241H1)/ BIO255H1, PSL300H1, PSL301H1, PSL372H1

Exclusion: CSB348H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PSL378H1 - Field Physiology: Marine Mammal Autopsy

Hours: 12L/24T/36P

An opportunity to go outside of the traditional university classroom and actively participate in a marine mammal autopsy. Learn the diversity and adaptive nature of marine mammalian physiology/anatomy as it compares to human. The course is 2 weeks (in May), one week of hands-on tissue dissection, and one week of group discussions of the findings and draft report preparation. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: BIO270H1, BIO271H1/ PSL201Y1/ PSL280H1/ PSL300H1, PSL301H1 or permission of the course coordinator

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PSL379H0 - Comparative Marine Mammal Physiology in the Field

Hours: 24T/36P

Hands-on monitoring of physiological measures with live dolphins, manatee and sea lions; field observations and applied learning to a physiology project. Two-weeks at the end of April early May: 1st week at marine research center in Mexico, 2nd week of wrap-up discussion and integration of data at U of T. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: BIO220H1/ BIO230H1/ BIO270H1/ BIO271H1/ CSB343H1/ PSL280H1/ PSL201Y1/ PSL300H1/ PSL301H1/ PSY362H1/any other relevant course

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PSL398H0 - Research Excursions

Hours: TBA

An instructor-supervised group project in an off-campus setting. Details at <http://www.artsci.utoronto.ca/current/course/rep>. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Distribution Requirements: Science

PSL399Y1 - Research Opportunity Program

Hours: TBA

Credit course for supervised participation in faculty research project. Details at <http://www.artsci.utoronto.ca/current/course/rop>. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

PSL404H1 - Regenerative Medicine

Hours: 24L/12T

Regenerative medicine promises to restore body function that has been lost due to disease, damage or age. Students will explore selected molecular, stem cell and tissue engineering developments to better understand how the body normally functions and how cells, tissues, and organs can be repaired or replaced.

Prerequisite: PSL300H1, PSL301H1

Recommended Preparation: PSL350H1/ BCH311H1/ CSB349H1/ MGY311Y1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PSL420H1 - Reproduction: Development and Function

Hours: 24L

This course provides an in-depth review of the development and function of the male and female reproductive systems. Topics include sex determination and differentiation, steroidogenesis, gametogenesis, hormonal control of the reproductive axis, the female ovulatory cycle, fertilization and implantation, infertility and assisted reproduction approaches.

Prerequisite: PSL300H1, PSL301H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PSL421H1 - Pregnancy and Birth: From Implantation to Newborn Life

Hours: 24L

General overview of the integrated physiological events associated with fetal development, pregnancy and birth. The approach emphasizes physiological processes using insights gained from studies of humans, animals, cells and genes. Where appropriate the clinical consequences of aberrant development are reviewed.

Prerequisite: PSL300H1, PSL301H1

Recommended Preparation: PSL420H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PSL424H1 - Cellular and Molecular Basis of Endocrine Disorders

Hours: 24S

Explore how researchers uncover the molecular and cellular basis of endocrine disorders. Learn about experimental design, state-of-the-art research tools, and data interpretation. Topics include disorders in: hormone regulation, secretion and action; circadian rhythms; and sexual development and reproduction. Each week students engage in class discussion related to research seminars delivered by faculty.

Prerequisite: PSL300H1, PSL301H1, PSL350H1/ BCH311H1/ CSB349H1/ MGY311Y1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PSL425H1 - Integrative Metabolism and its Endocrine Regulation

Hours: 24L

This course integrates the newest findings and experimental approaches from cellular and molecular biology into metabolic function at the tissue, organ and whole body level.

Prerequisite: BCH210H1, PSL300H1, PSL301H1

Recommended Preparation: PSL305H1/ PSL303Y1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PSL432H1 - Theoretical Physiology

Hours: 24L

Theoretical treatment of neurophysiology. Mathematical modeling and analysis of neurophysiological systems.

Prerequisite: MAT235Y1/ MAT237Y1; APM346H1/ MAT244H1

Recommended Preparation: PHY200-series; PSL201Y1/ PSL300H1/( BIO270H1, BIO271H1)

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PSL440Y1 - Neuroscience: Systems and Behaviour

Hours: 96L

Introduction to systems neuroscience. A review of basic neuroanatomy and physiology followed by in-depth study of selected sensory and motor systems, with an emphasis on clinical applications in the second term. Students with an elementary neuroscience background progress to reading neuroscience literature on their own.

Prerequisite: PSL300H1/ PSY290H1/ CSB332H1 or equivalent

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PSL445H1 - Neuroscience: Cellular and Molecular

Previous Course Number: PSL444Y1

Hours: 36L

Overview of the fundamentals of cellular and molecular aspects of brain function. Course material is updated yearly to reflect the rapid evolution of ideas in Neuroscience.

Prerequisite: PSL300H1, PSL301H1, CJH332H1 or permission of instructor

Exclusion: PSL444Y1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PSL446H1 - Neural Disorders

Previous Course Number: PSL444Y1

Hours: 36L

Explore topics in neurological disorders and treatments to reinforce and expand your knowledge of cellular and molecular neurophysiology. Course material is updated yearly to reflect the rapid evolution of ideas in this area.

Prerequisite: PSL300H1, PSL301H1, CJH332H1 or permission of instructor

Exclusion: PSL444Y1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PSL450H1 - Mechanisms of Neural and Endocrinal Secretion

Hours: 24L

Exocytosis and other aspects of secretion mainly in neurons and neuroendocrine cells, but also in pancreatic cells. Topics include synapse anatomy and physiology, synaptic plasma membrane and vesicle proteins, membrane fusion, genetic tools, endocrine secretion, plasticity in neurotransmitter release, diseases arising from secretion defects.

Prerequisite: BCH210H1, PSL300H1/( BIO240H1, BIO241H1), PSL350H1/ CSB349H1/ BCH311H1/ MGY311Y1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PSL452H1 - Membrane Physiology

Hours: 24L

Biophysics and molecular biology of ion channels. Topics include equivalent circuits for cells, molecular structure of voltage-gated channels, distribution of channels, relationship between single-channel and whole-cell recording, and regulation of channel function by voltage, phosphorylation, G-proteins and metabolites.

Prerequisite: PSL300H1, PSL301H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PSL462H1 - Molecular Aspects of Cardiovascular Function

Hours: 36L

Heart anatomy and development, ion channels and contractile proteins involved in cardiac and smooth muscle contraction are studied. Emphasis is on regulation of electrical and contractile function of kinases, metabolism, volume and ions.

Prerequisite: PSL300H1, PSL301H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PSL470H1 - Cardiovascular Physiology

Hours: 24L

Development of the cardiovascular system from conception to adulthood with particular emphasis on maturational changes, age-related differences and developmental problems from cellular/molecular to whole organ/system.

Prerequisite: PSL300H1, PSL301H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PSL472H1 - Sleep Physiology and Chronobiology

Hours: 24L

This course covers the physiology underlying sleep and circadian rhythms, and their impact on important physiological processes and health. The integrative nature of the basic physiological processes is emphasized via discussions and clinical presentations. Overall, the aim is to present the full spectrum of integrative physiology from molecules and cells to understanding the sick patient.

Prerequisite: PSL300H1, PSL301H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PSL480H1 - Diving Physiology of Marine Mammals

Hours: 24L/6T

This course compares and contrasts the physiological and anatomical adaptations exhibited by the different species of marine mammals in relationship to humans, with respect to diving.

Prerequisite: ( BIO270H1, BIO271H1)/ PSL201Y1/ PSL300H1, PSL301H1; PSL280H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PSL495H1 - Communicate Biomedical Science

Hours: 6L/2T/18S

Research, critique and write a manuscript on a topic of your choice in the scientific literature while guided by classes and assignments that develop advanced science communication skills; and by a mentor expert in your area of clinical or basic physiology.

Prerequisite: PSL300H1; PSL301H1; PSL372H1; 13.5 additional credits; and permission of Department

Exclusion: BCH479H1; HMB490H1; HMB491H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PSL496Y1 - Translational Physiology Research Project

Hours: 144P

Engage in supervised original science research, either basic or clinical, combined with a healthcare placement. Develop skills in defining scientific questions, designing experiments, analyzing data, and communicating your results. Gain insight into the power of translational bench-to-bedside research. Discover your interest in becoming a science researcher. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: PSL300H1, PSL301H1, PSL310H1, PSL372H1, permission of Department.

Exclusion: PSL497H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PSL497H1 - Translational Physiology Research Project

Hours: 72P

Engage in original science research, either basic or clinical, combined with a healthcare placement. Develop skills in defining scientific questions, designing experiments, analyzing data, and communicating your results. Gain insight into the power of translational “bench-to-bedside” research. Discover your interest in becoming a science researcher. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: PSL300H1, PSL301H1, PSL310H1, PSL372H1, permission of Department.

Exclusion: PSL496Y1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PSL498Y1 - Project in Physiology

Hours: 144P

Laboratory research project with reading assignments leading to a final report. By special arrangement with a Physiology staff member after admission to course. PSL498Y1 is recommended for students applying to the Physiology graduate program. Enrollment in this course is restricted to students in the Physiology Specialist and Major Programs, although permission is granted to students in other programs upon approval by the Department. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: ( PSL304H1, PSL305H1)/ PSL303Y1, PSL372H1, PSL374H1, permission of Department

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PSL499H1 - Project in Physiology

Hours: 72P

Laboratory research project with reading assignments leading to a final report. By special arrangement with a Physiology staff member after admission to course. PSL499H1 is recommended for students applying to the Physiology graduate program. Enrollment in this course is restricted to students in the Physiology Specialist and Major Programs, although permission is granted to students in other programs upon approval by the Department. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: ( PSL304H1, PSL305H1)/ PSL303Y1, PSL372H1, PSL374H1, permission of Department

Planetary Science Programs

Planetary Science Specialist (Science Program) - ASSPE1073

Completion Requirements:

One 300+-level FCE must be included in the program.

(14 full courses or equivalent, including at least one 400+series FCE)

First Year:

( CHM135H1, CHM136H1)/ CHM151Y1; ( MAT135H1, MAT136H1)/ MAT137Y1; ( PHY131H1, PHY132H1)/ ( PHY151H1, PHY152H1) ( MAT137Y1 and PHY151H1, PHY152H1 preferred)

First or Second Year:

MAT223H1/ MAT240H1

Second or Third Year:

AST221H1, AST222H1; ( CHM222H1, CHM223H1)/ ( PHY252H1, PHY256H1); CHM238Y1; ESS223H1, ESS261H1, ESS262H1; MAT235Y1/ MAT237Y1 ( MAT237Y1 preferred); MAT244H1/ MAT267H1; PHY250H1, PHY254H1

Third and/or Fourth Years:

JPE395H1;

At least four of (2.0 FCE) AST325H1; CHM327H1, CHM338H1; PHY354H1, PHY407H1, PHY408H1; GGR201H1; ESS223H1, ESS241H1, ESS445H1, ESS462H1;

Fourth Year:

PLN420H1, PLN425H1

Planetary Science Courses

PLN420H1 - Interdisciplinary Seminar in Planetary Science

Hours: 24S

Discussion of topics of current interest in planetary science with emphasis on papers published in scientific journals. This course is intended for students in the final year of the Planetary Science specialist program. Students must enrol with the course coordinator.

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

PLN425H1 - Research in Planetary Science

Hours: 120P

Research report by student in consultation with individual staff member in Astronomy, Chemistry, Geology or Physics. This course is intended for students in the final year of the Planetary Science specialist program. Students must enrol with the course coordinator. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

Regarding Planetary Science Courses

First Year Seminars

The 199Y1 and 199H1 seminars are designed to provide the opportunity to work closely with an instructor in a class of no more than twenty-four students. These interactive seminars are intended to stimulate the students' curiosity and provide an opportunity to get to know a member of the professorial staff in a seminar environment during the

Introduction

The study of Political Science at the University of Toronto is wide-ranging and diverse. Courses are offered in political theory, Canadian government, international relations, and the politics of societies that are industrialized, developing, and in transition. Many courses deal with issues (such as environmental politics, diversity, peace and conflict, globalization) that cut across fields. Course offerings are designed to introduce students to Political Science at the first year level, provide the foundations for further study at the second year level, and provide specialized lecture and seminar courses at the intermediate and advanced levels. Studies in Political Science provide students with a good grounding in one of the chief social science disciplines and an opportunity to explore the issues that confront us as individuals, groups, societies and on the international level as we prepare for the twenty-first century. In addition to the materials covered, Political Science courses are set up to offer students an opportunity to learn writing and analytical skills to support a challenging and diverse career.

Courses in Political Science dovetail with programs in many other disciplines of the social sciences and the humanities: Economics, Sociology, History, Philosophy, and Psychology. A student interested in Canadian studies or urban problems, for example, would be well advised to choose courses from all these disciplines, as would someone interested in international affairs or foreign area studies. A student planning graduate work in the social sciences should seek to obtain a basic understanding of each of these disciplines.

Detailed information on our programs, extended descriptions of courses, and background information on the interests of our instructors can be found on our website. The Association of Political Science Students, the students' organization for Political Science undergraduates, has an office in Room 1091, Sidney Smith Hall.

Political Science Programs

Political Science Specialist (Arts Program) - ASSPE2015

Enrolment Requirements:

This is a limited enrolment program. All students who request the program and obtain at least the specified mark(s) in the required course(s) will be eligible to enrol.

Required courses:

i) Applying after first year (or four full courses or the equivalent):

A final mark of at least 67% in POL 101Y or POL 200Y or one full POL course or the equivalent in half courses.

ii) Applying after second year (or eight full courses or the equivalent):

A final mark of at least 70% in any two full POL courses or the equivalent in half courses.

Completion Requirements:

(10 POL full courses or the equivalent in half courses. Of these, at least 3.0 full course equivalents must be 300+ series courses and 1.0 full course equivalent must be 400-series. Only 1.0 POL 100-level course will be counted towards the POL program.)

First Year:

POL101Y1

Higher Years:

1. POL 200Y1

2. One of the following: POL201Y1/ POL203Y1/ POL207Y1/ POL208Y1/ POL215Y1

3. POL214Y1/ POL224Y1

4. POL222H1 and POL232H1

5. POL320Y1

6. 4.0 additional POL full course equivalents

Of these, at least 2.0 full course equivalents must be 300+ series courses and 1.0 full course equivalent must be 400-series.

Note:

- Students must complete one full course equivalent each in at least two of the following three fields: comparative politics, development studies, international relations. See the Departments website <http://politics.utoronto.ca/undergraduate/courses/allwinter-timetable> for POL courses by area group.
- It is recommended that students take POL222H1 (Introduction to Quantitative Reasoning I) and POL232H1 (Introduction to Quantitative Reasoning II) in their second year of study.

Political Science Major (Arts Program) - ASMAJ2015

Enrolment Requirements:

This is a limited enrolment program. All students who request the program and obtain at least the specified mark(s) in the required course(s) will be eligible to enrol.

Political Science Minor (Arts Program) - ASMIN2015

Enrolment Requirements:

This is a limited enrolment program. All students who request the program and obtain at least the specified mark(s) in the required course(s) will be eligible to enrol.

Required courses: a minimum grade of 65% in 1.0 POL full course equivalent.

Completion Requirements:

(4.0 POL full courses or their equivalent)

1. 4.0 POL full course equivalents. Of these, at least 1.0 full course equivalent must be 300+ series courses and only 1.0 POL 100-level course will be counted towards the POL program.

Regarding Political Science Courses

First Year Seminars

The 199Y1 and 199H1 seminars are designed to provide the opportunity to work closely with an instructor in a class of no more than twenty-four students. These interactive seminars are intended to stimulate the students' curiosity and provide an opportunity to get to know a member of the professorial staff in a seminar environment during the first year of study. Details can be found at www.artsci.utoronto.ca/current/course/fyh-1/.

PLEASE NOTE:

- Not all courses listed in the 2018-19 calendar are offered every year. Please check the Department's website for the list of courses offered in 2018-19.
- Prerequisites and exclusions are enforced for all 2nd, 3rd and 4th year courses. Please consult the POL section of the 2018-19 Faculty of Arts & Science Registration Instructions and Timetable for details. Students without course prerequisites will be removed at any time they are discovered.
- Enrolment is limited for all 300-level and 400-level courses. See the Faculty of Arts & Science Registration Instructions and Timetable for details.
- Nearly all POL 400-level courses are offered as joint undergraduate-graduate seminars with class sizes ranging from 15-25.
- Full course equivalents are either a full course or the equivalent in half courses.

POL404Y1 - Public, Private and the Liberal State

Hours: 48S

Liberalism, it is sometimes said, stands or falls with the distinction between public and private. The seminar examines how these terms are conceptualized and how they affect the practice of liberal democracy, especially in Canada and the U.S. We will spend the first term developing a conceptual toolkit that will help us understand some of the ways in which public and private are conventionally understood. In the second term we will explore some of the new (and often unexpected) ways in which public and private are playing out these days in public policy – for instance, in education, health, welfare, multiculturalism, professional sports, and war-making.

Prerequisite: POL203Y1/ POL203Y5/ POL214Y1/ POL214Y5/ POLB50Y3

By bringing together a cross-disciplinary faculty who focus on cities within Political Science, History, Philosophy, Literature, Design, Environment and Health, Geography or Social Work, the course explores inter-disciplinary city issues: global change; environment; economic adjustment; state reform and city politics; citizenship; community development; economic development; physical form, territory and political-economy of cities. (Given by the Departments of Literature, Philosophy, Political Science, Urban Studies, Faculty of Social Work and Faculty of Architecture, Landscape and Design)

Prerequisite: Minimum 14 credits/permission of instructor

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

POL456Y1 - The G8, G20 and Global Governance

Hours: 48S

The development, operation, and participants of the Group of Eight (G8) and Group of Twenty (G20) of institutions, their growth and performance as centres of global governance, and their relationship with the United Nations (UN) and Bretton Woods galaxy in providing public goods in economic, social, environmental and security realms.

Prerequisite: POL208Y1/ POL208Y5/ (POLB80H3, POLB81H3) / POL312Y1/ POL343Y1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

POL457Y1 - Markets, Justice and the Human Good

Hours: 48S

The course offers a philosophical perspective on the advantages and disadvantages of markets as ways of organizing economic activity. It asks in what ways markets and market-like arrangements can contribute to or create obstacles to the achievement of justice and human well-being.

Prerequisite: POL320Y1 or permission of the instructor

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

JPR458H1 - Postsecular Political Thought: Religion, Radicalism and the Limits of Liberalism

Hours: 24S

The course will examine debates on postsecularism and religion's public, political role as articulated by political thinkers such as Jurgen Habermas, by focusing on politically radical or revolutionary challenges to liberalism in the 20th and 21st century, especially from the postcolonial world, whose theoretical arguments are grounded upon or draw their inspiration from religious traditions, doctrines and practices.

Prerequisite: A 3rd year course in Political Science and/or Study of Religion

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

JPR459H1 - Fanaticism: A Political History

Hours: 24S

This seminar in theory will explore the modern history of the concept of 'fanaticism' and its role in the development of political modernity. A focus on the concept of the "fanatic" (and its cognates) from the perspective of its various uses in political and religious thought from the Early Modern period through the Enlightenment and up to the present day, provides a fascinating opportunity for a critical review of the secular, rationalist, and scientific assumptions underwriting modern political forms and concepts, especially those of liberal democracy. At the same time, the course will offer critical insight into the ways in which religious and political differences among colonial "others" were, and continue to be, central to the elaboration of Western theoretical discourse on fanaticism and extremism as forms of "political pathology". (Given by the Departments of Political Science and Religion)

Prerequisite: (2 FCEs in Political Theory and/or Philosophy including 1.0 FCE at the 300 level) or (0.5 FCE in Method and Theory in the Study of Religion and 1 FCE at the 300 level in the Study of Religion)

Distribution Requirements: Social Science; Humanities

POL468H1 - International Relations of Ethnic Conflict

Hours: 24S

This course explores the internationalization of ethnic conflict and the international drivers of civil war. It covers diaspora politics, contagion and demonstration effects, regional security complexes, separatism and irredentism, and international interventions. Students are expected to write an original social science research paper, and participate in discussions, simulations, and teamwork.

Prerequisite: POL208Y1/ POL208Y5/( POLB80H3, POLB81H3)

Exclusion: POL466H1 (Topics in International Politics III: International Relations of Ethnic Conflict), offered in Fall 2013, Winter 2015, and Winter 2016; POLD09H3

Recommended Preparation: A 300-level course in International Security is recommended.

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

POL469H1 - Ethics and International Relations

Hours: 24S

The course aims to explore the requirements of justice and fairness in international affairs. It is common to theorize international relations in terms of interests and power. But even the most cursory look at what important actors actually do in their international interactions reveals that they use normative language all the time. This has not gone unnoticed, with investigations of ethics in the international arena multiplying in recent years. Drawing on readings from political philosophy, legal theory, and normative international relations theory, the course will take up practical ethical dilemmas encountered in world affairs. The main focus of the course will be on institutions. Examples will be drawn from the issue areas of trade, health, and the environment, among others.

Prerequisite: POL208Y1/ POL208Y5/ (POLB80H3, POLB81H3)

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

POL471H1 - Urban Revolution: Contemporary Constellations of Spatial Politics

Hours: 24S

An analysis of urban processes in comparative perspective. This course uses critical urban theory to understand contemporary urban politics and urban social movements in a variety of contexts.

Prerequisite: 1.0 POL credit in comparative politics and 1.0 POL credit in political theory. See the Department's website <http://politics.utoronto.ca/undergraduate/courses/fallwinter-timetable/> for POL courses by area group.

Exclusion: POL 492H1(F), L0101 (Taken in 2013-14 and 2014-15)

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

POL472H1 - The Comparative Political Economy of Industrial Societies

Hours: 24S

Topics discussed will include the historical origins of advanced capitalist political economies, the 'Varieties of Capitalism' debate, current trajectories of different political economies, labour politics and regulation, the politics of macro-economic policy, the political economy of growth, and Canada's political economy.

Prerequisite: POL207Y1/ POL224Y1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

POL474H1 - Politics and Policy Analysis

Hours: 24S

Major theories of public policy-making and related approaches to policy analysis are examined from the perspective of political science. Key contributions to the theoretical literature pertaining to leading models are read and discussed. Models of public policy-making are successively applied to analysis of cases of Canadian and comparative policy development.

Prerequisite: POL214Y1/ POL214Y5/ POLB50Y3/ POL224Y1/ POL317H1/ POL317Y1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

POL475Y1 - Post-Modern and Contemporary Thought

Previous Course Number: JPD439Y1

Hours: 48S

The development of post-modern thought, particularly in French social philosophy, is examined. Topics such as the nature of exchange, the impact of technology, virtual reality, and the digital class are explored. Authors include Jean Baudrillard, Paul Virilio, Gilles Deleuze, Arthur Kroker, Francois Lyotard.

Exclusion: JPD439Y1

Recommended Preparation: POL200Y1/ POL200Y5/ ( POLC70H3, POLC71H3)

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

POL476H1 - Topics in Public Policy

Hours: 24S

The course is designed for advanced students with serious interests in the public policy field. Specific topics covered will vary from year to year.

Prerequisite: POL214Y1/ POL214Y5/ POLB50Y3/ POL224Y1/ POL317H1/ POL317Y1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

POL476Y1 - Topics in Public Policy

Hours: 48S

The course is designed for advanced students with serious interests in the public policy field. Specific topics covered will vary from year to year.

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

POL478H1 - Topics in Methods

Hours: 24S

Various topics are taken up each year, the content of which depends on the instructor.

Prerequisite: POL232H1/ POL242Y1/ POL322H1/ equivalent

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

POL479H1 - Topics in Middle East Politics

Hours: 24S

The course examines the contemporary politics of the Middle East and North Africa. It seeks to examine the relative importance of political, socio-economic and ideological factors in the context of such issues as the resilience of authoritarianism, the rise of civil society, and the resurgence of Islamic activism. Theoretical discussion is followed by case studies.

Prerequisite: POL201Y1/( POLB90H3, POLB91H3); minimum 14 credits

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

POL480H1 - Studies in Comparative Political Theory

Hours: 36S

We will critically examine what “comparative political theory” is and what it would mean to genuinely “deparochialize” political theory, that is, to de-center Euro-American thought in the study of political ideas. The course neither presupposes background knowledge of any non-Western thought tradition, nor does it aspire to provide students with sufficient knowledge of particular traditions to ground serious scholarly contributions to this emerging field. To provide that background would require a series of specialized courses in, e.g., East Asian political thought, Indian political thought, Latin American political thought, Indigenous political thought, African political thought, and so on. Rather, the course aims at sharpening our understanding of (a) the purposes served by “deparochializing” political theory; and (b) the various methods by which we can seek to serve these purposes.

Prerequisite: POL200Y1/ POL200Y5/ POL320Y1/ POL320Y5/ JPP343H1/ JPP343Y1/( POLC70H3, POLC71H3)

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

POL481H1 - Geopolitics of Cyberspace

Hours: 24S

The Geopolitics of ICTs course is an intensive examination of the ways in which states and non-state actors are contesting the newly evolving terrain of global digital-electronic-telecommunications. Topics covered include Internet censorship and surveillance, information warfare, computer network attacks, hacktivism, and governance of global communications. The course is organized as a series of intensive modules. One feature of the class will be a "hands-on" analysis of censorship circumvention and network interrogation techniques at the Citizen Lab (<http://www.citizenlab.org/>).

Prerequisite: POL208Y1/ POL208Y5/( POLB80H3, POLB81H3)

Exclusion: POL481Y1/ POL486Y1 (taken in 2008-09)

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

POL482H1 - The Politics of Disease and Epidemic

Hours: 24S

Examines the mutually constitutive relationship between HIV/AIDS and the social, economic and political characteristics of its “host” society. Class readings focus on South Africa but students will each research key features of the epidemic in the developing country of their choice.

Prerequisite: POL201Y1/( POLB90H3, POLB91H3); minimum 14 credits

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

POL484H1 - Topics in Political Thought I

Hours: 24S

A seminar on a central problem in political thought. It proceeds through the reading of a small number of major texts. Content in any given year depends on instructor.

Introduction

Overview:

Portuguese is the sixth most widely used language in the world. It is spoken by more than two hundred and sixty million people on four continents inhabited by the Lusophone population: Europe, Africa, Asia, and the Americas. Twenty percent of all residents of the Western Hemisphere are Brazilians, a fact attesting to the truth that one out of every five Americans - North, Central, South - speaks Portuguese as his or her native language. The literature of Portugal has a tradition that goes back as far as the twelfth century, and the discoveries of its Renaissance seafarers led the language and the culture to all corners of the globe.

The Department offers an integrated curriculum, combining courses in language, linguistics, literature and culture. Courses in the studies of the Lusophone world provide a diverse, flexible and detailed examination of the Portuguese language and its cultures. The skills and knowledge developed in these courses lay the groundwork for careers in teaching, journalism, translation, publishing, and foreign services, as well as for research in a variety of fields. In the Canadian job market, command of Portuguese language is a definite advantage. Toronto has one of the largest Portuguese speaking diasporas, and Canada has been establishing strong cultural, political and business ties with Brazil.

Why should I learn Portuguese?

- Portuguese gives you access to a rich and fascinating culture.
- Portuguese is the world's sixth most widely spoken language.
- Portuguese is a mother tongue in the 5 continents, parallel only to English and Spanish.
- Portuguese is the most widely spoken language in the Southern Hemisphere.
- Portuguese unites Portuguese-speaking diasporas all over the world in countries such as Canada, the United States, South-Africa, France or Switzerland.
- Portuguese has one of the highest growth rates as a second language in the Internet, in social networks and in learning as a foreign language.
- Portuguese is a Romance language, so if you already know another Romance language (Spanish, Italian, etc.), you will find it easier to learn it.
- Portuguese is now the first foreign language in the educational system of many countries.
- Portuguese is the official language of some of the fastest growing economies in the world, namely Brazil and Angola.

What can I do with a degree in Portuguese?

- Education
- Marketing, Editing, Copywriting
- Journalism, Media
- Library and Information Sciences
- Public Relations
- Research
- Foreign Services/Foreign Affairs Specialist
- International development
- Political Aid
- National and international law

How is the program structured?

For many students, our program begins with the language sequence.

Language sequence:

1. The Department reserves the right to place students in the language course best suited to their linguistic preparation. Please contact Prof. Manuela Marujo (manuela.marujo@utoronto.ca) if you would like to take a Placement test to help you determine your level of linguistic competence in Portuguese.

2. Students who, in the department's assessment, have an adequate knowledge of Portuguese may be required to take a Portuguese literature or culture course instead of a language course at any level.

The progression of courses in the language sequence is designed to accommodate a wide range of previous language experience. Students are placed in the appropriate language course based on their proficiency as determined by departmental assessment.

Students who have had little to no previous experience in studying Portuguese may enrol in an intensive course, PRT100Y1.

Students who have a strong background in Spanish language (native fluency or minimum SPA320Y1), should enrol in PRT120Y1.

Students who have had previous experience in studying Portuguese may enrol in several intermediate and advanced courses, depending on their background and their level of preparation. Speakers with an intermediate level of Portuguese, including those who successfully completed PRT100Y1 or PRT120Y1, should enrol in PRT220Y1.

Those students who have had exposure to spoken Portuguese in an informal context (i.e., those who live in a Portuguese-speaking environment; for instance, those who have grown up in a Portuguese-speaking country, or who live in Portuguese speaking families), but who have had little to no exposure to written Portuguese, should enrol in PRT219Y1. Students who qualify for this course are able to understand and speak Portuguese. They speak Portuguese relatively fluently, but they usually do not write or read Portuguese.

Students who have completed PRT219Y1 or PRT220Y1, should proceed to PRT320Y1. Those students who come to the program with an advanced level of Portuguese as assessed by the department, should also proceed to take PRT320Y1.

Following PRT320Y1, students are qualified to enrol in PRT420H1. This course is appropriate for students with a relatively high vocabulary base and good command of grammar who need to increase their lexicon, and who need further formal instruction in grammar and writing.

PRT423H1, a course for advanced speakers of Portuguese, trains students to develop their skills in a range of professional language fields, such as finances, law, medicine and education.

Students who are unsure of what is the most appropriate placement for them in the language sequence should contact the Associate Chair of the department, Prof. Manuela Marujo (manuela.marujo@utoronto.ca) to receive personal assessment and recommendation for proper placement.

Fluent speakers of Portuguese who have received a high school or a higher level of education in Portuguese language, and who in the department's assessment do not need further training in language, may enrol immediately in any linguistics, literature or culture course.

Literature, culture and linguistics courses:

Portuguese opens the door to a rich range of cultural expressions in literature, film, and art, from the world-changing contribution of Renaissance Portugal to the contemporary Brazilian and Luso-African diaspora. Whether it is Nobel-prize winning Portuguese literature or the excitement of the Brazilian cinema novo, Lusophone writers, filmmakers, and artists continue to shape and change contemporary global culture.

Portuguese also opens the door to the study of the Romance language family. The Department offers students the opportunity to advance their language skills through the systematic reflection on the language structure. Through a variety of courses with a theoretical and experimental focus in linguistics, students acquire basic skills that can be transferred to teaching or research programs. Through collaboration with other language and linguistics programs, students are provided with opportunities and training to conduct research in linguistics with a focus on Portuguese language.

The Department encourages students to consider completing part of their course work at a university in Portugal or Brazil.

Students should contact the Undergraduate Coordinator early on in the course of their university career to receive advice on how to proceed with their studies, and to thus assure that they can receive their degree by the time of planned graduation. Consult Professor Sanda Munjic, Department of Spanish and Portuguese.

4 full courses or their equivalent, including at least one course at the 300+ level.

First Year:

PRT100Y1/ PRT220Y1; PRT219Y1 (for native / bilingual speakers of Spanish)

Second Year:

PRT220Y1 / PRT320Y1;

Third Year:

PRT320Y1

Additional PRT courses to make four (4.0 FCE) courses. Up to one full-course (1.0 FCE) equivalent of cognate credit may be taken in Spanish.

Faculty of Arts & Science Language Citation

The Department of Spanish and Portuguese participates in the Faculty of Arts and Science's Language Citation initiative for Portuguese. For a full description of the Language Citation requirements, see the Calendar in the "Degree Requirements" section.

To complete the language citation in Portuguese students will normally complete the two language-sequence courses that follow the introductory level:

PRT219Y1 or PRT220Y1
PRT320Y1

Native and bilingual speakers should complete PRT219Y1 and two additional half-courses in Portuguese in the 300- or 400-series.

Students should note that, as explained in this Calendar, the Language Citation is not equivalent to an academic program and that enrolment in a program is not necessary in order to earn the recognition bestowed by the Citation.

To request the citation, e-mail your request with your student ID number to the Undergraduate Coordinator (spanport.undergraduate@utoronto.ca).

Regarding Portuguese Courses

First Year Seminars

The 199Y1 and 199H1 seminars are designed to provide the opportunity to work closely with an instructor in a class of no more than twenty-four students. These interactive seminars are intended to stimulate the students' curiosity and provide an opportunity to get to know a member of the professorial staff in a seminar environment during the first year of study. Details can be found at www.artsci.utoronto.ca/current/course/fyh-1/.

Notes

1. The Department reserves the right to place students in the language course best suited to their linguistic preparation.
2. Students who, in the department's assessment, have an adequate knowledge of Portuguese may be required to take a Portuguese linguistics, literature or culture course instead of a language course at any level.

Portuguese Courses

PRT100Y1 - Portuguese for Beginners

Hours: 48L/48T

Introduction to the Portuguese language for beginning students. Overview of basic grammatical structures, development of vocabulary and oral and written expression.

Prerequisite: No previous knowledge of Portuguese.

Exclusion: PRT110Y1, PRT120Y1, PRT219Y1, PRT220Y1, PRT320Y1, PRT420H1, PRT420Y1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

PRT120Y1 - Portuguese for Spanish Speakers

Hours: 48L/24T

Introduction to the Portuguese language for speakers of Spanish. Overview of basic grammatical structures, development of vocabulary and oral and written expression.

Prerequisite: Native (or near-native) knowledge of Spanish (min. SPA320Y for non-native speakers of Spanish); no previous knowledge of Portuguese.

Exclusion: PRT100Y1, PRT110Y1, PRT219Y1/ PRT220Y1

Recommended Preparation: Native knowledge of Spanish; or min. equivalency of SPA320Y.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

PRT219Y1 - Academic Portuguese

Hours: 48L/24T

Meets the needs of students who have had exposure to spoken Portuguese in an informal context (living in a Portuguese speaking country, or in a Portuguese speaking family) but little to no exposure to written Portuguese. The course reviews English/ Portuguese spelling differences; written and spoken registers of Portuguese, and basic aspects of the grammatical system. The course (1) provides students with the essential understanding of Portuguese grammatical system; (2) builds their vocabulary; and (3) trains them to express themselves formally in both spoken and written Portuguese.

Prerequisite: Basic to relatively high ability to speak and understand Portuguese; limited or no formal education in Portuguese.

Exclusion: PRT100Y1, PRT110Y1, PRT120Y1, PRT220Y1

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

PRT220Y1 - Intermediate Portuguese

Hours: 48L/24T

Intermediate Portuguese for non-natives. Intensive grammar review of the structures of Portuguese integrated with an introduction to reading authentic Portuguese material, with practice designed to build vocabulary and to improve oral and written expression.

Prerequisite: PRT100Y1/ PRT120Y1

Exclusion: PRT219Y1/ PRT110Y1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

PRT221H1 - Portuguese Pronunciation

Hours: 24L

Overview of Portuguese speech sounds (articulation and transcription). The course provides perception and pronunciation training of Portuguese vowels, consonants, stress, intonation, and co-articulation phenomena in connected speech. The main focus will be on European Portuguese but the most relevant differences between European and Brazilian Portuguese and other accents will be discussed.

Prerequisite: PRT100Y1

Corequisite: PRT120Y1/ PRT220Y1

Exclusion: PRT219Y1, native speakers of Portuguese

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PRT250H1 - Introduction to Lusophone Culture

Hours: 24L

A survey of historical and cultural trends in the Portuguese-speaking world, from colonial past to the present. (Offered in alternate years; taught in English)

Exclusion: PRT252

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

PRT258H1 - Introduction to Lusophone Literature

Previous Course Number: PRT258Y1

Hours: 3L

Introduction to literary studies in Portuguese and information literacy. Representative selection of Lusophone prose, poetry, and drama, with focus on critical terminology and methods of literary analysis. Required for a program degree.

Exclusion: PRT258Y1

Recommended Preparation: PRT219Y1/ PRT220Y1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

PRT299Y1 - Research Opportunity Program

Hours: TBA

Credit course for supervised participation in faculty research project. Details at <http://www.artsci.utoronto.ca/current/course/rop>. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

PRT320Y1 - Advanced Portuguese

Hours: 48L/24T

Intensive practice in written and oral Portuguese for the advanced student. Selective review of grammar with emphasis on complex language structures.

Prerequisite: PRT219Y1/ PRT220Y1 or equivalent

Exclusion: PRT420Y1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

PRT322H1 - Introduction to Portuguese Linguistics

Hours: 24L

An overview of theoretical and methodological aspects of Portuguese linguistics (phonology, morphology, syntax and semantics). Students will work on hands-on problem sets and will analyze structural similarities and differences between the two worldwide main Portuguese varieties - Brazilian and European Portuguese.

Prerequisite: PRT219Y1/ PRT220Y1

Corequisite: PRT320Y1

Recommended Preparation: PRT320Y1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PRT342H1 - History of Portuguese Language

Hours: 24L

This interdisciplinary course provides an overview of the evolution of Portuguese language from 15th century to the present. It discusses linguistic change by analyzing text from a variety of genres in different historical periods and geographical contexts.

Prerequisite: PRT219Y1/ PRT220Y1

Corequisite: PRT320Y1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PRT350H1 - Portuguese Language and Society

Hours: 24L

Explores how factors such as ethnicity, gender, social class and age affect the use of Portuguese language and determine its characteristics. The course overviews mostly the aspects of Brazilian and European Portuguese. (Offered in alternate years.)

Prerequisite: PRT219Y1/ PRT220Y1

Corequisite: PRT320Y1

Recommended Preparation: PRT320Y1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PRT356H1 - Topics in Portuguese Linguistics

Hours: 24S

A course on a specific topic in Portuguese linguistics, designed for advanced students. Course content and instructor are established on a yearly basis.

Prerequisite: PRT219Y1 / PRT220Y1

Corequisite: PRT320Y1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PRT358H1 - Topics in Portuguese Studies

Hours: 24L

In years when this course is offered, topics are described in detail on the departmental webpage. Students can enrol in this course multiple times, as long as the topic of the course is different. For any questions, please check with the department.

Prerequisite: PRT219Y1/ PRT220Y1, PRT258H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

PRT364H1 - Portuguese Language in the World

Hours: 24L

An overview of the varieties of Portuguese spoken in four continents (Europe, South America, Africa, Asia) and a discussion of the structural similarities and differences between the two most extensively studied varieties: European and Brazilian Portuguese. Analysis of linguistic variation in contemporary Portuguese in terms of phonetics, syntax and lexicon. (Offered in alternate years.)

Prerequisite: PRT219Y1/ PRT220Y1

Recommended Preparation: PRT320Y1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PRT368H1 - Brazilian Indigenous Languages

Hours: 24L

Overview of linguistic diversity of Brazil, current practices in the maintenance and revitalization of languages and strategies for empowering indigenous peoples. Linguistic properties of Brazilian languages; introduction to language description by working on small data sets; discussion of the influence of Brazilian indigenous languages on Brazilian Portuguese. Taught in English. (Offered in alternate years.)

Prerequisite: Any 200-level course

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PRT398H0 - Research Excursions

Hours: TBA

An instructor-supervised group project in an off-campus setting. Details at <http://www.artsci.utoronto.ca/current/course/rep>. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

PRT398Y0 - Research Excursions

Hours: TBA

An instructor-supervised group project in an off-campus setting. Details at <http://www.artsci.utoronto.ca/current/course/rep>. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

PRT399Y1 - Research Opportunity Program

Hours: TBA

Credit course for supervised participation in faculty research project. Details at <http://www.artsci.utoronto.ca/current/course/rop>. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

PRT420H1 - Advanced Academic Portuguese

Hours: 24L

A study of advanced aspects of formal Portuguese through reading and extensive writing practice, with an aim at developing skills necessary for academic and professional writing and oral presentations.

Prerequisite: PRT320Y1 or equivalent

Exclusion: PRT420Y1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

PRT423H1 - Portuguese in the Work Context

Hours: 24L/12P

This experiential learning course provides opportunities for students to develop language on a range of topics from financial, legal, medical to educational. It trains students in cross-cultural competence through immersion in work context.

Prerequisite: PRT320Y1

Recommended Preparation: PRT420H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

PRT455H1 - Lusophone Cinema

Hours: 24L

Introduction

Psychology is the branch of science that focuses on the behaviour of human beings and animals. Our courses span the various areas of psychology and introduce students to the methods used in psychological research. The basic tools of a research psychologist include experimentation in the laboratory and field, naturalistic observation, and the use of statistical methods in interpreting data.

Our faculty have highly diversified interests which are reflected in the number and variety of our undergraduate course offerings. These include courses in cognitive neuroscience, cognitive psychology, computational neuroscience, developmental psychology, human and animal learning, perception, personality psychology, physiological psychology, and social psychology.

Regarding Psychology Programs

Psychology programs at the St. George Campus are designated Type 2 Limited (2L), which means there are a finite number of spaces to offer students. Please note that just meeting the minimum admission requirements does not guarantee one a spot in any of our programs and, in most cases, students will need to exceed them to be competitive because of the volume of applications in comparison to the number of program spaces available.

Entry into all Psychology programs requires the minimum of a senior-level (Gr. 12) high school course in Calculus. Please note that this requirement will not be waived, nor can it be substituted with a different type of math course (i.e. Data Management, Algebra, Geometry, etc.). Students who completed PSY100Y1 before 1998 at the University of Toronto are exempt from the Calculus requirement. Also, effective for admission to the University starting in September 2019, a grade 12 credit in biology will be required.

Psychology Programs

Psychology Research Specialist - Thesis (Science Program) - ASSPE1958

Description:

This program is designed for students who have demonstrated a particular interest and aptitude for research and who want to complete a thesis. Admission to the program is based on strong academic performance and expressed interest in research.

Enrolment Requirements:

Students should apply at the end of their second year and begin the program in their third. Interested students should ideally apply for a PSY Major or Specialist (Non-thesis) at the end of their first year. All students accepted into or considering the Research Specialist program should enrol in a PSY lab course in their third year. In addition to applying in the spring via the Arts & Science website, students may also apply directly to the department in the fall of their third year and begin the program that January. The deadline for the second round of applications is usually in October. More information on the fall applications can be found at <http://home.psych.utoronto.ca/undergraduate/info/rsp.htm>.

The Research Specialist program is a Type 3 program and, therefore, enrolment is limited to no more than 15 students per year. Eligibility is highly competitive and based on the following criteria. Please note that meeting the following minimum requirements does not guarantee admission.

- PSY100H1 with a final mark of at least 80% (AP and IB Psychology are not accepted)
- A senior-level (Gr. 12) high school course in Calculus
- A senior-level (Gr. 12) high school course in Biology (effective for entry in Spring 2020)
- Completion of at least 8 FCEs
- Completion of PSY201H1 and PSY202H1 (or equivalent courses in statistics), with an overall average of at least 75%
- Minimum completion of an additional 2 FCEs at the 200-level in PSY (taken from the PSY210H1 - PSY290H1 series), with an overall average of at least 78% taken from the top four grades (this does not include PSY201H1 or PSY202H1)

NOTE: For students entering University for September 2019 or later, it is recommended to have a grade 12 biology credit, as it will be needed for admission to any Psychology program of study.

Completion Requirements:

Required Courses (10 FCEs):

1. First Year: PSY100H1
2. Statistics: PSY201H1 and PSY202H1 (or equivalent courses in statistics)
3. 1 FCE from PSY210H1, PSY220H1, PSY230H1, PSY240H1 (Cluster A)
4. 1 FCE from PSY260H1, PSY270H1, PSY280H1, PSY290H1 (Cluster B)
5. 0.5 FCE in PSY at the 300/400-level from Group 1 in Cluster A
6. 0.5 FCE in PSY at the 300/400-level from Group 1 in Cluster B
7. 1 FCE in PSY at the 300/400-level from Group 1 (any Cluster)
8. One lab course (0.5 FCE), and no more, taken from PSY319H1, PSY329H1, PSY339H1, PSY359H1, PSY369H1, PSY379H1, or PSY389H1
9. PSY309H1
10. PSY409H1
11. PSY400Y1
12. 2 FCEs from Groups 1 and/or 2, at any level

(Please note that these are all individual requirements and cannot overlap or be used twice).

Psychology Specialist (Science Program) - ASSPE1160

Description:

You should consider pursuing the Specialist Program in Psychology if you want a greater concentration in Psychology than provided by the Major Program. Please note that having a Specialist is not required in order to be admitted to a graduate program in Psychology later on.

Enrolment Requirements:

The Specialist is a Type 2L (Limited) program that can only accept a limited number of students. The quantity of applications received in a given year always far exceeds the number of spaces available in the program. Eligibility will be based on the following criteria, however, achieving the minimum marks listed does not guarantee admission to the Specialist in any given year. Please have a back-up plan/program in place, should you not be admitted.

Applying with fewer than 8 FCEs completed:

- PSY100H1 with a final mark of at least 80% (AP and IB Psychology are not accepted)
- A senior-level (Gr. 12) high school course in Calculus
- A senior-level (Gr. 12) high school course in Biology (effective for entry in Spring 2020)
- Completion of at least 4 FCEs

Applying with 8 or more FCEs completed:

- Completion of PSY100H1 (AP and IB Psychology are not accepted)
- A senior-level (Gr. 12) high school course in Calculus
- A senior-level (Gr. 12) high school course in Biology (effective for entry in Spring 2020)
- Completion of at least 8 FCEs
- PSY201H1 and PSY202H1 (or equivalent courses in statistics), plus at least 1 FCE in PSY at the 200-level (taken from the PSY210H1 - PSY290H1 series) with an average of 75%* across all four courses. If more than two PSY 200-levels have been completed, we will take the two with the highest grades.

NOTE: For students entering University for September 2019 or later, it is recommended to have a grade 12 biology credit, as it will be needed for admission to any Psychology program of study.

* In past admission cycles, the average grade cut-off for the Specialist program ranged from approximately 83-86%. This may vary from year to year, and can even be higher.

Completion Requirements:

Required Courses (10 FCEs):

1. First Year: PSY100H1
2. Statistics: PSY201H1 and PSY202H1 (or equivalent courses in statistics)
3. 1 FCE from PSY210H1, PSY220H1, PSY230H1, PSY240H1 (Cluster A)
4. 1 FCE from PSY260H1, PSY270H1, PSY280H1, PSY290H1 (Cluster B)
5. 0.5 FCE in PSY at the 300/400-level from Group 1 in Cluster A
6. 0.5 FCE in PSY at the 300/400-level from Group 1 in Cluster B
7. 1.5 FCEs in PSY at the 300/400-level from Group 1 (any Cluster)
8. One lab course (0.5 FCE), and no more, taken from PSY319H1, PSY329H1, PSY339H1, PSY359H1, PSY369H1, PSY379H1, or PSY389H1
9. Two seminar courses (1 FCE), and no more, taken from JLP471H1, PSY410H1, PSY420H1, PSY430H1, PSY440H1, PSY460H1, PSY470H1, PSY471H1, PSY480H1, PSY490H1, PSY497H1
10. 2.5 FCEs from Groups 1 and/or 2, at any level

(Please note that these are all individual requirements and cannot overlap or be used twice).

Psychology Major (Science Program) - ASMAJ1160

Description:

You should consider pursuing the Major Program in Psychology if you want to concentrate in Psychology together with another discipline.

Enrolment Requirements:

The Major is a Type 2L (Limited) program that can only accept a limited number of students. The quantity of applications received in a given year always far exceeds the number of spaces available in the program. Eligibility will be based on the following criteria, however, achieving the minimum marks listed does not guarantee admission to the Major in any given year. Please have a back-up plan/program in place, should you not be admitted.

Applying with fewer than 8 FCEs completed:

- PSY100H1 with a final mark of at least 75% (AP and IB Psychology are not accepted)
- A senior-level (Gr. 12) high school course in Calculus
- A senior-level (Gr. 12) high school course in Biology (effective for entry in Spring 2020)
- Completion of at least 4 FCEs

Applying with 8 or more FCEs completed:

- Completion of PSY100H1 (AP and IB Psychology are not accepted)
- A senior-level (Gr. 12) high school course in Calculus
- A senior-level (Gr. 12) high school course in Biology (effective for entry in Spring 2020)
- Completion of at least 8 FCEs
- PSY201H1 (or equivalent course in statistics), plus at least 1 FCE in PSY at the 200-level (taken from the PSY210H1 - PSY290H1 series) with an average of 73%* across all three courses. If more than two PSY 200-levels have been completed, we will take the two with the highest grades.

NOTE: For students entering University for September 2019 or later, it is recommended to have a grade 12 biology credit, as it will be needed for admission to any Psychology program of study.

* In past admission cycles, the average grade cut-off for the Major program ranged from approximately 80-84%. This may vary from year to year, and can even be higher.

Completion Requirements:

Required Courses (7 FCEs):

1. First Year: PSY100H1
2. Statistics: PSY201H1 (or an equivalent course in statistics)
3. 1 FCE from PSY210H1, PSY220H1, PSY230H1, PSY240H1 (Cluster A)
4. 1 FCE from PSY260H1, PSY270H1, PSY280H1, PSY290H1 (Cluster B)
5. 0.5 FCE in PSY at the 300/400-level from Group 1 in Cluster A
6. 0.5 FCE in PSY at the 300/400-level from Group 1 in Cluster B
7. 1 FCE in PSY at the 300/400-level from Group 1 (any Cluster)
8. 0.5 FCE in PSY at the 400-level from Group 1 (any Cluster)
9. 1.5 FCEs from Groups 1 and/or 2, at any level

(Please note that these are all individual requirements and cannot overlap or be used twice).

Environment & Behaviour Minor (Science Program) - ASMIN1551

Completion Requirements:

(4 full courses or their equivalent; must include at least one full course equivalent at the 300+-level.

Enrolment in the Minor program is limited to students also enrolled in the Psychology Minor/Major/Specialist.

Higher Years:

1. ENV221H1, ENV222H1, PSY220H1, PSY335H1/ PSY435H1
2. One FCE from ENV333H1, ENV335H1; ENV361H1/ ENV381H1 (if ENV381H1 taken in 2015-16 or 2016-17); JGE321H1; JGE331H1; SOC385H1
3. One FCE from PSY320H1, PSY321H1, PSY327H1/ PSY427H1, PSY336H1

Psychology Minor (Science Program) - ASMIN1160

Description:

You should consider pursuing the Minor Program in Psychology if you are interested in Psychology as a part of your general education or as a compliment to your training in another profession (i.e., nursing, rehabilitation medicine, physical health and education, social work, etc.).

Enrolment Requirements:

The Minor is a Type 2L (Limited) program that can only accept a limited number of students. The quantity of applications received in a given year always far exceeds the number of spaces available in the program. Eligibility will be based on the following criteria; however, achieving the minimum marks listed does not guarantee admission to the Minor in any given year. Please have a back-up plan/program in place, should you not be admitted.

Applying with fewer than 8 FCEs completed:

- PSY100H1 with a final mark of at least 73% (AP and IB Psychology are not accepted)
- A senior-level (Gr. 12) high school course in Calculus
- A senior-level (Gr. 12) high school course in Biology (effective for entry in Spring 2020)
- Completion of at least 4 FCEs

Applying with 8 or more FCEs completed:

- Completion of PSY100H1 (AP and IB Psychology are not accepted)
- A senior-level (Gr. 12) high school course in Calculus
- A senior-level (Gr. 12) high school course in Biology (effective for entry in Spring 2020)
- Completion of at least 8 FCEs
- PSY201H1 (or equivalent course in statistics), plus at least 1 FCE in PSY at the 200-level (taken from the PSY210H1 - PSY290H1 series) with an average of 70%* across all three courses. If more than two PSY 200-levels have been completed, we will take the two with the highest grades.

NOTE: For students entering University for September 2019 or later, it is recommended to have a grade 12 biology credit, as it will be needed for admission to any Psychology program of study.

* In past admission cycles, the average grade cut-off for the Minor program ranged from approximately 77-79%. This may vary from year to year, and can even be higher.

Completion Requirements:

Required Courses (4 FCEs):

1. First Year: PSY100H1
2. Statistics: PSY201H1 (or an equivalent course in statistics)
3. 1 FCE from PSY210H1/ PSY220H1/ PSY230H1/ PSY240H1/ PSY260H1/ PSY270H1/ PSY280H1/ PSY290H1
4. 1 FCE in PSY at the 300/400-level from Group 1 (any Cluster)
5. 1 FCE from Groups 1 and/or 2, at any level

(Please note that these are all individual requirements and cannot overlap or be used twice).

Psychology of Economics and Management Certificate - ASCER1160

Description:

The Certificate in Psychology of Economics and Management explores the interdisciplinary connections between social psychology, economics, and business, covering the role of motivation, culture and leadership in organizations. This Certificate is not open to students pursuing a Psychology Specialist, Major, or Minor.

Enrolment Requirements:

This is a limited enrolment Certificate with only a certain number of spaces available. A minimum grade is required for the following courses in order to enrol:

- PSY100H1 (grade of 70%)
- RSM100H1/ MGT100H1/ ECO101H1 (grade of 63%)

This Certificate is not open to students enrolled in a Psychology Specialist, Major, or Minor.

Note: For the 2018 enrolment period, this Certificate will be available in the second round of enrolment only.

Completion Requirements:

(3.0 FCE)

In first year or higher (1.0 FCE):

- PSY100H1 (grade of 70%)
- RSM100H1/ MGT100H1/ ECO101H1 (grade of 63%)

In second year and higher (2.0 FCE):

- PSY220H1
- PSY332H1 or RSM260H1
- 1.0 FCE from: PSY326H1, PSY321H1, PSY336H1, PSY322H1

Group 1 Courses:

Some PSY courses are included in both of Clusters A and B and may count in either cluster, but not both, for program requirements. For Individual Projects or Special Topics courses being used to complete the cluster requirement, please confirm group cluster with the Undergraduate Administrator (PSY405H1/405Y1/406H1/406Y1 and PSY307H1/308H1/407H1/408H1). No more than 1 FCE of PSY405H1/405Y1/406H1/406Y1 can be used towards any PSY program. PSY202H1, PSY299Y1, PSY305H1, and PSY399Y1 can also be used towards program requirements as part of the final requirement for each program (except for PSY202H1 with the Specialist programs, as they are already required).

Group 2 Courses:

Please note that the non-PSY courses in Group 2 are optional and that enrolment priority is not given to PSY program students.

Combined Degree Program (CDP) in Science and Education: Psychology (Major), Honours Bachelor of Science/Master of Teaching

The Combined Degree Program in Arts/Science and Education is designed for students interested in studying the intersections of teaching subjects and Education, coupled with professional teacher preparation. Students earn an Honours Bachelor's degree from the Faculty of Arts and Science (St. George) and an accredited professional Master of Teaching (MT) degree from the Ontario Institute for Studies in Education (OISE). They will be recommended to the Ontario College of Teachers for an Ontario Teacher's Certificate of Qualifications as elementary or secondary school teachers. The CDP permits the completion of both degrees in six years with 1.0 FCE that may be counted towards both the undergraduate and graduate degrees.

Program requirements:

1. Minor in Education and Society, Victoria College
2. Major in Psychology (first teaching subject)
3. Minor in an area corresponding to the second teaching subject as determined by OISE
(see http://pepper.oise.utoronto.ca/~jhewitt/mtresources/intermediate\_senior\_teaching\_subject\_prerequisites\_2016-17.pdf)

See here for additional information on the CDP, including admission, path to completion and contact information.

Regarding Psychology Courses

We encourage students at all levels, and particularly those who are beginning a program in Psychology, to consult the undergraduate section of the Psychology web site (<http://home.psych.utoronto.ca/undergraduate.htm>) before selecting courses and to discuss their proposed programs with the Undergraduate Administrator.

Courses in the various areas within Psychology and the numbering system associated with these courses follow a specific pattern: PSYXXX. The first digit represents the year, and the second digit represents the area in which the course belongs. Social Psychology, for example, is identified by "2." Therefore, PSY220 at the second year, PSY320, 321, 322, etc. at the third year, and PSY420, 421, 424, etc. at the fourth year represent the Social Psychology courses. Other areas within Psychology follow a similar pattern, with their own identifying number in the middle.

Please note that the Dept. of Psychology will not waive course prerequisites under any circumstances and that Psychology courses do not have co-requisites. Students will need to have prerequisites completed BEFORE taking a course.

First-Year Seminars

The 199Y1 and 199H1 seminars are designed to provide the opportunity to work closely with an instructor in a class of no more than twenty-four students. These interactive seminars are intended to stimulate the students' curiosity and provide an opportunity to get to know a member of the professorial staff in a seminar environment during the first year of study. Details can be found at www.artsci.utoronto.ca/current/course/fyh-1/.

200-Series Courses

Students registered in a St. George campus PSY program will be given priority to enrol in all PSY courses above the 100-level. Please see the online Arts and Science Registration Instructions and Timetable for more details on enrolment controls.

300-Series Courses

Almost all 300/400-level lecture courses require PSY201H1 (Statistics I), or its equivalent, as one of their prerequisites. This will not be waived. Students must complete the statistics requirement before taking any 300- or 400-level PSY lecture courses. Similarly, 300-level lab and 400-level seminar courses require PSY202H1 (Statistics II) or its equivalent.

400-Series Courses

The 400-series courses comprise of lecture courses, seminars, individual projects, and the thesis course for Research Specialists.

Psychology Courses

PSY100H1 - Introductory Psychology

Hours: 36L

A brief introductory survey of psychology as both a biological and social science. Topics will include physiological, learning, perceptual, motivational, cognitive, developmental, personality, abnormal, and social psychology.

Prerequisite: None

Exclusion: PSY100Y5/ PSYA01Y3/( PSYA01H3 + PSYA02H3)

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PSY201H1 - Statistics I

Hours: 36L

Fundamentals of descriptive and inferential statistics, including population and sampling distributions, simple association, probability, estimation, and hypothesis testing.

Prerequisite: PSY100H1

Exclusion: ECO220Y1/ ECO227Y1/ EEB225H1/ GGR270H1/ HMB325H1/ POL232H1/ POL242Y1/ SOC202H1/ STA220H1/ STA248H1/ STA288H1

Recommended Preparation: Grade 12 Calculus

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

PSY202H1 - Statistics II

Hours: 36L

Fundamentals of statistical analysis of experimental and observational data including linear models, the analysis of variance, a priori contrasts, post-hoc tests, power analysis and effect size calculations.

Prerequisite: PSY201H1 (or exclusion)

Exclusion: ECO220Y1/ ECO227Y1/ STA221H1/ SOC252H1/ SOC300H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

PSY210H1 - Introduction to Development

Hours: 36L

The developmental approach to the study of behaviour with reference to sensorimotor skills, cognition, socialization, personality, and emotional behaviour.

Prerequisite: PSY100H1/ COG250Y1

Exclusion: PSY210H5/ PSYB20H3/ PSYB21H3

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PSY220H1 - Introduction to Social Psychology

Hours: 36L

Contemporary areas of research in social psychology: social perception, attitudes, inter-personal relations, and group processes.

Prerequisite: PSY100H1/ COG250Y1

Exclusion: PSY220H5, PSYB10H3, SOC213H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PSY230H1 - Personality and Its Transformations

Hours: 36L

Theory and research in personality structure and dynamics: the interaction of cultural and biological factors in the development and expression of individual differences.

Prerequisite: PSY100H1/ COG250Y1

Exclusion: PSY230H5/ PSYB30H3

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PSY240H1 - Introduction to Abnormal Psychology

Hours: 36L

A critical survey of concepts, theories, and the state of research in the area of psychopathology and therapeutic methods.

Prerequisite: PSY100H1/ COG250Y1

Exclusion: PSY240H5/ PSYB32H3

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PSY260H1 - Learning and Plasticity

Hours: 36L

Concepts, theories, and applications of classical and contemporary learning theories, including classical and operant conditioning. Current theories of the physiological and anatomical basis of learning and memory, including synaptic plasticity, the role of the hippocampus, amygdala, frontal cortex and other brain regions. Theories will be related to a practical understanding and applications such as drug addiction, phobias and other disorders.

Prerequisite: PSY100H1/ COG250Y1, OR registered in the Cognitive Science program

Exclusion: PSY360H5/ PSYB45H3

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PSY270H1 - Introduction to Cognitive Psychology

Hours: 36L

An introduction to research and theory on the neural and cognitive architecture of attention, memory, language, thinking and reasoning.

Prerequisite: PSY100H1/ COG250Y1, OR registered in the Cognitive Science program

Exclusion: PSY270H5/ PSYB57H3

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PSY280H1 - Sensation and Perception

Hours: 36L

An introduction to the physiological and psychological basis of perception across the different sensory modalities in humans and lower animals, with an emphasis on vision. Exploring visual perception such as shape and objects, scenes, colour, space, and motion as well as auditory perception of simple and complex sounds, and location. Further topics may include touch, including perception of temperature, pain and body posture, the chemical senses, and cross-modal influences of the senses on one another. In-class demonstrations may supplement the lectures.

Prerequisite: PSY100H1/ COG250Y1, OR registered in the Cognitive Science program

Exclusion: PSY280H5/ PSYB51H3

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PSY290H1 - Physiological Psychology

Hours: 36L

Provides students with a solid background into the biological basis of behaviour. Animal and human research topics include functional neuroanatomy, neural signalling, sensory and motor control, motivational systems, and hormones, and emotions.

Prerequisite: PSY100H1/ COG250Y1, OR registered in the Cognitive Science program

Exclusion: HMB200H1/ HMB220H1/ PSL300H1/ PSY290H5/ PSYB64H3

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PSY299Y1 - Research Opportunity Program

Hours: TBA

Credit course for supervised participation in faculty research project. Details at <http://www.artsci.utoronto.ca/current/course/rop>. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Distribution Requirements: Science

PSY305H1 - The Treatment of Psychological Data

Hours: 36L

This course emphasizes the advanced use of statistical computer program packages for the treatment of psychological data collected in laboratory and field studies. Students analyze sets of data and interpret results. Various methods of ensuring the trustworthiness and accuracy of analysis are discussed.

Prerequisite: PSY202H1 (or exclusion)

Exclusion: EEB313H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

PSY306Y0 - Special Topics in Psychology Abroad

Hours: 48L

Special Topics in Psychology for the Summer Abroad Program. Course topics, content, and instructor may vary from one year to another. More information about Psychology course offerings can be obtained from the Professional & International Programs office at Woodsworth College.

Prerequisite: Registration in any psychology and/or social science Major or Specialist, and the completion of at least 8 FCEs.

Distribution Requirements: Science

PSY307H1 - Special Topics in Psychology

Hours: 36L

A lecture course providing in-depth examination of specific topics/themes relating to Psychology. Content in any given year depends on instructor. Priority is given to PSY Major program students during the first enrolment period.

Prerequisite: PSY100H1, PSY201H1 (or exclusion), and one further 200-level PSY half-course

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PSY308H1 - Special Topics in Psychology

Hours: 36L

A lecture course providing in-depth examination of specific topics/themes relating to Psychology. Content in any given year depends on instructor. Priority is given to PSY Major program students during the first enrolment period.

Prerequisite: PSY100H1, PSY201H1 (or exclusion), and one further 200-level PSY half-course

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PSY309H1 - Research Specialization: Practicum

Hours: 36P

Research Specialists learn about the research opportunities within our department, and develop skills in the areas of critical thinking, writing, and oral presentation. Students also conduct a pre-thesis research project under the supervision of a faculty member. Ideally, students should complete a PSY lab course (PSY3*9H1) prior to taking this course; however, taking the lab course concurrently is acceptable as well. Enrolment is restricted to PSY Research Specialists.

Prerequisite: PSY202H1 (or exclusion)

Corequisite: PSY319H1/ PSY329H1/ PSY339H1/ PSY359H1/ PSY369H1/ PSY379H1/ PSY389H1

Exclusion: PSY309H5

Distribution Requirements: Science

PSY311H1 - Social Development

Hours: 36L

Theory and research in social attachment, aggression, morality, imitation and identification, altruism, and parental discipline, with discussion of methodological issues.

Prerequisite: PSY201H1 (or exclusion), PSY210H1

Exclusion: PSY311H5/ PSYC21H3

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PSY312H1 - Cognitive Development

Hours: 36L

Examines the developmental of knowledge in fundamental domains such as spatial perception, navigation, object perception, number, language, and theory of mind. Emphasis is on current experimental findings and how they address centuries-old debates surrounding the origin and nature of human knowledge.

Prerequisite: PSY201H1 (or exclusion), PSY210H1, and PSY270H1/ COG250Y1

Exclusion: PSY312H5

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PSY313H1 - Psychology of Aging

Hours: 36L

Age changes in sensory and perceptual processes, motor skill, learning, memory, and personality. Theory, methodological problems, social, cultural, and environmental influences that shape behaviour and attitudes towards and among the elderly.

Prerequisite: PSY201H1 (or exclusion), PSY210H1

Exclusion: PSY213H5/ PSY313H5/ PSYC21H3

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

JLP315H1 - Language Acquisition

Hours: 36L

Infants' abilities at birth, prelinguistic development, the first words, phonological, syntactic and semantic development. Social variables influencing language acquisition, bilingualism, models of development, language play. (Sponsored by the Departments of Linguistics and Psychology, but administered solely by the Dept. of Linguistics).

Prerequisite: One full course equivalent at the 200+-level in LIN/JAL/JUP/PSL/PSY/COG

Exclusion: PSY315H5, PLIC24H3

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PSY316H1 - Perceptual Development

Hours: 36L

The course examines human perceptual development during the first 2-3 years of life. Vision and audition are emphasized. Some topics are: pattern and colour vision, depth perception, infant speech perception.

Prerequisite: PSY201H1 (or exclusion), PSY280H1

Exclusion: PSY316H5

Recommended Preparation: PSY210H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PSY319H1 - Developmental Laboratory

Hours: 36P

Provides an overview of developmental psychology methods. The class conducts an original research project, including design, data collection, data analysis, and a written report. Course capacity is limited to 15 students and priority is given to PSY Specialists and Research Specialists during the first enrolment period.

Prerequisite: PSY202H1 (or exclusion), PSY210H1

Exclusion: PSY319H5/ PSYC26H3

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PSY320H1 - Social Psychology: Attitudes

Hours: 36L

Intensive study of social attitude development, description, measurement, modification, and organization.

Prerequisite: PSY201H1 (or exclusion), PSY220H1

Exclusion: PSY320H5

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PSY321H1 - Cross-Cultural Psychology

Hours: 36L

One of the hallmarks of human behaviour is its diversity. Some of the ways in which we differ are thought to be relatively idiosyncratic (e.g., specific aspects of personality), whereas others are fairly systematic. Cultural psychology is one area of research in human behaviour that examines systematic differences resulting from individuals' cultural backgrounds. This course will introduce you to the consideration of cultural variation in the study of human thought and behaviour.

Prerequisite: PSY201H1 (or exclusion), PSY220H1

Exclusion: PSY321H5/ PSYC14H3

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PSY322H1 - Intergroup Relations

Hours: 36L

An in-depth examination of theories and research in intergroup relations; focuses on stereotyping, prejudice, discrimination, and stigma.

Prerequisite: PSY201H1 (or exclusion), PSY220H1

Exclusion: PSYC12H3

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PSY323H1 - Sex Roles and Behaviour

Hours: 36L

The effect of sex-role expectations on how men and women behave and perceive the world: theories of sex-role development, physiological and cultural determinants of sex differences, power relationships between men and women.

Prerequisite: PSY201H1 (or exclusion), PSY210H1/ PSY220H1/ PSY230H1/ PSY240H1

Exclusion: PSYD18H3

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PSY326H1 - Social Cognition

Hours: 36L

An examination of theory and research on how we make sense of ourselves and our social world. Topics covered include goals, mood, memory, hypothesis testing, counterfactual thinking, stereotypes, and culture.

Prerequisite: PSY201H1 (or exclusion), PSY220H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PSY328H1 - Psychology and the Law

Hours: 36L

This course deals with psychological issues in the law, with particular reference to criminal law. It focuses mainly on research that has been done on pretrial publicity, eyewitness testimony, rules of evidence, and other factors that might affect jury decisions.

Prerequisite: PSY201H1 (or exclusion), PSY220H1

Exclusion: PSY328H5/ PSYC39H3

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PSY329H1 - Social Psychology Laboratory

Hours: 36P

Illustrates major methodologies within social psychology, such as attitude measurement, observation of small groups, and experiments. Course capacity is limited to 15 students and priority is given to PSY Specialists and Research Specialists during the first enrolment period.

Prerequisite: PSY202H1 (or exclusion), PSY220H1

Exclusion: PSY329H5

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PSY330H1 - Psychometrics

Hours: 36L

Concepts and methods for the measurement of abilities, interests and personality: reliability, validity, interpretation of test scores, norms, observational methods, structured tests, interview, projective techniques. Ethical problems in assessment. Not a course in test administration.

Prerequisite: PSY201H1 (or exclusion)

Exclusion: PSY331H5/ PSYC37H3

Recommended Preparation: PSY202H1 (or exclusion), PSY230H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

PSY331H1 - Social Psychology of Emotion

Hours: 36L

An in-depth review of the role of emotion in human psychology, with an emphasis on the links between emotion and cognition. Topics include theories of emotion, emotion regulation, emotional expression, and emotional experience, the role of emotion in decision-making, and the relationships between emotion, motivation and behaviour.

Prerequisite: PSY201H1 (or exclusion), PSY220H1, and PSY230H1/ PSY240H1

Exclusion: PSYC18H3

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PSY332H1 - Organizational Behaviour

Hours: 36L

An analysis of the individual, group, and institutional structures and processes that influence behaviour within organizations. Topics include motivation, leadership, communication, management theory, group processes and team work, supervision, and organizational culture.

Prerequisite: PSY201H1 (or exclusion), PSY220H1/ PSY230H1

Exclusion: RSM260H1/ IRE260H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

PSY333H1 - Health Psychology

Hours: 36L

Examines research evidence concerning the impact of psychological factors on physical health and illness.

Prerequisite: PSY201H1 (or exclusion), PSY230H1/ PSY240H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PSY336H1 - Positive Psychology

Hours: 36L

A review of the field of positive psychology, which is the study of happiness and fulfillment. Topics include personal growth, meaning, hedonic and eudaimonic approaches to well-being, gratitude, awe, flow states, mindfulness and meditation.

Prerequisite: PSY201H1 (or exclusion), PSY220H1/ PSY230H1/ PSY240H1

Exclusion: PSY324H5

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PSY337H1 - Advanced Personality Psychology

Hours: 36L

This course covers major topics in personality psychology including prominent theories and current research in the area. Theoretical frameworks are integrated with specific applications in primary sources. Specific topics may include personality structure, personality development, psychodynamic approaches, genetic methodology, and emotion regulation.

Prerequisite: PSY201H1 (or exclusion), PSY230H1/ PSY240H1

Exclusion: PSYC35H3

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PSY339H1 - Individual Differences Laboratory

Hours: 36P

Introduction to methods involved in individual differences or personality research. Group and individual projects focus on assessment of individual difference characteristics and on experimentation including such characteristics. Course capacity is limited to 15 students and priority is given to PSY Specialists and Research Specialists during the first enrolment period.

Prerequisite: PSY202H1 (or exclusion), PSY220H1/ PSY230H1

Exclusion: PSY329H5

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PSY341H1 - Psychopathologies of Childhood

Hours: 36L

This course focuses on cognitive and neuropsychological aspects of neurodevelopmental and psychiatric disorders in children from clinical and theoretical perspectives.

Prerequisite: PSY201H1 (or exclusion), PSY210H1/ PSY230H1/ PSY240H1

Exclusion: PSY341H5

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PSY342H1 - Cognition and Psychopathology

Hours: 36L

Work in psychological disorders has increasingly used the theories and methodologies of cognitive psychology to guide research. This course will examine accounts of clinical disorders informed by cognitive experimental psychology, with emphasis on recent work in affective disorders.

Prerequisite: PSY201H1 (or exclusion), PSY230H1/ PSY240H1/ PSY270H1

Exclusion: PSY340H5

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PSY343H1 - Theories of Psychopathology and Psychotherapy

Hours: 36L

Examines various theories of how personality functioning may become impaired and corresponding psychotherapeutic interventions. Emphasis on empirical assessment of personality dysfunction and therapy effectiveness.

Prerequisite: PSY201H1 (or exclusion), PSY230H1/ PSY240H1

Exclusion: PSY343H5/ PSYC36H3

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PSY359H1 - Human Neuroimaging Laboratory

Hours: 36P

Introduction to brain imaging methods used in cognitive, developmental, and social neuroscience. Course projects will cover experimental design, imaging techniques, and data analysis. Course capacity is limited to 15 students and priority is given to PSY Specialists and Research Specialists during the first enrolment period.

Prerequisite: PSY202H1, PSY270H1/ PSY280H1, PSY210H1/ PSY220H1/ PSY230H1/ PSY240H1

Exclusion: HMB310H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PSY362H1 - Animal Cognition

Hours: 36L

The study of memory, representation, concept learning, and other cognitive processes in non-human animals.

Prerequisite: PSY201H1 (or exclusion), PSY260H1

Exclusion: PSY362H5

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PSY369H1 - Psychobiology Laboratory

Hours: 36P

Formerly numbered PSY399H1, this lab is an introduction to experimental methods in behavioural neuroscience, including neuroanatomical and psychopharmacological methods in rodents. Course projects will cover experimental design, laboratory techniques, data analysis, and scientific writing. Course capacity is limited to 12-15 students and priority is given to PSY Specialists and Research Specialists during the first enrolment period.

Prerequisite: PSY202H1 (or exclusion), PSY290H1/HMB200H1

Exclusion: HMB310H1/ PSY399H1/ PSY399H5/ PSYC06H3

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PSY370H1 - Thinking and Reasoning

Hours: 36L

Problem-solving as a model of directed thinking; conceptual behaviour and mental representation; induction, deduction and learning; probabilistic reasoning; creative thinking and complex problem solving.

Prerequisite: PSY270H1/ COG250Y1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PSY371H1 - Higher Cognitive Processes

Hours: 36L

This course covers selected topics pertaining to higher cognitive processes including expertise, consciousness, creativity, and human and artificial intelligence.

Prerequisite: PSY270H1/ PSY370H1/ COG250Y1

Exclusion: PSY371H5

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PSY372H1 - Human Memory

Hours: 36L

Current theories and data on human memory: processes involved in encoding, storage, and retrieval.

Prerequisite: PSY201H1 (or exclusion), PSY260H1/ PSY270H1/ COG250Y1

Exclusion: PSY372H5

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

JLP374H1 - Psychology of Language

Hours: 36L

In Psychology of Language, we investigate human and other animal communication, structure of human language, word meaning and semantic memory, psychological studies of syntax, bilingualism, language and thought, language errors and disorders. (Sponsored by the Departments of Linguistics and Psychology, but administered solely by the Dept. of Linguistics).

Prerequisite: One FCE from LIN228H1, LIN229H1, LIN232H1, LIN241H1, PSY260H1, PSY270H1, PSY280H1, PSY290H1, COG250Y1

Exclusion: LIN258H5, PSY374H5, PLIC55H3

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PSY378H1 - Engineering Psychology

Hours: 36L

The application of our knowledge of human information processing capabilities to improve human-machine systems design in a number of engineering environments including aviation, computer software, human-computer interaction, and nuclear power plants.

Prerequisite: PSY201H1 (or exclusion), PSY270H1/ PSY280H1/ COG250Y1

Recommended Preparation: PSY202H1 (or equivalent)

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PSY379H1 - Human Memory and Learning Laboratory

Hours: 36P

Examination of issues and methods in human memory research. Students conduct supervised research projects, and read, critique, and write research articles. Course capacity is limited to 15 students and priority is given to PSY Specialists and Research Specialists during the first enrolment period.

Prerequisite: PSY202H1 (or exclusion), PSY260H1/ PSY270H1/ COG250Y1

Exclusion: PSY379H5/ PSYC58H3

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PSY380H1 - Vision Science

Hours: 36L

Integrates psychology, neuroscience, and computer science approaches to the study of vision science. Topics include: spatial vision; perception of objects, function, and category; motion perception; visual attention, memory, and imagery; and consciousness. Demonstrations/in-class experiments supplement lectures and readings.

Prerequisite: PSY201H1 (or exclusion), PSY280H1

Exclusion: PSYC51H3

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PSY389H1 - Perception Laboratory

Hours: 36P

Examination of issues and methods in perception research. Students conduct supervised research projects, and read, critique, and write research articles. Course capacity is limited to 15 students and priority is given to PSY Specialists and Research Specialists during the first enrolment period.

Prerequisite: PSY202H1 (or exclusion), PSY280H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PSY390H1 - Behavioural Genetics

Hours: 36L

An examination of how genes contribute to the production of behaviour, either as structural elements or direct participants in behavioural regulation. Covers molecular genetics, natural selection, and genetic methods followed by specific examples of congenic disorders that affect behaviour and studies of normal behaviours in human and animal models.

Prerequisite: PSY201H1 (or exclusion), PSY260H1/ PSY290H1/ HMB200H1/ HMB265H1

Exclusion: PSY355H5

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PSY395H1 - Neuroethics

Hours: 36L

An examination of how developments in neurology and neuroscience can be used to inform ethical and legal issues related to free will, responsibility, competence, education, morality, and empathy in healthy people and in people with confirmed or suspected neurological disorders.

Prerequisite: PSY201H1 (or exclusion), PSY260H1/ PSY270H1/ PSY280H1/ PSY290H1

Recommended Preparation: Review of basic brain functions

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PSY396H1 - Neurochemical Basis of Behaviour

Hours: 36L

The functional relevance of neurotransmitters, with particular emphasis on their role in mediating behaviour.

Prerequisite: PSY201H1 (or exclusion), PSY290H1/ HMB200H1

Exclusion: PCL475Y1/ PSYC62H3

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PSY397H1 - Biological Rhythms

Hours: 36L

Daily, monthly, annual and other rhythms and methods of measuring them. Behavioural and physiological aspects of biological clocks. The importance of rhythms in experimental design, in research on brain function, in affective disorders, and the use animals make of rhythms in migration and other behaviours.

Prerequisite: PSY290H1/ HMB200H1/ PSL300H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PSY399Y1 - Research Opportunity Program

Hours: TBA

Credit course for supervised participation in faculty research project. Details at <http://www.artsci.utoronto.ca/current/course/rop>. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

PSY400Y1 - Research Specialization: Thesis

Hours: TBA

An individual thesis done under the direction of a faculty member. Lecture and seminar presentations of proposals in the Fall session. Enrolment is restricted to PSY Research Specialists. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: Enrolment in the PSY Research Specialist program, PSY309H1, and one of PSY319H1/ PSY329H1/ PSY339H1/ PSY359H1/ PSY369H1/ PSY379H1/ PSY389H1

Exclusion: PSY400Y5/ PSYC98Y3

Distribution Requirements: Science

PSY402H1 - Psychology Seminar

Hours: 24S

Examination in depth of specific topics in psychology at the graduate level. These seminars vary from year to year in terms of the number given, the topics, and the restrictions on enrolment. Students must get prior consent from the instructor of the graduate seminar they are interested in taking and submit this consent in writing to the department at which time you will be enrolled for undergraduate credit. Consult the Undergraduate Administrator for more details.

Distribution Requirements: Science

PSY403H1 - Psychology Seminar

Hours: 24S

Examination in depth of specific topics in psychology at the graduate level. These seminars vary from year to year in terms of the number given, the topics, and the restrictions on enrolment. Students must get prior consent from the instructor of the graduate seminar they are interested in taking and submit this consent in writing to the department at which time you will be enrolled for undergraduate credit. Consult the Undergraduate Administrator for more details.

Distribution Requirements: Science

PSY404H1 - Psychology Seminar

Hours: 24S

Examination in depth of specific topics in psychology at the graduate level. These seminars vary from year to year in terms of the number given, the topics, and the restrictions on enrolment. Students must get prior consent from the instructor of the graduate seminar they are interested in taking and submit this consent in writing to the department at which time you will be enrolled for undergraduate credit. Consult the Undergraduate Administrator for more details.

Distribution Requirements: Science

PSY406H1 - Individual Projects

Hours: TBA

An intensive laboratory or applied research project under the supervision of a Department of Psychology faculty member. Project must be academically demanding and uniquely suitable for the individual student. Additional information and applications are available at the department and on its website. This course is open to all Psychology program students.

Prerequisite: PSY202H1 (or exclusion), and appropriate background for the proposed work

Distribution Requirements: Science

PSY405H1 - Individual Projects

Hours: TBA

An intensive laboratory or applied research project under the supervision of a Department of Psychology faculty member. Project must be academically demanding and uniquely suitable for the individual student. Additional information and applications are available at the department and on its website. This course is open to all Psychology program students.

Prerequisite: PSY202H1 (or exclusion), and appropriate background for the proposed work

Distribution Requirements: Science

PSY406Y1 - Individual Projects

Hours: TBA

An intensive laboratory or applied research project under the supervision of a Department of Psychology faculty member. Project must be academically demanding and uniquely suitable for the individual student. Additional information and applications are available at the department and on its website. This course is open to all Psychology program students.

Prerequisite: PSY202H1 (or exclusion), and appropriate background for the proposed work

Distribution Requirements: Science

PSY405Y1 - Individual Projects

Hours: TBA

An intensive laboratory or applied research project under the supervision of a Department of Psychology faculty member. Project must be academically demanding and uniquely suitable for the individual student. Additional information and applications are available at the department and on its website. This course is open to all Psychology program students.

Prerequisite: PSY202H1 (or exclusion), and appropriate background for the proposed work

Distribution Requirements: Science

PSY407H1 - Special Topics in Psychology

Hours: 36L

A lecture course providing in-depth examination of specific topics/themes relating to Psychology. Content in any given year depends on instructor. Priority is given to PSY Major program students during the first enrolment period.

Prerequisite: PSY100H1, PSY201H1 (or exclusion), and one further 200-level PSY half-course

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PSY408H1 - Special Topics in Psychology

Hours: 36L

A lecture course providing in-depth examination of specific topics/themes relating to Psychology. Content in any given year depends on instructor. Priority is given to PSY Major program students during the first enrolment period.

Prerequisite: PSY100H1, PSY201H1 (or exclusion), and one further 200-level PSY half-course

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PSY409H1 - Research Specialization: Theoretical Foundations

Hours: 24S

Addresses the central theoretical issues that structure contemporary research in each of the major areas of psychology. The aim is to provide an informal overview of the field as a whole. Enrolment is restricted to PSY Research Specialists.

Prerequisite: Enrolment in the PSY Research Specialist program, PSY309H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PSY410H1 - Developmental Psychology Seminar

Hours: 24S

Examination in depth of a limited topic within developmental psychology. Content in any given year depends on instructor. Course capacity is limited to 20 students and enrolment priority is given to PSY Specialists and Research Specialists.

Prerequisite: PSY202H1 (or exclusion), PSY210H1

Exclusion: PSY410H5/ PSYD20H3

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PSY414H1 - Moral Development

Hours: 36L

Lecture courses examining cognitive-developmental, psychoanalytic, sociobiological, behaviouristic and cultural-anthropological approaches to moral development. Issues covered include definitions of morality, the relationship between moral judgement and action, gender differences and commonalities, and the role of culture in moral development.

Prerequisite: PSY201H1 (or exclusion), PSY210H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PSY417H1 - Aging and Social Cognition

Hours: 36L

Lecture course examining theory and research on the social cognitive aspect of aging. Topics range from impression formation and causal attributions to perceptions of control and emotions.

Prerequisite: PSY201H1 (or exclusion), PSY220H1

Exclusion: PSY415H5

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PSY420H1 - Social Psychology Seminar

Hours: 24S

Examination in depth of a limited topic within social psychology. Content in any given year depends on instructor. Course capacity is limited to 20 students and enrolment priority is given to PSY Specialists and Research Specialists.

Prerequisite: PSY202H1 (or exclusion), PSY220H1

Exclusion: PSY420H5/ PSYD12H3/ PSYD15H3/ PSYD16H3

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PSY421H1 - Person Perception

Hours: 36L

This lecture course discusses how we perceive, categorize, and form impressions of other people, relying on readings from primary sources in the scientific literature.

Prerequisite: PSY201H1 (or exclusion), PSY220H1, PSY230H1/ PSY240H1, and PSY270H1/ PSY280H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PSY424H1 - Social Psychology of Interpersonal Relationships

Hours: 36L

This lecture course focuses on the social psychology of interpersonal relationships between individuals, especially romantic or close relationships and friendships. It surveys what social psychologists have learned about the development, maintenance, disruption or dissolution of personal relationships, as well as current social psychological theories of interpersonal relationships.

Prerequisite: PSY201H1 (or exclusion), PSY220H1

Exclusion: PSY327H5/ PSYD11H3

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PSY425H1 - Self-Consciousness

Hours: 36L

The distinguishing feature of our species is the reflexivity of our consciousness - the ability to conceive of and interpret ourselves and our experiences. For us, consciousness involves self-consciousness. All our higher symbolic capabilities rest upon this foundation. The aim of this lecture course is to trace out a variety of frames through which we may examine and understand the shared aspects of our subjectivity as self-conscious agents. Using a multidisciplinary that draws together ideas and insights from psychology, sociology, philosophy, anthropology, and biology. The broader purpose of the course is to promote articulacy and critical acumen in how we think about reflexive experience.

Prerequisite: PSY201H1 (or exclusion), PSY220H1, PSY230H1/ PSY240H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PSY426H1 - Motivational Theories in Social Psychology

Hours: 36L

With intensive reading and discussion of 'classic' and contemporary articles, this advanced lecture course in social psychology focuses on the central issues, methods, and findings in the study of motivation. Topics include self-regulation, achievement, and reward/punishment.

Prerequisite: PSY201H1 (or equivalent), PSY220H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PSY427H1 - Media Psychology

Hours: 36L

This lecture course examines how we come to understand ourselves and our world, and learn to feel, judge, and act, through the simulative mediation of personal and mass communication technologies. The aim is to provide students with a deeper understanding of the highly commodified symbolic environment that surrounds them and in which they participate as audience and, increasingly, producer. Although the focus is psychological, the history, sociology, political economy, and technology of various media will be discussed in relation to the changing forms of public and private life in the 21st century.

Prerequisite: PSY201H1 (or equivalent), PSY220H1, and PSY230H1/ PSY240H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PSY428H1 - Critical Psychology

Hours: 36L

This lecture course examines the assumptions and commitments that underlie psychological science; and explores its institutional relations within culture and society. Bringing the background and context of the discipline into focus allows for a better understanding of the choices implicit in psychological research.

Prerequisite: PSY201H1 (or exclusion), PSY220H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PSY430H1 - Personality Seminar

Hours: 24S

Examination in depth of a limited topic within the area of personality. Content in any given year depends on instructor. Course capacity is limited to 20 students and enrolment priority is given to PSY Specialists and Research Specialists.

Prerequisite: PSY202H1 (or exclusion), PSY230H1/ PSY240H1

Exclusion: PSY430H5/ PSYD30H3/ PSYD32H3

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PSY434H1 - Maps of Meaning: The Architecture of Belief

Hours: 36L

This lecture course is based on the book Maps of Meaning: The Architecture of Belief. Maps of Meaning lays bare the grammar of mythology, and describes the relevance of that grammar for interpretation of narrative and religion, comprehension of ideological identification, and understanding of the role that individual choice plays in the maintenance, transformation and destiny of social systems.

Prerequisite: PSY201H1 (or exclusion), PSY230H1/ PSY240H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PSY435H1 - Environmental Psychology

Hours: 36L

This lecture course explores how psychologists can contribute to finding solutions to today's pressing environmental challenges. Topics include persuasion, community-based social marketing, social influence, social capital, and the many ways in which the physical environment affects psychological processes. The course takes a multi-scalar approach to the human-environment relationship, covering individual, community, cultural and global levels of scale, through the lens of complex dynamic systems theories.

Prerequisite: PSY100H1, PSY220H1, OR registered in an Environmental Studies/Science program

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PSY440H1 - Abnormal Psychology Seminar

Hours: 24S

Examination in depth of a limited topic within abnormal psychology. Content in any given year depends on instructor. Course capacity is limited to 20 students and enrolment priority is given to PSY Specialists and Research Specialists.

Prerequisite: PSY202H1 (or exclusion), PSY230H1/PSY240H1

Exclusion: PSY440H5/ PSYD33H3

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PSY450H1 - History of Psychology

Hours: 36L

This lecture course discusses the philosophical predecessors and early development of modern psychology, schools of thought, and shifts in areas of theory and research, as well as history and philosophy of science, in general.

Prerequisite: One full course equivalent at the PSY 200+-level

Exclusion: PSYC85H3

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

PSY460H1 - Learning Seminar

Hours: 24S

Examination in depth of a limited topic in human or animal learning. Content in any given year depends on instructor. Course capacity is limited to 20 students and enrolment priority is given to PSY Specialists and Research Specialists.

Prerequisite: PSY202H1 (or exclusion), PSY260H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PSY470H1 - Memory Seminar

Hours: 24S

Examination in depth of a limited topic within the area of memory. Content in any given year depends on instructor. Course capacity is limited to 20 students and enrolment priority is given to PSY Specialists and Research Specialists.

Prerequisite: PSY202H1 (or exclusion), PSY270H1/COG250Y1

Exclusion: PSYD50H3

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

JLP471H1 - Advanced Psycholinguistics

Hours: 24S

Seminar in advanced topics in psycholinguistics. Content varies from year to year. (Sponsored by the Departments of Linguistics and Psychology, but administered solely by the Dept. of Linguistics).

Prerequisite: JLP374H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PSY471H1 - Cognition Seminar

Hours: 24S

Examination in depth of a limited topic in cognition. Content in any given year depends on instructor. Course capacity is limited to 20 students and enrolment priority is given to PSY Specialists and Research Specialists.

Prerequisite: PSY202H1 (or exclusion), PSY270H1/ COG250Y1 (may be additional prerequisites based on seminar topic given)

Exclusion: PSY471H5/ PSY50H3

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PSY473H1 - Social Cognitive Neuroscience

Hours: 36L

Social cognitive neuroscience is an emerging interdisciplinary field that seeks to integrate theories of social psychology and cognitive neuroscience to understand behaviour at three fundamentally interrelated levels of analysis (social, cognitive, and neural). Topics such as self-regulation, cooperation, decision-making, emotion, morality, and prejudice will be examined in this lecture course.

Prerequisite: PSY201H1 (or exclusion), PSY220H1, and PSY270H1/ PSY290H1

Exclusion: PSY353H5/ PSYD17H3

Recommended Preparation: PSY326H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PSY474H1 - Computation in Psychology

Hours: 36L

This lecture course surveys computational perspectives on the mind and brain and introduces computational tools for connecting psychological and neural data to theory. Topics may include neural networks, probabilistic models, pattern recognition, and other techniques applicable to psychological research and general analysis. Basic familiarity with programming is recommended but not required.

Prerequisite: PSY202H1 (or exclusion)

Exclusion: PSY471H1 (Fall of 2015)

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

PSY475H1 - Attention and Performance

Hours: 36L

This lecture course discusses visual attention; attentional selection for object recognition, feature integration, and action; attention in action-relevant space; movements of attention; eye-hand coordination, eye and limb movements; action-specific perception and effort-based models of perception; ecological perception and the perception of affordances.

Prerequisite: PSY201H1 (or exclusion), PSY270H1/ PSY280H1/ COG250Y1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PSY480H1 - Seminar in Perception

Hours: 24S

An in-depth examination of current issues in perception (e.g. perceptual organization, object and face recognition, motion perception). Emphasis is on the psychological perspective, but integrates physiological and computational perspectives as well. Content in any given year depends on instructor. Course capacity is limited to 20 students and enrolment priority is given to PSY Specialists and Research Specialists.

Prerequisite: PSY202H1 (or exclusion), PSY280H1

Exclusion: PSY480H5/ PSYD51H3

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PSY490H1 - Brain Activity & Behaviour Seminar

Hours: 24S

An in-depth examination of current issues in brain and behaviour science (e.g. activity of neurons, sensory, motor, motivational, and higher cortical systems.). Content in any given year depends on instructor. Course capacity is limited to 20 students and enrolment priority is given to PSY Specialists and Research Specialists.

Prerequisite: PSY202H1 (or exclusion), PSY290H1/ HMB200H1

Exclusion: PSY490H5/ PSYD66H3

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PSY492H1 - Neurobiology of Learning and Memory

Hours: 36L

Understanding the complexities of how the mammalian nervous system acquires and stores information and how it transforms this information into appropriate behavior is fundamentally important to our understanding of both animal and human behavior. This lecture course explores empirical and theoretical contributions to our understanding of the neural basis of learning and memory.

Prerequisite: PSY201H1 (or exclusion), PSY260H1/ PSY290H1/ HMB200H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PSY493H1 - Cognitive Neuroscience

Hours: 36L

This is a capstone lecture course surveying research on how the mind arises from the brain. The first objective of the course is to understand how processes in human brains (ranging from the firing of a single neuron to the dynamics of billions) support cognitive abilities (such as recognizing a face, remembering a birthday from childhood, understanding the words in a spoken lecture, or planning a route home from class). The second objective of the course is to understand the methods of contemporary cognitive neuroscience research, to enable students to read primary literature and to understand ongoing debates.

Prerequisite: PSY201H1 (or exclusion), PSY260H1/ PSY270H1/ PSY290H1/ HMB200H1

Exclusion: PSYC55H3

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PSY494H1 - Physiology and Psychology of Emotion

Hours: 36L

This lecture course discusses the role of brain and body in the expression and experience of emotion in humans considered through the experimental, physiological, theoretical, and clinical literatures.

Prerequisite: PSY201H1 (or exclusion), PSY260H1/ PSY270H1/ PSY290H1/ HMB200H1

Exclusion: PSYC18H3

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PSY495H1 - Sex and the Brain

Hours: 36L

This lecture course explores the scientific literature underlying the concept that female/male, gay/straight, and transgendered behaviours are based on brain differences. Original scientific papers will be read in close detail for design and interpretation of the experiments. The goal is to gain an understanding of the science and psychology underlying sex/gender, popular conceptions of sex, and the sexual brain. Topics include: the making of sex, hormone action, brain-based sexual behaviours, sex and cognition, and sex and sexuality/gender identification.

Prerequisite: PSY201H1 (or exclusion), PSY290H1/ HMB200H1

Exclusion: PSY354H5/ PSY395H5

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

PSY496H1 - Cognitive Dysfunction in Neurological Disorders

Hours: 36L

This lecture course provides an in-depth examination of the cognitive dysfunction found in neurological disorders, including Alzheimer's Disease, Parkinson's Disease, and Schizophrenia. The course focuses on how cognitive impairments relate to neuropsychological models of the specific disease (specifically how these models provide insights into the biological mechanisms underlying the cognitive symptoms) and cognition, more broadly.

Prerequisite: PSY201H1 (or exclusion), PSY270H1/ PSY290H1

Exclusion: PSY471H1 (Winter of 2015)

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

PSY497H1 - Advanced Topics in Biological Rhythms

Hours: 24S

This seminar course discusses circadian rhythms with emphasis on non-photic entrainment and phase shifting of rhythms by behaviour (e.g., social interactions, becoming active). Properties and physiological mechanisms for non-photic effects and comparisons with those for photic effects. Although the emphasis is on basic principles, possible applications will also be discussed. Course capacity is limited to 20 students and enrolment priority is given to PSY Specialists and Research Specialists.

Prerequisite: PSY397H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

Introduction

Public health is the science and art of preventing disease and promoting health through organized population-based efforts. The focus of public health is to prevent rather than treat disease and to positively affect determinants of health through a wide range of strategies, including the surveillance and assessment of population health and the promotion of healthy behaviours, healthy environments and healthy public policies. In addition to these activities, the identification and treatment of those with disease may be vital to preventing it in others, such as during an outbreak of an infectious disease. Hand washing, vaccination programs, the inspection of restaurants, laws banning smoking in public places and tax credits for childhood physical activity programs are examples of public health measures. Public health includes sub-disciplines such as epidemiology, biostatistics, occupational and environmental health, public health policy, and social and behavioural health sciences.

Public Health Sciences Courses

PHS100H1 - Global Health Grand Opps

Hours: 24L/24T

This course introduces students to basic public health-related concepts, significant aspects of the historical development of global health, and a selection of topics illustrating the broad and evolving nature of this field. In addition, it helps students explore the contributions that various disciplines/fields offer to global health.

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

PHS300H1 - HIV Prevention Research

Hours: 24L

This course engages students in in-depth learning about HIV research. In addition to learning about methods and issues from a variety of research disciplines as applied to HIV, students will be expected, with guidance, to design a study relevant to the content of the course.

Recommended Preparation: STA220H1 or equivalent

Distribution Requirements: Science; Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

HMB342H1 - Epidemiology of Health & Disease

Hours: 24L/24T

This course engages students in the fundamental science of epidemiology applied to health and disease. After an introduction to various measures of health and disease, the scientific methods used to investigate, analyze, prevent and control health problems will be illustrated using biomedical and public health examples.

Prerequisite: 9 FCE complete, BIO120H1, BIO130H1

Exclusion: HST373H1

Recommended Preparation: STA288H1 or other statistics course

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

STA365H1 - Applied Bayesian Statistics

Hours: 36L

Bayesian inference has become an important applied technique and is especially valued to solve complex problems. This course first examines the basics of Bayesian inference. From there, this course looks at modern, computational methods and how to make inferences on complex data problems.

Prerequisite: STA302H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

PSY407H1 - Special Topics in Psychology

Hours: 36L

A lecture course providing in-depth examination of specific topics/themes relating to Psychology. Content in any given year depends on instructor. Priority is given to PSY Major program students during the first enrolment period.

Prerequisite: PSY100H1, PSY201H1 (or exclusion), and one further 200-level PSY half-course

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

GGR433H1 - Built Environment and Health

Hours: 36S

Linking across fields that include public health, geography and planning, this course examines the growing evidence and ways in which human health is affected by the design and development of the built environment in which we live, work and play. The course considers how various planning and development decisions impact population and individual health, particularly in relation to chronic diseases, injuries, and mental health. Field trip transportation cost: $20.

Prerequisite: 10.0 FCE's

Exclusion: GGR400H1 (2012-13)

Recommended Preparation: 1.0 FCE in Geography (SOC SCI/BR=3)

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

GGR434H1 - Building Community Resilience

Hours: 36S

Examines concepts of resilience as a way of building the capacity of communities to (a) respond to predicted disruptions/shocks associated with climate change, global pandemics, anticipated disruptions in global food supply, energy insecurity, and environmental degradation; and (b) nurture the development of alternative spaces that support the emergence of more life-sustaining structures and practices. Includes explicit attention to equity and public health, and explores issues such as: participatory governance of social-ecological systems, the nature of social change, complexity science, the role of social movements, indigenous and political ecology perspectives.

Prerequisite: 10 FCEs

Exclusion: GGR400H1 (2011-12)

Recommended Preparation: 1.0 FCEs in Geography

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

HMB436H1 - Medical and Veterinary Mycology

Hours: 24L

This lecture-based course will familiarize students with fungi of public health importance, particularly those that cause disease in humans and other animals. The course will focus on the clinical presentation, pathophysiology, and treatment of fungal infections, as well as the ecology, physiology and evolutionary biology of the agents responsible. The course will also address other ways in which fungi influence human and animal health.

Prerequisite: 14 FCE complete, HMB265H1/ BIO260H1, BIO220H1

Recommended Preparation: EEB268H1, EEB331H1/ CSB353H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

STA465H1 - Theory and Methods for Complex Spatial Data

Hours: 36L

Data acquisition trends in the environmental, physical and health sciences are increasingly spatial in character and novel in the sense that modern sophisticated methods are required for analysis. This course will cover different types of random spatial processes and how to incorporate them into mixed effects models for Normal and non-Normal data. Students will be trained in a variety of advanced techniques for analyzing complex spatial data and, upon completion, will be able to undertake a variety of analyses on spatially dependent data, understand which methods are appropriate for various research questions, and interpret and convey results in the light of the original questions posed.

Prerequisite: STA302H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

Public Policy

Introduction

Solving real-world policy challenges requires the use of multi-disciplinary tools to analyze problems, determine the best means to deal with those problems, and decide on the best course of action. An undergraduate Major in Public Policy provides a unique opportunity for students in Social Science disciplines to think in an interdisciplinary way, by drawing on theories and approaches, as well as tool kits developed in the core disciplines of Economics and Political Science, and beyond. Students in this program develop theoretical and applied reasoning skills in policy analysis, as well as a solid grounding in quantitative methods and research.

Regarding Public Policy Programs

The Major program in Public Policy is offered jointly by the School of Public Policy, the Department of Economics, and the Department of Political Science. Students may enroll after their first- or second-year of undergraduate studies, and must meet the prerequisite conditions for all second-year and higher courses.

The Program Director and Program Assistant are available for consultation. For enquiries or an appointment call the Undergraduate Administrator, Petra Jory at 416-978-5402 or send an e-mail to p.jory@utoronto.ca.

Public Policy Programs

Major in Public Policy (Arts Program) - ASMAJ2660

Description:

The Major program in Public Policy is offered jointly by the School of Public Policy, the Department of Economics, and the Department of Political Science. Students enroll after first-year, and must meet the prerequisite conditions for all second-year and higher courses.

Enrolment Requirements:

First Year:

1. POL101Y1 (67%)
OR Trinity One Public Policy courses TRN160Y1 and/or TRN161Y1 (75%) / Vic One policy streams (75% in 1.0 FCE from VIC187H1, VIC188H1 or Pearson Stream courses)

*Students entering through Trinity One/Vic One streams will be ineligible to take upper year POL courses until they have completed POL214Y1

2. Either ECO100Y1 / ECO101H1 & ECO102H1 (with an average final mark of at least 67%) or ECO105Y1 (with a final mark of at least 80%), AND
3. Students expecting to choose ECO courses in their second year or higher are advised to complete MAT133Y1 or equivalent in their first year, to meet required prerequisites for ECO courses.

Second Year:

1. ECO200Y1/ ECO204Y1/ ECO206Y1/ PPG200H1 - PPG200H1 does not serve as PREREQUISITE for upper year ECO courses
- ECO200+ is required for those who plan to take ECO courses at the 300+level.
2. ECO220Y1/( POL222H1+ POL232H1)/ SOC202H1/ STA220H1/ STA221H1/ STA248H1/ STA255H1/ STA261H1
3. POL214Y1

Students may enroll after their first- or second-year of study. Achieving the minimum grade requirements outlined above does not necessarily guarantee admission to the program in any given year.

Completion Requirements:

(7.5 FCEs)

First Year:

1. POL101Y1 (67%) OR Trinity One Public Policy courses TRN160Y1 and/or TRN161Y1 (75%) / Vic One policy streams (75% in 1.0 FCE from VIC187H1, VIC188H1 or Pearson Stream courses)
*Students entering through Trinity One/Vic One streams will be ineligible to take upper year POL courses until they have completed POL214Y1
2. ECO100Y1 or ECO101H1 & ECO102H1 (with a combined average of at least 67%) or ECO105Y1 (with a final mark of at least 80%).
3. Students expecting to choose ECO courses in their second year or higher are advised to complete MAT133Y1 or equivalent in their first year, to meet required prerequisites for ECO courses.

Second Year:

1. ECO200Y1/ ECO204Y1/ ECO206Y1/ PPG200H1
2. ECO220Y1/( POL222H1+ POL232H1)/ SOC202H1/ STA220H1/ STA221H1/ STA248H1/ STA255H1/ STA261H1

3. POL214Y1

Notes:

- PPG200H1 does not serve as a prerequisite for upper year ECO courses.
- ECO courses at the 200-level are required prerequisites for ECO courses at the 300-level.
- MAT133Y1 or equivalent, often with a minimum mark, is a required prerequisite for 200-level ECO courses. Please review the Economics Calendar section to ensure you meet the required prerequisites for these courses

Third and Fourth Years:

1. PPG301H1
2. PPG401H1
3. Remaining FCEs to reach the 7.5 requirement will be drawn from 300+-level drawn from Economics, Political Science, Sociology, or related disciplines.

A non-exhaustive list of eligible courses includes:

Public Policy Courses

PPG200H1 - Microeconomics for Policy Analysis

Hours: 24L

The objectives are: (1) To provide students with a foundation in microeconomic analysis and; (2) To demonstrate how this foundation can be applied to design, predict the effects of and evaluate public policies.

Students will be equipped to understand the main issues on a range of policy topics such as taxation, social insurance, welfare and income support programs.

Prerequisite: ECO100Y1 / ECO101H1& ECO102H1 / ECO105Y1

Exclusion: ECO200Y1, ECO204Y1, ECO206Y1

Recommended Preparation: POL101Y1

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

PPG301H1 - Introduction to Public Policy

Hours: 24L

The course introduces students to the study of public policy, the policy process and our policy institutions in Canada. The course examines how issues emerge, how important ideas are framed, priorities are established, and agendas are set and managed. It explores how institutions – formal and informal rules which enable and constrain actors – shape policy-making in Canada.

Prerequisite: ( ECO200Y1/ ECO204Y1/ ECO206Y1/ PPG200H1), ( ECO220Y1/ POL242Y1/ SOC202H1/ STA220H1/ STA221H1/ STA248H1/ STA255H1/ STA261H1), POL214Y1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

PPG401H1 - The Role of Government

Hours: 24L

This course explores the government's role in promoting efficiency and equity in both the financing and delivery of public policy goals. It explores the conditions when government involvement is important, the policy levers available to government in promoting social policy, market failures, and conditions for efficiency. It examines the role of government in many of the major areas of social policy such as health care, education, redistribution, the environment, financial regulations and other important issues.

Corequisite: PPG301H1

Recommended Preparation: ECO200Y1/ ECO204Y1/ ECO206Y1/ PPG200H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

The Study of Religion

As an intellectual inquiry into an important dimension of human experience, the study of religion enables students to grasp an essential aspect of the cultures of the world and the interactions among them. We look at the development of religious beliefs, practices, and doctrines as they intersect with the history of peoples and cultures right up to the contemporary world. The study of religion also prepares students for a wide range of careers, such as social work, law, politics from the local to the international level, teaching, medicine, or leadership in religious organizations. Combined with appropriate language preparation, it can also open out into graduate work leading to the M.A. and Ph.D. in the growing number of universities offering advanced graduate degrees in the field, and in our University's own Graduate programs.

Historically, the academic study of religion has taken a variety of forms, each with its own rationale. The Department identifies itself with a model in which the major religious traditions (e.g., Buddhism, Christianity, Hinduism, Islam, Judaism) are studied within a comparative frame. We employ and encourage a variety of approaches (e.g., historical, textual, social scientific) without sacrificing specialized skills and training. The diversity which characterizes this model is reflected in the variety of courses offered or cross-listed by the Department, and by the wide range of training and expertise of our faculty.

Information about programs, courses, including a number of cross-listed courses offered by Colleges or departments such as East Asian Studies, History, Near and Middle Eastern Civilizations, Philosophy, and Sociology can be found on the Department's website. Students aiming to complete any RLG program should consult the Undergraduate Administrator at least once a year for assistance in selecting courses that address the student's interests and fulfill the programs requirements.

Regarding Courses in Religion

First Year Seminars

The 199Y1 and 199H1 seminars are designed to provide the opportunity to work closely with an instructor in a class of no more than twenty-four students. These interactive seminars are intended to stimulate the students' curiosity and provide an opportunity to get to know a member of the professorial staff in a seminar environment during the first year of study. Details can be found at www.artsci.utoronto.ca/current/course/fyh-1/.

200-Series Courses

No 200-series course has a 100-series RLG course prerequisite or Co-requisite.

300-Series Courses

All 300-series courses normally presuppose that a student has already completed, by the first day of the course, at least 6.0 FCEs (or their equivalent). Only specific Prerequisites or recommended preparations are listed below. Students who do not meet the Prerequisites, but believe they have adequate academic preparation, should consult the Undergraduate Administrator regarding entry to the course.

400-Series Courses

400-series courses are intended primarily for Specialists and Majors who have already completed several RLG courses. Almost all 400-level courses are E indicator courses and require the instructor's permission. Students must enrol at the Department.

Independent Research Courses

Student-initiated intensive research courses supervised by faculty members of the Department. The student must obtain both a Supervisor's agreement and the Department's approval in order to register. The maximum number of Independent Research courses one may take is two full-course equivalents. Deadline for submitting applications to Department, including Supervisor's approval, is the first week of classes of the session. A full-course may be compressed into a single session or spread through two sessions; a half-course may similarly be done in either one session or across two sessions. These courses are open to majors and specialists only.

RLG382H1 - The Taking of Human Life

Hours: 24S

Frequently today in discussions in bioethics dealing with life and death, even secular thinkers invoke the concept of the sanctity of human life. Yet that concept is clearly religious in origin. What do the three great monotheistic traditions have to say about this concept and its ethical significance?

Prerequisite: Instructor's permission required for admission to course

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

RLG383H1 - Interpretation and Dialogue

Hours: 24L

Can we understand the beliefs and behaviors of people whose religious and cultural outlooks differ radically from our own? Do we always impose our preconceptions on them? Or are there cognitive, imaginative, and emotional resources that enable us to see people on their own terms? These questions, which beset the practices of anthropologists and historians of religions, are central to the philosophy of the human sciences. This course explores the theoretical issues involved in interpretation and dialogue across cultural and historical divides by reading seminal texts by Dilthey, Collingwood, Heidegger, Quine, Davidson, Winch, MacIntyre, Benedict, Geertz, and Rorty.

Prerequisite: None

Corequisite: None

Exclusion: None

Recommended Preparation: None

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

RLG384H1 - Pluralism and Toleration

Hours: 24L

This course traces the development of philosophical arguments in favor of toleration or pluralism that emerged first in response to bitter religious conflicts and then out of a growing recognition of the potential benefits of the normative diversity characteristic of modern societies. Typical philosophers to be studied are Bodin, Spinoza, Locke, Bayle, Lessing, Herder, and Mill.

Prerequisite: See note above for general prerequisites

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

RLG385H1 - Becoming Modern

Hours: 24L

What does it mean to be modern? Words like “modern,” “modernity,” and “modernism” are used to mark a fundamental boundary between our era and all that came before it (or lies outside of it); but most of us are hard-pressed to offer a solid account of what exactly this boundary is. This course examines the relationship between: a fundamental shift in the nature of daily experience; an order-of-magnitude expansion of the power of the State; a dramatic reorganization of religious experience and cultures; and a tremendous growth in the enterprise of Western science and technological production. We trace this reorientation over the last two centuries and examine its consequences using philosophical, literary, theological, and scientific sources, as well as recent scholarly work on the topic.

Prerequisite: See note above for general prerequisites

Corequisite: None

Exclusion: None

Recommended Preparation: RLG231H Religion and Science

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

RLG386H1 - Diasporic Religions

Previous Course Number: RLG243H1

Hours: 24L

An examination of religions in their contemporary diasporic and transnational modes. Issues addressed include the role of religions in sustaining identities across national boundaries, the enmeshment of religious minorities in political practices of governance, the impact of cultural forces such as commodification or gender upon religious representations and transformations, and the intersection of religion with other kinds of authoritative knowledge, such as medicine or law, in diasporic conditions.

Exclusion: RLG243H1

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

RLG441H1 - Words and Worship in Christian Cultures

Hours: 24S

How are we to analyze the words that Christians use? And how are such words related to ritual forms? We explore techniques for the analysis of texts, while looking at forms of verbal discourse ranging from prayers, speaking in tongues, and citing the Bible to more informal narratives.

Prerequisite: ANT356H1/ RLG212Y1 and permission of instructor

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

RLG443H1 - Genealogies of Christianity

Hours: 24S

How do disciplinary commitments shape theoretical and historical accounts of Christianity's relationship to "modernity"? Through comparative analysis (including topics of science, colonialism, capitalism, and gender) students will develop an historically-grounded critique of the key terms: genealogy, Christianity, and modernity. Based on reading and seminar discussion, the course encourages interdisciplinary exchange.

Prerequisite: 3.0 FCEs in Religion or cognate courses; permission of the instructor

Recommended Preparation: Religion, history, anthropology, literature courses; writing intensive courses

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

RLG447H1 - Magic and Miracle in Early Christianity

Hours: 24L

Magic, religion, astrology, alchemy, theurgy, miracle, divination all of these phenomena characterize the context and practice of ancient Christianity. This course examines the constitution of these categories, the role and character of these phenomena in the Graeco-Roman world, and the interaction with and integration of these phenomena by ancient Christianity.

Prerequisite: RLG241Y1;

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

RLG448H1 - Pseudepigraphy in Ancient Mediterranean Religion

Hours: 24S

A seminar examining the phenomenon of falsely claimed and/or attributed authorship in religions of the ancient Mediterranean, mainly Christianity and Judaism. The course examines understandings of authorship and other cultural forms that facilitate or inhibit ancient pseudepigraphy, ancient controversies over authorship, as well as specific pseudepigraphical writings.

Prerequisite: Two half FCEs numbered RLG32*; permission of instructor

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

RLG449H1 - The Synoptic Problem

Hours: 24S

Investigation of the history of solutions to the Synoptic Problem from the eighteenth century to the present paying special attention to the revival of the Griesbach hypothesis and recent advances in the Two-Document hypothesis.

Prerequisite: RLG241Y1 or RLG241H1, and at least one of RLG320H1/ RLG321H1/ RLG322H1/ RLG323H1/ RLG324H1/ RLG325H1/ RLG326H1, and permission of instructor

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

RLG451H1 - The Parables of Jesus

Hours: 24S

Examination of the parables in the gospels and other early Christian writers, and major trends in the modern analyses of the parables. Special attention will be paid to the social and economic world presupposed by the parables.

Prerequisite: RLG241Y1 or RLG241H1, and at least one of RLG320H1/ RLG321H1/ RLG322H1/ RLG323H1/ RLG324H1/ RLG325H1/ RLG326H1, and permission of instructor

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

JPR458H1 - Postsecular Political Thought: Religion, Radicalism and the Limits of Liberalism

Hours: 24S

The course will examine debates on postsecularism and religion's public, political role as articulated by political thinkers such as Jurgen Habermas, by focusing on politically radical or revolutionary challenges to liberalism in the 20th and 21st century, especially from the postcolonial world, whose theoretical arguments are grounded upon or draw their inspiration from religious traditions, doctrines and practices.

Prerequisite: A 3rd year course in Political Science and/or Study of Religion

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

RLG458H1 - Advanced Topics in Islam

Hours: 24S

Advanced study of specialized topics in Islam.

Prerequisite: Permission of the instructor

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

JPR459H1 - Fanaticism: A Political History

Hours: 24S

This seminar in theory will explore the modern history of the concept of 'fanaticism' and its role in the development of political modernity. A focus on the concept of the "fanatic" (and its cognates) from the perspective of its various uses in political and religious thought from the Early Modern period through the Enlightenment and up to the present day, provides a fascinating opportunity for a critical review of the secular, rationalist, and scientific assumptions underwriting modern political forms and concepts, especially those of liberal democracy. At the same time, the course will offer critical insight into the ways in which religious and political differences among colonial "others" were, and continue to be, central to the elaboration of Western theoretical discourse on fanaticism and extremism as forms of "political pathology". (Given by the Departments of Political Science and Religion)

Prerequisite: (2 FCEs in Political Theory and/or Philosophy including 1.0 FCE at the 300 level) or (0.5 FCE in Method and Theory in the Study of Religion and 1 FCE at the 300 level in the Study of Religion)

Distribution Requirements: Social Science; Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

RLG460H1 - Ramayana in Literature, Theology, and Political Imagination

Hours: 24S

This course explores how this conception is the result of a historical process by examining documentable transformations in the reception of the Ramayana. Our focus will be on the shift in the classification of the Ramayana from the inaugural work of Sanskrit literary culture (adi-kavya) in Sanskrit aesthetics to a work of tradition (smṛti) in theological commentaries, the differences between the Ramayanas ideal of divine kingship and medieval theistic approaches to Ramas identification with Visnu, the rise of Rama worship, and the use of Ramas divinity in contemporary political discourse.

Prerequisite: Permission of instructor

Recommended Preparation: RLG205Y1/ RLG205H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

RLG461H1 - Ismaili History and Thought: The Persian Tradition

Hours: 24S

Critical reading, analysis and interpretation of Ismaili historical and doctrinal works of the Persianate tradition as developed by authors such as Nasir-i Khusraw, Nasir al-Din Tusi, Nizari Quhistani and others. The primary authors studied will change yearly.

Prerequisite: Permission of Instructor

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

RLG462H1 - Newar Religion

Hours: 24L/24T

An academic legend recounts that if you ask a Newar whether he is Hindu or Buddhist the answer is yes. The course deals with the problem of how to study religions which coexist and compete with each other creating shifting coordinates of religious identification from the perspective of one specific Nepalese community.

Prerequisite: Permission of Instructor

Recommended Preparation: RLG205Y1/ RLG206Y1/ RLG205H5/ RLG206H5

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

Advanced study in specialized topics on Hinduism.

Prerequisite: RLG205Y; Permission of instructor

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

RLG472H1 - Religion and Aesthetics in South Asia

Hours: 24S

Religion and aesthetics are sometimes constructed as separate categories, but in South Asia religion is not often conceptually distinct from an autonomous sphere of aesthetic reflection. In conversation with recent sociological, anthropological, and philosophical writings, we will explore this issue through careful study of a variety of Sanskrit sources: the epics, Abhinavaguptas commentary on the Natya Sastra, Vaisnava, Saiva, and Jaina appropriations of Sanskrit aesthetics and courtly poetry, and the works of Rabindranath Tagore. Students are encouraged to work with sources in the primary languages, although materials will also be provided in translation.

Prerequisite: RLG205Y; Permission of Instructor

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

RLG473H1 - Vedanta Through the Ages

Hours: 24S

A survey of Vedantic thought beginning with the classical commentaries on the Brahmasutras (such as those of Sankara, Ramanuja etc.) and ending with neo-Vedanta in the writings of Dayananda Saraswati, Sri Aurobindo and Radhakrishnan.

Prerequisite: RLG205Y1; RLG205H5; Instructor's permission required for admission to course

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

RLG474H1 - Sanskrit Readings (1)

Hours: 24S

This course will have students read choice pieces of South Asian literature. While tackling a text in Sanskrit from a major literary tradition, Buddhist or Hindu, and discussing its content and context, students will learn strategies for translating and interpreting Sanskrit literature.

Prerequisite: Intermediate Sanskrit

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

RLG475H1 - Fasting and Feeding in Hindu Traditions

Hours: 24S

An upper-level undergraduate and graduate course. Will look at a wide range of narratives and ritual practices as well as philosophical reflections from classical Indian thought on the relationship between food and religion and how this relationship plays out in the context of feasting and fasting in Indian/Hindu traditions.

Prerequisite: Instructor's permission required for admission to this course.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

RLG476H1 - Caste in Tamil Literature

Hours: 24L

This course looks at original and translated works of both fiction and non-fiction, or those which blur the boundaries between both in Tamil literature both in the premodern and contemporary period, which deal with caste in Tamil society. By looking at a range of works from the Periyapuram to the contemporary radical Dalit perspective writings of Imayam and E. M. S. Kalaivaanan, among others we aim at arriving at an understanding of why, despite social and economic mobility caste remains the indelible marker of the modern Tamil identity even today.

Prerequisite: None though knowledge of Modern Tamil and the ability to read it is strongly recommended

Corequisite: None

Exclusion: None

Recommended Preparation: None

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

RLG478H1 - Burmese Religions

Hours: 24L

This course will question the statement that “to be a Burmese is to be a Buddhist” by introducing students to the variegated religious landscapes of Buddhist, Christian, Hindu, Judaic, and Muslim Burma/Myanmar through an analysis and discussion of historical, art-historical, anthropological, and literary sources.

Prerequisite: No

Corequisite: None

Recommended Preparation: RLG206H1 or RLG206H5

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

RLG484H1 - Religion and the Environment

Hours: 24S

This course examines how religious concerns within various religious traditions interface with contemporary environmental issues. Particular attention is paid to the challenge posed to the human and religious values of these traditions by the present ecological crisis and some salient ethical and religious responses to this challenge.

Prerequisite: Instructor's permission required for admission to course

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

RLG490Y1 - Independent Research

Hours: 48S

Student-initiated intensive research courses supervised by faculty members of the Department. The student must obtain both a Supervisor's agreement and the Department's approval in order to register. The maximum number of Independent Research courses one may take is two full-course equivalents. Deadline for submitting applications to Department, including Supervisor's approval, is the first week of classes of the session. A full-course may be compressed into a single session or spread through two sessions; a half-course may similarly be done in either one session or across two sessions. These courses are open to majors and specialists only. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Introduction

Rotman Commerce at the University of Toronto offers a rigorous curriculum combining studies in management, economics, and the arts and sciences for an enriched professional undergraduate experience. The program explores the role of commerce in modern society while developing skill and confidence in analysis, effective communications and decision making.

The Bachelor of Commerce degree builds on a common foundation of a range of business disciplines and economics. Rotman Commerce students specialize in one of three areas: Accounting (either Public Accounting or Financial Reporting and Control), Finance and Economics, or Management. Each stream combines courses in management and applied economics with a variety of courses in the arts and sciences. The balance assures graduates of a solid understanding of business and modern society along with a command of critical skills across business disciplines, decision-making, and leadership.

Rotman Commerce graduates enter a wide range of professions, and frequently become financial analysts, accountants, marketing analysts, economists, managers of firms and government, or entrepreneurs. Some commerce students elect to undertake post-graduate studies. Law schools and MBA programs have been particularly favoured destinations of recent graduates.

Faculty from the Rotman School of Management who teach in Rotman Commerce are listed above.

Bachelor of Commerce (BCom) Degree Requirements

This is a four-year degree program.

To qualify for a Bachelor of Commerce degree, a student must:

- (a) Complete twenty full-course equivalents, including no more than six 100-series courses;
- (b) Complete one of the Specialist programs – Accounting, Finance and Economics, or Management, (see below);
- (c) Complete the Arts and Science Breadth Requirements*
- (d) Obtain standing (i.e., complete with a grade of 50% or more or CR) in at least six 300- or 400-series courses, including at least one 400-series course. No more than one 300+ series transfer credit may be counted towards these six. (Students participating in an approved exchange program may count ALL 300+ transfer credits from the exchange towards the required six.)
- (e) Achieve a cumulative GPA of 1.85 or more by the time of graduation.

*Note: September 2016 and onward all Commerce students will follow the Arts and Science Breadth Requirements and are no longer required to have 1.0 FCE from category 1 (BR1). There is no Breadth Requirement status for RSM100Y1/RSM100H1/MGT100H1, and MGT201H1. September 2017 and onward all Commerce students will receive BR status for MAT133Y1 (BR5) and ECO220Y1 (BR3+5) and courses deemed equivalent.

Graduation

There are two graduation periods each year: June (degree requirements completed by the end of the Fall/Winter session) and November (degree requirements completed by the end of the Summer session). Students must request graduation using the Student Web Service or in the College Registrar's Office as they are not automatically assessed for graduation. Graduation requests must be submitted by the deadlines specified in the Sessional Dates section of the Calendar. Prospective graduands should check Degree Explorer at the end of March/late September to see if their programs have been confirmed as completed by the relevant department(s) or program office(s). They should also check Degree Explorer at the end of May/late October for confirmation of their eligibility for graduation by the Office of the Faculty Registrar.

Prospective graduands should receive an email from the Office of Convocation providing details of the convocation ceremony in late March/mid-October. An e-mail will be sent from the Office of the Faculty Registrar in late October/late May to students who have a request for graduation confirming their eligibility.

Rotman Commerce Notes

Enrolment in Rotman Commerce programs is limited. Most students are admitted to first-year with a Rotman Commerce Admission Guarantee (see below for terms and conditions). Rotman Commerce students choose their Specialist program after first year, provided that the conditions of the "guarantee" have been met. A number of spaces are also available in second-year for other Arts & Science students who were not admitted with the guarantee (see section on "Other Students" below for details).

First Year Rotman Commerce Students Admitted with the Rotman Commerce Guarantee:

Students admitted with the Rotman Commerce Admission Guarantee will be invited to enroll in their Specialist after first-year, provided that the following requirements have been met:

- Complete RSM100H/RSM100Y Introduction to Management with a final mark of at least 67%
- Complete ECO101H1 Principles of Microeconomics with a final mark of at least 63% AND ECO102H1 Principles of Macroeconomics with a final mark of at least 63% or
  - Complete ECO100Y Introduction to Economics with a final mark of 67%
- Complete MAT133Y Calculus and Linear Algebra for Commerce with a final mark of at least 63%, or
  - MAT135H1 with a final mark of at least 60% AND MAT136H1 with a final mark of at least 60%, or
  - MAT137Y1 with a final mark of at least 55%, or
  - MAT157Y1 with a final mark of at least 55%.
- Accumulate a minimum of 4.0 credits

These requirements must be met within one calendar year of the student's enrolment in Arts & Science. For students beginning their studies in September, the requirements must be satisfied no later than the end of the following Summer Session.

Students may repeat any of the required courses once, in order to attain the requisite mark. The repeated course(s) must be completed within the calendar year (as per the terms of the "guarantee"); as such, the repeated course(s) must be taken during either the Winter or Summer

Session of first-year (i.e. a student may not extend the terms of her/his guarantee in order to attain the minimum marks).

Failure to meet any of these requirements, or failure to complete all the required courses within the calendar year (assuming full-time studies), will result in losing the admission guarantee. Note that none of the required courses may be completed using the CR/NCR option.

Part-Time Students:

Students holding the Rotman Commerce Guarantee, who have applied for and been admitted to Part-Time study, will be assessed for entry into Rotman Commerce programs at the point when they have completed 4.0 credits including the required courses (see above for Rotman Commerce Guarantee). To qualify under the Part-Time provision, students must have been enrolled in a part-time course load from the beginning of each session. They may repeat each of the required courses only once in order to attain the minimum marks.

Other Students:

A limited number of spaces in Rotman Commerce are available to Arts & Science students who were not admitted to first-year with the Admission Guarantee. The number of spaces available is determined annually.

An application must be submitted in late-April/May of each year and admission decisions are made and communicated in late-June. All admission requirements must be completed by May 1 in order to be eligible for admission. Students who have not completed the necessary requirements (see below for specifics) by May 1 must apply for admission the following year.

Admission Requirements:

- Complete MGT100H1/RSM100H/RSM100Y Introduction to Management with a final mark of at least 67%
- Complete ECO101H1 Principles of Microeconomics with a final mark of at least 63% AND ECO102H1 Principles of Macroeconomics with a final mark of at least 63% or
  - Complete ECO100Y Introduction to Economics with a final mark of 67%
- Complete MAT133Y with a final mark of at least 63%, or
  - MAT135H1 with a final mark of at least 60% AND MAT136H1 with a final mark of at least 60%, or
  - MAT137Y1 with a final mark of at least 55%, or
  - MAT157Y1 with a final mark of at least 55%.
- Attain an average of at least 73% across the qualifying courses (RSM100H1/MGT100H1/RSM100Y1, ECO101H1 and ECO102H1 OR ECO100Y1, and MAT133Y1 (or equivalent)).

Note: in the case of repeated attempts, the highest mark attained will be considered when calculating this average

- Accumulate a minimum of 4.0 credits
- Submit the Rotman Commerce Supplemental Application

Admission will be based on marks and the Rotman Commerce Supplemental Application. If an Arts and Science student is admitted to Rotman Commerce then MGT100H1 will be considered equivalent to RSM100H1.

Note: Meeting the minimum academic requirements does not guarantee admission to the program.

For information regarding admission to the program, contact Rotman Commerce at 416.946.0844 or rc.admissions@utoronto.ca

Additional Notes:

- Tuition Fees: Students enrolling in Rotman Commerce programs pay fees that are higher than other Arts & Science programs.
- Mathematics Note: MAT133Y1 satisfies the minimum Program requirements. Students who are likely to enroll in 200+ series MAT, STA and/or CSC courses are advised to take MAT135H1 and MAT136H1 or MAT137Y1 instead, noting that MAT137Y1 is a theoretically-oriented course for mathematically-based disciplines such as Mathematics, Computer Science, and Statistics.
- Maximum Term Load: Rotman Commerce students are limited to a maximum of 6.0 credits in any Fall/Winter session of their program and a maximum of 2.0 credits in their Summer session.

Introduction

St. Michael's College offers a number of programs which emerge from its academic strength in various scholarly fields and reflect its centuries-old Christian intellectual traditions. Please consult the relevant websites for more complete information on each program.

SMC One: First-Year Seminars

The Gilson Seminar in Faith and Ideas

First-year students explore the intersection of faith with today's most important questions. This course also features a two-week international learning experience in Rome that explores the roles that the Catholic Church and Vatican have played in ecology, science, literature and politics.

The Boyle Seminar in Scripts and Stories

First-year students investigate the intersection of Celtic and mediaeval cultures through manuscript analysis and language instruction. Participants are invited to travel to Ireland with the course instructors for an out-of-course international learning experience the following summer.

The McLuhan Seminar in Creativity and Technology

First-year students explore the relationship between creativity and technology and the individual, social, and cultural effects of innovation. The McLuhan Seminar will include a one-week trip to Silicon Valley, California.

Book and Media Studies:

An interdisciplinary and historical investigation of the role of printing, books and reading in cultures past and present. Topics explored include: manuscript and book production, internet publishing, book illustrations, censorship, advertising, readership and electronic media.

Celtic Studies:

Examines the literature, languages, history, music, folklore and archaeology of the peoples of Ireland, Scotland and Wales. Investigates Celtic identities in the ancient and modern worlds, and explores the transmission of Irish, Scottish and Welsh traditions to Canada and the United States.

Christianity and Culture:

A multidisciplinary exploration of Christian traditions from artistic, literary, philosophical, theological, scientific, social and historical perspectives.

Mediaeval Studies:

An interdisciplinary treatment of the history, art, literature and thought of the Middle Ages.

St. Michael's also offers a number of courses, listed below, which form part of the above programs, or of the programs of other colleges and departments, or are a reflection of staff and student academic interests not always available in departmental course offerings.

First Year Seminars

The 199Y1 and 199H1 seminars are designed to provide the opportunity to work closely with an instructor in a class of no more than twenty-four students. These interactive seminars are intended to stimulate the students' curiosity and provide an opportunity to get to know a member of the professorial staff in a seminar environment during the first year of study. Details can be found at <http://www.artsci.utoronto.ca/current/course/fyh-1>.

St. Michael's College Courses

SMC One: First-Year Seminars

SMC155H1 - SMC One: The McLuhan Seminar in Creativity and Technology

Hours: 12L/12S

This seminar is an interdisciplinary exploration of the relationship between creativity and technology. Inspired by the innovative thinking of Marshall McLuhan, it explores how the humanities relate to other fields of thought and research in addressing the individual, social and cultural experiences and effects of technological innovation. This course includes a mandatory travel component opportunity to Silicon Valley, California, the costs of which, including transportation, room and board, are covered by the University of St. Michael's College. (A fee of up to $1000 will apply for travel costs.)

Prerequisite: Admission to SMC One

Exclusion: Innis One, Munk One, New One, Trinity One, Vic One, UC One, Woodsworth One, SMC165H1, SMC188H1, SMC189H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

SMC165H1 - SMC One: The Boyle Seminar in Scripts and Stories

Hours: 24L/12S

This seminar introduces students to university-level studies through an interdisciplinary exploration of Celtic influences in the mediaeval world, with a particular focus on early books and historical artifacts as physical objects and bearers of meaning. Students will learn how to read and analyse these books and artifacts to decode their meanings, and, in support of that, take introductory language instruction in Latin or Irish. Subjects discussed will include intercultural encounter and dialogue, research methods with historical sources, and the relationship between the written word and lived experience, then and now. There is a co-curricular travel opportunity to Dublin, Ireland associated with this course which is strongly recommended. The costs of this travel opportunity are covered by the University of St. Michael's College. (A fee of up to $1000 will apply for travel costs.)

Prerequisite: Admission to SMC One

Exclusion: Innis One, Munk One, New One, Trinity One, Vic One, UC One, Woodsworth One, SMC155H1, SMC188H1, SMC189H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

SMC188H1 - SMC One: The Gilson Seminar in Faith and Ideas

Previous Course Number: SMC188Y1

Hours: 12L/12S

This seminar is an interdisciplinary exploration of leading scholarly, intellectual and public questions related to ecology, science, literature, and public life. From a variety of perspectives, the seminar considers how religion, and how different kinds of religious experience, figure in the broader context of human affairs. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: Admission to SMC One

Exclusion: Innis One, Munk One, New One, Trinity One, Vic One, UC One, Woodsworth One, SMC155H1, SMC165H1, SMC188Y1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

SMC189H1 - SMC One: The Gilson Seminar in Faith and Rome

Previous Course Number: SMC188Y1

Hours: 24L

This course provides an intensive international learning experience in Rome, Italy. It offers contemporary and historical models of integrating faith with reason, and religious practice with intellectual, creative, and public engagement, specifically the roles that the Catholic Church and Vatican play in Rome, in ecology, science, literature, and public life. Not eligible for CR/NCR option. This course includes a mandatory travel component to Rome, Italy, the costs of which, including transportation, room and board, are covered by the University of St. Michael's College. (A fee of up to $2000 will apply for travel costs.)

Prerequisite: SMC188H1

Exclusion: Innis One, Munk One, New One, Trinity One, Vic One, UC One, Woodsworth One, SMC155H1, SMC165H1, SMC188Y1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

Book and Media Studies

SMC219Y1 - Mass Media in Culture and Society

Hours: 48L/24T

Designed to acquaint students with the essential notions of media studies, and to promote a conscious utilization of contemporary media. Starting with the preliminary definitions of media, mass, and communications, the student is invited to consider critically the cultural constructs created by modern media, from print to photography, filming, TV, computer and Internet.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1); Society and its Institutions (3)

SMC228H1 - Elements of Material Bibliography and Print Culture

Hours: 36L

Students will examine the Middle Ages by means of its art, literature, philosophy, liturgy, historiography, and music. A chronological overview will introduce students to the basic historical shape of the period.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

SMC176Y1 - Medieval Christian Latin for Beginners

Hours: 72L

An introduction to medieval ecclesiastical Latin based principally on the Vulgate Bible, the major texts of Christian worship, and a selection of texts from later medieval Latin.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1); Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

SMC210H1 - The Early Mediaeval Tradition

Hours: 24L/12T

An introduction to the thought and culture of early mediaeval Europe. Students are introduced to important monuments of early mediaeval History, Thought, Literature, and Art. They follow some of the common threads that run through these disciplines and explore chief expressions of early mediaeval life and thought.

Recommended Preparation: SMC175H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

SMC211H1 - The Middle Ages and the Movies

Hours: 24L/12T

This course examines the ways mediaeval themes have been presented in the cinema over the last century by taking exemplary films from different countries and epochs. The purpose is to explore each on three levels: the mediaeval reality, the subsequent legendary or literary elaboration, and the twentieth-century film rendition, regarded equally as work of art, ideology and economic product.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

SMC212H1 - The Later Mediaeval Tradition

Hours: 24L/12T

An introduction to the thought and culture of later mediaeval Europe. Students are introduced to important monuments of later mediaeval History, Thought, Literature, and Art. They follow some of the common threads that run through these disciplines and explore chief expressions of later mediaeval life and thought.

Recommended Preparation: SMC175H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

SMC213H1 - Dante and the Christian Imagination

Hours: 24L

A study of selections from various works by Dante as an expression of the medieval imagination, viewed against the background of medieval Christian doctrine and psychology and in relation to various contemporary approaches to the study of medieval Christian culture.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

SMC222H1 - Mediaeval Latin I

Previous Course Number: LAT322H1

Hours: 48S

This course studies a selection of mediaeval Latin prose and poetry. Emphasis is on the linguistic differences between mediaeval Latin and its classical antecedent, especially in regard to vocabulary, grammar and orthography. A review of Latin grammar is part of the course.

Prerequisite: SMC176Y1 or LAT100Y1/ LAT102H1

Exclusion: LAT322H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

SMC226H1 - King Arthur

Hours: 24L

A survey of the Arthurian legends from the earliest Latin histories through selected Welsh, French and German Romances to the English-language classic, Morte d'Arthur of Malory. Emphasis will be on reading the primary sources (in translation).

Prerequisite: Completion of five undergraduate full course equivalents

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

SMC323H1 - Mediaeval Latin II (formerly LAT323H1)

Hours: 48S

Through the close reading of fewer but longer texts than in SMC222H1, this course gives students a deepened acquaintance of the linguistic features of mediaeval Latin, as well as with its literature, and generic and stylistic conventions. A solid foundation in basic Latin morphology, syntax and vocabulary is assumed.

Prerequisite: LAT202H1/ SMC222H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

SMC324H1 - The Study of the Bible in the Middle Ages

Hours: 24L/12T

This course explores mediaeval biblical commentary and the various approaches taken by the exegetes to uncover the secrets of the sacred page, for instance through the four senses of Scripture: history, allegory, tropology, and anagogy.

Recommended Preparation: SMC210H1/ SMC212H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

SMC326H1 - Mediaeval Music: thought and practice

Hours: 24L

An introduction to musical theory and practice in the middle ages: sacred and secular music, monophony and polyphony, performers and patrons, notation and orality. No prior background in music or ability to read music is required.

Prerequisite: SMC203Y1/ SMC206H1/ SMC210H1/ SMC212H1/ MUS111H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

SMC358H1 - The Mediaeval Book

Hours: 24S

This course examines the most salient aspects of mediaeval manuscript culture. We will study, first, how the parchment for books was folded, pricked, ruled and bound, and second, what scripts were employed in the different codices. We will also examine the various types of books made in the Middle Ages and the challenges they pose to modern scholars.

Recommended Preparation: LAT100Y1/ LAT102H1; SMC210H1/ SMC212H1 or a course in mediaeval history.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

SMC359H1 - Mediaeval Theology

Hours: 24L

An introduction to the discipline of theology as taught in the mediaeval schools. Building on a basic knowledge of Christian scriptures and of philosophical argument, this course will offer an organic exposition of mediaeval theology, together with an introduction into the scientific method of theological investigation as practised in the Middle ages.

Recommended Preparation: SMC210H1/ SMC212H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

SMC361H1 - Mediaeval Law

Hours: 24S

Mediaeval jurisprudence combines the high technical quality of Roman law with the requirements of Christianity. The seminar provides an overview of the development of mediaeval learned jurisprudence; select texts from Roman and canon law, with their glosses, are read in order to explore more specifically the methods and concerns of mediaeval jurists.

Recommended Preparation: HIS220Y1/ SMC210H1/ SMC212H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

SMC406H1 - Mediaeval Seminar II

Hours: 12T/24S

A fourth-year seminar on a topic to be determined annually.

Prerequisite: Permission of the instructor

Recommended Preparation: SMC210H1/ SMC212H1 or other medieval courses

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

SMC407Y1 - Mediaeval Seminar I

Hours: 24T/48S

A fourth-year seminar on a topic to be determined annually.

Prerequisite: Permission of the instructor

Recommended Preparation: SMC210H1/ SMC212H1 or other mediaeval courses

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Introduction

The Sexual Diversity Studies Program (Specialist, Major, Minor) allows students to focus on questions of sexual identity, difference, and dissidence across disciplinary lines and cultural frameworks. By examining sexual diversity across time and place, students will learn about the ways different cultures have separated the sexual from the nonsexual, the normal from the abnormal, and what the regulation of sexuality can tell us about how power operates along the lines of gender and race, for example. Students will gain an understanding of how and why certain sexual practices have come under scrutiny, and the significance of the various labels and identities that we have attached to them.

Sexual Diversity Studies Courses

JSU237H1 - Introduction to HIV/AIDS: Health, Sexuality and Gender (formerly UNI237H1)

Hours: 24L

A critical examination of the HIV/AIDS global pandemic from a multidisciplinary perspective and with an emphasis on sexuality. The course examines the basic biology of HIV/AIDS and then covers social, historical, political, cultural, gender, and public health aspects of HIV/AIDS. Attention is given to the distinct features of vulnerable and marginalized populations, prevention, treatment, drug development, and access to medicines.

JSU237H1 is particularly intended for students in the Health Studies and/or Sexual Diversity Studies programs.

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

SDS255H1 - History and Perspectives in Sexual Diversity

Previous Course Number: UNI255H1

Hours: 24L/12T

An interdisciplinary examination of sexuality across cultures and periods. How are sexualities represented? How are they suppressed or celebrated? How and why are they labeled as straight, gay, lesbian, bisexual, queer, or perverse? How do sexualities change with ethnicity, class, and gender?

Exclusion: UNI255H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities; Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

SDS256H1 - Social Scientific Approaches to Sexuality

Previous Course Number: UNI256H1

Hours: 24L/12T

A cross-cultural perspective on the methodological and theoretical approaches used by social scientists to study human sexuality and gendered diversity.

Exclusion: UNI256H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

JPS315H1 - Sexual Diversity Politics

Hours: 24L

An interdisciplinary examination of the development of political visibility by gays, lesbians, bisexuals, and the transgendered in the contemporary period; and an analysis of public policy on and state regulation of sexual diversity in Canada, the U.S., Europe, with additional attention paid to developments in Latin America, East Asia, and Africa. (Given by the Department of Political Science and the Sexual Diversity Studies Program)

Prerequisite: SDS255H1/ SDS256H1/ UNI255H1/ UNI256H1/one full course on the politics of 20th century Europe, U.S., or Canada/one full course on gender or sexuality/permission of the instructor

Exclusion: JPU315H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

JSU325H1 - Queerly Canadian

Previous Course Number: UNI325H1

Hours: 36L

This course focuses on Canadian literary and artistic productions that challenge prevailing notions of nationality and sexuality, exploring not only how artists struggle with that ongoing Canadian thematic of being and belonging, but also celebrate pleasure and desire as a way of imagining and articulating an alternative national politics.

Prerequisite: SDS255H1/ SDS256H1/ CDN267H1 (formerly UNI267H1)/ CDN268H1 (formerly UNI268H1) or permission of the instructor

Exclusion: SDS375H1 Special Topics: Queerly Canadian, UNI325H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

SDS345H1 - Sex and the Epidemic: Social Work, HIV, and Human Sexuality

Previous Course Number: UNI345H1

Hours: 36L

HIV has forever changed the way human beings understand sexuality. Through a social justice lens, this course examines the nature of community norms, laws, popular media, and the academy to explore how the epidemic has impacted the provision of social services in relation to the diversity of human sexuality.

Prerequisite: SDS255H1/ SDS256H1/ UNI255H1/ UNI256H1

SDS354H1 - Theories of Sexuality I: Western Trajectories

Previous Course Number: UNI354H1

Hours: 24L

This course offers a survey of some key texts and narratives that have traversed and structured Western conceptualizations of sexuality from Greek antiquity to the 19th century. We will examine a variety of literary, philosophical and medical sources in light of what they say about past conceptualizations of the body, desire and its pleasures, and we will ask how they resonate with, or radically differ from, our current understandings of bodily norms, passions and transgressions.

Prerequisite: SDS255H1/ SDS256H1/ UNI255H1/ UNI256H1

Exclusion: UNI354H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities; Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

SDS355H1 - Theories of Sexuality II: Contemporary Perspectives

Previous Course Number: UNI355H1

Hours: 24L

This course is a short critical survey of some of the ways in which sexuality has been theorized over the past fifty years, paying particular attention to the fruitful relays between cultural theory and political activism at large. Its aim is not to be exhaustive but to highlight some of the more challenging approaches to the study of bodies, desires and the environments they're immersed in and with which the dynamically interact. We will examine how sexuality has been conceptualised, regulated and politically mobilized in recent years, specifically in North America.

Prerequisite: SDS255H1/ SDS256H1/ UNI255H1/ UNI256H1 or permission of the instructor

Exclusion: UNI355H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities; Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

SDS365H1 - Sexuality and Law

Previous Course Number: UNI365H1

Hours: 24L

The course explores the legal regulation of sexuality. How does law understand, constitute and regulate sex, sexuality and sexual diversity? It will consider the role of different types of regulation, including criminal law, family law and constitutional law, and explore issues ranging from sex work and pornography to same sex marriage to transgender discrimination.

Introduction

For over one thousand years the countries of the Slavic world have played a prominent role in international life, and have provided our civilization with numerous writers, musicians, philosophers, religious and political thinkers, and scientists of note. The richness of the Slavic cultures has a special significance for Canada, since the vast influx of Slavs, which began in the last century, has contributed greatly to the Canadian cultural mosaic.

The Department of Slavic Languages and Literatures offers an extensive range of courses in Russian, Polish, Ukrainian, Czech and Slovak, Bosnian, Croatian, Serbian, and Macedonian languages, literatures, culture, and film as well as in Slavic linguistics. Within this range there are courses suitable for inclusion in a wide variety of programs of study, whether or not the student has studied any Slavic language previously. Some students may specialize in Slavic Languages and Cultures, i.e. Russian, Polish or Ukrainian (see Programs of Study). Others may simply wish to gain a working knowledge of Russian or another Slavic language to aid their reading of important material in another field. Language study emphasizes small instructional groups, with some laboratory or conversational practice, and the use of literary materials.

Courses in the literatures and cultures of various Slavic countries explore the artistic, intellectual, and social currents of their civilizations, trace the literary history of each country, and examine the works of major authors. Many of our literature, culture, and film courses are taught in English and do not require special linguistic preparation.

The growing importance of Eastern Europe in contemporary affairs has had the effect of making academic study of this area especially lively and relevant. The student whose interest in the Russian or East European world is political, historical, or sociological can specialize in Russian and East European Studies, or pursue a course in Political Science, History, or Sociology, and at the same time take language courses, and perhaps selected courses in literature, in this Department. Students planning to specialize in Economics, Psychology, Mathematics, or any number of other fields, who have a special interest in the Russian or East European area, will find an advanced knowledge of Russian or of another Slavic language an important intellectual and professional asset.

Students intending to take a Program offered by the Department are asked to study carefully the Programs of Study and are urged to begin their language training as soon as possible. A Departmental brochure is available on request.

Faculty of Arts & Science Language Citation

The Department of Slavic Languages and Literatures participates in the Faculty of Arts and Science's Language Citation initiative. Students may achieve this Citation in Bosnian, Croatian, Czech, Polish, Russian, Serbian, and Ukrainian. Students interested in completing the Language Citation in languages taught in the Slavic Department but not listed here should consult the Undergraduate Coordinator of the Department of Slavic Languages and Literatures.

Language study is a demanding and intellectually rewarding educational experience. Our students learn to communicate both orally and in writing in other languages and are thus able to experience other parts of the world in more intimate ways. Their access to other cultures opens doors for further study and employment. Students in our department also have the opportunity to read a vast array of world-renowned authors in the original languages, as well as works – normally not available in English – in other areas of study, for example, cinema studies, drama, folklore, history, intellectual history, philosophy, mathematics, and political science.

The Language Citation recognizes a significant level of achievement in language study. For course selection students should consult the Undergraduate Coordinator as early as possible since not every language course is offered each year. Students who begin language study at the Intermediate level should consult the Undergraduate Coordinator for approval of advanced literature and culture courses that may satisfy the requirements for the Language Citation.

The Language Citation in Bosnian, Croatian, or Serbian is available to students who complete SLA257H1, SLA277H1, and an additional FCE in South Slavic literature or culture with readings and discussion in the target language with a grade of at least B-. The Language Citation in Macedonian is available to students who complete SLA209H1, SLA213H1 and an additional FCE in South Slavic literature or culture with readings and discussion in the target language with a grade of at least B-. Consult the Undergraduate Coordinator for approval of advanced literature and culture courses that may satisfy the requirements for the Language Citation.

The Language Citation in Czech is available to students who complete SLA204Y1 and an additional FCE in Czech literature or culture with readings and discussion in the target language with a grade of at least B-.

The Language Citation in Polish is available to students who complete SLA206H1, SLA207H1, SLA306H1 and SLA336H1 with a grade of at least B-.

The Language Citation in Russian is available to students who complete, with a grade of at least B-, two FCEs: SLA220Y1, SLA320Y1, or SLA420Y1.

The Language Citation in Ukrainian is available to students who complete SLA208Y1 as well as one additional FCE in Ukrainian literature or culture with readings and discussion in the target language with a grade of at least B-. Transfer language credits also eligible.

Students should note that, as explained in the Language Citation section of the Degree Requirements chapter of this Calendar, the Language Citation is not equivalent to an academic program and that enrolment in a program is not necessary in order to earn the recognition bestowed by the Citation.

Regarding Slavic Languages and Literatures Courses

Note: The Department reserves the right to place students in the language course best suited to their linguistic preparation

Interdisciplinary Courses

First Year Seminars

The 199Y1 and 199H1 seminars are designed to provide the opportunity to work closely with an instructor in a class of no more than twenty-four students. These interactive seminars are intended to stimulate the students' curiosity and provide an opportunity to get to know a member of the professorial staff in a seminar environment during the first year of study. Details can be found at www.artsci.utoronto.ca/current/course/fyh-1/.

Bosnian, Croatian, Macedonian and Serbian Courses:

Macedonian Courses: Please see South Slavic Courses

Russian language student placement policy

All students who have studied Russian outside the University of Toronto must take a language placement test prior to enrolling into a Russian language course. Contact the Department for test dates and times.

Native speakers of Russian are not allowed to enroll into any Russian language course, with the exception of SLA402/403 and linguistics courses (SLA330, SLA452). Native speakers may enroll into any Russian literature and culture course, and any Russian POST (language requirement will be replaced with the equivalent number of literature and culture FCEs in consultation with the Undergraduate Coordinator).

Heritage speakers of Russian are allowed to enroll into a Russian language course only by special permission from the Russian language program coordinator, Prof. Julia Mikhailova (julia.mikhailova@utoronto.ca) but are encouraged to enrol in SLA210 and SLA410, courses specially designed for them. Heritage speakers may enroll into any Russian literature and culture course, and any Russian POST (if necessary, language requirement will be replaced with the equivalent number of literature and culture FCEs in consultation with the Undergraduate Coordinator).

Who are native and heritage speakers of Russian? For academic purposes, the Department considers a student to be a native speaker of Russian if s/he meets one of the following criteria:

- The student left Russia at the age of 10 or later.
- The student lived in a Russian-speaking country (any former Soviet republic) before the age of 10 and did elementary schooling in Russian.

For academic purposes, the Department considers a student to be a heritage speaker of Russian if s/he meets one of the following criteria:

- The student left Russia before the age of 10.
- The student lived in a Russian-speaking country (any former Soviet republic) before the age of 10 but did elementary schooling in a language other than Russian.
- The student was born and/or grew up outside of a Russian-speaking country but speaks some Russian at home.

It is the responsibility of individual students to furnish documentation proving their native- or heritage-speaker status. In the absence of such documentation, the Department reserves the right to deny enrolment into Russian language courses. Heritage and native speakers of Russian who enroll in a Russian language course and fail to identify themselves to the Department engage in cheating and will be treated in accordance with the university policy on academic misconduct.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

SLA203H1 - Faking It

Hours: 24L

The role of forgery in cultural, national, and personal identities. A scholar "discovering" an "ancient" manuscript, a noblewoman in disguise joining the army, an impostor conning a provincial town, a writer faking political loyalty. Literary texts from Central and Eastern Europe expose the porous boundaries between authenticity and lies, highlighting the artificiality and vulnerability of social and cultural conventions. Taught in English, all readings in English.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

SLA222H1 - Forging Identities: The Roms of Central and Eastern Europe

Hours: 24S

Both in popular culture and the headlines, Roma (Gypsies) are often depicted as either romantic or negative. Taught in English, all readings in English.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

SLA267H1 - Great Plays in Great Performances

Hours: 24S

Focusing on great dramatic texts of Russia and Central Europe in the 19th and 20th centuries allows us to address the issues of dramatic form, theatre conventions, and performance practices while placing the texts in their rich cultural contexts. The interplay between literary and theatre and performance analysis returns us to some fundamental theoretical issues related to the questions about drama as an art form.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

SLA268H1 - Cossacks!

Hours: 24S

How are Cossacks depicted in literary and visual works? Were they the agents of a repressive Russian government, the hirelings of Polish kings, the tormentors of Eastern European Jews, the protectors of Europe from the Ottomans, or the liberators of the Ukrainian nation? We read works from the Jewish, Polish, Russian and Ukrainian cultural traditions.

Prerequisite: None

Corequisite: None

Exclusion: CCR199H1 (First-Year Seminar: The Cossacks), offered in Winter 2012, Winter 2013, Fall 2013, Fall 2015, Fall 2016, and Fall 2017

Prerequisite: None

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

SLA286H1 - Literature and Science

Previous Course Number: SLA486H1

Hours: 24S

Shaped by the experience of two world wars, two totalitarianisms, and several revolutions, continental sci-fi is known for its radical and uncompromising thought experiments and daring aesthetics. Discussing works by Evgenii Zamiatin, Karel Capek, Sigismund Krzhizhanovsky, Fritz Lang, HG Wells, Stanislaw Lem, Andrei Tarkovsky, and Jacek Dukaj among others, we examine the consequences of science, technology and social engineering pushing individuals beyond their human limits.

Prerequisite: None

Exclusion: SLA486H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

SLA287H1 - Deceptive Splendors: The European South in Literature and Film

Hours: 24S

This class investigates the tropes associated with the European south (including the Balkans and the Mediterranean) as it figures in collective northern fantasies – eternal sun, exuberant passion, intransigent honor – and the more somber themes that they obscure including: economic crises, social inequalities, political exploitations, identity conflicts. The course assesses how such issues are represented, addressed, negotiated and symbolically resolved in film and literature.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

SLA302H1 - The Imaginary Jew

Hours: 36S

The course examines the genesis and evolution of the image of the Jew, central to all European cultures, from the theology and psychology of Christian anti-Judaism to their reflection in folklore, visual, plastic, and verbal arts, and to the survival of the imaginary Jew in secular forms. Special attention is given to the Jews of Slavic and East European imagination. All readings are in English.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Introduction

Sociology's key principle is that patterned social relationships create opportunities for, and place constraints on, human action. The influence of this idea is widespread. New research agendas in law, literature, economics, and other disciplines reflect the notion that beyond individual motives, goals, values, beliefs and emotions, patterned social relationships help to make us who we are. Our courses and faculty research examine how patterned social relationships shape and are shaped by gender roles and families; health; immigration and ethnic relations; labour markets, work and social inequality; political structures and processes; crime, law and deviance; culture; cities; and networks, and communities.

To test explanations regarding the influence of social relationships on various aspects of human behaviour, sociologists collect and analyze observational, survey, experimental, and historical data. Accordingly, the sociological perspective and the research skills learned by studying sociology prepare students for a wide variety of careers in industry, government, education, politics, health and journalism. Medical, legal, and environmental fields report an increasing need for sociologists. Municipal, provincial and federal governments hire in areas like urban sociology, community relations, policy and planning, and statistical analysis. In private business, sociologists work in management consulting firms and polling organizations, as well as in labour relations and human resources.

A professional career in sociology requires training beyond the undergraduate level. However, the critical, analytical and research skills that undergraduate sociology students learn open many employment opportunities. Over a third of Canadian undergraduates in sociology go on to be employed in business, finance and administrative occupations, and just under a third in government service, social science, and educational fields.

Regarding Sociology Programs

Enrolment in sociology programs is limited (Type 2L).
Consult the Arts & Science Program Enrolment web site for application procedures.

NOTE 1: Obtaining 65% or more in SOC101Y or a combined average of 65% or more in SOC102H+SOC103H, SOC102H+SOC150H1, SOC103H+SOC150H1, or SOC100H1+SOC150H1 is required for entry into the sociology major and minor programs. Entry to the sociology specialist program at the end of the first year requires a minimum of 80% in SOC101Y or a minimum combined average of 80% in SOC102H+SOC103H, SOC102H+SOC150H1, SOC103H+SOC150H1, or SOC100H1+SOC150H1. Achieving the minimum grades does not guarantee acceptance into the programs. Credit for higher-level SOC courses will not waive these requirements.

NOTE 2: Transfer credits of SOC1**H without exclusion cannot be used to meet program admission or requirements.

Sociology Programs

Sociology Specialist (Arts Program) - ASSPE1013

Enrolment Requirements:

This is a limited enrolment program that can only accommodate a limited number of students. Eligibility will be competitive and based on a student's mark (minimum combined average of 70% in SOC201H1, SOC202H1, and SOC204H1. Achieving the 70% minimum mark does not guarantee admission to the program in any given year.

Students interested in the Specialist program normally apply and enter from the Major program, after having completed the first half of Year 2 requirements of that program as below. Students demonstrating exceptional interest and achievement in the introductory course may enter at the end of Year 1.

NOTE: Students cannot combine a Sociology Specialist program with another Sociology program (Major or Minor) for their degree.

Entry Requirements:

From the Major program:
A minimum combined average of 70% in SOC201H1, SOC202H1, and SOC204H1

From Year 1:
A minimum combined average of 80% in SOC101Y1, or a combination of SOC102H1+SOC103H1, SOC102H1+SOC150H1, SOC103H1+SOC150H1, or SOC100H1+SOC150H1.

Completion Requirements:

(10 FCEs in Sociology)

1. SOC101Y1, or a combination of SOC102H1+SOC103H1, SOC102H1+SOC150H1, SOC103H1+SOC150H1, or SOC100H1+SOC150H1.
2. SOC201H1, SOC202H1, and SOC204H1
3. SOC251H1, SOC252H1, and SOC254H1
4. 2.0 SOC FCEs from 300 level "Program-Only" courses (rotating list every year)
5. 1.0 SOC FCEs at the 400 level
6. An additional 3.0 FCEs in Sociology at the 200 or 300 level (1.0 of which must be taken at the 300 level, i.e., 2.0 FCEs at the 200 or 300 level and 1.0 at the 300 level).

NOTES:

1. Students cannot take more than 1.0 FCE at the 400 level without written permission from the Undergraduate Program Administrator.
2. Students cannot take more than 2.0 FCE of the program-only courses without written permission from the Undergraduate Program Administrator.

Sociology Major (Arts Program) - ASMAJ1013

Enrolment Requirements:

This is a limited enrolment program that can only accommodate a limited number of students. Eligibility will be competitive and based on a student's mark (minimum average of 65%) in 1.0 FCE at the 100-level. Achieving the 65% mark does not guarantee admission to the program in any given year.

NOTE: Students cannot combine a Sociology Major program with another Sociology program (Specialist or Minor) for their degree.

Entry Requirements:

1. A minimum combined average grade of 65% in SOC101Y1, or a combination of SOC102H1+ SOC103H1, SOC102H1+ SOC150H1, SOC103H1+ SOC150H1, or SOC100H1+ SOC150H1.
2. 3 full courses (3.0 FCEs) towards a degree (can be from sociology or other departments).

Completion Requirements:

(7.0 FCEs in Sociology)

1. SOC101Y1, or a combination of SOC102H1+ SOC103H1, SOC102H1+ SOC150H1, SOC103H1+ SOC150H1, or SOC100H1+ SOC150H1.
2. SOC201H1, SOC202H1, and SOC204H1
3. 1.0 FCEs from SOC251H1, SOC252H1, and SOC254H1
4. 1.0 SOC FCEs from 300 level "Program-Only" courses (rotating list every year)
5. 0.5 SOC FCEs at the 400 level
6. An additional 2.0 FCEs in Sociology at the 200 or 300 level (0.5 of which must be taken at the 300 level, i.e., 1.5 FCEs at the 200 or 300 level and 0.5 at the 300 level).

NOTES:

1. Students cannot take more than 0.5 FCE at the 400 level without written permission from the Undergraduate Program Administrator.
2. Students cannot take more than 1.0 FCE of the program-only courses without written permission from the Undergraduate Program Administrator.

Sociology Minor (Arts Program) - ASMIN1013

Enrolment Requirements:

This is a limited enrolment program that can only accommodate a limited number of students. Eligibility will be competitive and based on a student's mark (minimum average of 65%) in 1.0 SOC FCE at the 100-level.

Achieving the 65% mark does not guarantee admission to the program in any given year.

NOTE: Students cannot combine a Sociology Minor program with another Sociology program (Specialist or Major) for their degree.

Entry Requirements:

1. A minimum grade of 65% (see above) in SOC101Y, or a combination of SOC102H+SOC103H, SOC102H+ SOC150H1, SOC103H+ SOC150H1, or SOC100H1+ SOC150H1.
2. 3 full courses (3.0 FCEs) towards a degree (can be from sociology or other departments).

Completion Requirements:

(4.0 FCEs in Sociology)

1. SOC101Y, or a combination of SOC102H+SOC103H, SOC102H+ SOC150H1, SOC103H+ SOC150H1, or SOC100H1+ SOC150H1.
2. Three additional SOC courses (3.0 FCEs), which includes at least 1.0 SOC FCE at the 300 level, i.e., 2.0 SOC FCEs at the 200 OR 300 level and 1.0 SOC FCE at the 300 level.

Combined Degree Program (CDP) in Arts and Education: Sociology (Major), Honours Bachelor of Arts/Master of Teaching

The Combined Degree Program in Arts/Science and Education is designed for students interested in studying the intersections of teaching subjects and Education, coupled with professional teacher preparation. Students earn an Honours Bachelor's degree from the Faculty of Arts and Science (St. George) and an accredited professional Master of Teaching (MT) degree from the Ontario Institute for Studies in Education (OISE). They will be recommended to the Ontario College of Teachers for an Ontario Teacher's Certificate of Qualifications as elementary or secondary school teachers. The CDP permits the completion of both degrees in six years with 1.0 FCE that may be counted towards both the undergraduate and graduate degrees.

Program requirements:

1. Minor in Education and Society, Victoria College
2. Major in Sociology (first teaching subject)
3. Minor in an area corresponding to the second teaching subject as determined by OISE (see <http://pepper.oise.utoronto.ca/~jhewitt/mtresources/in termediate senior teaching subject prerequisites 2016-17.pdf>)

See here for additional information on the CDP, including admission, path to completion and contact information.

Regarding Sociology Courses

Note:

Transfer credits of SOC1**H without exclusion cannot be used to meet program admission or requirements.

First Year Seminars

The 199Y1 and 199H1 seminars are designed to provide the opportunity to work closely with an instructor in a class of no more than twenty-four students. These interactive seminars are intended to stimulate the students' curiosity and provide an opportunity to get to know a member of the professorial staff in a seminar environment during the first year of study. Details can be found at www.artsci.utoronto.ca/current/course/fyh-1/.

400-level Courses

Note: Sociology majors cannot take more than 0.5 SOC FCE at the 400 level and Sociology specialists cannot take more than 1.0 SOC FCE at the 400 level, without written permission from the Undergraduate Program Administrator.

Sociology Courses

SOC100H1 - Introduction to Sociology I: Sociological Perspectives

Hours: 24L/12T

This course will challenge your views on a wide range of issues that affect us all. It will also excite your interest in a unique sociological way of understanding your world. We will analyze the globalization of culture, emerging patterns of class, race, and gender inequality in Canada and internationally, criminal and deviant behaviour, and so on. You will learn to understand these and other pressing social issues by analyzing the way the social world is organized. These topics are further taken up in the sequel to this course, SOC150: Introduction to Sociology II: Sociological Inquiries.

Exclusion: SOC101Y1, SOC102H1, SOC103H1, SOCA01H3, SOCA02H3; SOC100H5

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

SOC150H1 - Introduction to Sociology II: Sociological Inquiries

Hours: 24L/12T

In the sequel to SOC100H1: Introduction to Sociology I: Sociological Perspectives, this course will explore in more depth the topic of social inequality and the contemporary debates that animate sociology. We may like to think of ourselves as perfectly free but powerful social forces open up some opportunities and close off others, constraining our freedom and helping to make us what we are. By examining the operation of these social forces, sociology can help us know ourselves. The course is also about skills-building, skills useful not only for success at U of T, but beyond the walls of the university.

Prerequisite: SOC100H1 or SOC102H or SOC103H

Exclusion: SOC101Y, (SOC102H + SOC103H), SOC200H1, SOC200Y1, SOCB05H3, SOC221H5, SOC200Y5

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

SOC201H1 - Classical Sociological Theory

Hours: 24L/12T

Introduction to the history, nature, and role of sociological theory, through an examination of the works of key classical theorists such as Karl Marx, Max Weber, Emile Durkheim, Georg Simmel, and others. Restricted to sociology majors and specialists.

Prerequisite: SOC101Y, or a combination of SOC102H+ SOC103H, SOC102H+ SOC150H1, SOC103H+ SOC150H1, or SOC100H1+ SOC150H1

Exclusion: SOC203H1; SOC231H5; SOCB42H3

Recommended Preparation: SOC150H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

SOC204H1 - Introduction to Qualitative Methods in Sociology

Hours: 24L/12T

Introduction to the methods and issues of qualitative research, the theories, methods for data collection and analysis, and the personal and ethical issues relating to qualitative research. Restricted to sociology majors and specialists.

Prerequisite: SOC101Y, or a combination of SOC102H+ SOC103H, SOC102H+ SOC150H1, SOC103H+ SOC150H1, or SOC100H1+ SOC150H1

Exclusion: SOC302H1; SOCC23H3; SOC387H5

Recommended Preparation: SOC150H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

SOC202H1 - Introduction to Quantitative Methods in Sociology

Hours: 24L/18T

Introduction in quantitative social science research from descriptive statistics to hypothesis testing using various strategies for the analysis of bivariate relationships. Restricted to sociology majors and specialists.

Prerequisite: SOC101Y, or a combination of SOC102H+ SOC103H, SOC102H+ SOC150H1, SOC103H+ SOC150H1, or SOC100H1+ SOC150H1

Exclusion: SOC200Y5, SOC222H5, ECO220Y1, ECO227Y1, GGR270H1, PSY201H1, STA220H1, STA248H1, POL232H1, POL242Y1, POL322H1

Recommended Preparation: SOC150H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

SOC205H1 - Urban Sociology

Hours: 24L

This course reviews theories of urban genesis and urban form; the interrelationship of urbanization, industrialization and modernization, issues in urban living (housing, transportation, urban-renewal, poverty, unemployment, etc.); urban social networks (ethnic and cultural heterogeneity, neighbourhood, community and other voluntary associations).

Prerequisite: SOC101Y or SOC102H or SOC100H1

Recommended Preparation: SOC150H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

SOC207H1 - Sociology of Work & Occupations

Hours: 24L

The nature and meaning of work in relation to changes in the position of the professions, unions and government, of women and minority groups, and in industrial societies more generally. Career choice and strategies, occupational mobility, and individual satisfaction at work.

Prerequisite: SOC101Y or SOC102H or SOC100H1

Exclusion: SOC227H5

Recommended Preparation: SOC150H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

SOC208H1 - Introduction to Social Policy

Hours: 24L

This course introduces students to the concepts, history and development of social policy in economically developed welfare states. It examines the problems and concepts of the policy process, exploring the political, economic, and institutional frameworks that structure public choices about social policy in Canada, and compare systems of social policy around the world.

Prerequisite: SOC101Y or SOC102H or SOC100H1

Exclusion: SOC297H1 (New Topics in Sociology: Introduction to Social Policy), offered in Winter 2017; SOC240H5

Recommended Preparation: SOC150H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

SOC209H1 - Sexuality and Modernity

Hours: 24L

This course examines questions related to sexuality, with a special focus on the social construction of sexual identity, practice, community and desire. To do so, we proceed self consciously with a critical analysis of the modern study of sexuality, and the ways in which sexual science, as a kind of social practice, has affected the construction and regulation of sexual orientation.

Prerequisite: SOC101Y or SOC102H or SOC100H1

Exclusion: SOC395H1 (taken in Winter 2015, Winter 2016), SOC387H1 (taken in Fall 2016, Fall 2017), SOC386H1 (taken in Winter 2018)

Recommended Preparation: SOC150H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

SOC210H1 - Sociology of Race and Ethnicity

Hours: 24L

The course explores the concepts of race and ethnicity and major theories to understand race and ethnic relations.

Prerequisite: SOC101Y or SOC102H or SOC100H1

Exclusion: SOC210Y1

Recommended Preparation: SOC150H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

SOC212H1 - Sociology of Crime & Deviance

Hours: 24L

This course provides an overview of the study of crime and deviance. We critically examine how scholars have gone about studying crime and deviance (the methods they use and the statistics they employ) as well as the major sociological explanations for crime and deviance. We also consider the empirical evidence as it relates to the validity of these explanations and some of the policy fallout from different theoretical approaches.

Prerequisite: SOC101Y or SOC102H or SOC100H1

Exclusion: SOC211H5

Recommended Preparation: SOC150H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

SOC213H1 - Sociological Social Psychology

Hours: 24L

This course provides an introduction to the systematic study of the influence of individuals, groups, and society on individuals' thoughts, feelings, and behaviours from a sociological perspective. The course emphasizes interaction among individuals, between an individual and a group, or among groups, all situated within particular social contexts. One core emphasis involves the ways that individual-level processes contribute to explaining social inequality in social groups and organizations. Topics include identity processes, social cognitions, attitudes, emotions, status processes, power relations, legitimacy, and justice.

Prerequisite: SOC101Y1 OR SOC102H1 or SOC100H1

Exclusion: PSY220H1

Recommended Preparation: SOC150H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

SOC214H1 - Family Patterns

Hours: 24L

This course examines diverse family patterns, to show the economic, political and cultural factors that influence families. A brief social history of family paves the way for an examination of the various family patterns common in Canada today. Special attention is paid to the gender relations at the heart of family.

Prerequisite: SOC101Y or SOC102H or SOC100H1

Exclusion: SOCB49H3; SOC244H5

Recommended Preparation: SOC150H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

SOC218H1 - Asian Communities in Canada

Hours: 24L

The course will explore the structures and processes of Asian communities in Canada. Historical development of various Asian communities will be explored.

Prerequisite: SOC101Y or SOC102H or SOC100H1

Exclusion: SOC342Y1/ SOC394Y1

Recommended Preparation: SOC150H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

SOC220H1 - Social Inequality in Canada

Hours: 24L

This course is concerned with the causes and consequences of economic inequality. More specifically, it explores how achieved and ascribed characteristics are related to social class and related economic outcomes. Although some of the material will be comparative and pertain to modern Democracies generally, emphasis will be on Canadian society.

Prerequisite: SOC101Y or SOC102H or SOC100H1

Recommended Preparation: SOC150H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

SOC243H1 - Sociology of Health and Illness

Hours: 24L

This course examines (1) the social causes of illness and disease, (2) the experience of illness, and social processes that shape both of these issues, including medicalization. It focuses on population health, the relation between agency and structure, and macro-micro connections. Professional health care is discussed to the extent that it provides context for analyses of illness patterns and experiences.

Prerequisite: SOC101Y or SOC102H or SOC100H1

Exclusion: SOC239H5

Recommended Preparation: SOC150H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

SOC246H1 - Sociology of Aging

Hours: 24L

This course deals with population aging, cohort effects, inter-generational relations, historical variation in effects of social environment on aging, how health and family relationships vary with age, and social policies related to aging. The whole life course is considered, but the emphasis on adulthood and old age.

Prerequisite: SOC101Y or SOC102H or SOC100H1

Exclusion: SOC334H5

Recommended Preparation: SOC150H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

SOC249H1 - Sociology of Migration

Hours: 24L

This course examines contemporary migration flows, types and causes of migration, theories of migration, immigration policies, and migrant integration with emphasis on Canada.

Prerequisite: SOC101Y or SOC102H or SOC100H1

Exclusion: SOC307Y1

Recommended Preparation: SOC150H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

SOC250Y1 - Sociology of Religion

Hours: 48L

This course will examine religious beliefs, practices, and experiences from a historical-sociological and comparative perspective. Classical and contemporary theories will be reviewed and applied to investigate such topics as: the social origins of religions; the formation of religious communities; heresies, schisms and the making of orthodoxies; secularization and fundamentalism; cults and new religious movements; religious regulation of the body and person; and the variable linkages of religion to politics, war, art and science.

Prerequisite: SOC101Y or SOC102H or SOC100H1

Exclusion: RLG210Y1

Recommended Preparation: SOC150H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

SOC251H1 - Contemporary Sociological Theory

Hours: 24L/12T

A selective introduction to major contemporary thinkers and approaches whose ideas have achieved wide influence, as well as an on-going inquiry into the nature and role of sociological analysis. Restricted to sociology majors and specialists.

Prerequisite: SOC201H1 or SOC203H1

Exclusion: SOC376H1; SOC232H5

Recommended Preparation: SOC150H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

SOC252H1 - Intermediate Quantitative Methods in Sociology

Hours: 24L/24T

Provides students with the opportunity to develop an understanding of the logic of multivariate analysis by applying various strategies for the analysis of complex multivariate data. Restricted to sociology majors and specialists.

Prerequisite: SOC202H1

Exclusion: SOC300H1, ECO220Y1, PSY202H1, STA221H1

Recommended Preparation: SOC150H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

SOC254H1 - Intermediate Qualitative Methods in Sociology

Hours: 24L/12T

An in-depth examination of key methods of qualitative research, and an opportunity to design and conduct qualitative research that draws from key debates, methodologies, and methods in the field. Restricted to sociology majors and specialists.

Prerequisite: SOC204H1

Recommended Preparation: SOC150H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

SOC256H1 - Lives and Societies

Hours: 24L

Characteristics of very different kinds of societies, from hunters and gatherers to modern postindustrial countries, and how these affect features of individual lives including: life stages, their status, and transitions between them; the variety of possible life courses; rates of birth and death, and their implications for people, their kin, and their societies.

Prerequisite: SOC101Y or SOC102H or SOC100H1

Recommended Preparation: SOC150H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

SOC260H1 - Fundamentals of Political Sociology

Hours: 24L

An introduction to key topics in political sociology such as social movements, electoral alignments, parties as organizations, the welfare state, revolution, policymaking, state formation, nationalism and imperialism.

Prerequisite: SOC101Y or SOC102H or SOC100H1

Exclusion: SOCB30H3; SOC335H5

Recommended Preparation: SOC150H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

SOC265H1 - Gender and Society

Hours: 24L

This course first explores how sociologists conceptualize gender and study gender. Then, it explores the varied nature of gender relations, with a focus on the social organization of gender today.

Prerequisite: SOC101Y or SOC102H or SOC100H1

Exclusion: SOCB22H3; SOC275H5

Recommended Preparation: SOC150H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

SOC280H1 - Sociology of Culture

Hours: 24L

The course examines the social origins of culture, the cultural patterns found in various groups and institutions, and the influence culture has on important aspects of society.

Prerequisite: SOC101Y or SOC102H or SOC100H1

Exclusion: SOC281H1; SOC202H5

Recommended Preparation: SOC150H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

SOC282H1 - Introduction to Social Problems

Hours: 24L

Examines a variety of widely discussed social problems, including poverty, crime, substance abuse, sexism, climate change and urban sprawl, using sociological theories to understand the causes of these problems. Will also examine the "social construction" of these social problems and factors that influence public attention and concern.

Prerequisite: SOC101Y or SOC102H or SOC100H1

Recommended Preparation: SOC150H1

SOC355H1 - Introduction to Social Network Analysis

Hours: 24L

This course covers the fundamentals of the social network perspective, including a short introduction to social network theory and a survey of major findings in social network research. We will study how patterns of relations between social actors develop and how they affect outcomes such as health, status attainment, and inequality. Students will write a proposal to conduct research from a social network perspective.

Prerequisite: 1.0 SOC FCE at the 200+ level

Exclusion: SOC330H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

SOC356H1 - Technology and Society

Hours: 24L

This course analyzes the interplay between new communication technologies and society. It will consider how technological developments affect social systems, and conversely, how social systems affect the nature and use of technology. Much of the course will be devoted to studying the impact of computerization and the advent of the information highway.

Prerequisite: 1.0 SOC FCE at the 200+ level

Exclusion: SOC331H1; SOC356Y1

Recommended Preparation: SOC201H1 OR SOC203H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

SOC357H1 - Lives in Canada

Hours: 24L

The life course in Canada, in the twentieth century and today, with some comparisons to other first world countries. How lives have changed over the past century; how lives are affected by history and social location; the impact of the life trajectories on health and crime.

Prerequisite: 1.0 SOC FCE at the 200+ level

Exclusion: SOC257H1, SOC332H1

Recommended Preparation: SOC220H1 or SOC281H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

SOC360H1 - Social Movements

Hours: 24L

This course examines the sociological study of collective action. Students will explore how movements in a variety of historical and global contexts endeavor to produce social change. In this process, we will examine political and cultural opportunities and obstacles, organizational dynamics, resources, collective action frames, strategies and tactics.

Prerequisite: 1.0 SOC FCE at the 200+ level

Exclusion: SOC279H1; SOC329H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

SOC362H1 - Quality of Institutions and Lives

Hours: 24L

Theory and research on quality of life encompass studies of subjective dimensions of individual wellbeing, such as happiness, and studies that focus on objective indicators of the quality of institutions and settings, such as child mortality rates. Quality-of-life theories range from (sometimes utopian) classical sociological theories with a historical and political slant to recent interdisciplinary theories that integrate sociological, psychological, and philosophical approaches.

Prerequisite: 1.0 SOC FCE at the 200+ level

Exclusion: SOC333H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

SOC363H1 - Sociology of Mental Health and Mental Disorders

Hours: 24L

An overview of the link between social inequality and emotional inequality, focusing on differences in mental health across social groups and the role of stress and coping resources in explaining group differences.

Prerequisite: 1.0 SOC FCE at the 200+ level

Exclusion: SOC334H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

SOC364H1 - Urban Health

Hours: 24L

Cities are home to particular populations (the poor, the homeless, racial and ethnic minorities, immigrants, and the young and old) and have distinct risks and protections relevant to health. Patterns of health in cities, historical developments, and emerging literature and methodology are used to uncover how everyday settings influence health.

Prerequisite: 1.0 SOC FCE at the 200+ level

Exclusion: SOC335H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

SOC365H1 - Gender Relations

Hours: 24L

This course examines the dynamics of gender in daily life – in sexuality and intimate relations, in parenting and families, and in paid work and workplace organizations, as well as in popular culture. It examines the social construction of gender in individuals and in social organizations, in order to understand gender inequality.

Prerequisite: 1.0 SOC FCE at the 200+ level

Exclusion: SOC337H1

Recommended Preparation: SOC265H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

SOC366H1 - Sociology of Women and Work

Hours: 24L

This course focuses on women's paid and unpaid work and the relationship between the two. It analyzes the gender gap in earnings, the sexual segregation of the labour force, the restructuring of paid work, sexual harassment, paid domestic work, and the division of housework and child care.

Prerequisite: 1.0 SOC FCE at the 200+ level

Exclusion: SOC338H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

SOC367H1 - Race, Class, and Gender

Hours: 24L

In this class, we analyze the ways in which race, class, gender and sexuality interact and shape communities, life opportunities, perspectives and politics. We will read contemporary ethnographies concerning work, socialization, and urban life against current sociological theories about inequality and intersectionality, and identity.

Prerequisite: 1.0 SOC FCE at the 200+ level

Exclusion: SOC339H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

SOC370H1 - Immigration and Employment

Previous Course Number: SOC439H1

Hours: 24L

This course examines the labour market and employment situation of immigrants emphasizing recent Canadian experience in comparative context. Topics include immigrant human capital, declining immigrant earnings, immigrant skill-underutilization, impact of the knowledge economy, racial discrimination, labour market structure and unionization, immigrant entrepreneurship and experiences of the Canadian-born second generation.

Prerequisite: 1.0 SOC FCE at the 200+ level

Exclusion: SOC319H1

SOC390Y1 - Independent Research

Hours: TBA

Independent Research courses allow students to pursue a specific topic of interest. These courses are offered at the 300-level, as full or half courses. Students work independently with a professor in the Department who acts as research supervisor. There are no formal class meetings, lectures, or readings other than what is agreed to with the supervisor. Professors accept supervisory responsibility at their discretion. They are not required to serve as research supervisors. It is recommended that students approach a professor working in the same sub-discipline of sociology. Often students become interested in a topic through a SOC course and approach the instructor of that course for supervision; however, this is not required. Not eligible for CR/NCR option. For further details, please visit our website at:

<http://sociology.utoronto.ca/st-george-campus/courses-3/independent-research-course/>

Prerequisite: Students must have completed 10.0 courses towards their degree, plus a SOC course at the 300+ level to be eligible for 300-level Independent Research.

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

SOC427H1 - Families and Health

Hours: 24L

Examines the competing theoretical, policy and therapeutic responses to a variety of family health problems, including addictions, chronic physical illnesses, and mental illness, as well as the effects of illness on family life and family coping. The links between theory and practice provide the basis for discussion of knowledge transfer. Restricted to 4th-year sociology majors and specialists.

Prerequisite: 1.0 SOC FCE at the 300+ level

Recommended Preparation: SOC314H1 or SOC363H1 or SOC364H1 or SOC478H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

SOC448H1 - Sociology & Emotions

Hours: 24L

From social cohesion to intergroup violence, emotional processes influence social outcomes. Moral aspects of experience in particular are linked to emotions such as shame and pride. Students in this course will review major theories of, and a variety of empirical approaches to, the link between social and emotional processes. They will be encouraged to extend ideas and analyses in the published literature to new topics. Restricted to 4th-year sociology majors and specialists.

Prerequisite: 1.0 SOC FCE at the 300+ level (preferably selected from the Recommended Preparation list for this course)

Recommended Preparation: SOC313H1 or SOC355H1 or SOC362H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

SOC455H1 - Researching from a Social Network Perspective

Hours: 24L

The course will cover methods for analyzing social network data and familiarize students with software created for working with these data. Each student will complete an empirical research project. Restricted to 4th-year sociology majors and specialists.

Prerequisite: 1.0 SOC FCE at the 300+ level

Recommended Preparation: SOC357H1 or SOC388H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

SOC465H1 - Advanced Studies in Gender

Hours: 24L

This course explores major questions about the nature of gender and gender inequality. The course requires a careful review of key theoretical and empirical work addressing one of these questions and the completion of a research project. Restricted to 4th-year sociology majors and specialists.

Prerequisite: 1.0 SOC FCE at the 300+ level.

Recommended Preparation: SOC214H1 or SOC366H1 or SOC367H1 or SOC365H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

SOC478H1 - Social Context of Public Policy

Hours: 24L

This course explores how policy processes and frameworks need to be evaluated in light of the social context in which they are developed. Factors to be considered include the interplay between public values and expectations and public policy; the implications of cultural diversity and demographic change, and understandings of ethical principles of conduct in public organizations. A related goal is to help students learn how to use empirical research to answer highly contested issues in policy circles and in public life. These objectives are pursued by introducing students to major trends in inequality in Canada, assessing these trends within a comparative context, reflecting on their normative implications, and examining alternative policy responses to these developments. Restricted to 4th-year sociology majors and specialists.

Prerequisite: 1.0 SOC FCE at the 300+ level.

Recommended Preparation: SOC303H1 or SOC304H1 or SOC314H1 or SOC363H1 or SOC364H1 or SOC365H1 or SOC371H1 or SOC383H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Students work independently with a professor in the Department who acts as research supervisor. There are no formal class meetings, lectures, or readings other than what is agreed to with the supervisor. Professors accept supervisory responsibility at their discretion. They are not required to serve as research supervisors. It is recommended that students approach a professor working in the same sub-discipline of sociology. Often students become interested in a topic through a SOC course and approach the instructor of that course for supervision; however, this is not required. Not eligible for CR/NCR option. For further details, please visit our website at: <http://sociology.utoronto.ca/st-george-campus/courses-3/independent-research-course/>

Prerequisite: Students must have completed 15.0 courses towards their degree, plus a SOC course at the 300+ level to be eligible for 400-level Independent Research.

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

SOC491H1 - Independent Research

Hours: TBA

Independent Research courses allow students to pursue a specific topic of interest. These courses are offered at the 400-level, as full or half courses. Students work independently with a professor in the Department who acts as research supervisor. There are no formal class meetings, lectures, or readings other than what is agreed to with the supervisor. Professors accept supervisory responsibility at their discretion. They are not required to serve as research supervisors. It is recommended that students approach a professor working in the same sub-discipline of sociology. # South Asian Studies

Students study South Asia in an approach attentive to global formations. They are introduced to the study of South Asia—Bangladesh, India, Pakistan, Nepal, Sri Lanka—through a wide angle view of Asian modernities, political economies, and cultures, all the while delving into to specialist close-ups of South Asia. With open access to comparative courses in the Contemporary Asian Studies program, students can learn from tenured and tenure-track faculty specialists in South, East, and Southeast Asia.

With a curriculum motivated by the moving present—the changing face of South Asia today—the South Asian Studies minor offers rigorous training in major debates and questions in the rich field of South Asian Studies, and provides a basic foundation for many directions of future study. From historical contexts of ethnic conflict, to postcolonial readings of ancient traditions, to the politics of religious and ethnic identities, to the workings of vast-scale democracy and capitalism, to the worlds of cinema and public culture, students are exposed to the dynamic landscapes—political, material, and mythic—that constitute South Asia today.

South Asian Studies Courses

SAS114H1 - Introduction to South Asian Studies

Previous Course Number: SAS114Y1

Hours: 24L

An interdisciplinary introduction to South Asian Studies emphasizing inquiry and critical analysis, drawing attention to the specificities of individual nations as well as the factors (historical, political, economic and cultural) that define South Asia as a region. Some attention will be paid to the South Asian Diaspora.

Exclusion: NEW114Y1, SAS114Y1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

CAS200H1 - Introduction to Contemporary Asian Studies

Hours: 24L

This course is an introduction to the major in Contemporary Asian Studies. It covers detailed recent (1980-present) case study material from South Asia, Southeast Asia, and East Asia. It introduces students to the interdisciplinary study of political, sociocultural and economic interactions among these regions, as well as the transnational forces shaping internal dynamics throughout Asia. In addition, it examines the ways that forces stemming from Asia are affecting global processes, pushing scholarship to engage questions about the nature of democracy, authoritarianism, markets, social justice, and the meanings and media of cultural production. This course provides preparation for more advanced courses on Asia and globalization and provides the introductory gateway for the Contemporary Asian Studies major and minor. CAS200H1 introduces students to basic social science frameworks in the study of global Asia. This is a required course for the CAS major. May be taken in the first year of studies.

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

CAS201H1 - Global Asian Studies: Insights and Concepts

Previous Course Number: CAS200Y1

Hours: 24L

This course addresses Asia empirically in contemporary global formations and as an idea in the global imagination. It introduces students to concepts and theories central to scholarship on Asia and its transnational formations. It provides foundational theoretical and conceptual material to understand global issues as they play out in the politics, economies, cultures and contemporary social worlds of contemporary Asian sites. Interdisciplinary analytical and research concepts are introduced to provide area studies grounding. This course provides preparation to delve into deeper research on Asia connected to broad questions about the nature of democracy, authoritarianism, market formation, social justice, and the media of cultural expression. It informs students aiming to take more advanced courses on Asia and globalization and provides one part of the foundation for the Contemporary Asian Studies major and minor. CAS201H1 introduces the theoretical and conceptual frameworks that are explored through further grounded empirical case studies in CAS202H1 (Global Asian Studies: Sites and Practices).

Prerequisite: 4 FCEs

Exclusion: CAS200Y1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

CAS202H1 - Global Asian Studies: Sites and Practices

Previous Course Number: CAS200Y1

Hours: 24L

This inter-disciplinary course explores a variety of sites and topics in South, Southeast, and East Asia. It explores themes including contemporary and historical articulations of socio-economic development, (post)colonial political formations, urbanization processes, environmental change, political systems, religious formations, labour struggles, and gender studies. The course examines the diversity of Asian modernities, cross-regional linkages, and changing approaches to area studies over time. It provides the foundation for the Contemporary Asian Studies major and minor, preparing students for taking more advanced courses on Asia in the global context. CAS202H1 is a stand-alone course that may be taken following, prior to, or independent of its sister course, CAS201H1.

Exclusion: CAS200Y1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

CAS310H1 - Comparative Colonialisms in Asia

Hours: 24L

This course analyzes the impact of colonialism in South, East, and Southeast Asia and the various ways in which pre-colonial traditions intersect with and reshape colonial and postcolonial process across the various regions of Asia. The course will examine the conjunctures of economy, politics, religion, education, ethnicity, gender, and caste, as these have played out over time in the making and re-making of Asia as both idea and place. Attention will be paid to postcolonial and indigenous theories, questions of 'the colonial' from the perspective of Asian Studies, and debates about the meaning of postcolonialism for the study of Asia now and in the future.

Prerequisite: CAS200Y1 or CAS201H1

Recommended Preparation: CAS202H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities; Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

SAS318H1 - Colonialism and Tradition

Hours: 24L

This course analyzes the impact of colonialism in South Asia and the various ways in which tradition intersects with and has reshaped colonialism in postcolonial South Asia. The course will examine the role of religion, education, ethnicity, gender, and caste. Some attention will be paid to postcolonial and indigenous theory.

Prerequisite: At least 6 FCEs

Recommended Preparation: SAS114H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

CAS320H1 - Comparative Modernities in Asia

Hours: 24L

Since at least the late 1700s, the effects of capitalism across the globe have profoundly transformed the landscapes of human livelihood, consumption, production and governance in Asia. While colonial empires have declined, new empires have emerged, and a growing number of countries have witnessed the rise of nationalism and independent states, social, political and technological revolutions, and most recently neoliberal globalization. This course theorizes and explores these dramatic changes in a comparative framework. It is aimed at students wishing to better understand the great transformations of modern Asia in a global context.

Prerequisite: CAS200Y1 or CAS201H1

Recommended Preparation: CAS202H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities; Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

CAS350H1 - Asian Youth Cultures

Hours: 24L

In focusing on youth in Asia, this course brings together two disputed cultural formations of substantial contemporary importance. Both youth and Asia are increasingly invoked on the global stage in support of a wide range of interests. Examining practices of young people and the idea of youth in the context of Asia requires critical attention to the promises and fears that attach to the rise of Asian economies, international demographic transitions, the growth of a global middle-class, increasing consumption disparities, changing immigration patterns, expanding technological skills, global/local environmental concerns, and young people's shifting political priorities and loyalties. The course may consider: youth subcultures, styles, music, and politics.

Prerequisite: Minimum of 6 FCEs

Recommended Preparation: CAS200Y1 or CAS201H1 and CAS202H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities; Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

CAS360H1 - Asian Genders

Hours: 24L

This course will explore ways that gender is mobilized and produced in parts of Asia. It seeks to understand gender in its diversity and in attempts to "fix" or locate it in various bodies and places. Attempts will be made to see how gender is made knowable in terms of sexuality, medicine, nation, class, ethnicity, religion, and other discourses.

Prerequisite: Minimum of 6 FCEs

Recommended Preparation: CAS200Y1 or CAS201H1 and CAS202H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

CAS370H1 - Asian Cities

Hours: 24L

This course offers a multidisciplinary perspective of urban life in Asia. The thematic focus will be on how the urban intersects with modernities and postcolonial formations. Drawing on recent scholarship in the social sciences and the humanities, we will examine the realignment of cultural, political, and economic forces associated with Asia's diverse processes of urbanization.

Prerequisite: Minimum of 6 FCEs

Recommended Preparation: CAS200Y1 or CAS201H1 and CAS202H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

CAS390H1 - Special Topics

Hours: 24L

Course content varies in accordance with the interest of the instructor. Check <http://munkschool.utoronto.ca/ai/cas> for an updated description.

Prerequisite: Minimum of 6 FCEs

Recommended Preparation: CAS200Y1 or CAS201H1 and CAS202H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

SAS390H1 - Special Topics in South Asian Studies

Hours: 24L

Course content varies in accordance with the interest of the instructor.

Prerequisite: SAS114H1 and at least 9 FCEs, or permission from the instructor.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

CAS393H1 - Independent Research

Hours: TBA

Supervised independent research on a topic agreed on by the student and supervisor before enrolment in the course. Open to advanced students with a strong background in contemporary Asian studies. A maximum of one year of Independent Research courses is allowed per program. Contact hours with the supervisor may vary, but typically comprise of one hour per week. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: At least 10 FCEs, permission from Program Director

CAS393Y1 - Independent Research

Hours: TBA

Supervised independent research on a topic agreed on by the student and supervisor before enrolment in the course. Open to advanced students with a strong background in contemporary Asian studies. A maximum of one year of Independent Research courses is allowed per program. Contact hours with the supervisor may vary, but typically comprise of one hour per week. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: At least 10 FCEs, permission from Program Director

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

CAS400H1 - Interdisciplinary Research in Methods in Contemporary Asian Studies

Hours: 24S

This seminar addresses Asian worlds – In Asia, transnationally, and locally – to cultivate new approaches to global processes and problems. The course explores key Asian sites that open new configurations for studying interactions between economic/environmental development, political change, and migration and cultural politics. It provides an advanced and systematic overview of the research methodologies that students have been exposed to throughout the CAS program. These include historical-archival, ethnographic, visual/media, and statistical/quantitative methods that allow us to map Asian political, economic, and cultural formations, and through them, global challenges. The seminar builds interdisciplinary conversations attentive to both critical problematizing and problem-solving, to qualitative and applied projects. Together with CAS450H1, it is the required capstone to the Contemporary Asian Studies major.

Prerequisite: CAS200Y1/( CAS201H1, CAS202H1); CAS310H1

Exclusion: CAS400Y1

Recommended Preparation: CAS320H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

CAS414H1 - Public Culture and Media in Asia

Hours: 24S

This upper-level seminar will introduce students to the interdisciplinary study of popular culture and mass-mediated cultural forms in Asia. Through readings about popular protest, festivals, cinema, print, television, and music this course provides methodological tools to interpret the politics of representation and the formation of alternative modernities in the Asian continent and among the diaspora. The course will furthermore familiarize students with a range of theoretical lenses for conceptualizing the different meanings of the public from a modern Asian perspective.

Prerequisite: At least 14 FCEs

Exclusion: NEW414H1, SAS414H1

Recommended Preparation: CAS200Y1 or CAS201H1 and CAS202H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

CAS420H1 - Asia and the New Global Economy

Previous Course Number: JPA420H1

Hours: 24S

This course explores the rise of Asia and its integration into the new global economy (labour, capitalism, knowledge economy, economic nationalism, inequality, gender, the meaning of capitalism, democracy, among others), exposing students to diverse disciplinary perspectives. Geographical coverage is pan-Asian, including East, Southeast and South Asia.

Prerequisite: At least 14 FCEs

Exclusion: JPA420H1

Recommended Preparation: CAS200Y1 or CAS201H1 and CAS202H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities; Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

CAS430H1 - Nationalism and Revolution in Asia

Hours: 24L

This course explores the far-reaching social, political, and cultural transformations in modern East, Southeast, and South Asia, focusing on the twentieth-century revolutionary histories and struggles to establish modern nation-states. The course adopts a topical approach within a chronological and comparative framework to highlight major historical movements and theoretical issues significant to the Asian experience.

Prerequisite: At least 14 FCEs

Exclusion: HIS382H1, ASI430H1

Recommended Preparation: CAS200Y1/( CAS201H1, CAS202H1), CAS310H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities; Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

CAS450H1 - Asian Pathways Research Practice

Hours: 24S

This seminar builds on the systematic overview of research methodologies of the Contemporary Asian Studies major and its capstone course, CAS400H1. CAS450H1 provides students with the opportunity to research questions of contemporary relevance stemming from Asia and its transnational networks and communities. Addressing a range of methodologies, including historical-archival, ethnographic, visual/media, and statistical/quantitative, the course emphasizes research experience outside the classroom, in Asia as well as locally with communities in Toronto. Students will develop their own research contributions while working collaboratively.

Prerequisite: At least 14 FCEs, including CAS200Y1/ ( CAS201H1, CAS202H1); CAS310H1; CAS400H1

Exclusion: CAS400Y1

Recommended Preparation: CAS320H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

CAS498H1 - Independent Research

Hours: TBA

Supervised independent research on a topic agreed on by the student and supervisor before enrolment in the course. Open to advanced students with a strong background in contemporary Asian studies. A maximum of one year of Independent Research courses is allowed per program. Contact hours with the supervisor may vary, but typically comprise of one hour per week. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: At least 14 FCEs including CAS200Y1/ ( CAS201H1 and CAS202H1), CAS310H1; enrolment in the Contemporary Asian Studies major or minor, and permission from the Program Director

Recommended Preparation: CAS320H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

CAS498Y1 - Independent Research

Hours: TBA

Supervised independent research on a topic agreed on by the student and supervisor before enrolment in the course. Open to advanced students with a strong background in contemporary Asian studies. A maximum of one year of Independent Research courses is allowed per program. Contact hours with the supervisor may vary, but typically comprise of one hour per week. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: At least 14 FCEs including CAS200Y1/ ( CAS201H1, CAS202H1), CAS310H1; enrolment in the Contemporary Asian Studies major or minor, and permission from the Program Director

Recommended Preparation: CAS320H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Introduction

Overview:

Spanish is the most widely spoken language of the Americas, with 130 million speakers in North America alone, more than 400 million worldwide, and with growing numbers in Canada. It is the fourth most widely spoken language in the world, and it is the official language in 21 countries on three continents: Europe, Africa, and Latin America.

Spanish opens the door to the study of a rich range of cultural expressions in literature, film and art, from medieval and early modern Transatlantic world, to the literary and cultural productions of contemporary Spanish and Spanish American societies. The department offers a wide selection of courses at the introductory (second year), intermediate (third year) and advanced (fourth year) level in literature, culture and linguistics. Students are encouraged to complement and expand on the training they receive in these courses by taking courses in other academic units. By the time of their graduation, our students acquire skills to read analytically fictional and non-fictional, literary and visual texts. They thus gain a deep knowledge of Hispanic cultures, as well as the skills to reflect critically on the world in which they live.

Spanish also opens the door to the study of the Romance language family. The Department offers students the opportunity to advance their language skills through the systematic reflection on the language structure, from the sound system to the morphology and syntax. Through a variety of courses with a theoretical and experimental focus in linguistics, students acquire basic skills that can be transferred to teaching or research programs. Through collaboration with other language and linguistics programs, students are provided with opportunities and training to conduct research in linguistics with a focus on Spanish language.

What can I do with a degree in Spanish?

Plenty! Spanish is recognized as one of the four United Nations official languages. A degree in Spanish linguistics, literature, and culture opens up career paths both domestically and internationally. The skills that students acquire through the study of Spanish and of the Spanish-speaking world either prepare them directly for, or are an asset in some of the following fields:

- media, journalism, marketing, public relations;
- domestic government services and NGOs; foreign services and foreign affairs specialist; international development; political aid,
- commerce, finances, tourism and hospitality
- post-graduate studies and academic careers; cultural work
- editing, publishing, translation, education
- library and information sciences
- careers in the health profession, including medicine, speech pathology and audiology
- computational linguistics, speech recognition and synthesis

The Department offers Specialist, Major and Minor programs, as well as language citation certificate.

How is the program structured?

For many students, our program begins with the language sequence.

Language sequence:

1. The Department reserves the right to place students in the language course best suited to their linguistic preparation.

2. Students who, in the department's assessment, have an adequate knowledge of Spanish may be required to take a Spanish literature, culture or linguistics course instead of a language course at any level.

The progression of courses in the language sequence is designed to accommodate a wide range of previous language experience. Students are placed in the appropriate language course based on their proficiency, as determined by the on-line placement test and departmental assessment.

Placement test:

Students who have studied Spanish before joining the department should take the on-line placement test by going to the following link:

<http://spanport.utoronto.ca/undergraduate/spanish> ("Placement test")

Please, read carefully the instructions that explain how to take the test. The placement test can be taken only once. Should the student be able to take the test more than once, the results of the first test will be used to determine the placement.

If you cannot assess your placement level from the available information, please contact the Undergraduate Coordinator at: spanport.undergraduate@utoronto.ca and you will receive personal advice for placement in the language sequence.

Students with no previous knowledge of Spanish: enrol in SPA100Y1.

The recommended sequence of language courses for those students who have had little or no previous training in the language is the following:

SPA100Y1 -> SPA220Y1 -> SPA320Y1 -> SPA420H1

Students with previous knowledge of Spanish: take the placement test.

Students who have studied Spanish before joining the department may enrol in several courses – beginners', intermediate or advanced – depending on their background and their level of preparation. This includes those students who have travelled or lived briefly in the Spanish-speaking world.

The recommended sequence of language courses for those students who join the department having mastered a beginner's level of Spanish, including those who successfully completed SPA100Y1, is the following:

SPA220Y1 -> SPA320Y1 -> SPA420H1

The recommended sequence of language courses for those students who join the department having mastered an intermediate level of Spanish, including those who have successfully completed SPA220Y1, is the following:

SPA320Y1 -> SPA420H1

Native or bilingual speakers of Spanish:

Those students who have native fluency in Spanish because they have had a life-long exposure to spoken Spanish in an informal context (i.e., those who have lived in a Spanish-speaking country, or those who live in a Spanish-speaking family) – should enrol in SPA219Y1. Students who qualify for this course have distinctly different learning needs than those students who learned Spanish as a foreign language. They have a native knowledge of the language, and are able to understand and speak Spanish, but they have had little or no exposure to written Spanish. The recommended language sequence for such students is the following: SPA219Y1 -> SPA420H1

Students who have completed the equivalent of a high school degree or higher level of education in a Spanish-speaking country can skip the language sequence. However, if they have not studied descriptive grammar, they should enrol in SPA420H1. Please consult the Undergraduate Coordinator for placement advice.

Fluent (native) speakers of Spanish who have received high school degree, or a higher level of education in Spanish language, and who in the department's assessment do not need further training in language, may enrol immediately in any literature, culture or linguistics course.

Throughout the language sequence, stress is laid both on the cultural component of language acquisition and on the range of practical applications to which both the spoken and the written language may be put. Courses in business Spanish and in the structure of the Spanish language provide an array of possible options for students in the upper years.

Literature, culture and linguistics courses:

Students are encouraged to enrol early on in their academic career in several second-year courses as they transition from the language sequence (SPA219Y1 / SPA220Y1 / SPA320Y1) into the third and fourth year courses in literature, culture and linguistics.

SPA258H1 is a foundational course for the students who plan to pursue a major or a specialist degree in Spanish. While permitting students to advance their skills in reading and composition, this course also introduces information literacy, and the terms and methods of literary analysis through study of a wide selection of brief literary texts. Intermediate level students (SPA220Y1) who are comfortable reading short texts, and who have well developed writing and speaking skills for the intermediate level, may take that course while enrolled in SPA220Y1 (preferable in their second semester of SPA220Y1). Others should complete SPA220Y1 before taking SPA258H1.

The other courses offered in the 200-series (SPA221H1 and SPA259H1) are not required for a Specialist or Major degree, but are recommended for students who need to hone their language skills before advancing to the upper level literature, culture and linguistics courses.

SPA221H1 (Spanish Pronunciation) is a companion course to SPA220Y1. Students who are interested in this course are best advised to enrol while taking SPA220Y1.

SPA259H1 is a course that introduces students to the techniques of cultural analysis. Although not a degree requirement, this course is a popular option for students enrolled in the program. It has the same language requirements as SPA258H1 (students can take it either while enrolled in SPA220Y1, or upon completion of SPA220Y1).

Following the language sequence, and upon successfully completing SPA258H1, students pursuing a specialist and major degrees will fulfil in the due course of their university career the remaining degree requirements:

- One half-course in Hispanic linguistics from the 300/400 series
- One half course in Spanish peninsular literature from the 300/400 series
- One half course in Spanish American literature from the 300/400-series

- SPA420H1
- SPA454H1

SPA420H1 (Advanced Grammar) and SPA454H1 (Cervantes: Don Quijote) are the capstone courses in the Spanish program. Students should plan to take these courses towards the end of their university studies, as by that time they will have acquired language fluency, and become versed in the reading of extended and complex texts in Spanish, and will have honed their skills in textual analysis.

Students should contact the Undergraduate Coordinator early on in the course of their university career to receive advice on how to proceed with their studies, and to thus assure that they can receive their degree by the time of planned graduation. ## Faculty of Arts & Science Language Citation

The Department of Spanish and Portuguese participates in the Faculty of Arts and Science's Language Citation initiative for Spanish. For a full description of the Language Citation requirements, see the Calendar in the "Degree Requirements" section.

To complete the language citation in Spanish students will normally complete the two language-sequence courses that follow the introductory level:

SPA220Y1

SPA320Y1

Native and bilingual speakers should complete SPA219Y1 and two additional half-courses in Spanish in the 300- or 400-series.

Students should note that, as explained in this Calendar, the Language Citation is not equivalent to an academic program and that enrolment in a program is not necessary in order to earn the recognition bestowed by the Citation.

To request the citation, e-mail your request with your student ID number to the Undergraduate Coordinator (spanport.undergraduate@utoronto.ca).

Latin American Studies

Regarding Spanish Courses

First Year Seminars

The 199Y1 and 199H1 seminars are designed to provide the opportunity to work closely with an instructor in a class of no more than twenty-four students. These interactive seminars are intended to stimulate the students' curiosity and provide an opportunity to get to know a member of the professorial staff in a seminar environment during the first year of study. Details can be found at www.artsci.utoronto.ca/current/course/fyh-1/.

Notes

1. The Department reserves the right to place students in the language course best suited to their linguistic preparation.
2. Students who, in the department's assessment, have an adequate knowledge of Spanish may be required to take a Spanish literature, culture or linguistics course instead of a language course at any level.
3. All courses are taught in Spanish unless otherwise specified.

Spanish Courses

SPA100Y1 - Spanish for Beginners

Hours: 48L/48T

Introduction to the Spanish language for beginning students; overview of basic grammatical structures, development of vocabulary and oral and written expression.

Prerequisite: No previous knowledge of Spanish, or placement test results.

Exclusion: SPA219Y1, SPA319Y1, SPA220Y1, SPA320Y1, SPA420H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

SPA425H1 - History of the Spanish Language

Previous Course Number: SPA425H

Hours: 24L

Have you ever doubted where Spanish came from? Or how did it become the language we know today? This course presents a detailed study of the external and internal history of the Spanish language in which this evolution occurred. Special attention will be paid to the linguistic progress of the language from its Latin roots to Modern Spanish and to the socio-cultural, historical, political and literary influence that have affected its linguistic evolution. The main features of the Spanish language evolution will be put in practice through a close reading of representative Medieval, Renaissance and dialectal texts.

Prerequisite: SPA320Y1 or permission of instructor
Exclusion: None
Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

SPA435H1 - Fictions of Contemporary Spain

Hours: 24L

Hours: 24S

Study of medieval social topics such as witchcraft, violence, love, marriage, childhood, maternity, crimes and punishment. Analysis of such texts as Poema del Mio Cid; the Romancero, Milagros de Nuestra Señora, Libro de buen amor, Don Juan Manuel and Celestina, from the perspective of iconography and social history. (Offered every three years)

Prerequisite: At least one 300-series half-course in Spanish.

Corequisite: SPA320Y1

Recommended Preparation: SPA258H1/ SPA352H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

SPA452H1 - Theatre and Representation in Early Modern Spain

Hours: 24S

Study of theatre and the idea of representation, with reference to parallels in lyric poetry and visual art. Emphasis on the Spanish comedia as a genre, and on its interaction with other artistic forms in the Golden Age. (Offered every three years)

Prerequisite: At least one 300-series half-course in Spanish.

Exclusion: SPA350Y1

Recommended Preparation: SPA258H1/ SPA352H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

SPA454H1 - Cervantes: Don Quixote

Hours: 36L

Detailed study of Don Quixote as a foundational text in the European literary tradition, with attention to the conventions, genres, and literary techniques that inform the text.

Prerequisite: At least one 300-series half-course in Spanish.

Exclusion: SPA350Y1

Recommended Preparation: SPA258H1/ SPA352H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

SPA467H1 - Topics in Spanish-American Literature and Culture

Hours: 24L

A course on a specific topic in Spanish American culture, designed for advanced students. Course content and instructor are established on a yearly basis.

Prerequisite: At least one 300-series half-course in Spanish.

Recommended Preparation: SPA258H1/ SPA259H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

SPA475H1 - 21st Century Latin American Culture

Hours: 24L

Contemporary Argentine and Mexican authors and visual artists will be studied through their work, online visibility, and also the institutional and discursive structures that facilitate and shape their production. In-class Skype discussions with some of the artists. (Offered every three years)

Prerequisite: At least one 300-series half-course in Spanish.

Recommended Preparation: SPA258H1/ SPA259H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

SPA480H1 - Icons and Iconography in Latin American Culture

Hours: 24L

Production, circulation and meaning of icons through Latin American literary and cultural contexts. Readings are selected from the period of independence to the present, and focus on the transformative ideological charge of cultural objects across geographic space and history. Focuses on political and socio-economic tensions between popular and elite spheres of cultural production, and on the risks and limits of iconographic representation. (Offered every three years)

Prerequisite: At least one 300-series half-course in Spanish.

Recommended Preparation: SPA258H1/ SPA259H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

SPA482H1 - 20th-Century Spanish American Narrative

Hours: 24L

Detailed study of the major movements in Spanish-American narrative, including magic realism, fantastic literature, women's writing, and testimonial literature, through analysis of representative novels and short stories. (Offered every three years)

Prerequisite: At least one 300-series half-course in Spanish.

Recommended Preparation: SPA258H1/ SPA259H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

SPA486H1 - Contemporary Caribbean Literatures and Identities

Hours: 24L

Literature studied as a socio-political space for the articulation of new concepts of cultural identity; examination of cultural change and aesthetic innovation in selected poetic, dramatic, and narrative texts from different national traditions (Cuba, the Dominican Republic, Puerto Rico). (Offered every three years)

Prerequisite: At least one 300-series half-course in Spanish.

Recommended Preparation: SPA258H1/ SPA259H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

SPA488H1 - Central America Postwar Narrative

Hours: 24L

The end of civil and military conflicts in the last decade of the 20th century reshapes the political landscape of Central America. Through selected readings of novels and short stories from representative writers, issues of immigration, displacement, and globalization are discussed to understand these changes in the region. (Offered every three years)

Prerequisite: At least one 300-series half-course in Spanish.

Recommended Preparation: SPA258H1/ SPA259H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

SPA490H1 - Independent Study

Hours: TBA

Individual study with a member of staff on a topic of common interest including readings, discussion and written assignments. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: At least one 300-series half-course in Spanish, and written approval of the Undergraduate Coordinator

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

SPA491H1 - Independent Study

Hours: TBA

Individual study with a member of staff on a topic of common interest including readings, discussion and written assignments. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: At least one 300-series half-course in Spanish, and written approval of the Undergraduate Coordinator

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Introduction

Statistical methods have applications in almost all areas of science, engineering, business, government, and industry. The practising statistician is involved in such diverse projects as designing clinical trials to test a new drug, economic model-building to evaluate the costs of a guaranteed-income scheme, predicting the outcome of a national election, planning a survey of television viewing habits, and estimating animal populations.

Today's consumer is bombarded with the results of so many quantitative studies using statistical methodology that it is necessary to know something about statistics in order to be properly critical. A basic knowledge of statistics should be an integral part of everyone's general education.

Probability theory is used to analyse the changing balance among the age-groups in a population as the birth rate changes, the control force needed to keep an aircraft on course through gusts of wind, the chance that the demand for electricity by all the customers served by a substation will exceed its capacity. These are just three of many phenomena that can be analysed in terms of randomness and probability.

The course offerings are intended not only for specialists in the theory of the subject but also to serve the needs of the many other disciplines that use statistical methods. Students following the Applied Statistics Specialist Program combine their study in statistics with a focus in a discipline that relies on statistical methods. Students following the Specialist Program are also encouraged to include courses in major fields of application in their overall program. The Major Program can be profitably combined with specialization in another discipline. Students in these programs may also qualify for the A.Stat. designation from the Statistical Society of Canada.

Both applied and theoretical courses are offered in Statistics and Probability. The foundation courses STA220H1, STA221H1, STA237H1, STA238H1, STA247H1, STA248H1, STA255H1, STA257H1, and STA261H1 are distinguished primarily by their mathematical demands, as indicated by the prerequisites. Students interested in the Biological or Social Sciences will generally find the most relevant courses of the more advanced offerings to be STA302H1, STA303H1, STA304H1, and STA305H1.

The probability course STA347H1 will be of interest to those whose field of application includes stochastic models. Students interested in Data Science may want to consider the program of study in Data Science, offered jointly between the Departments of Statistical Science and Computer Science. STA130H1, STA314H1, STA414H1 and the required courses in that program are the recommended Statistics courses that are most relevant to Data Science.

Statistical Sciences Programs

Data Science Specialist (Science Program) - ASSPE1687

Description:

The field of Data Science is a combination of statistics and computer science methodologies that enable learning from data. A data scientist extracts information from data, and is involved with every step that must be taken to achieve this goal, from getting acquainted with the data to communicating the results in non-technical language. The Data Science Specialist program prepares students for work in the Data Science industry or government and for graduate studies in Data Science, Computer Science, or Statistics. Students in the program will benefit from a range of advanced courses in Computer Science and Statistics offered by the University of Toronto, as well as from a sequence of three integrative courses designed especially for the program.

The Data Science Specialist program comprises three fundamental and highly-integrated aspects. First, students will acquire expertise in statistical reasoning, methods, and inference essential for any data analyst. Second, students will receive in-depth training in computer science: the design and analysis of algorithms and data structures for handling large amounts of data, and best practices in software design. Students will receive training in machine learning, which lies at the intersection of computer and statistical sciences. The third aspect is the application of computer science and statistics to produce analyses of complex, large-scale datasets, and the communication of the results of these analyses; students will receive training in these areas by taking integrative courses that are designed specifically for the Data Science Specialist program. The courses involve experiential learning: students will be working with real large-scale datasets from the domain of business, government, and/or science. The successful student will combine their expertise in computer and statistical science to produce and communicate analyses of complex large-scale datasets.

Skills that graduates of the program will acquire include proficiency in statistical reasoning and computational thinking; data manipulation and exploration, visualization, and communication that are required for work as a data scientist; the ability to apply statistical methods to solve problems in the context of scientific research, business, and government; familiarity and experience with best practices in software development; and knowledge of current software infrastructure for handling large data sets. Graduates of the program will be able to demonstrate the ability to apply machine learning algorithms to large-scale datasets that arise in scientific research, government, and business; create appropriate data visualizations for complex datasets; identify and answer questions that involve applying statistical methods or machine learning algorithms to complex data, and communicating the results; present the results and limitations of a data analysis at an appropriate technical level for the intended audience.

Enrolment Requirements:

This is a limited enrolment program (Type 2L) that can only accommodate a certain number of students. Eligibility is based on the following criteria:

A. Completion of at least 4.0 FCEs including CSC148H1 (with a minimum grade of 70%) and MAT137Y1/MAT157Y1 (with a minimum grade of 70%) and STA130H1 (with a minimum grade of 70%), AND

B. An average of the grades in CSC148H1 and MAT137Y1/MAT157Y1 and STA130H1 that meets the program's annual cutoff. MAT157Y1 grades will be adjusted to account for the course's greater difficulty. Note that the cutoff changes from year to year, depending on the current capacity of the program and the pool of applicants.

Note that students admitted to the program after second or third year will be required to pay retroactive program fees.

Completion Requirements:

(13.013.5 Full Course Equivalents [FCEs], including at least 1.5 FCEs at the 400-level)

First year (3.0 FCEs)

MAT137Y1/MAT157Y1; MAT223H1/MAT240H1

(MAT240H1 is recommended); STA130H1; CSC108H1; CSC148H1;

Note: Students with a strong background in an object-oriented language such as Python, Java or C++ may omit CSC108H1 and proceed directly with CSC148H1. There is no need to replace the missing half-credit for program completion; however, please base your course choice on what you are ready to take, not on "saving" a half-credit. Consult with the Computer Science Undergraduate Office for advice on choosing between CSC108H1 and CSC148H1.

Second year (3.54.0 FCEs)

MAT237Y1/ MAT257Y1; STA257H1; STA261H1; CSC207H1; ( CSC165H1, CSC236H1)/ CSC240H1 ( CSC240H1 is recommended); JSC270H1 (Data Science I)

Note: CSC240H1 is an accelerated and enriched version of CSC165H1 plus CSC236H1, intended for students with a strong mathematical background, or who develop an interest after taking CSC165H1. If you take CSC240H1 without CSC165H1, there is no need to replace the missing half-credit for program completion; however, please base your course choice on what you are ready to take, not on "saving" a half-credit. Consult the Computer Science Undergraduate Office for advice on choosing between CSC165H1 and CSC240H1.

Third year (3.5 FCEs)

STA302H1; one of STA303H1 or STA305H1; STA355H1; CSC209H1; CSC263H1/ CSC265H1 ( CSC265H1 is recommended); CSC343H1; JSC370H1 (Methods of Data Science II)

Fourth year (3.0 FCEs)

1. CSC373H1;
  2. one of STA414H1, CSC411H1;
  3. JSC470H1 (Data Science III);
  4. 1.5 FCEs from the following list, including at least 1.0 FCE at the 400 level: STA303H1/ STA305H1 (whichever one was not taken in third year), STA347H1, CSC401H1, CSC412H1, CSC421H1, any 400-level STA course
- Students will be advised to develop domain expertise in at least one area where Data Science is applicable, by taking a sequence of courses in that area throughout their program. Examples of such areas will be provided to students by program advisors and will form the basis for a later proposal for program Focuses (to be approved through internal Arts & Science governance procedures).

Students in the Applied Statistics Specialist program must complete at least one disciplinary focus.

To enrol in one or more focuses, students must first be enrolled in the Applied Statistics Specialist program. Enrolment instructions can be found on the Arts & Science Current Students program enrolment website. Focuses can be chosen on ACORN after admission to the program.

Enrolment Requirements:

(Note: the following enrolment requirements will be in effect for students enrolling in the 2019 program enrolment period. For students enrolling in the 2018 program enrolment period, please consult the 2017-18 Calendar.)

This is a limited enrolment program (Type 2L) that can only accommodate a certain number of students. Eligibility is based on the following criteria:

For students entering the program after first year:

1. Completion of at least 4.0 FCEs including:

- STA130H1,
- CSC108H1/ CSC120H1/ CSC121H1/ CSC148H1,
- MAT223H1/ MAT240H1,
- ( MAT135H1, MAT136H1) with a minimum grade of 75% or MAT137Y1 with a minimum grade of 65% or MAT157Y1 with a minimum grade of 65%

AND

2. An average of the grades in STA130H1 and ( MAT135H1, MAT136H1/ MAT137Y1/ MAT157Y1) that meets the department's annual cutoff

For students entering the program after second year:

1. Completion of:

- CSC108H1/ CSC120H1/ CSC121H1/ CSC148H1,
- MAT223H1/ MAT240H1,
- MAT235Y1/ MAT237Y1/ MAT257Y1,
- ( STA237H1, STA238H1) with a minimum grade of 75% or ( STA247H1, STA248H1) with a minimum grade of 75% or ( STA257H1, STA261H1) with a minimum grade of 65%

AND

2. An average of the grades in ( STA237H1, STA238H1)/( STA257H1, STA261H1) and MAT235Y1/ MAT237Y1/ MAT257Y1 that meets the department's annual cutoff

Completion Requirements:

(Note: the following requirements will be in effect for students enrolling in the 2019 program enrolment period. For students enrolling in the 2018 program enrolment period, please consult the 2017-18 Calendar.)

(10.5 FCEs plus a disciplinary focus requiring 2.0-3.5 FCEs)

First year:

1. STA130H1, CSC108H1/ CSC120H1/ CSC121H1/

CSC148H1, ( MAT135H1, MAT136H1)/ MAT137Y1/ MAT157Y1.

( MAT137Y1/ MAT157Y1 recommended)

2. Recommended: introductory course in disciplinary focus.

MAT223H1/ MAT240H1 is also strongly recommended to be taken in first year and is required preparation for MAT237Y1.

Second year:

3. MAT223H1/ MAT240H1, MAT235Y1/ MAT237Y1/ MAT257Y1, ( STA237H1, STA238H1)/( STA247H1, STA248H1)/( STA257H1, STA261H1)

(( STA257H1, STA261H1) recommended)

Upper years:

4. STA302H1, STA303H1, STA304H1/ STA305H1, STA355H1, STA410H1, STA437H1, STA442H1, STA490Y1

5. 0.5 FCE from STA 300+-level offerings (excluding STA310H5)

6. 1.0 FCE from the following list: MAT224H1, MAT247H1, MAT244H1, MAT267H1, APM236H1, APM346H1, APM462H1, CSC148H1, CSC207H1

Disciplinary Focuses

Students in the Applied Statistics Specialist program must complete at least one disciplinary focus.

To enrol in one or more focuses, students must first be enrolled in the Applied Statistics Specialist program. Enrolment instructions can be found on the Arts & Science Current Students program enrolment website. Focuses can be chosen on ACORN after admission to the program, which begins in July.

Health Studies: (2.0 FCE) HST209H1, HST211H1, HST373H1, HST330H1/ HST411H1/ HST464H1

Global Health: (2.5 FCE) BIO120H1, BIO130H1, HMB203H1, HMB323H1, HMB342H1/ HMB433H1 (Recommended: HMB433H1)

Social Psychology: (2.0 FCE) PSY100H1, PSY220H1, PSY322H1, PSY326H1/ PSY321H1/ PSY424H1/ PSY426H1/ PSY405H1/ PSY406H1

Cognitive Psychology: (2.0 FCE) PSY100H1, PSY270H1, PSY493H1, PSY372H1/ PSY405H1/ PSY406H1/ PSY475H1

Sociolinguistics: (3.0 FCE) LIN100Y1; 2 of LIN228H1, LIN229H1, LIN232H1 or LIN241H1; LIN351H1 and LIN456H1

Psycholinguistics: (3.0 FCE) LIN100Y1; 2 of LIN228H1, LIN229H1, LIN232H1 or LIN241H1; 2 of JLP374H1, JLP315H1 or JLP471H1

Astronomy & Astrophysics: (2.5 or 3.0 FCE) ( PHY131H1, PHY132H1)/( PHY151H1, PHY152H1); AST221H1, AST222H1; ( PHY252H1, AST320H1)/ AST325H1/ AST326Y1

Sociology: (2.5 FCE) SOC100H1+ SOC150H1 (minimum combined average grade of 65%); SOC204H1; 1.0 FCE from SOC303H1, SOC312H1, SOC336H1, SOC355H1, SOC363H1, SOC364H1.

Students interested in advanced study in Sociology should consider additional courses, in particular SOC201H1, SOC251H1, and SOC254H1

Ecology: (3.0 FCE) BIO120H1, BIO220H1; 2.0 FCE from (with at least 0.5 FCE at the 400 level) EEB319H1/ EEB321H1/ EEB328H1/ EEB365H1/ EEB428H1/ EEB433H1/ EEB440H1 or ENV234H1/ ENV334H1/ ENV432H1

Evolutionary Biology: (3.5 FCE) BIO120H1, BIO130H1, BIO220H1; 1.5 FCE from HMB265H1/ BIO260H1, EEB318H1, EEB323H1, EEB324H1, EEB325H1, EEB362H1, EHJ352H1; 0.5 FCE from EEB440H1, EEB455H1, EEB459H1, EEB460H1

Notes:

- BIO260H1 requires BIO230H1 as a prerequisite.
- Students in the Applied Statistics specialist focus in Evolutionary Biology can request that HMB waive the co-requisite of BIO230H1 for HMB265H1 and that EEB waive the prerequisite of BIO230H1 for EEB460H1. These waivers will only be considered for students in the Applied Statistics specialist focus in Evolutionary Biology. All other pre- and co-requisites are required.

Economics: (3.5 FCE) ( ECO101H1, ECO102H1), ECO200Y1/ ECO206Y1, ECO202Y1/ ECO208Y1, 0.5 FCE 300+ series ECO course with the exception of ECO374H1 and ECO375H1

New Focuses for 2018 (students enrolling in Spring 2018 may request a program with these Focuses):

Biochemistry: (3.0 FCE) CHM135H1, CHM136H1, BCH210H1, BCH311H1, BCH370H1, BCH441H1

Physics: (2.5 FCE) PHY131H1/ PHY151H1, PHY132H1/ PHY152H1, PHY224H1, PHY252H1/ PHY254H1/ PHY256H1, PHY324H1

These are just three of many phenomena that can be analysed in terms of randomness and probability.

The course offerings are intended not only for specialists in the theory of the subject but also to serve the needs of the many other disciplines that use statistical methods, e.g. in sample survey design and experimental design. Students following the Specialist Program are encouraged to include courses in major fields of application in their overall program. The Major Program can be profitably combined with specialization in another discipline.

Students in these programs may also qualify for the A. Stat. designation from the Statistical Society of Canada.

Both applied and theoretical courses are offered in Statistics and Probability. The foundation courses STA220H1, STA221H1, STA237H1, STA238H1, STA247H1, STA248H1, STA255H1, STA257H1, and STA261H1 are distinguished primarily by their mathematical demands, as indicated by the prerequisites. Students interested in the Biological or Social Sciences will generally find the most relevant courses of the more advanced offerings to be STA302H1, STA303H1, STA304H1, STA305H1 and STA429H1. The probability course STA347H1 will be of interest to those whose field of application includes stochastic models. Students interested in Data Science may want to consider the program of study in Data Science, offered jointly between the Departments of Statistical Science and Computer Science. The required courses in that program can be used as a guide to picking Statistics courses that are most relevant to Data Science.

Students in the Applied Statistics Specialist program must complete at least one disciplinary focus.

To enrol in one or more focuses, students must first be enrolled in the Applied Statistics Specialist program. Enrolment instructions can be found on the Arts & Science Current Students program enrolment website. Focuses can be chosen on ACORN after admission to the program

Enrolment Requirements:

(Note: The following enrolment requirements will be in effect for students enrolling in Spring 2019. For students enrolling in the Spring 2018 enrolment period, consult the requirements stated in the 2017-18 Calendar.)

This is a limited enrolment program (Type 2L) that can only accommodate a certain number of students. Eligibility is based on the following criteria:

For students entering the program after first year:

1. Completion of at least 4.0 FCEs including:

- STA130H1,
- CSC108H1/ CSC120H1/ CSC121H1/ CSC148H1,
- MAT223H1/ MAT240H1,
- MAT137Y1 with a minimum grade of 65% or MAT157Y1 with a minimum grade of 65%

AND

2. An average of the grades in STA130H1 and MAT137Y1/ MAT157Y1 that meets the department's annual cutoff

For students entering the program after second year (for transfer students or as a 2nd chance for students who didn't meet the 1st year requirements):

1. Completion of:

- CSC108H1/ CSC120H1/ CSC121H1/ CSC148H1,
- MAT223H1/ MAT240H1,
- MAT237Y1/ MAT257Y1,
- STA257H1 with a minimum grade of 65% and STA261H1 with a minimum grade of 65%

AND

2. An average of the grades in STA257H1 and STA261H1 and MAT237Y1/ MAT257Y1 that meets the department's annual cutoff

Completion Requirements:

(Note: the following requirements will be in effect for students enrolling in the 2019 program enrolment period. For students enrolling in the 2018 program enrolment period, please consult the 2017-18 Calendar.)
(11.5 full courses or their equivalent)

First Year:

STA130H1, CSC108H1/ CSC120H1/ CSC121H1/ CSC148H1, MAT137Y1/ MAT157Y1, MAT223H1/ MAT240H1

Second Year:

MAT224H1/ MAT247H1, MAT237Y1/ MAT257Y1, STA257H1, STA261H1

Higher Years:

1. STA302H1, STA303H1, STA347H1, STA355H1, STA410H1, STA442H1
2. 2 full year courses from the given list: ( STA414H1/ CSC411H1), STA422H1, STA437H1, STA447H1, STA452H1, STA453H1, STA457H1, STA465H1, STA480H1
3. 1.5 full year courses from: ACT451H1, ACT452H1, ACT460H1, APM412H1, MAT327H1, MAT334H1/ MAT354H1, MAT337H1/ MAT357H1, MAT301H1/ MAT347Y1, CSC207H1, CSC310H1, CSC336H1/ CSC436H1, STA300 + level courses (excluding STA310H5)

Note: Students planning to take any of these courses should ensure they have the required prerequisites

Statistics Major (Science Program) - ASMAJ2289

Enrolment Requirements:

Effective for 2019 enrolment:

Students who have completed 4.0 FCE including STA130H1 are eligible to enrol in the Statistics Major.

Completion Requirements:

(Note: the following requirements will apply for students enrolling in the 2019 enrolment period. Students enrolling in the 2018 enrolment period will follow the 2017-18 Calendar requirements; however, students enrolling in 2018 are strongly recommended to consider ( STA237H1, STA238H1) or ( STA257H1, STA261H1) in second year.)

(7.0 full courses or their equivalent, including at least one STA 400-series course)

First Year:

STA130H1, CSC108H1/ CSC120H1/ CSC121H1/ CSC148H1, ( MAT135H1, MAT136H1)/ MAT137Y1/ MAT157Y1.

( MAT223H1/ MAT240H1 recommended in 1st year)

Second Year:

MAT223H1/ MAT240H1, MAT235Y1/ MAT237Y1/ MAT257Y1; ( STA247H1, STA248H1)/ ( STA237H1, STA238H1)/ ( STA257H1, STA261H1)/ ECO227Y1

( STA237H1 and STA238H1 are strongly recommended. MAT221H1 may not be used for this requirement.)

Higher Years:

1. STA302H1

2. 3 half (H) course equivalents from all available STA300+ level courses, excluding STA310H5 (For example, a student interested in economics/commerce/finance might think to include STA304H1, STA347H1, STA457H1 in their program, while someone engaged in a life science might entertain STA303H1, STA305H1, STA437H1. On the other hand, a student with an interest in pure math might choose to focus on applications of that subject matter to theoretical probability and statistics, selecting STA347H1, STA355H1 towards a major in statistics.)

3. 1 half (H) course equivalent from the available STA400+ level courses (For those anticipating a future professional need to analyze large arrays of data STA410H1, STA414H1 are certainly very worthy of consideration.)

Statistics Minor (Science Program) - ASMIN2289

Completion Requirements:

(4 full courses or their equivalent)

First Year:

MAT133Y1 (70%)/( MAT135H1, MAT136H1)/MAT135Y1/ MAT137Y1/ MAT157Y1, CSC108H1/ CSC120H1/ CSC121H1/ CSC148H1 ( MAT135H1, MAT136H1)/ MAT137Y1/ MAT157Y1 is strongly recommended).

STA130H1 is also strongly recommended.

Second Year:

MAT221H1 (70%)/ MAT223H1/ MAT240H1, ( STA220H1/ STA221H1/ ECO220Y1, STA255H1)/ ( STA237H1, STA238H1)/ ( STA247H1, STA248H1)/ ( STA257H1, STA261H1)/ ECO227Y1

MAT221H1 (70%)/ MAT223H1/ MAT240H1 recommended in 1st year

Higher Years:

STA302H1

1 half (H) course equivalent from all available STA300+ level courses (excluding STA310H5)

Regarding Statistical Sciences Courses

First Year Seminars

The 199Y1 and 199H1 seminars are designed to provide the opportunity to work closely with an instructor in a class of no more than twenty-four students. These interactive seminars are intended to stimulate the students' curiosity and provide an opportunity to get to know a member of the professorial staff in a seminar environment during the first year of study. Details can be found at www.artsci.utoronto.ca/current/course/fyh-1/.

Statistical Sciences Courses

STA130H1 - An Introduction to Statistical Reasoning and Data Science

Hours: 24L/24P

This course, intended for students considering a program in Statistical Sciences, discusses the crucial role played by statistical reasoning in solving challenging problems from natural science, social science, technology, health care, and public policy, using a combination of logical thinking, mathematics, computer simulation, and oral and written discussion and analysis.

Corequisite: MAT135H1/ MAT136H1/ MAT137Y1/ MAT157Y1. Strongly recommended: CSC108H1/ CSC120H1/ CSC121H1/ CSC148H1

Exclusion: Any of STA220H1 / STA255H1 / STA248H1 / STA261H1 / ECO220Y1 / ECO227Y1 taken previously or concurrently

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

STA201H1 - Why Numbers Matter

Hours: 36L

This course teaches non-science students the importance of quantitative reasoning to many different areas. It explores a variety of applications to such diverse subjects as economics, gambling, politics, poetry, graphics, music, medicine, demographics, sports, secret codes, and more, using only basic high school level mathematics combined with logical thinking.

Exclusion: MAT133Y1/ MAT135H1/ MAT136H1/ MAT137Y1/ MAT157Y1. This course is not open to first-year students, nor to students enrolled in any science Major or Specialist program.

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

STA220H1 - The Practice of Statistics I

Hours: 36L

An introductory course in statistical concepts and methods, emphasizing exploratory data analysis for univariate and bivariate data, sampling and experimental designs, basic probability models, estimation and tests of hypothesis in one-sample and comparative two-sample studies. A statistical computing package is used but no prior computing experience is assumed. Note: STA220H1 does not count as a distribution requirement course.

Prerequisite: Grade 12 Mathematics and one University course in the physical, social, or life sciences

Exclusion: ECO220Y1/ ECO227Y1/ GGR270H1/ PSY201H1/ SOC300Y1/ STA250H1/ STA261H1/ STA248H1/ STA288H1/ EEB225H1

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

STA221H1 - The Practice of Statistics II

Hours: 36L/12T

Continuation of STA220H1 (or similar course), emphasizing major methods of data analysis such as analysis of variance for one factor and multiple factor designs, regression models, categorical and non-parametric methods (Note: STA221H1 does not count as a distribution requirement course).

Prerequisite: STA220H1/ STA288H1/ PSY201H1/ GGR270H1/ EEB225H1

Exclusion: ECO220Y1/ ECO227Y1/ GGR270Y1 / PSY202H1/ SOC300H1/ SOC202H1/ SOC252H1 STA261H1/ STA248H1

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

STA237H1 - Probability, Statistics and Data Analysis I

Hours: 36L/12T

An introduction to probability using simulation and mathematical frameworks, with emphasis on the probability needed for more advanced study in statistical practice. Topics covered include probability spaces, random variables, discrete and continuous probability distributions, probability mass, density, and distribution functions, expectation and variance, independence, conditional probability, the law of large numbers, the central limit theorem, sampling distributions. Computer simulation will be taught and used extensively for calculations and to guide the theoretical development.

Prerequisite: ( MAT135H1, MAT136H1)/ MAT137Y1/ MAT157Y1

Exclusion: STA247H1, STA255H1, STA257H1, ECO227Y1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

STA238H1 - Probability, Statistics and Data Analysis II

Hours: 36L/12T

An introduction to statistical inference and practice. Statistical models and parameters, estimators of parameters and their statistical properties, methods of estimation, confidence intervals, hypothesis testing, likelihood function, the linear model. Use of statistical computation for data analysis and simulation.

Prerequisite: ( MAT135H1, MAT136H1)/ MAT137Y1/ MAT157Y1

Exclusion: STA248H1, STA255H1, STA261H1, ECO227Y1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

STA247H1 - Probability with Computer Applications

Hours: 36L/12T

Introduction to the theory of probability, with emphasis on applications in computer science. The topics covered include random variables, discrete and continuous probability distributions, expectation and variance, independence, conditional probability, normal, exponential, binomial, and Poisson distributions, the central limit theorem, sampling distributions, estimation and testing, applications to the analysis of algorithms, and simulating systems such as queues (Note: STA247H1 does not count as a distribution requirement course).

Prerequisite: ( MAT135H1, MAT136H1)/ MAT137Y1/ MAT157Y1; CSC108H1/ CSC148H1

Exclusion: ECO227Y1/ STA255H1/ STA257H1

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

STA248H1 - Statistics for Computer Scientists

Hours: 36L/12T

A survey of statistical methodology with emphasis on data analysis and applications. The topics covered include descriptive statistics, data collection and the design of experiments, univariate and multivariate design, tests of significance and confidence intervals, power, multiple regression and the analysis of variance, and count data. Students learn to use a statistical computer package as part of the course (Note: STA248H1 does not count as a distribution requirement course).

Prerequisite: STA247H1/ STA257H1; CSC108H1/ CSC148H1

Exclusion: ECO220Y1/ ECO227Y1/ GGR270Y1/ PSY201H1/ SOC300H1/ SOC202H1/ SOC252H1/ STA220H1/ STA221H1/ STA250H1/ STA255H1/ STA261H1/ STA288H1/ EEB225H1

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

STA255H1 - Statistical Theory

Hours: 36L/12T

This course deals with the mathematical aspects of some of the topics discussed in STA250H1. Topics include discrete and continuous probability distributions, conditional probability, expectation, sampling distributions, estimation and testing, the linear model (Note: STA255H1 does not count as a distribution requirement course).

Prerequisite: STA220H1/ STA221H1/ ECO220Y1 (note: ECO220Y1 may be taken as a co-requisite), MAT133Y1(70%)/( MAT135H1, MAT136H1)/ MAT137Y1/ MAT157Y1

Exclusion: ECO227Y1/ STA257H1/ STA261H1/ STA247H1/ STA248H1

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

STA257H1 - Probability and Statistics I

Hours: 36L/12T

A mathematically rigorous introduction to probability, with applications chosen to introduce concepts of statistical inference. Probability and expectation, discrete and continuous random variables and vectors, distribution and density functions, the law of large numbers. The binomial, geometric, Poisson, and normal distributions. The Central Limit Theorem. (Note: STA257H1 does not count as a distribution requirement course).

Prerequisite: ( MAT135H1 (70%), MAT136H1 (70%))/ MAT137Y1/ MAT157Y1 ( MAT137Y1/ MAT157Y1 is strongly recommended)

Corequisite: MAT235Y1/ MAT237Y1/ MAT257Y1 ( MAT237Y1/ MAT257Y1 is strongly recommended), MAT223H1/ MAT240H1

Exclusion: ECO227Y1/ STA247H1

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

STA261H1 - Probability and Statistics II

Hours: 36L/12T

A rigorous introduction to the theory of statistical inference and to statistical practice. Statistical models, parameters, and samples. Estimators for parameters, sampling distributions for estimators, and the properties of consistency, bias, and variance. The likelihood function and the maximum likelihood estimator. Hypothesis tests and confidence regions. Examples illustrating statistical theory and its limitations. Introduction to the use of a computer environment for statistical analysis. (Note: STA261H1 does not count as a distribution requirement course).

Prerequisite: STA257H1

Corequisite: MAT235Y1/ MAT237Y1/ MAT257Y1, MAT223H1/ MAT240H1

Exclusion: ECO227Y1/ STA248H1/ STA255H1

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

JSC270H1 - Data Science I

Hours: 24L/24P

This course is restricted to students in the Data Science Specialist program. Data exploration and preparation; data visualization and presentation; and computing with data will be introduced. Professional skills, such as oral and written communication, and ethical skills for data science will be introduced. Data science workflows will be integrated throughout the course. These topics will be explored through case studies and collaboration with researchers in other fields.

Prerequisite: STA257H1, CSC207H1

Corequisite: STA261H1, MAT237Y1/ MAT257Y1, CSC236H1/ CSC240H1

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

STA288H1 - Statistics and Scientific Inquiry in the Life Sciences

Hours: 36L/18P

Introduction to statistics and its connection to all stages of the scientific inquiry process. Issues around data collection, analysis and interpretation are emphasized to inform study design and critical assessment of published research. Statistical software is used to conduct descriptive and inferential statistics to address basic life sciences research questions.

Prerequisite: BIO230H1/ BIO255H1

Exclusion: STA220H1, PSY201H1, GGR270H1, ECO220Y1, ECO227Y1, SOC202H1, EEB225H1, HMB325H1, STA248H1, STA261H1, PCL376H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

STA299Y1 - Research Opportunity Program

Hours: TBA

Credit course for supervised participation in faculty research project. Details at <http://www.artsci.utoronto.ca/current/course/rop>. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Distribution Requirements: Science

STA302H1 - Methods of Data Analysis I

Hours: 36L

Introduction to data analysis with a focus on regression. Initial Examination of data. Correlation. Simple and multiple regression models using least squares. Inference for regression parameters, confidence and prediction intervals. Diagnostics and remedial measures. Interactions and dummy variables. Variable selection. Least squares estimation and inference for non-linear regression.

Prerequisite: STA238H1/ STA248H1/ STA255H1/ STA261H1/ ECO227Y1, CSC108H1/ CSC120H1/ CSC121H1/ CSC148H1, MAT221H1(70%)/ MAT223H1/ MAT240H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

STA303H1 - Methods of Data Analysis II

Hours: 36L

Analysis of variance for one-and two-way layouts, logistic regression, loglinear models, longitudinal data, introduction to time series.

Prerequisite: STA302H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

STA304H1 - Surveys, Sampling and Observational Data

Previous Course Number: STA322H1

Hours: 36L

Design of surveys, sources of bias, randomized response surveys. Techniques of sampling; stratification, clustering, unequal probability selection. Sampling inference, estimates of population mean and variances, ratio estimation. Observational data; correlation vs. causation, missing data, sources of bias.

Prerequisite: ECO220Y1/ ECO227Y1/ GGR270H1/ PSY201H1/ SOC300H1/ SOC202H1/ STA220H1/ STA255H1/ STA261H1/ STA248H1/ STA238H1/ EEB225H1

Exclusion: STA322H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

STA305H1 - Design and Analysis of Experiments

Previous Course Number: STA332H1

Hours: 36L

Experiments vs observational studies, experimental units. Designs with one source of variation. Complete randomized designs and randomized block designs. Factorial designs. Inferences for contrasts and means. Model assumptions. Crossed and nested treatment factors, random effects models. Analysis of variance and covariance. Sample size calculations.

Prerequisite: STA302H1

Exclusion: STA332H1, STA402H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

STA314H1 - Statistical Methods for Machine Learning I

Hours: 36L/12T

Statistical methods for supervised and unsupervised learning from data: training error, test error and cross-validation; classification, regression, and logistic regression; principal components analysis; stochastic gradient descent; decision trees and random forests; k-means clustering and nearest neighbour methods. Computational tutorials will support the efficient application of these methods.

Prerequisite: STA238H1/ STA248H1/ STA255H1/ STA261H1, CSC108H1/ CSC120H1/ CSC121H1/ CSC148H1, MAT223H1/ MAT240H1

Exclusion: CSC411H1

Recommended Preparation: MAT235Y1/ MAT237Y1/ MAT257Y1

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

STA347H1 - Probability

Hours: 36L

An overview of probability from a non-measure theoretic point of view. Random variables/vectors; independence, conditional expectation/probability and consequences. Various types of convergence leading to proofs of the major theorems in basic probability. An introduction to simple stochastic processes such as Poisson and branching processes.

Prerequisite: STA247H1/ STA255H1(70%)/ STA237H1(70%)/ STA257H1/ ECO227Y1, MAT223H1/ MAT240H1, MAT235Y1/ MAT237Y1/ MAT257Y1 (Note: STA257H1, MAT223H1/ MAT240H1, MAT237Y1/ MAT257Y1 are very strongly recommended)

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

STA355H1 - Theory of Statistical Practice

Hours: 24L/12P

STA355H1 provides a unifying structure for the methods taught in other courses, and will enable students to read methodological research articles or articles with a large methodological component. Topics covered include statistical models and distributions; fundamentals of inference: estimation, hypothesis testing, and significance levels; likelihood functions and likelihood-based inference; prior distributions and Bayesian inference.

Recommended Preparation: CSC108H1/ CSC120H1/ CSC121H1/ CSC148H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

STA365H1 - Applied Bayesian Statistics

Hours: 36L

Bayesian inference has become an important applied technique and is especially valued to solve complex problems. This course first examines the basics of Bayesian inference. From there, this course looks at modern, computational methods and how to make inferences on complex data problems.

Prerequisite: STA302H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

STA398H0 - Research Excursions

Hours: TBA

An instructor-supervised group project in an off-campus setting. Details at <http://www.artsci.utoronto.ca/current/course/rep>. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Distribution Requirements: Science

STA398Y0 - Research Excursions

Hours: TBA

An instructor-supervised group project in an off-campus setting. Details at <http://www.artsci.utoronto.ca/current/course/rep>. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Distribution Requirements: Science

STA399Y1 - Research Opportunity Program

Hours: TBA

Credit course for supervised participation in faculty research project. Details at <http://www.artsci.utoronto.ca/current/course/rop>. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

STA410H1 - Statistical Computation

Hours: 36L

Programming in an interactive statistical environment. Generating random variates and evaluating statistical methods by simulation. Algorithms for linear models, maximum likelihood estimation, and Bayesian inference. Statistical algorithms such as the Kalman filter and the EM algorithm. Graphical display of data.

Prerequisite: STA302H1, CSC108H1/ CSC120H1/ CSC121H1/ CSC148H1, MAT223H1/ MAT240H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

STA414H1 - Statistical Methods for Machine Learning II

Hours: 36L

Probabilistic foundations of supervised and unsupervised learning methods such as naive Bayes, mixture models, and logistic regression. Gradient-based fitting of composite models including neural nets. Exact inference, stochastic variational inference, and Marko chain Monte Carlo. Variational autoencoders and generative adversarial networks.

Prerequisite: STA314H1/ CSC411H1 (beginning Fall 2019), STA302H1, CSC108H1/ CSC120H1/ CSC121H1/ CSC148H1, MAT235Y1/ MAT237Y1/ MAT257Y1, MAT223H1/ MAT240H1

Exclusion: CSC412H1

Recommended Preparation: STA303H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

STA422H1 - Theory of Statistical Inference

Hours: 36L

This course examines current theory of statistical inference, particularly likelihood-based methods and Bayesian methods with an emphasis on resolving present conflicts; log-model expansion and asymptotics are primary tools.

Prerequisite: STA355H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

STA437H1 - Methods for Multivariate Data

Hours: 24L/12P

Practical techniques for the analysis of multivariate data; fundamental methods of data reduction with an introduction to underlying distribution theory; basic estimation and hypothesis testing for multivariate means and variances; regression coefficients; principal components and partial, multiple and canonical correlations; multivariate analysis of variance; profile analysis and curve fitting for repeated measurements; classification and the linear discriminant function.

Prerequisite: STA302H1/ STA352Y1 ( MAT224H1/ MAT247H1 recommended )

Recommended Preparation: APM233Y1/ MAT223H1/ MAT240H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

STA442H1 - Methods of Applied Statistics

Hours: 36L

Advanced topics in statistics and data analysis with emphasis on applications. Diagnostics and residuals in linear models, introduction to generalized linear models, graphical methods, additional topics such as random effects models, designed experiments, model selection, analysis of censored data, introduced as needed in the context of case studies.

Prerequisite: STA302H1, CSC108H1/ CSC120H1/ CSC121H1/ CSC148H1

Recommended Preparation: At least an additional 1.0 FCE in STA courses at the 300 or 400 level

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

STA447H1 - Stochastic Processes (formerly STA348H1)

Hours: 36L

Discrete and continuous time processes with an emphasis on Markov, Gaussian and renewal processes. Martingales and further limit theorems. A variety of applications taken from some of the following areas are discussed in the context of stochastic modeling: Information Theory, Quantum Mechanics, Statistical Analyses of Stochastic Processes, Population Growth Models, Reliability, Queuing Models, Stochastic Calculus, Simulation (Monte Carlo Methods).

Prerequisite: STA347H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

STA450H1 - Topics in Statistics

Hours: 36L

Topics of current research interest are covered. Topics change from year to year, and students should consult the department for information on material presented in a given year.

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

STA452H1 - Mathematical Statistics I

Previous Course Number: STA352Y1

Hours: 36L

Statistical theory and its applications at an advanced mathematical level. Topics include probability and distribution theory as it specifically pertains to the statistical analysis of data. Linear models and the geometry of data, least squares and the connection to conditional expectation. The basic concept of inference and the likelihood function.

Prerequisite: MAT223H1/ MAT240H1; MAT235Y1/ MAT237Y1/ MAT257Y1; ( STA257H1, STA355H1)/ STA347H1. Note: MAT237Y1/ MAT257Y1; ( MAT223H1, MAT224H1)/ MAT240H1 very strongly recommended.

Exclusion: STA352Y1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

STA453H1 - Mathematical Statistics II

Previous Course Number: STA352Y1

Hours: 36L

Continuation of STA452H1: statistical theory and its applications at an advanced mathematical level. Topics include classical estimation, theory with methods based on the likelihood function and the likelihood statistics. Testing hypothesis and the evaluation of conference from both a bayesian and frequentist point of view.

Prerequisite: STA452H1

Exclusion: STA352Y1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

STA457H1 - Time Series Analysis

Hours: 36L

An overview of methods and problems in the analysis of time series data. Topics include: descriptive methods, filtering and smoothing time series, theory of stationary processes, identification and estimation of time series models, forecasting, seasonal adjustment, spectral estimation, bivariate time series models.

Prerequisite: STA302H1; MAT235Y1/ MAT237Y1/ MAT257Y1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

STA465H1 - Theory and Methods for Complex Spatial Data

Hours: 36L

Data acquisition trends in the environmental, physical and health sciences are increasingly spatial in character and novel in the sense that modern sophisticated methods are required for analysis. This course will cover different types of random spatial processes and how to incorporate them into mixed effects models for Normal and non-Normal data. Students will be trained in a variety of advanced techniques for analyzing complex spatial data and, upon completion, will be able to undertake a variety of analyses on spatially dependent data, understand which methods are appropriate for various research questions, and interpret and convey results in the light of the original questions posed.

Prerequisite: STA302H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

STA480H1 - Fundamentals of Statistical Genetics

Hours: 36L/9P

Statistical analysis of genetic data is an important emerging research area with direct impact on population health. This course provides an introduction to the concepts and fundamentals of statistical genetics, including current research directions. The course includes lectures and hands-on experience with R programming and state-of-the-art statistical genetics software packages.

Prerequisite: STA303H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

STA490Y1 - Statistical Consultation, Communication, and Collaboration

Previous Course Number: STA490H1

Hours: 48L/48P

Through case studies and collaboration with researchers in other disciplines, students develop skills in the collaborative practice of Statistics. Focus is on pragmatic solutions to practical issues including study design, dealing with common complications in data analysis, and ethical practice, with particular emphasis on written communication.

Prerequisite: STA303H1, STA304H1/ STA305H1, STA355H1 (Permission of instructor. Priority is given to students completing all requirements of the Applied Statistics specialist program.)

Corequisite: one additional 400 level STA course

Exclusion: STA490H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

STA496H1 - Readings in Statistics

Hours: TBA

Independent study under the direction of a faculty member. Persons wishing to take this course must have the permission of the Undergraduate Secretary and of the prospective supervisor. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

STA499Y1 - Readings in Statistics

Hours: TBA

Independent study under the direction of a faculty member. Persons wishing to take this course must have the permission of the Undergraduate Secretary and of the prospective supervisor. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

STA497H1 - Readings in Statistics

Hours: TBA

Independent study under the direction of a faculty member. Persons wishing to take this course must have the permission of the Undergraduate Secretary and of the prospective supervisor. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

STA498Y1 - Readings in Statistics

Hours: TBA

Independent study under the direction of a faculty member. Persons wishing to take this course must have the permission of the Undergraduate Secretary and of the prospective supervisor. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

Introduction

Trinity College offers Trinity One, a set of first-year courses, an independent studies program, and three interdisciplinary programs: Ethics, Society, and Law; Immunology; International Relations. The Major Program in Ethics, Society, and Law assembles courses offered by a variety of Departments and Colleges, including History, Philosophy, Political Science, Religion, Sociology, Woodsworth College and Trinity College. The Specialist and Major Programs in Immunology are assembled from offerings by the Departments of Biochemistry, Immunology, Molecular Genetics. The International Relations Program encompasses courses offered by the Departments of History, Political Science, Economics and Trinity College.

The Margaret MacMillan Trinity One Program

Trinity One provides first-year students with the opportunity to explore together significant issues and ideas pertaining to the conduct of human life and world affairs. Trinity One has six streams, each linked to a prominent aspect of the College's intellectual identity: Policy, Philosophy, & Economics; Ethics, Society, & Law; International Relations; Medicine & Global Health; Biomedical Health; and Environment & Sustainability. Each stream includes two seminar courses limited to 25 students. These courses foster small-group discussion and emphasize the development of critical-thinking, oral-presentation, writing and research skills. Co-curricular events enable students in the streams of Trinity One to hear guest speakers and to engage in informal conversation with one another and with their professors. Please see the Trinity One webpages.

Ethics, Society, and Law

The Ethics, Society and Law program allows undergraduates to explore some of the most crucial questions facing contemporary society, and to do so by means of an explicitly interdisciplinary approach. The humanities, social sciences and natural sciences all provide useful lenses for study and distinctive skill sets. Students are required to cover core areas in each of the streams; they additionally select their own areas of focus from optional courses in fields like philosophy, religion, anthropology, women and gender studies, economics, geography, political science, sociology and criminology. Engaging across disciplines, E, S and L majors acquire a strong critical preparation for well-informed, effective analysis and action, which will serve them professionally, locally and as a members of the global community. Please see the ES&L webpages.

Immunology Studies

For more information please see the entry under Immunology or the Immunology departmental web site.

Independent Studies

Consult the Director, Dr. Gillian Gillison, Trinity College (office is located in room 319 Larkin Building).

The Trinity College Independent Studies Program is open to students of all colleges. Only full-time students are eligible to apply. It allows you to undertake extensive research into a topic that interests you, and it is an especially suitable way of doing interdisciplinary work on subjects that are not directly part of the present university curriculum.

Participation in the program is restricted to students who have completed at least 10 courses. The maximum number of independent studies half courses for which a student may receive credit is one, and the maximum number of independent studies full course equivalents for which a student may receive credit is two. Normally the work done is to be the equivalent of two full courses. Permission to register in an independent studies half course, or in an independent studies full course, will normally be granted only to students with a cumulative GPA of at least 3.50. Permission to undertake an independent studies project for the equivalent of two full courses will normally be granted only to students with a cumulative GPA of at least 3.70. Your proposal must also be approved by your supervisor and accepted by the Director of the program.

Students must submit to the Director before the beginning of the academic year a copy of their academic transcript and an outline of their topic (signed by the supervisor) and a suggested bibliography. For evaluation of the work done in the program a short thesis or equivalent is required, prepared and submitted by the last day of classes in the fall or winter session as appropriate. The supervisor and a second reader (nominated by the supervisor and approved by the Director) are responsible for the evaluation. The Director will require regular progress reports throughout the year. Students must have a supervisor and second reader in order to get approval for their projects.

Either the supervisor or the second reader must be a tenured University of Toronto faculty member. A supervisor who is not a tenured University of Toronto faculty member will normally be required to be a full-time faculty member of the University.

Students enrolling for the first time register for one or more of TRN300H1, TRN301Y1, TRN302Y1, or for one or more of TRN400H1, TRN404Y1, and TRN405Y1, as appropriate. Those enrolling for a second time register in one or more of TRN400H1, TRN404Y1, and TRN405Y1, as appropriate.

For more information, please see the Independent Studies webpage.

Trinity College Programs

Ethics, Society, and Law Major (Arts Program) - ASMAJ1618

Description:

The Ethics, Society and Law program allows undergraduates to explore some of the most crucial questions facing contemporary society, and to do so by means of an explicitly interdisciplinary approach. The humanities, social sciences and natural sciences all provide useful lenses for study and distinctive skill sets. Students are required to cover core areas in each of the streams; they additionally select their own areas of focus from optional courses in fields like philosophy, religion, anthropology, women and gender studies, economics, geography, political science, sociology and criminology. Engaging across disciplines, E, S and L majors acquire a strong critical preparation for well-informed, effective analysis and action, which will serve them professionally, locally and as members of the global community. Please see the ES&L webpages: <http://www.trinity.utoronto.ca/current/programs-courses/esl/esl.html>

Enrolment Requirements:

The Ethics, Society, and Law Major is a Type 2 limited enrolment program. Enrolment is limited to students with an overall average of 77% or higher in 3 FCEs (at the end of first year) selected from courses that are categorized as BR=2 and/or BR=3. Please note that TRN170Y1 can also be included as a full credit towards selection even though it is classified as BR=1+2. For students applying at the end of second year, a minimal overall average of 77% is required in 3 FCEs from courses that count towards the program including at least 1.0 FCE from: ETH201H1, ETH210H1, ETH220H1, ETH230H1, PHL265H1, PHL271H1, PHL275H1, and POL200Y1. In either case, achieving the threshold mark does not necessarily guarantee admission to the program in any given year. Applications beyond second year will be assessed on a case-by-case basis.

Completion Requirements:

(7 full courses or the equivalent)

1. First year: While no specific courses are required in first year, course selection should take into account the program's admission requirements above, as well as the prerequisites for 200+ level courses students plan to take to complete the program.

2. Second year: PHL271H1, TRN203H1, and TRN204H1 are required courses that students are recommended to take in second year (their first year of registration in the program).

3. Third year: TRN303H1.

4. Fourth year: TRN412H1.

5. 1 FCE from ETH201H1, ETH210H1, ETH220H1, ETH230H1, ETH350H1, ETH401H1, PHL265H1, PHL275H1, POL200Y1, to be taken in any year of registration in the program.

6. 3.5 FCEs from Groups A-D, including at least 0.5 from each of Groups A-C and at least 2.0 at the 300+ level. Courses taken in fulfillment of requirement 5 above may not be counted toward the Group courses here.

Group A (Ethics)

ETH201H1, ETH210H1, ETH220H1, ETH230H1, ETH350H1, ETH401H1; PHL273H1, PHL275H1, PHL281H1, PHL295H1, PHL341H1, PHL373H1, PHL375H1, PHL378H1, PHL380H1, PHL381H1, PHL382H1, PHL383H1, PHL384H1, PHL394H1, PHL407H1; POL200Y1, POL330Y1; RLG221H1, RLG224H1, RLG228H1

Group B (Society)

ANT204H1; CSC300H1; ECO313H1, ECO332H1, ECO336H1; ENV221H1, ENV222H1, ENV347H1; GGR416H1; HIS332H1; HPS324H1; JGE331H1; PHL265H1, PHL365H1; POL214Y1, POL320Y1, POL412H1, POL432H1; PSY311H1, PSY321H1; SOC208H1, SOC212H1, SOC220H1, SOC265H1, SOC313H1, SOC330H1, SOC360H1, SOC367H1; CRI205H1, CRI210H1, CRI300H1, CRI335H1, CRI340H1, CRI380H1, CRI425H1; WGS373H1

Group C (Law)

CLA336H1; ECO320H1; ENV422H1; NMC484H1; PHL370H1; PHL484H1; POL337Y1, POL340Y1; SMC361H1; TRN304H1/ TRN304Y1, TRN305Y1/ TRN305H1, TRN425Y1; CRI225H1, CRI365H1; WGS365H1

Group D (Further Courses)

RLG309H1; TRN200Y1, TRN320H1, TRN321H1, TRN406H1/ TRN407Y1, and with permission of the director: TRN300H1, TRN301Y1, TRN302Y1, TRN400H1, TRN404Y1, TRN405Y1, TRN377Y1, TRN477H1; one FCE from TRN160Y1, TRN161Y1, TRN171Y1, TRN172Y1.

N.B. (1) The above CRI courses are available only to students enrolled in the double major program Ethics, Society, and Law/Criminology. (2) Access to courses in the Ethics, Society, and Law program is not guaranteed; students must check prerequisites.

International Relations Specialist (Arts Program) - ASSPE1469

Description:

The study of international relations dates back to antiquity and remains one of the most vital disciplines in the academic community. Its purpose is to explore the enduring questions of the origins of war and the maintenance of peace, the nature and exercise of power within an international system, and the changing character of the participants in international decision-making.

Drawing on the strengths of faculty members in History, Economics, and Political Science, the International Relations Specialist Program offers a structured and interdisciplinary education. The program provides students with knowledge of the historical and contemporary dimensions of the international system while introducing them to the methodologies employed in historical, political and economic analysis.

Enrolment Requirements:

The International Relations Specialist is a Type 3 program. Applicants must complete an application form including a Statement of Interest. Enrolment is limited to students with a combined average of at least 75% in the required first-year courses:

1. One FCE from: ECO100Y1/( ECO101H1, ECO102H1)/ ECO105Y1
2. One FCE from:
GGR112H1
HIS102Y1/ HIS103Y1
MUN101H1/ MUN102H1/ MUN105Y1 (in Munk One)
POL101Y1
TRN150Y1/ TRN151Y1/ TRN152Y1 (in Trinity One)
VIC181H1, VIC183H1, VIC184H1, VIC185H1 (in Vic One)
3. One FCE from:
One introductory modern language or MAT133Y1/
MAT137Y1/( MAT135H1, MAT136H1)
Or a statistics course from social science departments (e.g. POL222H1+ POL232H1 for students with the prerequisites, from e.g. Advance Placement)

Note: Students are strongly encouraged to have or acquire fluency in French and another modern international language; including through relevant Advance Placement and other transfer credits. Students entering with basic language skills are strongly encouraged to take advanced language courses.

Achieving the threshold mark does not necessarily guarantee admission to the program in any given year. Students who are not admitted to the program may reapply for admission in a subsequent year.

Completion Requirements:

(13 full courses or the equivalent)

Consult the Office of the International Relations Program, room 310N, Munk School of Global Affairs, 416-946-8950.

Year 1:

1. One FCE from: ECO100Y1/ ECO101H1, ECO102H1/ ECO105Y1
2. One FCE from:
GGR112H1
HIS102Y1/ HIS103Y1
MUN101H1/ MUN102H1/ MUN105Y1 (in Munk One)
POL101Y1
TRN150Y1/ TRN151Y1/ TRN152Y1 (in Trinity One)
VIC181H1, VIC183H1, VIC184H1, VIC185H1 (in Vic One)
3. One FCE from:
One introductory modern language or MAT133Y1/ MAT137Y1/ MAT135H1, MAT136H1
Or a statistics course from social science departments (e.g. POL222H1+ POL232H1 for students with the prerequisites, from e.g. Advance Placement)

Note: Students are strongly encouraged to have or acquire fluency in French and another modern international language; including through relevant Advance Placement and other transfer credits. Students entering with basic language skills are strongly encouraged to take advanced language courses.

Achieving the threshold mark does not necessarily guarantee admission to the program in any given year. Students who are not admitted to the program may reapply for admission in a subsequent year.

Year 2 (3 FCEs): ECO230Y1, POL208Y1, TRN250Y1

Year 3 (3.5 FCEs):

1. 1 FCE from:
ECO320H1/ ECO341H1/ ECO342H1/
ECO362H1/ ECO364H1/ ECO365H1/ ECO368H1
2. 1 FCE from:
HIS311Y1/ HIS312H1/ HIS324H1/ HIS330H1/
HIS334Y1/ HIS338H1/ HIS341Y1/ HIS343H1/

HIS344H1/ HIS347H1/ HIS350H1/ HIS359H1/
HIS361H1/ HIS364H1/ HIS377H1/ HIS379H1/
HIS385H1/ HIS397H1

3. 1 FCE from:
ANT452H1/ ECO200Y1/ ECO202Y1/ ECO206Y1/
ECO208Y1/ ECO324H1/ ECO341H1/
ECO342H1/

POL324H1/ POL326Y1/ POL329H1/ POL330Y1/
POL340Y1/ POL343Y1/ POL361H1/ POL362H1/
POL371H1/ POL372H1/ POL377H1
4. 0.5 FCE from:
ECO351H1/ TRN307H1/ TRN308H1/ TRN377Y1/
Or any of the above not previously counted

Note: Those students choosing to add a Focus should be guided in their selection by the courses listed in their Focus group.

Year 4 (3.5 FCEs)

1. 1 FCE from: TRN419Y1/ TRN421Y1
2. 2.5 FCE from:
ECO403H1/ ECO419H1/ ECO429H1/
ECO430Y1/ ECO431H1/ ECO459H1/ ECO465H1

Note: Those students choosing to add a Focus should be guided in their selection by the courses listed in their Focus group.

Focus in Canadian Foreign & Security Relations (Specialist) - ASFOC1469B

Enrolment Requirements:

Enrolment in the International Relations Specialist is required for entry into this Focus.

Enrolment in this Focus is recommended after second year to guide choice of courses in the higher years. Please note normal course prerequisites will apply to all courses in the Focus.

Completion Requirements:

(2.5 FCE)

1. HIS311Y1 (Introduction to Canadian International Relations)
2. 1.5 FCE chosen from the following list:
HIS312H1 (Immigration to Canada), POL312Y1 (Canadian Foreign Policy), HIS402H1 (Canada and Decolonization), HIS405Y1 (Canadian Foreign Relations), HIS429H1 (Canada and Empire in the Twentieth Century), HIS430H1 (Canadians and the World Wars), POL467H1 (The Politics of Immigration & Multiculturalism in Canada), TRN409H1 (Canadian Defense Policy since the end of the Cold War), TRN409H1 (Nuclear Weapons and International Politics), TRN410H1 (Researching Critical Cases in Contemporary International Relations), TRN419Y1 (Comparative American, British and Canadian Foreign Policy), VIC476H1 (Capstone Seminar in Foreign Policy)

Notes:

- Focus courses meet the basic IRP inclusion standard of substantially and directly addressing relations between and among countries at the state or society level.
- Students can request substitutions from the IRP Director
- Not all courses may be available at all times without scheduling conflicts.

Focus in International Economy (Specialist) - ASFOC1469C

Enrolment Requirements:

Enrolment in the International Relations Specialist is required for entry into this Focus.

Enrolment in this Focus is recommended after second year to guide choice of courses in the higher years. Please note normal course prerequisites will apply to all courses in the Focus.

Completion Requirements:

(2.5 FCE)

1. ECO341H1 (Economic History 20th C: Trade, Migration, Money, Finance)
2. ECO342H1 (20th Century Economic History: Institutions, Growth, Inequality)
3. 1.5 FCE chosen from the following list:
ECO362H1 (Economic Growth), ECO364H1 (International Trade Theory), ECO365H1 (International Monetary Economics), ECO368H1 (Economics of Conflict), GGR326H1 (Remaking the Global Economy), POL361H1 (Global Political Economy I: History and Theory), POL362H1 (Global Political Economy II: Policy and Analysis), POL372H1 (Political Economy of Germany and the EU), ECO403H1 (Topics in Development Economics and Policy), ECO419H1 (International Macroeconomics), ECO459H1 (International Trade Regulation), ECO465H1 (International Financial Markets), GGR418H1 (Political Economy of Natural Resources), GGR430H1 (Geographies of Markets), HIS417H1 (Globalization, Science and Technology), POL411H1 (International Political Economy of Finance), POL435H1 (Business and Politics in a Global World), POL477H1 (Advanced Topics in International Political Economy)

Notes:

- Focus courses meet the basic IRP inclusion standard of substantially and directly addressing relations between and among countries at the state or society level.
- Students can request substitutions from the IRP Director
- Not all courses may be available at all times without scheduling conflicts.

Focus in International Law & Human Rights (Specialist) - ASFOC1469E

Enrolment Requirements:

Enrolment in the International Relations Specialist is required for entry into this Focus.

Enrolment in this Focus is recommended after second year to guide choice of courses in the higher years. Please note normal course prerequisites will apply to all courses in the Focus.

Completion Requirements:

(2.5 FCEs)

1. POL340Y1 (International Law)
2. 1.5 FCE chosen from the following list:

International Relations Major (Arts Program) - ASMAJ1469

Description:

The study of international relations dates back to antiquity and remains one of the most vital disciplines in the academic community. Its purpose is to explore the enduring questions of the origins of war and the maintenance of peace, the nature and exercise of power within an international system, and the changing character of the participants in international decision-making.

Drawing on the strengths of faculty members in History, Economics, and Political Science, the International Relations Specialist Program offers a structured and interdisciplinary education. The program provides students with knowledge of the historical and contemporary dimensions of the international system while introducing them to the methodologies employed in historical, political and economic analysis.

Enrolment Requirements:

The International Relations Major is a Type 3 program. Applicants must complete an application form including a Statement of Interest. Enrolment is limited to students with a combined average of at least 70% in the required first-year courses:

1. One FCE from: ECO100Y1/( ECO101H1, ECO102H1)/ ECO105Y1

2. One FCE from:
GGR112H1
HIS102Y1/ HIS103Y1
MUN101H1/ MUN102H1/ MUN105Y1 (in Munk One)
POL101Y1
TRN150Y1/ TRN151Y1/ TRN152Y1 (in Trinity One)
VIC181H1, VIC183H1, VIC184H1, VIC185H1 (in Vic One)

POL340Y1/
POL343Y1/ POL361H1/ POL362H1/ POL371H1/
POL372H1/ POL377H1

Year 4 (0.5 FCEs)
TRN410H1 Researching Critical Cases in Contemporary International Relations

Achieving the threshold mark does not necessarily guarantee admission to the program in any given year. Students who are not admitted to the program may reapply for admission in a subsequent year.

Note: Those students choosing to add a Focus should be guided in their selection of courses at the third and fourth year level by the courses listed in the specific Focus group they choose.

Completion Requirements:

First Year Seminars

The 199Y1 and 199H1 seminars are designed to provide the opportunity to work closely with an instructor in a class of no more than twenty-four students. These interactive seminars are intended to stimulate the students' curiosity and provide an opportunity to get to know a member of the professorial staff in a seminar environment during the first year of study. Details can be found at www.artsci.utoronto.ca/current/course/fyh-1/.

Trinity One Courses

Students participating in other Foundational Year programs (e.g., Vic One, Munk One) are excluded from Trinity One.

Trinity One

TRN125Y1 - Contemporary Issues in Health Science

Hours: 48S

Can the immune system be strengthened? Are some diseases incurable? What is the best way to stop the spread of a virus? This course examines the scientific principles underlying contemporary issues in the science of human health with the goal of exposing students to the current state of biomedical research. We will develop three distinct types of understanding that are essential to literacy about the science of human health: the basic concepts in science; the nature of scientific research; and the rules that govern how scientists do their work. This course will explore topics such as stem cells, gene editing, regenerative medicine, vaccination, drug development, and personalized medicine. Not eligible for CR/NCR.

Exclusion: Innis One, Munk One, New One, SMC One, UC One, Vic One, Woodsworth One

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4); Society and its Institutions (3)

TRN135Y1 - Science and Social Choice

Hours: 48S

Many of the decisions we make as a society rely on advances in scientific knowledge. In this course, we will discuss a number of contemporary medical topics that involve complex scientific discoveries about health, the human body, disease, and infection. We will consider genes and study the medical implications of our growing understanding of the human genome. We will study a number of recent cases in order to explore how scientific findings influence decision-making in hospitals and the selection of social policies. We will also discuss the background forces that shape medical research and how this affects the kinds of health problems that are prioritized. The objective of this course is to develop a solid understanding of biological concepts related to human health and consider them in their wider social and ethical contexts. Not eligible for CR/NCR.

Exclusion: Innis One, Munk One, New One, SMC One, UC One, Vic One, Woodsworth One

Distribution Requirements: Science; Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4); Society and its Institutions (3)

TRN136Y1 - Canadian Health Policy in the Global Context

Hours: 48S

This course explores public health policy in Canada and connects it to the global political context. We study the evolution of Canadian healthcare into its current form and then turn to international institutional arrangements that offer different approaches to a range of health policy challenges, including universal health care, antimicrobial drug resistance, infectious disease, non-communicable diseases, maternal newborn and child health and environmental health. Not eligible for CR/NCR.

Corequisite: TRN135Y1

Exclusion: TRN235H1, TRN236H1

Distribution Requirements: Science; Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3); Living Things and Their Environment (4)

TRN140Y1 - Ethics, Humans, and Nature

Hours: 48S

This course introduces students to ethical issues arising from the way humans interact with nature. Students will study some theoretical approaches for evaluating how human society affects the planet, ecosystems, and the other animals. Theories will be drawn from philosophy, theology, and ecology, and will include Western and non-Western approaches to living in harmony with one's environment. Key themes may include speciesism – the idea that human needs are the most important – as well as overpopulation, extinction, vegetarianism, and responsible resource management. The course will also look at how social policy shapes human choices and whether sustainability initiatives should be pursued through the public or private sector. The course will also discuss the spiritual connection between humans and the environment and how society can be organized to promote access to nature in urban communities.

Corequisite: TRN141Y1

Exclusion: Innis One, Munk One, New One, SMC One, UC One, Vic One, Woodsworth One

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2); Society and its Institutions (3)

TRN141Y1 - Environmental Science and Pathways to Sustainability

Hours: 48S

This course introduces students to fundamental issues in environmental science with a multi-disciplinary focus on human impacts on physical and biological systems, and on identifying pathways to sustainability. Key themes will include energy and resources, climate change, land use, contaminants and protecting biodiversity in the context of the Anthropocene. The course challenges students to apply the scientific method to environmental monitoring, research and problem solving through project design, data collection and analysis. The course also emphasizes information literacy, skills to distinguish science from pseudo-science, and considerations around representation of environmental science in the media.

Corequisite: TRN140Y1

Exclusion: Innis One, Munk One, New One, SMC One, UC One, Vic One, Woodsworth One

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4); The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

TRN150Y1 - National versus International

Hours: 48S

The international system today faces extraordinary challenges. Understanding these challenges requires understanding the past. This seminar course briefly reviews the origins and development of the international system from the 17th century through the age of empires and the great wars of the 20th century. It then concentrates on the clash of nationalism with internationalism in the world since 1945, looking at such issues as what drives nationalism and what alternatives there are to it. We will study ideas and ideologies as well as the institutions that make up the current geopolitical world. Not eligible for CR/NCR.

Prerequisite: Admission to Trinity One

Exclusion: Innis One, Munk One, New One, St. Mike's One, Vic One, UC One, Woodsworth One

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

TRN151Y1 - Global Governance

Hours: 48S

Terrorism, the proliferation of arms (including weapons of mass destruction), environmental degradation, globalization, technological change, and the rise of non-state actors all pose challenges to statecraft and the management of global order. This seminar course explores the changing dynamics of global politics and the responses to them by states (and others). Topics will include an examination of new forms of international collaboration that have developed in the wake of crises in the years following the Second World War. Not eligible for CR/NCR.

Prerequisite: Admission to Trinity One

Exclusion: Innis One, Munk One, New One, St. Mike's One, Vic One, UC One, Woodsworth One

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

TRN152Y1 - Justice & Global Conflict

Hours: 48S

Modern states face both new and familiar challenges to protecting national security. National insecurity threatens a country's capacity to protect the well-being of its citizens while at the same time participating in international organizations and treaties. This course explores the origins and management of international conflict from the 17th to the 21st century, focusing on the precursors to war and the markers of peace. We will also consider the ways in which our current global world order promotes and preserves justice between and within nations. Students will consider different theoretical approaches to justice between nations, and apply them to recent security issues. By studying the history of conflict and the difference between justice and injustice students will gain a deeper understanding of how current geopolitical actors can structure and affect the prospects for security policy reform moving forward.

Corequisite: TRN151Y1

Exclusion: Innis One, Munk One, New One, SMC One, UC One, Vic One, Woodsworth One

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2); Society and its Institutions (3)

TRN160Y1 - Public Policy and the Public Good

Hours: 48S

What is public policy? Is there such a thing as the public good? This seminar course examines the notion of the "public" through investigating possible answers to a central political question: what is the purpose of government? Drawing on readings in philosophy and political theory, the course considers a variety of approaches to interpreting the nature of the public good and asks how policy makers should respond when competing goods (e.g., freedom and security) clash with each other. The course involves discussion of contemporary issues in public policy. Not eligible for CR/NCR.

Prerequisite: Admission to Trinity One

Exclusion: Innis One, Munk One, New One, SMC One, UC One, Vic One, Woodsworth One

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3); Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

TRN161Y1 - Making Public Policy Work

Hours: 48S

How do we know what kinds of public policy will work and what will not? How do we assess the effectiveness of a policy? An historical examination of ways in which Canadian governments have addressed a range of policy problems. Case studies of areas of federal and provincial activity today. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: Admission to Trinity One

Exclusion: Innis One, Munk One, New One, SMC One, UC One, Vic One, Woodsworth One

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

TRN162Y1 - Political Economy and Social Inequality

Hours: 48S

What is the relationship between capitalism and democracy? How can studying rational choice theory inform public policy? This course will introduce students to the methods of studying the interplay between economics and political goals. We will focus on specific topics to guide our quantitative analysis, which may include intergenerational poverty, the transfer of wealth, efficiency, and social stratification. Students will learn how to situate a society's economic institutions within their broader political context, and study how economic outcomes interact with broader policies relating to, for example, health, equality, social mobility, and well-being. We will analyse empirical results while developing critical skills for interpreting economic data and research.

Corequisite: TRN160Y1

Exclusion: Innis One, Munk One, New One, SMC One, UC One, Vic One, Woodsworth One

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

TRN170Y1 - Ethics and the Creative Imagination

Hours: 48S

A seminar course that explores ethical issues through the study of works of the creative imagination that pose or provoke questions of right and wrong, good and evil, justice and injustice. The selected works will be drawn from such fields as literature, film, and the visual and performing arts. Open only to students admitted to Trinity One. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: Admission to Trinity One

Exclusion: Innis One, Munk One, New One, St. Mike's One, Vic One, UC One, Woodsworth One

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1); Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

TRN171Y1 - Ethics and the Public Sphere

Hours: 48S

What does it mean to be morally required to do something? What rights do we have over ourselves, our bodies, our privacy, our choices? In this course, we will read texts from philosophy, history, political science, cultural studies and beyond that engage with the theme of ethics in the public arena. These will provide valuable analytic tools as we go on to confront contemporary issues that raise urgent ethical questions. Not eligible for CR/NCR.

Prerequisite: Admission to Trinity One

Exclusion: Innis One, Munk One, New One, St. Mike's One, Vic One, UC One, Woodsworth One

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3); Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

TRN172Y1 - Ethics and the Law

Hours: 48S

What is the relationship between moral values and the law? What role does the law play in enabling people to live better lives? Are legal institutions and actors subject to higher ethical standards? In this course we will read texts from legal theory and political philosophy to try to explain the connection between ethics and the law. This will provide the basis for thinking about some historical and contemporary legal cases, as well as ethical issues judges, lawyers, and lawmakers face in their professional roles. Not eligible for CR/NCR.

Corequisite: TRN171Y1

Exclusion: Innis One, Munk One, New One, St. Mike's One, Vic One, UC One, Woodsworth One

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2); Society and its Institutions (3)

TRN225Y1 - The Art of Health Science Discovery

Hours: 48S

Illustrated by contemporary examples, students go through the stages of the scientific discovery process. From initial idea, through literature review, funding (grant writing and assessment), experimental design and critical analysis of data through to the public dissemination of results by publication, the patent process and development of intellectual property.

Prerequisite: TRN125Y1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4); Society and its Institutions (3)

TRN235H1 - Health Policy in Canada: Past, Present and Future

Hours: 24S

This course explores the nature and impact of public health policy in Canada. The course describes the origins of Canadian health policy, its evolution towards its current form and the choices resulting from aging populations and the increasing costs associated with a high standard of health care.

Prerequisite: TRN135Y1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

TRN236H1 - The Politics of Global Health

Hours: 24S

This course explores the nature and impact of policy relationships designed to improve global public health. We explore the analytical tools necessary to study these institutional arrangements and examine successes and failures of these policy relationships across a range of global health policy challenges including infectious disease and child health.

Prerequisite: TRN135Y1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

Ethics, Society & Law

TRN203H1 - Society, its Limits and Possibilities

Hours: 24L/12T

Key texts from various disciplines that articulate fundamental features, limitations, and possibilities of contemporary society are introduced. Political consent, economics, governmental administration, the global / post-colonial world, historical transformation, gender politics, and media may be addressed.

Prerequisite: Active in ASMAJ1618

Exclusion: TRN321H1 taken in 2015 Fall

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

TRN204H1 - Introduction to Law and Legal Reasoning

Hours: 24L/12T

This course introduces students to legal reasoning through progressively complex exercises. First, hypotheticals expose students to basic skills required for legal reasoning. Second, they analyze simplified versions of specially selected concrete cases. Third, the course analyses real cases discussed in first year courses in law school.

Prerequisite: Active in ASMAJ1618

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

TRN303H1 - Ethics and Society

Hours: 24S

An exploration of the ethical dimensions of selected contemporary social issues. Restricted to students in the major program Ethics, Society, and Law.

International Relations

TRN250Y1 - Ordering International Relations in the Age of Empire

Hours: 24L/48T

The course examines the origins and development of three fundamental norms in international relations (sovereignty; free trade; human rights) in their historical, imperial context.

Prerequisite: Admission to International Relations Major or Specialist program

Recommended Preparation: Prerequisite courses for entry into International Relations Major or Specialist Program

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3); Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

TRN409H1 - Selected Topics in International Studies

Hours: TBA

Selected Topics in International Studies

Prerequisite: Enrolment in the International Relations program or in a History or Political Science major or specialist program

Exclusion: TRN409Y1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

TRN409Y1 - Selected Topics in International Studies

Hours: TBA

Selected Topics in International Studies

Prerequisite: Enrolment in the International Relations program or in a History or Political Science major or specialist program

Exclusion: TRN409H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

TRN410H1 - Researching Critical Cases in Contemporary International Relations

Hours: TBA

This course allows students with majors in International Relations to apply some of the techniques and skills they have developed during their undergraduate careers to an original research project in contemporary international relations history. This course is a chronological historical survey of the world since 1968, as the origin of the present era. Within the chronology, attention is given to major developments/themes that emerged and continue to affect the present day. These include: the rise of China as a power, political dissent, the emergence of terrorism, the environment, energy as major international issues, the neo-liberal economic turn, globalization, the end of the Cold War, the human rights/humanitarian intervention revolution, and key post 2000 developments such as the War on Terror, the decline of the US "unipolar moment," the 2008 financial crisis and the return in the 2010s of nationalism and protectionism.

Prerequisite: Enrolment in the International Relations major program.

Corequisite: None

Exclusion: TRN410Y1

Recommended Preparation: TRN250Y1, POL208Y1 or HIS344H1 are recommended as preparation or taken concurrently.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

TRN411Y1 - Selected Topics in International Studies

Hours: TBA

Selected Topics in International Studies

Prerequisite: Enrolment in the International Relations program or in a History major or specialist program, or permission of instructor

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

TRN419Y1 - Comparative American, British and Canadian Foreign Policy

Hours: 48S

The origins and evolution of American, British and Canadian foreign policy from the late 18th century to the present. Policies are compared in order to understand the development of these countries as nations and actors in the international community.

Prerequisite: Students must have a background in one of Canadian, British or American history.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities; Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

TRN421Y1 - Fragile and Conflict-Affected States in Global Politics

Hours: 48S

Since the end of the Cold War, fragile and conflict-affected states have been widely viewed in the international relations field as one of the preeminent challenges to international security and global governance. Western countries have typically responded to this challenge by launching interventions aimed at building new states that can be integrated into the global, liberal order. This course will dissect the liberal peacebuilding and statebuilding project and explore its broader impact and implications for the international system.

Recommended Preparation: POL300Y1 or POL343Y1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

Other Trinity College Courses

TRN190Y1 - Critical Reading and Critical Writing

Hours: 48S

This course introduces students to a number of critical approaches and develops the students own responses to texts through an understanding of critical vocabulary and the art of close analytical reading. Students also learn how to make their own critical analysis more effective through oral presentations and written work.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

TRN200Y1 - Modes of Reasoning

Previous Course Number: TRN200H1

Hours: 24L/24S

First term: students are taught how to recognize, analyze, evaluate, and construct arguments in ordinary English prose. Second term: one or more discipline-related modes of reasoning (e.g., scientific reasoning, ethical reasoning, legal reasoning) studied with reference to a selection of contemporary social issues.

Exclusion: PHL247H1/ PHI247H1/ TRN200H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

TRN307H1 - International Experience I

Hours: TBA

A one semester research experience abroad. Students participate in a research project under the mentorship of a faculty supervisor in the host institution and gain experience of working and living abroad.

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

TRN308H1 - International Experience II

Hours: TBA

Students who have engaged in a research project abroad participate in a regular forum in which they present their research projects and discuss their varied experiences of work and social engagement in different foreign environments. Students prepare a detailed scholarly article based on their research.

Prerequisite: TRN307H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

TRN377Y1 - Trinity Comprehensive Paper I

Hours: TBA

Students are individually mentored by faculty experts through readings from primary literature towards preparation of a quality review article. For students in third year, students identify their faculty mentor during second year and agree to become familiar with the available textbook level material during that year in their chosen topic. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: minimum of 8.0 FCEs completed and by permission of the instructor

Distribution Requirements: Humanities; Science; Social Science

TRN477H1 - Trinity Comprehensive Paper II

Hours: TBA

The preparation of a publication quality review article typically involves extensive editing. Students are individually mentored by faculty experts to take the review paper generated in TRN377Y1 and edit the structure, content and style to produce a publication quality review article. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: TRN377Y1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities; Science; Social Science

TRN478H1 - Science Writing for Non-Scientific Audiences

Hours: TBA

The course aims to train senior-level science students in a wide range of writing genres, focusing on a diversity of non-scientific audiences and writing styles. In addition, students learn to read and analyze texts in order to understand rhetorical strategies and devices.

Prerequisite: Students in science specialist or major programs. Permission by instructor.

Exclusion: Non-science students, first or second year students.

Recommended Preparation: TRN377Y1 (the comprehensive paper will serve as writing sample).

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Living Things and Their Environment (4)

Introduction

University College offers a number of programs and courses outside the areas traditionally covered by departments. These include UC One and programs and courses in Canadian Studies, Cognitive Science, Drama, Health Studies, and Sexual Diversity Studies, in addition to 199Y1 Seminars, and introductory courses for non-specialists in mathematics. The overall aims of the College Programs are to foster interdisciplinary work in significant areas of study and to encourage intellectual breadth. Many program courses are open to students not enrolled in the programs themselves.

UC One: Engaging Toronto

UC One is an exciting initiative that provides first-year students with a special university experience. Students choose from one of four courses, each of which is designed to engage with the city from a different perspective. Classroom learning is directly linked to real life experience.

UC One is a full-credit course, one of five courses typically taken by a first-year Faculty of Arts and Science student. Enrolment in each course is limited to 25 students. Students enrol in one of the following four full year courses:

- UNI101Y1: Citizenship in the Canadian City
- UNI102Y1: Performing the City
- UNI103Y1: Gradients of Health in an Urban Mosaic
- UNI104Y1: Sex in the City

In UC One, you can choose a stream that complements your own interests.

Weekly lectures and seminars will be supplemented with prominent guest speakers, including political and business leaders, activists from non-governmental organizations, theatre directors, artists, and health practitioners. Students will have the opportunity to meet with the speakers and socialize with their fellow students after each guest lecture. Students will also participate in a range of field trips across the city.

UC One requires an application that is found on the UC One website at: www.uc.utoronto.ca/ucone. All first-year students in the Faculty of Arts and Science (St. George campus) are eligible for admission. Students may apply to more than one UC One seminar by ranking their preferences. Those participating in other One programs are excluded from UC One.

The Canadian Studies Program (Specialist, Major, Minor)

The Canadian Studies program offers opportunities to study contemporary Canada in an interdisciplinary manner and to explore cultural, social, economical and political developments in this complex and diverse country. Students are encouraged to consider additional courses in Aboriginal Studies in completing the requirements of the Program.

The Cognitive Science Program (Major)

The Cognitive Science Program introduces students to the field of cognitive science: the interdisciplinary study of mind in humans and machines. Our students gain an understanding of such mental phenomena as perception, language, reasoning, and consciousness, and they integrate this understanding with an account of how the human brain works.

The Cognitive Science Arts Major has three course streams: Perception and Attention; Thinking and Reasoning; and Language and Cognition. The Cognitive Science Science Major has two streams: Computational Cognition and Cognition and the Brain. Courses include: COG250Y1 Introduction to Cognitive Science; COG341H1 and COG342H1 Issues in Cognitive Science; COG401H1 and COG402H1 Seminar in Cognitive Science; COG498H1/COG499H1 Independent Study; as well as courses drawn from offerings in Computer Science, Linguistics, Philosophy, and Psychology.

The Centre for Drama, Theatre & Performance Studies (Specialist, Major, Minor)

The Centre for Drama, Theatre & Performance Studies is described elsewhere in this Calendar under Drama.

The Health Studies Program (Specialist, Major)

The Health Studies Program focuses on many areas of study that surround, interact with and support bio-medical research and clinical activity in regard to health, including health policy, practices, research methods, and socio-cultural expression. The Major serves as a general introduction; the Specialist provides a more intense research focus with more methodological emphasis.

The Sexual Diversity Studies Program (Specialist, Major, Minor)

The Sexual Diversity Studies Program allows students to focus on questions of sexual identity, difference, and dissidence across disciplinary lines and cultural frameworks. By examining sexual diversity across time and place, students will learn about the ways different cultures have separated the sexual from the nonsexual, the normal from the abnormal, and what the regulation of sexuality can tell us about how power operates along the lines of gender and race, for example. Students will gain an understanding of how and why certain sexual practices have come under scrutiny, and the significance of the various labels and identities that we have attached to them.

UNI and DRM courses are staffed by a combination of specific program staff members and members of various University departments, and are open to all students at the University. Further information on University College programs is available at <http://www.uc.utoronto.ca/independent-study>. Further information on DRM is available at <http://dramacentre.utoronto.ca/>.

Canadian Studies Specialist (Arts Program) - ASSPE0728

Description:

Canadian Studies courses offer opportunities to study contemporary Canada in an interdisciplinary manner to explore cultural, social, economic, and political developments in this complex and diverse country. Students are encouraged to consider additional courses in Indigenous Studies in completing the Program requirements.

Enrolment Requirements:

Completion of four FCEs are required for enrolment in the Canadian Studies Specialist or Major program; no minimum GPA required. Students are responsible for checking co- and prerequisites for all courses. Please note that not all course are offered on an annual basis. A list of approved Canadian Studies courses can be found on the website at www.uc.utoronto.ca/canadianstudies/. Other courses that are in the current academic Calendar that include significant Canadian content may be considered for approval by the Canadian Studies Program Director. Consult the Canadian Studies Program Office, UC173, University College, 416-946-4025. Email: canadian.studies@utoronto.ca.

Completion Requirements:

(11 full courses or their equivalent in Canadian Studies approved courses including at least 4 FCEs at the 300+ level, 1 FCE of which must be at the 400 level.)

First Year: No specific first-year requirements. (Students are advised to take introductory courses that will serve as prerequisites for optional courses of interest taken later in the program.)

1. ( CDN267H1, CDN268H1 ), HIS263Y1

2. ( CDN367H1, CDN368H1 )

3. 0.5 FCE of any one of the following: CDN307H1/
CDN335H1/ CDN380H1/ CDN390H1/ JSU325H1

4. CDN420Y1/ CDN435Y1 or another fourth-year Canadian Studies course approved by the Program Director.

5. Students will take another 6.5 FCEs offered by the Canadian Studies Program, or from the list of courses approved by the Canadian Studies program (see: www.uc.utoronto.ca/canadianstudies/). Suitable courses not on the list may be considered for approval by the Program Director.

Health Studies Specialist (Arts Program) - ASSPE2085

Description:

The Health Studies Program explores how health around the world is shaped by the circumstances in which people are born, grow up, live, work, and age, and how these in turn connect to a wider set of environmental, social, cultural, economic, and political forces. Understanding health requires knowledge from a range of disciplines and sectors: Health Studies offers a stimulating interdisciplinary environment that challenges students to think about health – both locally and globally – in new ways.

Enrolment Requirements:

Students requesting enrolment for 2018-19 who do not meet the enrolment criteria as stated may be eligible for admission. Please consult the Health Studies program office for more information.

This is a Type 2L limited enrolment program that can only accommodate a certain number of students. Consult the Arts & Science Program Enrolment website for application procedures.

Applying with fewer than 8 FCEs completed requires:

- Completion of at least 4.0 FCEs
- Obtaining 77% or higher in at least 1.0 FCE of the following courses: ANT100Y1, BIO130H1, GGR107H1, HPS100H1/ HPS110H1/ HPS120H1, PCL102H1, PHS100H1, PHL100Y1/ PHL101Y1, POL101Y1, PSY100H1, SOC100H1, TRN135Y1, UNI103Y1, WGS160Y1.

Applying with 8 FCEs or more completed requires:

- Obtaining 77% or higher in at least 1.5 FCE of the following courses: ANT100Y1, BIO130H1, GGR107H1, HPS100H1/ HPS110H1/ HPS120H1, PCL102H1, PHS100H1, PHL100Y1/ PHL101Y1, POL101Y1, PSY100H1, SOC100H1, TRN135Y1, UNI103Y1, WGS160Y1, HST209H1, HST211H1, HST250H1.

Note that the actual grades required for admittance may be higher than the requirement, depending on the current capacity of the program and the pool of applicants. For more information, please visit <http://www.utoronto.ca/healthstudies>.

Completion Requirements:

(12.0 FCEs, including at least 2.0 FCE at the 400 level.)

1. 1.0 FCE of the following courses: ANT100Y1, BIO130H1, GGR107H1, HPS100H1, HPS110H1, HPS120H1, PCL102H1, PHS100H1, PHL100Y1/ PHL101Y1, POL101Y1, PSY100H1, SOC100H1, TRN135Y1, UNI103Y1, WGS160Y1

Enrolment Requirements:

This is a Type 2 program. Enrolment is limited and admission requires the completion of either COG250Y1, or a combination of 1.5 FCE in CSC, LIN, PHL, PSY (no more than 1 FCE from a single department). Please note that meeting the minimum admission requirements does not guarantee one a spot in any one of our programs, depending on the number of program spaces available.

Completion Requirements:

(8 FCEs)

Note that some Computer Science courses included below under Streams 1 and 2 have unlisted co- or prerequisites. Please consult the Faculty of Arts and Science Course Calendar. Those interested in the Science Major are advised to consider also registering for a Computer Science Specialist, Major, or Minor (for Stream 1) or a Human Biology Neuroscience Specialist or Major (for Stream 2).

First Year:

CSC108H1/ CSC120H1 (recommended option);
CSC148H1; MAT135H1 and MAT136H1 (or MAT137Y1);
COG250Y1 (may be taken as a corequisite in Year 2)

Second Year:

STA220H1/ STA257H1/ PSY201H1

Second Year and Higher:

PHL342H1; PSY473H1/ PSY493H1; and 3 FCEs from one of Stream 1 or 2:

Stream 1: Computational Cognition

Computational cognition is the interdisciplinary study of the information-processing underpinnings of cognitive mental processes. It seeks an understanding of cognition in mathematical terms and to apply this understanding to debates in artificial intelligence, cognitive psychology, and beyond.

No more than 1.5 FCEs of the 3 FCEs required from this list of options may come from any single 3-letter course designator, except for CSC courses. For CSC courses, a minimum of 1 FCE and up to 2 FCEs may be chosen. At least 1 FCE of the 3 FCEs must be at the 300-level.
COG260H1/ COG341H1/ COG342H1/ COG343H1/

COG415H1/ COG498H1/ COG499H1/ CSC207H1/ CSC304H1/ CSC321H1/ CSC324H1/ CSC330H1/ CSC384H1/ CSC401H1/ CSC420H1/ CSC485H1/ CSC486H1/ JLP315H1/ JLP374H1/ JLP471H1/ LIN102H1/ LIN228H1/ LIN232H1/ LIN241H1/ LIN323H1/ LIN331H1/ LIN341H1/ NEW232Y1/ NEW333H1/ NEW438H1/ PHL240H1/ PHL245H1/ PHL246H1/ PHL345H1/ PHL347H1/ PHL348H1/ PHL349H1/ PHL355H1/ PSY210H1/ PSY220H1/ PSY230H1/ PSY260H1/ PSY270H1/ PSY280H1/ PSY290H1/ PSY312H1/ PSY305H1/ PSY316H1/ PSY330H1/ PSY331H1/ PSY362H1/ PSY370H1/ PSY371H1/ PSY372H1/ PSY378H1/ PSY379H1/ PSY380H1/ PSY414H1/ PSY475H1

Stream 2: Cognition and the Brain

Today's cognitive scientists are more interested than ever before in the way the brain implements the information-processing underpinnings of cognitive mental processes. The study of cognition and the brain is the study, grounded in cognitive neuroscience, of those aspects of brain activity directly relevant to the performance of cognitive functions.

BIO120H1 and BIO220H1 (or BIO150Y1); and 2 FCEs of the following courses, with at least 1 FCE coming from PSY courses. At least 0.5 FCE of the 2 FCEs must be at the 300-level. COG260H1/ COG341H1/ COG342H1/ COG343H1/ COG415H1/ COG498H1/ COG499H1/ CSC207H1/ CSC321H1/ JLP471H1/ JLS472H1/ JLS473H1/ NEW232Y1/ NEW333H1/ NEW438H1/ PHL355H1/ PHL357H1/ PSY270H1/ PSY280H1/ PSY290H1/ PSY312H1/ PSY316H1/ PSY331H1/ PSY362H1/ PSY380H1/ PSY390H1/ PSY396H1/ PSY397H1/ PSY473H1/ PSY492H1/ PSY494H1

Fourth Year:

COG402H1/ COG403H1

Health Studies Major (Arts Program) - ASMAJ2085

Description:

The Health Studies Program explores how health around the world is shaped by the circumstances in which people are born, grow up, live, work, and age, and how these in turn connect to a wider set of environmental, social, cultural, economic, and political forces. Understanding health requires knowledge from a range of disciplines and sectors: Health Studies offers a stimulating interdisciplinary environment that challenges students to think about health – both locally and globally – in new ways.

Enrolment Requirements:

Students requesting enrolment for 2018-19 who do not meet the enrolment criteria as stated may be eligible for admission. Please consult the Health Studies program office for more information.

This is a Type 2L limited enrolment program that can only accommodate a certain number of students. Consult the Arts & Science Program Enrolment website for application procedures.

Applying with fewer than 8 FCEs completed requires:

- Completion of at least 4.0 FCEs
- Obtaining 70% or more in at least 1.0 FCE of the following courses: ANT100Y1, BIO130H1, GGR107H1, HPS100H1/ HPS110H1/ HPS120H1, PCL102H1, PHS100H1, PHL100Y1/ PHL101Y1, POL101Y1, PSY100H1, SOC100H1, TRN135Y1, UNI103Y1, WGS160Y1.

Applying with 8 FCEs or more completed requires:

- Obtaining 70% or more in at least 1.5 FCE of the following courses: ANT100Y1, BIO130H1, GGR107H1, HPS100H1/ HPS110H1/ HPS120H1, PCL102H1, PHS100H1, PHL100Y1/ PHL101Y1, POL101Y1, PSY100H1, SOC100H1, TRN135Y1, UNI103Y1, WGS160Y1, HST209H1, HST211H1, HST250H1.

If more than the required number of FCEs have been completed, the higher grades will be used. Note that the actual grades required for admittance may be higher than the requirement, depending on the current capacity of the program and the pool of applicants. For more information, please visit <http://www.uc.utoronto.ca/healthstudies>.

Completion Requirements:

(8.0 FCEs, including at least 1.5 FCE at the 400 level.)

- 1.0 FCE of the following courses: ANT100Y1, BIO130H1, GGR107H1, HPS100H1, HPS110H1, HPS120H1, PCL102H1, PHS100H1, PHL100Y1/ PHL101Y1, POL101Y1, PSY100H1, SOC100H1, TRN135Y1, UNI103Y1, WGS160Y1
- HST209H1, HST211H1, HST250H1
- PHL281H1/ INS200H1
- STA220H1 or equivalent
- 0.5 FCE of the following courses: ANT208H1, HMB202H1, HMB203H1, INS205H1, JSU237H1, NFS284H1, SOC204H1, SOC243H1, STA221H1, TRN235H1, TRN236H1
- HST310H1, HST373H1
- 1.0 FCE of the following courses: HST307H1, HST308H1, HST309H1, HST330H1, HST350Y1, ANT345H1, ANT348H1, ANT358H1, GGR340H1,

9. The remaining 0.5 FCE can include any courses not previously taken from the lists above, or any of the following: ANT460H1, ENV430H1, JFP450H1, HMB406H1, HMB433H1, HMB462H1, IRE378H1, NEW344Y1, SOC412H1, SOC488H1

Asian Canadian Studies Minor (Arts Program) - ASMIN2728

Description:

The Minor in Asian Canadian Studies focuses on community-engaged learning that explores how to understand the historical, social, cultural, economic, and political forces that affect people of Asian heritage in Canada. Our interdisciplinary courses connect students with local communities, and every course provides opportunities for students to pursue a choice of research interests. Together we critically investigate and add to knowledge about Asian Canadians.

The category "Asian Canadian" is widely understood to refer to people in Canada of East Asian, South Asian, Southeast Asian, and West Asian ancestry.

Students take two required half-year core courses in Asian Canadian Studies; select from an array of courses in Asian Canadian Studies; and take additional courses related to the larger contexts of Asian Canadian Studies. The Minor in Asian Canadian Studies is easily combined with other disciplines, such as Anthropology, Art, Economics, English, Geography, History, Political Science and Sociology, as well as with interdisciplinary studies such as Contemporary Asian Studies, Diaspora and Transnational Studies, Equity Studies, East Asian Studies, South Asian Studies, and Near Eastern Studies.

Students will be encouraged to take full advantage of the opportunities available through the Canadian Studies Program, including its journal, ImagINATIONS, produced by and for undergraduate students and its annual undergraduate student conference. The Canadian Studies Student Union is a focal point for social as well as academic pursuits, and is open to students pursuing a Minor in Asian Canadian Studies. Students also can participate in Asian Canadian Studies student events and in the tri-campus Asian Canadian Studies Research network. The Research network brings together professors and students to discuss current research related to Asian Canadian Studies, Asian diasporas, and global Asian migrations. Students in the minor are also invited to participate in the Asian Institutes Asian Pathways Research Lab that offers research opportunities in Toronto.

Admission Requirements:

This program has unlimited enrolment and no specific admission requirements. All students who have completed at least 4 FCEs are eligible to enrol.

First Year: No specific first-year requirements. (Students are advised to take introductory courses that will serve as prerequisites for optional courses of interest to them later in the program.)

Completion Requirements:

(4 full courses or their equivalent, including at least 1 FCE at the 300+ level).

First Year: No specific first-year requirements. (Students are advised to take introductory courses that will serve as prerequisites for optional courses of interest to them later in the program.)

Subsequent year requirements:

Required courses (1.0 FCE):

1. CDN230H1 Asian Canadian History
2. CDN307H1 Asian Cultures in Canada

Additionally, 3.0 FCE from courses in requirements 3 & 4, with at least 1.0 FCE in each category.

3. Asian Canadians and Asian Diasporas in Canada:

University College Courses

UC One

UNI101Y1 - Citizenship in the Canadian City

Hours: 12P/54S

Who belongs? Who governs? Who decides? In this course you will examine the concepts of citizenship, public space, political membership, civic responsibility, and belonging. You will address topics such as Indigenous sovereignty claims, urban multiculturalism, public housing, and greening the city. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: Admission to UC One

Exclusion: Innis One, Munk One, New One, St. Mike's One, Trinity One, Vic One, Woodsworth One

Distribution Requirements: Humanities; Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2); Society and its Institutions (3)

UNI102Y1 - Performing the City

Hours: 12P/54S

You will explore the connections between the performing arts, urban spaces, and cultural diversity. How does theatrical performance affect how people perceive the city? What are the alternatives to established theatres, and how does community activism inform performing arts in Toronto? Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: Admission to UC One

Exclusion: Innis One, Munk One, New One, St. Mike's One, Trinity One, Vic One, Woodsworth One

Distribution Requirements: Humanities; Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1); Society and its Institutions (3)

UNI103Y1 - Gradients of Health in an Urban Mosaic

Hours: 12P/54S

In this course, you will examine how Toronto's varied communities access and use health care, and how they may encounter barriers in doing so. You will study how economic disparities, shifting demographics, and government policies affect health policy and the right to access resources. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: Admission to UC One

Exclusion: Innis One, Munk One, New One, St. Mike's One, Trinity One, Vic One, Woodsworth One

Distribution Requirements: Humanities; Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3); Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

UNI104Y1 - Sex in the City

Hours: 12P/54S

You will learn about the sexual politics of the city and how cities and their neighbourhoods become sexualized and desexualized spaces. In Sex in the City, you will examine what "sex" means to Toronto's varied, multicultural communities by looking at urban space, cultural productions, law enforcement, safety and health resources and more. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: Admission to UC One

Exclusion: Innis One, Munk One, New One, St. Mike's One, Trinity One, Vic One, Woodsworth One

Distribution Requirements: Humanities; Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1); Society and its Institutions (3)

UNI105Y1 - The Urban Mind

Hours: 12P/54S

This course will examine the role of Cognitive Science in various locations throughout Toronto such as Baycrest, MaRS, and the Rotman Centre to see how Cognitive Science contributes to the development of important new technologies, lines of scientific investigation, and innovations for the business world. The cognitive tasks and challenges of communal, and particularly urban, living are also examined.

Prerequisite: Admission to UC One

Exclusion: Innis One, Munk One, New One, St. Mike's One, Trinity One, Vic One, Woodsworth One

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

Canadian Studies

CDN202H1 - Aspects of Quebec Culture

Previous Course Number: UNI202H1

Hours: 24S

An exploration of modern Québec culture as expressed in literature and the performing arts. Through a selection of internationally-known entertainers, we examine form, artistic innovation, communication of information and knowledge, and spectatorship. Novels and plays provide key elements such as tradition and historical context.

Exclusion: UNI202H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

CDN205H1 - Topics in Canadian Studies I

Previous Course Number: UNI205H1

Hours: 24L

A focused introduction to specific issues in Canadian culture and society. Content will vary from year to year. Specific course information will be available on the Canadian Studies website at www.uc.utoronto.ca/canadianstudies.

Exclusion: UNI205H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities; Social Science

CDN218H1 - Voices in Canadian Writing

Previous Course Number: UNI218H1

Hours: 24S

A study of the variety of voices in Canadian fiction with a focus on contemporary writers. Issues such as marginalization, migration, diaspora and the formulation of the Canadian canon are discussed.

Exclusion: UNI218H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

CDN221H1 - Culture and the Media in Canada

Previous Course Number: UNI221H1

Hours: 24L

An exploration of the encounter between culture and mass communication in Canadian society. The course considers the role of major cultural institutions such as the CBC, the NFB, and their granting bodies. The emergence of new media and its relationship to mass media is also addressed.

Exclusion: UNI221H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

CDN225H1 - Asian Canadian Space & Place

Hours: 24L

A comprehensive examination of the socio-cultural dimensions of space and place in the contemporary Asian Canadian context. Explores Asian Canadian landscape, culture and heritage, place and identity formation, multiculturalism and nationalism, spatial conflict and contestation, and the political economy of cultural space.

Recommended Preparation: CDN267H1/ CDN268H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

CDN230H1 - Asian Canadian History

Previous Course Number: UNI230H1

Hours: 24L

The course examines the history of Asian Canadians from the mid-1800s to the present by analyzing their contributions to the socio-cultural, economic, and political development of Canada. It explores how Asian Canadian history reconfigures prevailing understanding of race, migration, multiculturalism, and national identity through intersectional, comparative, and transnational frameworks.

Exclusion: UNI230H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

CDN240H1 - Italian Canadian Studies

Hours: 24L

An interdisciplinary course that examines the social, economic, and political forces and events that have shaped the Italian Canadian experience. Topics include initial and subsequent settlement patterns including suburbanization, identity formation, education, mobility, work, media, multiculturalism, transnationalism, and political participation and representation. The course interrogates the complexities of the social and cultural interactions of Italian Canadians in the context of the changing demography of Canada.

Recommended Preparation: CDN267H1, CDN268H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

CDN267H1 - Canadian Nationalisms

Previous Course Number: UNI267H1

Hours: 24L

A critical examination of contemporary forms of Canadian nationalism. This interdisciplinary course will interrogate national formations across theoretical works, policy documents, and cultural representations. Students will address the ways that nationalist discourses constitute difference, especially with respect to race, ethnicity, gender, and sexuality.

Exclusion: UNI220Y, UNI267H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

CDN268H1 - Canada and Globalization

Previous Course Number: UNI268H1

Hours: 36L

Students examine the impact of contemporary globalization on Canada, and for Canada's place in the world. The course is interdisciplinary in its approach and addresses globalization from a wide range of perspectives, including mobility, trade, urbanization, health, religion, environmental change, technology, communications, and the arts.

Exclusion: UNI220Y, UNI268H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

CDN280H1 - Canadian Jewish History

Previous Course Number: UNI280H1

Hours: 24L

This course focuses on initial settlement patterns of Jews in Toronto and elsewhere, community growth including suburbanization, and contemporary challenges such as anti-Semitism and assimilation.

Exclusion: UNI280H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities; Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

CDN305H1 - Topics in Canadian Studies II

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

CDN335H1 - Black Canadian Studies

Previous Course Number: UNI335H1

Hours: 24S

An interdisciplinary course that interrogates the constitution of blackness in Canada. Students will study race and ethnic relations, alongside other identity formations such as class, gender and sexuality. Topics to be addressed include media, education, law, immigration and mobility, urbanism, work, political representation and the arts.

Prerequisite: CDN267H1 (formerly UNI267H1), CDN268H1 (formerly UNI268H1)

Exclusion: UNI335H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

CDN340H1 - The History of Canadian-U.S. Relations

Hours: 24L

Over time, Canadians and Americans have developed distinct identities and cultures, but their histories have always been closely linked. This course examines the complex interrelationship between Canada and the United States. from the colonial period through the present day, especially its political, cultural, and indigenous dimensions.

Prerequisite: 0.5 FCE in a CDN course or permission of instructor

Exclusion: CDN305H1 (Canadian Topics II: The History of Canadian-U.S. Relations)

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

CDN355H1 - Digital Media, Digital Makers

Hours: 24S

This course will introduce students to quantitative research tools developed through the Digital Humanities. Students will learn to use online text analytics tools in order to understand how quantitative methods can support critical academic research of the study of Canada. Quantitative digital analysis will be applied to a wide range of Canadian digital academic archives and community hubs.

Prerequisite: One of: CDN202H1/ CDN205H1/ CDN218H1/ CDN221H1/ CDN230H1/ CDN267H1/ CDN268H1/ CDN367H1/ CDN368H1/ HIS263Y1/ SOC218H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

CDN365H1 - The Canadian Arctic

Hours: 24S

This course surveys topics related to the Canadian Arctic. Through a critical interdisciplinary lens, the course looks at a broad set of issues including discovery and history, the environment and climate change, economic and resource development, sovereignty and security, social conditions, governance, and First Nations, Inuit, and Metis perspectives.

Prerequisite: At least 4.0 FCE in Faculty of Arts & Science/1.0 FCE in Canadian Studies

Exclusion: CDN406H1 (Topics in Canadian Studies III: Canadian Arctic Policy Development and Inuit Recognition)

Recommended Preparation: CDN267H1, CDN268H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

CDN367H1 - Canadian Pluralism

Previous Course Number: UNI367H1

Hours: 24S

Students will examine the complexities of social and cultural interaction in the context of changing Canadian demographics. This course compares and contrasts policies regarding indigenous rights, migration, multiculturalism, and citizenship with contemporary cultural narratives in literature, painting and film.

Prerequisite: CDN267H1/ CDN268H1

Exclusion: UNI320Y1, UNI367H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

CDN368H1 - Canada's Borders

Previous Course Number: UNI368H1

Hours: 24S

The Canadian border is being reshaped by the increasing transnational movement of people, goods and ideas. Students will examine border issues relating to mobility, trade, and security from a wide range of interdisciplinary perspectives, from public policy to contemporary media, such as TV, films, and novels.

Prerequisite: CDN267H1/ CDN268H1

Exclusion: UNI320Y1, UNI368H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

CDN380H1 - Socio-Cultural Perspective of the Canadian Jewish Community

Previous Course Number: UNI380H1

Hours: 24L

This course examines the relationship between prominent Canadians who happen to be Jews and those whose works are founded in Jewish identity; the diversity of the community on the basis of religion, language, class, ideology, etc.; contributions to the arts and scholarship; and the role and contribution of Jewish women.

Exclusion: UNI380H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities; Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

CDN390H1 - Chinese Canadian Studies

Previous Course Number: UNI390H1

Hours: 24S

This course examines socio-cultural, political and economic aspects of Chinese communities in Canada. It explores how the study of Chinese Canadians challenges and augments our understanding of issues such as immigration and diaspora, multiculturalism, and race and ethnicity.

Prerequisite: 4.0 FCEs or by permission of instructor

Exclusion: UNI390H1

Recommended Preparation: CDN230H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

CDN395H1 - Independent Study in Asian Canadian Studies

Previous Course Number: UNI395H1

Hours: TBA

An opportunity to write an independent research paper in Asian Canadian Studies under direction of a faculty member. Students wishing to take this course must have their essay proposal and supervisor approved by the Canadian Studies Program Director. The application for enrolment should be made in the term preceding study. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: CDN267H1/ CDN268H1

Exclusion: UNI395H1

CDN405H1 - The University in Canada

Previous Course Number: UNI405H1

Hours: 24S

This seminar course will address the role of universities in Canadian society and in the lives of Canadians. Students will explore both contemporary issues in Canadian higher education and consider the historical contexts from which they emerged.

Prerequisite: CDN367H1/ CDN368H1

Exclusion: UNI405H1

Recommended Preparation: CDN267H1, CDN268H1, CDN367H1, CDN368H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

CDN406H1 - Topics in Canadian Studies_III

Hours: 24S

An in-depth study of selected questions in contemporary Canadian culture and society. Content will vary from year to year. Specific course information will be available on the Canadian Studies website at www.uc.utoronto.ca/canadianstudies.

Prerequisite: At least 4.0 FCE in Faculty of Arts & Science/1.0 FCE in Canadian Studies

Recommended Preparation: CDN267H1, CDN268H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

CDN420Y1 - Senior Essay

Previous Course Number: UNI420Y1

Hours: 48S

Students select an appropriate research topic and, in consultation with the Program Director, make arrangements with a suitable supervisor. Preferably, research projects must be approved by the supervisor and by the Director of the Canadian Studies Program by April of the preceding academic year. Students meet periodically during the year in seminar to participate in peer evaluations of: statement of research, literature review, methods of analysis, and to share reports of progress in research. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: Normally open only to Majors and Specialists in the Canadian Studies program or permission of Director.

Exclusion: UNI420Y1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities; Social Science

CDN425H1 - Independent Research in Canadian Studies (formerly UNI425H1)

Hours: TBA

An opportunity to write a substantial research paper in Canadian Studies that integrates research methodologies and conceptual frameworks developed over the student's course of study. Students must have their topic and supervisor approved by the Canadian Studies program director. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: CDN367H1, CDN368H1 or permission of Director

Distribution Requirements: Humanities; Social Science

CDN430Y1 - Senior Seminar: Special Topics in Canadian Studies

Previous Course Number: UNI430Y1

Hours: 48S

An upper level seminar. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: CDN367H1 (formerly UNI367H1), CDN368H1 (formerly UNI368H1) or permission of the Director of the Canadian Studies program

Exclusion: UNI430Y1

CDN435Y1 - Active Citizenship in a Canadian Context

Previous Course Number: UNI435Y1

Hours: 48S

This course draws from theoretical works to critically examine the experiences of citizenship of various communities in Canada. A service learning component is incorporated so that students can themselves engage in active citizenship. The course develops extra-curricular expertise that can contribute to a student's professional CV.

Prerequisite: Completion of 10 FCEs, and application required. See <http://www.utoronto.ca/courses-offered-canadian-studies-program> for details.

Exclusion: UNI435Y1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities; Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1); Society and its Institutions (3)

JSU325H1 - Queerly Canadian

Previous Course Number: UNI325H1

Hours: 36L

This course focuses on Canadian literary and artistic productions that challenge prevailing notions of nationality and sexuality, exploring not only how artists struggle with that ongoing Canadian thematic of being and belonging, but also celebrate pleasure and desire as a way of imagining and articulating an alternative national politics.

Prerequisite: SDS255H1/ SDS256H1/ CDN267H1 (formerly UNI267H1)/ CDN268H1 (formerly UNI268H1) or permission of the instructor

Exclusion: SDS375H1 Special Topics: Queerly Canadian, UNI325H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

JUG320H1 - The Canadian Wilderness

Hours: 24L

The idea of wilderness permeates narratives of Canadian national identity, while policy-makers seek to manage and contain natural areas. This course compares and contrasts historical and contemporary wilderness narratives in literature, painting and film with policies in areas such as conservation, urban planning, land claims and tourism.

Recommended Preparation: 8.0 FCE's

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

JUG325H1 - Landscapes of Violence in Canada

Hours: 24L

This course examines how violence is enacted in Canada, at various scales, and across domestic, urban, national, and international landscapes. We will interrogate what is meant by violence; examine its colonial, racial and patriarchal dimensions; explore the impact on people and communities; and attend to forms of resistance and repair.

Recommended Preparation: CDN267H1, CDN268H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

Cognitive Science

COG250Y1 - Introduction to Cognitive Science (formerly JUP250Y1, UNI250Y1)

Hours: 78L

An introduction to the problems, theories and research [strategies central to the interdisciplinary field focusing on the nature and organization of the human mind and other cognitive systems. Interrelations among the philosophical, psychological, linguistic and computer science aspects of the field are emphasized.

Exclusion: JUP250Y1, UNI250Y1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

COG260H1 - Data, Computation, and the Mind

Hours: 24L/12P

How does the human mind work? We explore this question by analyzing a range of data concerning such topics as human rationality and irrationality, human memory, how objects are represented in the mind, and the relation of language and cognition. This class provides critical thinking and practical computational skills that will allow students to work with data in cognitive science and related disciplines.

Prerequisite: CSC108H1

Corequisite: COG250Y1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

COG341H1 - Issues on Attention, Perception and Consciousness

Hours: 36L

An examination of core topics in cognitive science building on introductions in COG250Y. Typical topics include: perception and attention; concepts; imagery; consciousness.

Prerequisite: COG250Y1 and one of PSY270H1/PHL342H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities; Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

COG342H1 - Issues on Concepts, Theories of Mind, Cognitive Evolution

Hours: 36L

An examination of core topics in cognitive science building on introductions in COG250Y. Typical topics include: concepts; theories of mind; cognitive evolution.

Prerequisite: COG250Y1 and one of PSY270H1/PHL342H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities; Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

COG343H1 - Issues on Cognitive Science III: Computational Cognition

Hours: 24L/12P

An examination of core topics in cognitive science building on introductions in COG250Y1. Typical topics include: computational models of cognition and learning, natural language processing, computer intelligence.

Prerequisite: CSC148H1, STA220H1/ PSY201H1

Corequisite: COG250Y1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

COG401H1 - Seminar in Cognitive Science

Hours: 36S

An advanced treatment of cognitive science topics for arts majors. Possible topics include: concepts, consciousness, the mind-body problem, cognitive science and the arts.

Prerequisite: 5.0 credits in courses listed in the cognitive science major.

Exclusion: COG402H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

COG402H1 - Seminar in Cognitive Science

Hours: 36S

An advanced treatment of cognitive science topics such as neuroscientific theories of consciousness, rationality and modelling of cognitive processes.

Prerequisite: 5.0 credits in courses listed in the cognitive science major.

Exclusion: COG401H1

Distribution Requirements: Science; Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

COG403H1 - Seminar in Cognitive Science

Hours: 36S

Advanced treatment of cognitive science topics, including the application of core ideas from probability theory, information theory, statistics, and machine learning to modelling human cognition and artificial intelligence.

Prerequisite: 5.0 credits in courses listed in the cognitive science major, CSC148H1, ( MAT135H1, MAT136H1)/MAT137Y1, 0.5 FCE in statistics

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

COG415H1 - Cognitive Science in Practice

Hours: 18L/15P

This course provides COG students with the opportunities to practice quantitative and qualitative evaluation and assessment methods in real world situations and juxtapose theory with practice. Placement activities will ground topics such as problem solving, logistics, decision making, etc., through practical application, individual and group / in-class critical reflection.

Prerequisite: COG250Y1, COG341H1/ COG342H1, PSY370H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

COG498H1 - Independent Study

Hours: TBA

Advanced Independent Study.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities; Social Science

COG499H1 - Individual Study in Cognitive Science

Hours: TBA

Individual studies. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities; Social Science

Health Studies

HST209H1 - Introduction to Health: Determinants of Health & Health Care

Previous Course Number: UNI209H1

Hours: 24L

A multidisciplinary approach to understanding perspectives in health, health equity, and primary health care. Themes include critical discussion of the measurements of health outcomes and the socioeconomic and political factors that affect health, including neglected and marginalized populations in Canada and globally.

Exclusion: UNI209H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

HST211H1 - Health Policy in Canada

Previous Course Number: UNI211H1

Hours: 24L

Introduces students to health policy in Canada, with a particular focus on the social determinants of health, and on how to improve health through policy advocacy. Examines the policy making process in the Canadian context, and the development of health policy in Canada. Explores current debates about health issues

Exclusion: UNI211H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

HST250H1 - Introduction to Research Methods in Health Studies

Previous Course Number: UNI250H1

Hours: 36L

Offers students in Health Studies a basic understanding of research design and data collection on health topics. Also assesses the usefulness of research and data collection in the formation of health policy.

Exclusion: UNI250H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

HST307H1 - Special Topics in Health Studies I

Hours: 24L

The specific content of this course will vary from one year to another, depending on the availability of particular health researchers and scholars. Specific course information will be available on the Health Studies website at www.uc.utoronto.ca/healthstudies/.

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

HST308H1 - Aging and Health

Previous Course Number: UNI308H1

Hours: 24L

Provides an understanding of the interface between health and aging, and how to maintain wellness in a rapidly aging population. Examines theories of aging, the meaning of health in old age, myths about the health of Canada's older people, and emerging national and international responses to aging populations.

Prerequisite: HST209H1, HST211H1

Exclusion: UNI308H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

HST309H1 - Special Topics in Health Studies II (formerly UNI309H1)

Hours: 24L

The specific content of this course will vary from one year to another, depending on the availability of particular health researchers and scholars. Specific course information will be available on the Health Studies website at www.uc.utoronto.ca/healthstudies/.

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

HST310H1 - Critical Health Policy

Previous Course Number: UNI310H1

Hours: 24L

A critical, in-depth exploration of contemporary health and social issues. Political, social and economic forces at play in Canadian society are examined in relation to specific health issues and policies, in order to understand general societal and system dynamics of evolution and change, and to identify implications for reform efforts.

Prerequisite: HST209H1, HST211H1

Exclusion: UNI310H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

HST330H1 - Population Health

Previous Course Number: UNI330H1

Hours: 24S

Extends students' understanding of population-based strategies of health promotion in Canada. Topics include: variations in health status as affected by population patterns, class, gender, ethnicity, employment, and family composition; major causes of morbidity and mortality; the concept of "community health", opportunities and constraints facing public policy.

Prerequisite: HST209H1, HST250H1

Exclusion: UNI330H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

HST350Y1 - Health Research & Practice

Previous Course Number: UNI350Y1

Hours: 48S

For students enrolled in the Health Studies Specialist and Major programs. Students engage in activities that will prepare them for independent research and practicum projects. Includes, but not limited to, sessions on topic selection and program development, finding a supervisor, ethics and professionalism, formulating a grant proposal.

Prerequisite: HST250H1

Exclusion: UNI350Y1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

HST373H1 - Epidemiology

Previous Course Number: UNI373H1

Hours: 24S

Introduces students to the principles and methods of epidemiology. Emphasis on descriptive methods and study design. Computational techniques, measurement problems, and issues that surround the drawing of inferences from area-level or other aggregate data will be discussed.

Prerequisite: STA220H1/ GGR270H1

Exclusion: HMB342H1, UNI373H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

HST400Y1 - Health Studies Practicum

Hours: 172P/24S

Individual field placement with a health-related institution or organization, in which the student applies theory and skills to specific projects and/or tasks. Culminates in an oral and written report. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: HST350Y1, permission of the Director

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

HST407H1 - Special Topics in Advanced Health Studies I

Hours: 24L

The specific content of this course will vary from one year to another, depending on the availability of particular health researchers and scholars. Specific course information will be available on the Health Studies website at www.uc.utoronto.ca/healthstudies/.

HST409H1 - Special Topics in Advanced Health Studies II

Hours: 24S

The specific content of this course will vary from one year to another, depending on the availability of particular health researchers and scholars. Specific course information will be available on the Health Studies website at www.uc.utoronto.ca/healthstudies/.

Exclusion: UNI409H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

HST410H1 - Case Studies in Health Policy (formerly UNI408H1)

Hours: 36S

Analyses the formation and implementation of health policy through the use of case studies. Each case deals with a substantive health policy issue. Using case studies, students will learn to understand and analyze the processes by which public policies are formed, and perform comparisons of policy alternatives.

Prerequisite: HST211H1

Exclusion: UNI408H1, HST408H1

Recommended Preparation: HST310H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

HST411H1 - Political Economy of Health

Previous Course Number: UNI411H1

Hours: 24L

Examines the production and distribution of health and illness within and across populations. A political economy approach is used to better understand the fundamental origins of health inequalities, the political action that is required to tackle them, and the obstacles that hinder the possibilities for such action.

Prerequisite: HST209H1

Exclusion: UNI411H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

HST440H1 - Health & Pharmaceuticals

Previous Course Number: UNI440H1

Hours: 24L

A critical examination of drug development, including the role of health professionals and the pharmaceutical industry in researching, testing, marketing, licensing, and evaluating pharmaceutical drugs. Topics include the differing needs for drug development, evaluation and dispensing in lower income countries, and potential conflicts of interest in drug development.

Prerequisite: HST209H1/ HMB303H1

Exclusion: UNI440H1, UNI330H1 (Health & Pharmaceuticals) taken prior to 2010-11

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

HST450Y1 - Undergraduate Health Research Project

Previous Course Number: UNI450Y1

Hours: 48L

Students engage in a specific research project during their last two years within the program. Student will prepare an undergraduate thesis by the end of the course. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: HST250H1, STA220H1, HST350Y1

Exclusion: UNI450Y1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

HST451Y1 - Independent Research in Health Studies

Previous Course Number: UNI451Y1

Hours: TBA

This two-semester course designation will permit students to gain academic credit for health studies pursued independently under the supervision of a University of Toronto faculty member; or to participate in an ongoing health research project under the joint supervision of the projects Principal Investigator and the Director of the Health Studies Program. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: HST209H1, HST250H1

Exclusion: UNI451Y1

Recommended Preparation: HST350Y1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

HST464H1 - The Nature of International Health

Previous Course Number: UNI464H1

Hours: 24L

Explores the historical, ideological, economic, political, and organizational factors that shape the theory and practice of international health (IH). Students will be encouraged to critically examine some of the central tensions embedded in this field.

Prerequisite: HST209H1/ HMB303H1

Exclusion: UNI464H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

HST480H1 - Independent Research in Health Studies

Previous Course Number: UNI480H1

Hours: TBA

This one-semester course will permit students to gain academic credit for health studies pursued independently, or to participate in an ongoing health research project, under the supervision of a University of Toronto faculty member. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: HST209H1, HST250H1

Exclusion: UNI480H1

Recommended Preparation: HST350Y1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

JSU237H1 - Introduction to HIV/AIDS: Health, Sexuality and Gender (formerly UNI237H1)

Hours: 24L

A critical examination of the HIV/AIDS global pandemic from a multidisciplinary perspective and with an emphasis on sexuality. The course examines the basic biology of HIV/AIDS and then covers social, historical, political, cultural, gender, and public health aspects of HIV/AIDS. Attention is given to the distinct features of vulnerable and marginalized populations, prevention, treatment, drug development, and access to medicines.

JSU237H1 is particularly intended for students in the Health Studies and/or Sexual Diversity Studies programs.

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

PHS100H1 - Global Health Grand Opps

Hours: 24L/24T

This course introduces students to basic public health-related concepts, significant aspects of the historical development of global health, and a selection of topics illustrating the broad and evolving nature of this field. In addition, it helps students explore the contributions that various disciplines/fields offer to global health.

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

PHS300H1 - HIV Prevention Research

Hours: 24L

This course engages students in in-depth learning about HIV research. In addition to learning about methods and issues from a variety of research disciplines as applied to HIV, students will be expected, with guidance, to design a study relevant to the content of the course.

Recommended Preparation: STA220H1 or equivalent

Distribution Requirements: Science; Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

Other University College Courses

JUM202H1 - Mathematics as an Interdisciplinary Pursuit

Hours: 24L/12T

A study of the interaction of mathematics with other fields of inquiry: how mathematics influences, and is influenced by, the evolution of science and culture. Art, music, and literature, as well as the more traditionally related areas of the natural and social sciences may be considered. (Offered every three years)

JUM202H1 is particularly suited as a Science Distribution Requirement course for Humanities and Social Science students.

Exclusion: JUM102H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

JUM203H1 - Mathematics as a Recreation

Hours: 24L/12T

A study of games, puzzles and problems focusing on the deeper principles they illustrate. Concentration is on problems arising out of number theory and geometry, with emphasis on the process of mathematical reasoning. Technical requirements are kept to a minimum. A foundation is provided for a continuing lay interest in mathematics. (Offered every three years)

JUM203H1 is particularly suited as a Science Distribution Requirement course for Humanities and Social Science students.

Exclusion: JUM103H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

JUM205H1 - Mathematical Personalities

Hours: 24L/12T

An in-depth study of the life, times and work of several mathematicians who have been particularly influential. Examples may include Newton, Euler, Gauss, Kowalewski, Hilbert, Hardy, Ramanujan, Gödel, Erdős, Coxeter, Grothendieck. (Offered every three years)

JUM205H1 is particularly suited as a Science Distribution Requirement course for Humanities and Social Science students.

Exclusion: JUM105H1

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

UNI299Y1 - Research Opportunity Program

Hours: TBA

Credit course for supervised participation in faculty research project. Details at <http://www.artsci.utoronto.ca/current/course/rop>. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

UNI393Y1 - University College Independent Studies

Hours: TBA

An opportunity to design an independent research course of study at the 300 level not otherwise available within the Faculty. Normally, students will have a minimum cGPA of 3.0 and have completed 10 FCEs. Permission of a faculty supervisor and approval by the Vice-Principal are required. Those registered in a UC program or UC-registered students should submit a written proposal and application form to the Programs Office (UC173) for approval. Applications for Y and F courses are due by 30 June prior to the academic year; S courses to be submitted by 15 September; Summer proposals are due by 15 February. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Application form is available at the University College website at www.uc.utoronto.ca/

Prerequisite: Permission of University College Vice-Principal

UNI394H1 - University College Independent Studies

Hours: TBA

An opportunity to design an independent research course of study at the 300 level not otherwise available within the Faculty. Normally, students will have a minimum cGPA of 3.0 and have completed 10 FCEs. Permission of a faculty supervisor and approval by the Vice-Principal are required. Those registered in a UC program or UC-registered students should submit a written proposal and application form to the Programs Office (UC173) for approval. Applications for Y and F courses are due by 30 June prior to the academic year; S courses to be submitted by 15 September; Summer proposals are due by 15 February. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Application form is available at the University College website at www.uc.utoronto.ca/.

Prerequisite: Permission of University College Vice-Principal

UNI399Y1 - Research Opportunity Program

Hours: TBA

UNI495Y1 - University College Independent Studies

Hours: TBA

An opportunity to design an independent research course of study at the 400 level not otherwise available within the Faculty. Normally, students will have a minimum cGPA of 3.0 and have completed 15 FCEs. Permission of a faculty supervisor and approval by the Vice-Principal are required. Those registered in a UC program or UC-registered students should submit a written proposal and application form to the Programs Office (UC173) for approval. ## Introduction

Victoria College (Vic) is committed to providing students with a personal and inclusive university experience inside and outside the classroom. This is an environment where students and faculty are engaged in building a community that welcomes diversity, embraces creativity and is energized by challenge.

At Vic, we nurture a close-knit learning environment from the very beginning of your academic career. Whether it is through our Vic One program, Vic One Hundred or the 199 courses offered by the Faculty of Arts and Science, every first-year Victoria College student takes at least one small seminar course. You will experience here the academic advantages of being a student at one of Canada's leading research universities combined with the intimacy of a small liberal arts college.

Vic One

Victoria College offers first-year Arts and Science students an opportunity for a unique educational experience that draws upon the College's history and identity. Eight streams with differing emphases are available in this foundation year program, known as Vic One. Each is named in honour of respected Canadian leaders with strong ties to Victoria College. The Margaret Chambers stream, named after a Victoria College graduate in mathematics who became an investor and philanthropist, is suited to students interested in commerce, management, economics, and policy. The Northrop Frye stream, named after the former Victoria College professor and distinguished literary critic, focuses on the humanities. The Paul W. Gooch stream, named after the former President of Victoria University who inspired the Vic One program, comprises studies in philosophy, ethics, religion, and diversity. The Norman Jewison stream, named after the former Victoria University Chancellor and celebrated film director, is oriented towards the creative arts and society. The Lester B. Pearson stream, named after the former Canadian Prime Minister, is concerned with the social sciences. The Egerton Ryerson stream, named after the first Principal of the College who was a pioneer in Canadian education, introduces issues in education and teaching. The Arthur Schawlow Stream, named after the Physics Nobel laureate, is geared towards the physical and mathematical sciences. The Augusta Stowe-Gullen stream, named after the first woman to graduate from a Canadian medical school, is of interest to students wishing to pursue studies in the life sciences. The eight streams feature lively seminars and dialogue, and are enriched by weekly plenary sessions with guest professors, visiting artists, writers, ambassadors and other public figures.

The Vic One streams comprise up to three FCEs of the five FCEs taken by most first-year students. Two required courses in each stream are seminar courses given by faculty of Victoria College. They have a limited enrolment of 25 students in each class. The third co-requisite course is listed with each course description. Students who have questions about their Vic One co-requisite course must contact the Vic One Liaison Officer vic.one@utoronto.ca.

Vic One enrolment requires an application that is found on the Vic One website (www.vic.utoronto.ca). All first-year students in the Faculty of Arts and Science (St. George campus), regardless of college membership, are eligible for admission to Vic One. Admission decisions are based on extra-curricular activities, a short original essay and the student's entering grades.

PLEASE NOTE: Vic One students are NOT eligible to enrol in Vic One Hundred courses, 199 first-year seminars or any other One program.

Vic One Hundred: First Year Seminars

Vic One Hundred is a Victoria College initiative that offers first-year Arts and Science students the opportunity to experience a small class environment. These limited enrolment courses facilitate close contact with distinguished teaching faculty and fellow students, while providing an excellent gateway to, and foundation for, subsequent studies.

PLEASE NOTE: Vic One Hundred seminar courses are NOT open to students enrolled in any One program (including Vic One) or 199Y first-year seminars.

Enrolment in a first-year seminar course (199s and Vic One Hundred) is limited to 1.0 FCE. Students may take a combination of Vic One Hundred and 199H seminars as long as enrolment does not exceed 1.0 FCE.

Combined Degree Program (CDP) in Arts/Science and Education (Victoria College and Ontario Institute for Studies in Education)

The Combined Degree Program in Arts/Science and Education is designed for students interested in studying the intersections of teaching subjects and Education, coupled with professional teacher preparation. Students earn an Honours Bachelor's degree from the Faculty of Arts and Science (St. George) and an accredited professional Master of Teaching (MT) degree from the Ontario Institute for Studies in Education (OISE). The CDP permits the completion of both degrees in six years with 1.0 FCE that may be counted towards both the undergraduate and graduate degrees.

Program requirements:

1. Minor in Education and Society, Victoria College
2. Major in one of the following areas, corresponding to the first teaching subject:

- English
- History
- Mathematics
- Psychology
- Sociology

3. Minor in an area corresponding to the second teaching subject as determined by OISE.

See http://pepper.oise.utoronto.ca/~jhewitt/mtresources/intermediate\_senior\_teaching\_subject\_prerequisites\_2016-17.pdf

Application Process

Applicants apply successively to the H.B.A./H.B.Sc. program, the MT program, and the CDP. See the department/college page for admission requirements in the relevant Major and Minor programs.

In the Spring term of Year 3 of the Bachelor program, students apply at OISE for conditional admission to the MT. To be considered for conditional admission to the Master of Teaching and the Combined Degree Program, students must meet the following admission requirements:

- Have completed or be on course to complete the Education and Society Minor Program (Victoria College)
- Be registered in the 3rd year of the H.B.Sc. or H.B.A. Degree Program, in one of the above listed major programs.
- Have completed at least half of the teaching subjects prerequisite courses (i.e. 3.0 FCEs in 1st teaching subject, and 1.5 FCE in 2nd teaching subject) by the end of third year.

- Have an average grade equivalent of at least B+, normally demonstrated by an average grade in the 2nd year.
- Provide at least two letters of reference.
- Meet other qualifications as specified by the MT program.

See: http://www.oise.utoronto.ca/mt/How\_To\_Apply.html

Once students have accepted a conditional offer of admission to the MT program, they will be eligible to take 1.0 graduate FCE at OISE in their fourth year, which will count towards both the undergraduate degree and the Master of Teaching degree.

If the student does not meet the above conditions, the offer of conditional admission to the Combined Degree Program will be rescinded. Students in this position could apply separately to the Master of Teaching outside of the Combined Degree Program.

For students to be given full, unconditional admission to the MT program, they must:

- Maintain at least a B+ (3.3) average in their final year or over senior courses.
- Achieve a grade of at least B+ average in the 1.0 graduate FCE taken in Year 4.
- Have completed required courses to meet the first and second teaching subjects.
- Successfully complete the requirements for the H.B.Sc./H.B.A. program.
- Have the undergraduate degree confirmed.

Academic Path to Completion for the CDP

Year 1-4: H.B.Sc./H.B.A program and degree requirements

Year 4: 1.0 FCE in the MT graduate courses

Year 5-6: 9 FCEs of the MT program requirements

Creative Expression and Society Program

The Minor in Creative Expression and Society allows students to develop creative and communicative proficiency by taking part in one or more workshop-style courses in fiction, non-fiction, or poetry writing and/or creative expression through aural and visual media. Students will also explore the reciprocal relationship of the creative arts and society by studying social issues in the arts, the influence of writers and artists on society, and the impact of society and the marketplace on creative endeavours. Courses explore such topics as the arts and public opinion; reception and interpretation; marketing and reviewing; censorship and criticism; ethics and accountability. This program fosters the exercise of creativity while making the relationship of creative expression and social conditions a subject for reflection and dialogue.

Education and Society (Arts Program)

The Vic-sponsored Education and Society Minor is open to all Arts and Science students. This program is for those who are interested in education, either as a skill that will prepare you for many occupations, or as a strong background for admission to a teacher education program, such as the Combined Degree Program with OISE (separate application required, see below) or another consecutive teacher education program.

Literature and Critical Theory Program (Formerly Literary Studies)

The Literature and Critical Theory program (formerly Literary Studies) is based on a pair of ideas. The first is that many of the most important issues that engage our attention call for a multidisciplinary approach. The second is that the kind of critical analysis demanded by the study of literary texts offers powerful tools for investigating other cultural and social forms, both past and present. Central to the program is the comparative study of forms of representation – texts, media, institutions, and theories — in diverse cultures and historical periods. This requires thinking seriously about what it means to compare and what it means to translate.

The Literature and Critical Theory program will attract students who are interested in exploring and generating links between literature and historical, cultural, political, social, and psychological forces. The program trains students to think about how problems of the present are tied to those of the past, and to consider critically how we both represent this past and imagine possible futures. Students will be engaged in the practice of close, contextualized analyses of literary texts and other discursive forms, including artefacts, institutions and social practices, originating in different languages, geographical locations, and historical periods.

Literary production, like all forms of cultural production, invariably exceeds the boundaries of the nation, and increasingly so in today's globalized world. The boundaries between various cultural media are similarly porous, and the aesthetic values by which we identify, judge, and classify literary and cultural objects are historically shaped. For these reasons, students will be encouraged to study in more than one language and to work with a variety of media. Our courses explore literary and cultural movements across languages, geographical regions, epochs, media, and disciplines.

Material Culture Program

What does it mean to live in a "material world"? What might we learn from studying the things that surround us? In an increasingly consumer-oriented, globalized and digital age, how do objects express the longstanding beliefs and values of different societies? Material culture is the study of objects – clothing, household goods, machinery, built forms – that show signs of human influence. The program engages students in the study of material culture (tangible things, broadly defined); supports research projects which originate with studies of artefacts; and fosters trans-disciplinary and inter-institutional dialogues amongst students, scholars, stewards and purveyors of material culture – within the university and at a range of cultural agencies. We examine the meanings people invest in their things, across cultures and time periods, and consider processes of production and consumption, including moments of invention, exchange, use, re-use, divestment, disposal, and collection. Students will work with curators and other professionals to analyze the social and cultural relevance of objects as part of understanding of a culture or society. The Minor is designed to complement programs in such disciplines as Asian Studies, Near and Middle Eastern Studies, Geography, History, Art, History of Science and Technology, Semiotics, Renaissance Studies, and Anthropology.

Renaissance Studies Program

The Renaissance Studies Program lets you study one of the most critical periods in European and world history. Changes in art and literature, in social and political development, and in technology and science transformed European concepts of the individual, society, and the world.

Many aspects of our modern world had their origin in this period: our emphasis on the study of human affairs; our irrepressible interest in the exploration of the universe, in science, and in medicine; the institutions of church and state as we know them today. The Renaissance is also a period of unparalleled European contacts with non-European civilizations – from the powerful Islamic world of the Near East and North Africa to the great pre-Columbian civilizations of the Americas, from the uncharted forests of equatorial Africa to the exotic lands of the Indian subcontinent and the Far East, nothing seemed too distant or too inaccessible for the European mind or merchant.

This interdisciplinary program is particularly attractive to students of history, politics, literature, fine art, history of science, music and theatre, because it assembles aspects of all these studies to focus on one seminal period in Western civilization.

Science and Society Program

The Science and Society program studies the complex, interdependent relationship between science, technology, and society. The influence of scientific research and its applications is evident in virtually all aspects of modern life, from our conception of societal obligation and familial relations, to our interaction with the commonplace materials and objects we use to sustain ourselves. However, scientific and technological development is in turn affected by and shaped by politics, public opinion, moral beliefs and cultural practices.

Courses in this program explore topics such as ethical uses of technology, scientific revolutions and controversies, science-related policy and politics, modeling and communication of scientific research, and knowledge transfer from research to commercial and societal applications.

Semiotics and Communication Studies Program

Semiotics is the science of communication and sign systems, in short, of the ways people understand phenomena and organize them mentally, and of the ways in which they devise means for transmitting that understanding and for sharing it with others. Although natural and artificial languages are therefore central to semiotics, its field covers all non-verbal signalling and extends to domains whose communicative dimension is perceived only unconsciously or subliminally. Knowledge, meaning, intention and action are thus fundamental concepts in the semiotic investigation of phenomena.

Science and Society Minor (Arts Program) - ASMIN2743

Completion Requirements:

The Minor in Science and Society is an interdisciplinary program that focuses on the different ways science and technology shape modern society and, in turn, how society shapes science and technology. From the food we eat to the way we conceive family relations or our obligations to future generations, our daily practices and our beliefs are increasingly influenced by scientific research and its applications. In turn, politics, public opinion, moral beliefs and cultural practices affect scientific and technological development. Courses in this program address such topics as science and values, science-related policy and politics, ethical uses of technology, scientific revolutions and controversies, modeling and communication of scientific research, and knowledge transfer from research to commercial and societal applications.

Vic One: Gooch Stream

VIC166H1 - Common Vices and Neglected Virtues: Intro to Ethics of Character

Hours: 24S

Vice is popular: a prestigious university press has brought out a series of seven books on the Seven Deadly Sins. This course examines such questions as the following. Are greed, lust and gluttony just bad names for necessary and otherwise acceptable instincts? What is the place, in a good human life, of such qualities as honesty, trust, civility and the like? Are vices and virtues culturally determined or a matter of individual preference? Can character be taught, or is it rather a matter of genes and luck? Not eligible for CR/NCR option. In this course an additional fee of up to $50 may be charged for activities outside of the classroom (e.g., field trips). Such fees will be confirmed in the course syllabus.

Prerequisite: Admission to Vic One

Corequisite: VIC167H1, VIC168H1, VIC169H1, and 1.0 FCE in any 100-level course in ANT or PHL or RLG

Exclusion: Innis One, Munk One, New One, SMC One, Trinity One, UC One, Woodsworth One, 199 seminars, Vic One Hundred courses.

VIC168H1 - Identity and Equality in the Public Sphere

Hours: 24S

This course explores current legal and philosophical debates around equality, discrimination, and the shaping of individual and group identities. It addresses the way values, affiliation, and identities have an impact on the public sphere of law and policy-making – and the ways in which law and policy, in turn, shape our conceptions (and misconceptions) of people's identities. Not eligible for CR/NCR option. In this course an additional fee of up to $50 may be charged for activities outside of the classroom (e.g., field trips). Such fees will be confirmed in the course syllabus.

Prerequisite: Admission to Vic One

Corequisite: VIC166H1, VIC167H1, VIC169H1, and 1.0 FCE in any 100-level course in ANT or PHL or RLG

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

VIC112Y1 - Puzzles, Discovery and the Human Imagination

Hours: 48S

There has never been a period of time, nor has there ever been a culture, without some kind of puzzle tradition. Are puzzles just playful artefacts, intended merely to entertain? Or are they mirrors of something much more fundamental in human life? The course will take a close look at what puzzles tell us about the human mind and human culture. Not eligible for CR/NCR option. In this course an additional fee of up to $50 may be charged for activities outside of the classroom (e.g., field trips). Such fees will be confirmed in the course syllabus.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities; Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

VIC116H1 - Politics of the Pen

Hours: 24S

A study of how literature challenges prevailing political beliefs and social norms. We will situate our discussion in the broader context of human rights and freedoms. We will examine cases where literature has been censored and writers have been imprisoned or driven into exile. Part of this course involves a community service-learning component. We will consider how this literature contributes to debate and advocacy around issues of social justice. Not eligible for CR/NCR option. In this course an additional fee of up to $50 may be charged for activities outside of the classroom (e.g., field trips). Such fees will be confirmed in the course syllabus.

Exclusion: Innis One, Munk One, New One, SMC One, Trinity One, UC One, Vic One, Woodsworth One; No more than another 0.5 FCE from 199 seminars or Vic One Hundred.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

VIC117H1 - Understanding the Performing Arts: Interpretation and Expression

Hours: 24S

This course examines two key issues about the performing arts that concern both artists and theorists: the nature of interpretation and of expression. What might we mean when we say that a work, a piece of music or a dance for example expresses something? What is it to express? And what is the nature of interpretation? Are there any constraints or boundaries on interpretation? We will draw on both philosophers and non-philosophers to explore these sorts of questions. Not eligible for CR/NCR option. In this course an additional fee of up to $50 may be charged for activities outside of the classroom (e.g., field trips). Such fees will be confirmed in the course syllabus.

Exclusion: Innis One, Munk One, New One, SMC One, Trinity One, UC One, Vic One, Woodsworth One; No more than another 0.5 FCE from 199 seminars or Vic One Hundred.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

VIC118H1 - The Rebel in History, Literature and Popular Culture

Hours: 24S

This course will examine the phenomenon of individuals and communities who rebel against the general social norms upheld by the majority in societies throughout history. These societal conventions can include generally-accepted moral and religious tenets, as well as the formal legal or political powers employed by those with the levers of social control. The rebels' motives can range from the purely criminal, as with many notorious outlaws, to struggles for social justice, in the case of rebellious slaves or proponents of civil disobedience. Students will develop a theoretical framework which they can apply to the lives and motivations of a diverse representation of social rebels and outsiders, among them: pirates and mutineers, bandits and members of street/biker gangs, anarchists, disaffected intellectuals and religious leaders, punks and goths. Besides examining the sociological and philosophical aspects of rebellion, the course will consider the rebel as a prominent element in popular culture. Not eligible for CR/NCR option. In this course an additional fee of up to $50 may be charged for activities outside of the classroom (e.g., field trips). Such fees will be confirmed in the course syllabus.

Exclusion: Innis One, Munk One, New One, SMC One, Trinity One, UC One, Vic One, Woodsworth One; No more than another 0.5 FCE from 199 seminars or Vic One Hundred.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

VIC119H1 - Myths and Legends in Modern Contexts

Hours: 24S

This course provides an introduction to modern forms of ancient narratives, exploring the ways in which selected ancient literary sources and myths have been adapted to modern Canadian literature. Ancient narratives or 'old stories' are often reused, reinterpreted or reconstructed in modern narratives and given new relevance in a contemporary context. Students will encounter sources and contexts of ancient narratives. Not eligible for CR/NCR option. In this course an additional fee of up to $50 may be charged for activities outside of the classroom (e.g., field trips). Such fees will be confirmed in the course syllabus.

Exclusion: Innis One, Munk One, New One, SMC One, Trinity One, UC One, Vic One, Woodsworth One; No more than another 0.5 FCE from 199 seminars or Vic One Hundred.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

VIC134H1 - Globalization

Hours: 24S

This interdisciplinary course explores the contemporary character of globalization. The world is shrinking as money, goods, people, ideas, weapons, and information flow across national boundaries. Some commentators assert that a more tightly interconnected world can exacerbate financial disruptions, worsen the gap between rich and poor nations, undermine democracy, imperil national cultures, harm the environment, and give unconstrained freedom to predatory corporations. Others proclaim that globalization - understood as capitalism and free markets - fosters economic growth, encourages creative collaboration, inspires technological breakthroughs, and enhances human prospects for a better life, in rich and poor countries alike, in unprecedented ways. Our task is to evaluate the evidence and draw our own conclusions. Not eligible for CR/NCR option. In this course an additional fee of up to $50 may be charged for activities outside of the classroom (e.g., field trips). Such fees will be confirmed in the course syllabus.

Exclusion: Innis One, Munk One, New One, SMC One, Trinity One, UC One, Vic One, Woodsworth One; No more than another 0.5 FCE from 199 seminars or Vic One Hundred.

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

VIC135H1 - The Death of Meaning

Hours: 24S

In The Origin of Species Darwin concluded there was no evidence to suggest that life was designed by a higher power. A corollary of this is that our lives lack any necessary purpose or meaning. Our readings will be directed to the question of what it means to lack 'Meaning'. Not eligible for CR/NCR option. In this course an additional fee of up to $50 may be charged for activities outside of the classroom (e.g., field trips). Such fees will be confirmed in the course syllabus.

Exclusion: Innis One, Munk One, New One, SMC One, Trinity One, UC One, Vic One, Woodsworth One; No more than another 0.5 FCE from 199 seminars or Vic One Hundred.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

VIC136H1 - How to Study Everyday Life

Hours: 24S

An introduction to the academic study of everyday life. A cross-disciplinary discussion class drawing on a wide variety of examples from ordinary life, fantasy, and culture. We situate the apparently innocuous within larger patterns of social relations and social change. Not eligible for CR/NCR option. In this course an additional fee of up to $50 may be charged for activities outside of the classroom (e.g., field trips). Such fees will be confirmed in the course syllabus.

Exclusion: Innis One, Munk One, New One, SMC One, Trinity One, UC One, Vic One, Woodsworth One; No more than another 0.5 FCE from 199 seminars or Vic One Hundred.

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

VIC137H1 - Science and Science Fiction

Hours: 24S

Based on reading and discussion of science fiction and popular science in the context of social issues, this seminar course explores the fantastic visions of humanity's future inspired by scientific advances during the twentieth century. Not eligible for CR/NCR option. In this course an additional fee of up to $50 may be charged for activities outside of the classroom (e.g., field trips). Such fees will be confirmed in the course syllabus.

Exclusion: Innis One, Munk One, New One, SMC One, Trinity One, UC One, Vic One, Woodsworth One; No more than another 0.5 FCE from 199 seminars or Vic One Hundred; HPS260H1, HMB444H1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

VIC141H1 - Discovery and Revolution

Hours: 24S

This course examines the emergence of a global modern world in relation to the upheavals of the Renaissance (1350-1700) and its discoveries and innovations in culture and society. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Exclusion: VIC141Y1; Innis One, Munk One, New One, SMC One, Trinity One, UC One, Vic One, Woodsworth One; No more than another 0.5 FCE from 199 seminars or Vic One Hundred

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

VIC142H1 - Machiavelli: The Politics of Power

Hours: 24S

The name of Machiavelli unleashes powerful opinions and responses and conjures up trickery, duplicity and cynicism. Yet Machiavelli himself is arguably the least Machiavellian of political figures of the Italian Renaissance. This course examines the writings of Niccolò Machiavelli, placing them in their historical context in order to understand this most controversial figure of the Renaissance, his influence and his lasting legacy. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Exclusion: VIC141Y1; Innis One, Munk One, New One, SMC One, Trinity One, UC One, Vic One, Woodsworth One; No more than another 0.5 FCE from 199 seminars or Vic One Hundred

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

VIC159H1 - Vic One Hundred Special Topics Seminar

Distribution Requirements: Science

Breadth Requirements: The Physical and Mathematical Universes (5)

VIC209H1 - How Stories Work

Hours: 24S

Stories give shape and substance to the things we believe in, from scientific theories and sacred texts to literary tales and philosophical propositions. They perpetuate ideals and identities, and sustain institutions and communities. This course will take up a set of texts from the arts, sciences, religions and several other storytelling traditions, ancient and modern, considering their claims to authority and making connections between them. In this course an additional fee of up to $50 may be charged for activities outside of the classroom (e.g., field trips). Such fees will be confirmed in the course syllabus.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

VIC270H1 - Listening: A Critical History

Hours: 24S

Surveying scenarios for public and private musical listening, from historical contexts to the present, this course explores critical questions about how we listen, including the relationship between musical genres and listening situations, the definition of music vs. noise, the influence of spectatorship, and the impact of changing technologies. Students discuss the changing aesthetics and ideologies of musical listening, considering ways in which listening shapes our understanding of the social and our awareness of communities. In this course an additional fee of up to $50 may be charged for activities outside of the classroom (e.g., field trips). Such fees will be confirmed in the course syllabus.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

VIC271H1 - Reading the Wild

Hours: 24S

In light of the environmental crisis, this seminar surveys a wide range of oral and written literature in order to discover how our approach to nature has changed over the centuries, what gains and losses have attended modernity, and what older cultures can teach us as we seek to preserve threatened ecosystems. In this course an additional fee of up to $50 may be charged for activities outside of the classroom (e.g., field trips). Such fees will be confirmed in the course syllabus.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

VIC363H1 - Teaching Math: The JUMP Approach

Hours: 24S

This course will challenge the widely accepted idea that people need to be born with a special gift or natural ability to excel in mathematics. New research in education and cognitive science suggests that young learners often struggle in school because they are not taught in a way that allows their brains to work efficiently. This course will examine barriers that prevent students from learning and methods of teaching that can help all students reach their full potential (not only in math). Math lovers and math phobic students are welcome: the course aims to help students develop deeper levels of confidence and understanding in mathematics so they can become effective teachers themselves.

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

Literature and Critical Theory

VIC202Y1 - Forms of Representation

Hours: TBA

This course explores representation as a cultural and political problem from antiquity to the modern era. Representation will be analyzed as a means of depicting or constructing reality and as a tool for constituting individual and collective subjectivity. We consider literary and other modes of representation in their historical contexts. In this course an additional fee of up to $50 may be charged for activities outside of the classroom (e.g., field trips). Such fees will be confirmed in the course syllabus.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

VIC203H1 - Empires I

Hours: 24L/12T

This course examines the literary and non-literary representations that accompany imperial conquests and hegemony from pre-modern times to the emergence of the modern nation-state. We compare the establishment, interpretation and reinvention of cultural forms of empire (e.g. Ottoman, Persian, Roman) at local, national, transnational and global levels. In this course an additional fee of up to $50 may be charged for activities outside of the classroom (e.g., field trips). Such fees will be confirmed in the course syllabus.

Exclusion: VIC203Y1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

VIC204H1 - Canons and Canonicity

Hours: TBA

This course will consider the problem of canons in a variety of contexts: the aesthetic (including the literary, visual arts and music), but also the religious, the political, the philosophical and other discursive forms. Special focus will be on the problem of the relations across these boundaries. In this course an additional fee of up to $50 may be charged for activities outside of the classroom (e.g., field trips). Such fees will be confirmed in the course syllabus.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

VIC205H1 - Empires II

Hours: 24L/12T

This course examines the literary and non-literary representations that accompany imperial conquests and hegemony from the emergence of the modern nation-state through more recent developments in globalization. We compare the establishment, interpretation and reinvention of cultural forms of empire (e.g. British, Japanese, Spanish) at local, national, transnational and global levels. In this course an additional fee of up to $50 may be charged for activities outside of the classroom (e.g., field trips). Such fees will be confirmed in the course syllabus.

Exclusion: VIC203Y1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

VIC207H1 - Evolution, Genetics, and Behaviour

Hours: 24S

In this course we examine major episodes in the history of evolution and genetics in the twentieth century. Topics include Darwinian evolution, sociobiology and evolutionary psychology, eugenics, and genetic screening and therapy. We will examine different views about the control of evolution and genetic manipulation in their socio-cultural-economic context and discuss the ethical and social implications of those views. In this course an additional fee of up to $50 may be charged for activities outside of the classroom (e.g., field trips). Such fees will be confirmed in the course syllabus.

Exclusion: VIC107H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities; Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

VIC274H1 - Wisdom of the Social Sciences

Hours: 24S

This course examines influential efforts to study human beings and society scientifically, from the seventeenth century to the present. We consider major contributions from prominent thinkers, such as Thomas Hobbes, Adam Smith, Karl Marx, and Sigmund Freud. We also review the contemporary relevance and persistent controversies about their ideas. In this course an additional fee of up to $50 may be charged for activities outside of the classroom (e.g., field trips). Such fees will be confirmed in the course syllabus.

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

VIC278H1 - Modelling Evil and Disease

Hours: 24S

Models frame our understanding and treatment of illness and are the most fundamental element of the scientific method. Theology, history, and literature may use models in different ways than natural and medical sciences but fundamentally all modelling is an attempt to accurately predict and manipulate the future. In this course an additional fee of up to $50 may be charged for activities outside of the classroom (e.g., field trips). Such fees will be confirmed in the course syllabus.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

Semiotics and Communication Studies

VIC220Y1 - Post-Structuralism/ Post-Modernism

Hours: 48L

Studies the international culture emerging in media and literature and examines recent communication theory as it applies to literary, social and cultural issues. In this course an additional fee of up to $50 may be charged for activities outside of the classroom (e.g., field trips). Such fees will be confirmed in the course syllabus.

Prerequisite: One course from: ANT100Y1/ LIN100Y1/ PHL100Y1/ SOC101Y/( SOC102H+ SOC103H)/one FCE in Vic One.

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1); Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

VIC223Y1 - Signs, Meanings, and Culture

Hours: 48L/24T

This course will introduce the main elements of semiotic theory, applying it to the study of human culture, from language, myth, and art to popular forms of culture such as pop music and cinema. It will deal with primary texts in the development of semiotics, and cover a broad range of cultural applications of semiotic theory. In this course an additional fee of up to $50 may be charged for activities outside of the classroom (e.g., field trips). Such fees will be confirmed in the course syllabus.

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

VIC320Y1 - Semiotics of Visual Art

Hours: 48L

Theories and models of applied semiotics: analysis of sign systems as articulated in various forms of artistic and cultural production. In this course an additional fee of up to $50 may be charged for activities outside of the classroom (e.g., field trips). Such fees will be confirmed in the course syllabus.

Prerequisite: VIC220Y1/ VIC223Y1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1); Society and its Institutions (3)

VIC322H1 - Topics in Semiotics

Hours: 24S

An in-depth examination of some aspect of semiotic theory or practice. Content in any given year depends on instructor. Not offered every year. In this course an additional fee of up to $50 may be charged for activities outside of the classroom (e.g., field trips). Such fees will be confirmed in the course syllabus.

Prerequisite: VIC220Y1/ VIC223Y1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

VIC323Y1 - Theories of the Sign

Hours: 48L/24T

Theories of signification studied with a focus on major works in the semiotics of modern and contemporary culture. In this course an additional fee of up to $50 may be charged for activities outside of the classroom (e.g., field trips). Such fees will be confirmed in the course syllabus.

Prerequisite: VIC220Y1/ VIC223Y1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

VIC324H1 - Introduction to Forensic Semiotics

Hours: 24L

This course will introduce the field of forensic semiotics, which is new and in the process of being developed within the general field of semiotics. The course will look at the usage of semiotic notions, methods, and techniques in the area of forensic science. This includes the analysis of facial expression, sign-based clues left at crime scenes, body language, the symbolism of tattoos in gang behaviour, the role of ritual and slang in criminal gangs and in organized crime syndicates, and the analysis of conversations and written materials produced by criminals and their meanings. Experts in the field (from the judiciary, police, and other areas) will be invited to give guest lectures. In this course an additional fee of up to $50 may be charged for activities outside of the classroom (e.g., field trips). Such fees will be confirmed in the course syllabus.

Prerequisite: VIC220Y1/ VIC223Y1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

VIC325H1 - Media Semiotics

Hours: 24L

This course will deal with media semiotics, both in the traditional sense of the study of meanings in all media (from print to digital) and in how new digital media are changing the nature of signification and communication. The course will look at the usage of semiotics to study how meaning is negotiated in interactive media versus the older and still extant one-way media (print and radio, for example). The course will utilize actual media materials (comic books, television programs, text messages, and so on) on which semiotic analysis can be conducted. In this course an additional fee of up to $50 may be charged for activities outside of the classroom (e.g., field trips). Such fees will be confirmed in the course syllabus.

Prerequisite: VIC220Y1/ VIC223Y1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

Vic Capstone

VIC451H1 - Capstone: Learning Communities and Higher Education

Hours: 24S

This course examines higher education in Canada using Victoria University and Victoria's affiliates as a case study. ## Introduction

For the past 40 years, we have trained students to think deeply about how gender and sexuality operate at the individual, interpersonal, institutional and global levels. Drawing from a range of disciplines such as history and literature, sociology and law, we enable students to answer urgent and complex questions, such as how militarization can constrict men's aspirations for their lives, why there are income disparities between women and men and how gender is scripted and re-scripted. In addition to training students to traverse the stanzas of a poem and a government report with equal care and skill in their quests, we also focus attention on matters of scale: when to aggregate and when to parse significant distinctions and how to think comparatively across space and time.

The Women and Gender Studies Institute at the University of Toronto is distinctive for its transnational approach, critically addressing how national borders and nationalist discourses frame the constructions of gender and sexuality. We study the effects of migration, diaspora and wars on experiences of home and heritage, family, desire and selfhood. We provide students the conceptual tools to connect processes of imperialism and globalization with emergent economies and forms of labor and consumption. Finally, we encourage students to reflect on the varied histories of feminism when framing their own activism in the present.

Our graduates go on to do innovative work in the public service, creative, and corporate sectors, becoming everything from documentary film-makers to grassroots activists to policy analysts in economic development agencies. All of them draw on the critical lens they develop in this program, becoming part of a rich community of graduates who maintain their connections with one another, and who come back to the classroom where they once were students to share their experiences.

Women and Gender Studies Courses

First Year Seminars

The 199Y1 and 199H1 seminars are designed to provide the opportunity to work closely with an instructor in a class of no more than twenty-four students. These interactive seminars are intended to stimulate the students' curiosity and provide an opportunity to get to know a member of the professorial staff in a seminar environment during the first year of study. Details can be found at www.artsci.utoronto.ca/current/course/fyh-1/.

100-Series Courses

WGS160Y1 is subject to certain enrolment restrictions. During the first (P) round of enrolment on ACORN, priority is given to Specialists, Majors and Minors in Women and Gender Studies. Please refer to the Arts & Science Registration Instructions and Timetable at <http://www.artsci.utoronto.ca/current/course> for course enrolment procedures.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

WGS370H1 - Utopian Visions, Activist Realities

Hours: 24L

Drawing on diversely situated case-studies, this course focuses on the ideals that inform struggles for social justice, and the mechanisms activists have employed to produce the change. Foci include the gendered implications of movement participation, local and transnational coalition, alternative community formation, and encounters with the state and inter/supra/transnational organizations.

Recommended Preparation: WGS160Y1

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

WGS372H1 - Women and Psychology/ Psychoanalysis

Hours: 24L

An interdisciplinary analysis of the relationship of women to a variety of psychological and psychoanalytical theories and practices. Topics may include women and the psychological establishment; womens mental health issues; feminist approaches to psychoanalysis.

Recommended Preparation: WGS160Y1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities; Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

WGS373H1 - Gender and Violence

Hours: 24L

An interdisciplinary study of gendered violence in both historical and contemporary contexts including topics such as textual and visual representations; legal and theoretical analyses; structural violence; war and militarization; sexual violence; and resistance and community mobilization.

Recommended Preparation: WGS160Y1; WGS350H1

Distribution Requirements: Humanities; Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

WGS374H1 - Feminist Studies in Sexuality

Hours: 24L

Sexual agency as understood and enacted by women in diverse cultural and historical contexts. An exploration of the ways in which women have theorized and experienced sexual expectations, practices and identities. This course will be offered every three years.

Recommended Preparation: WGS160Y1; WGS271Y1
Distribution Requirements: Humanities; Social Science
Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

WGS376H1 - Studies in Queer and Trans (formerly WGS272H1/WGS272Y1)

Hours: 24L

Takes up conversations in queer and trans studies as separate and entangled fields. It explores how queer and trans people have experienced and theorized gender and sexuality.

Exclusion: WGS272H1/ WGS272Y1
Recommended Preparation: WGS160Y1
Distribution Requirements: Humanities
Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

WGS380H1 - Feminist Graphic Novels

Hours: 24L

Comics aren't new, and graphic novels aren't either, but feminists have built a rich array of stories about consciousness, resistance, and coming of age in this genre that warrant scholarly attention. In this case, we will read graphic novels for their subtleties, thinking about what picture and text make possible in the exploration of emotion, interconnection, and identity. Reading about resistance to marriage in Ay of Yop City, a child's view of revolution in Perspolis, parent child reckoning in Fun Home, and loneliness in Skim will advance students' understandings of the power of narrative and the pictorial displacement of innocence.

Recommended Preparation: WGS160Y1
Distribution Requirements: Humanities
Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

WGS385H1 - Gender and Neoliberalism

Hours: 24L

Reviews major feminist transnational, Marxist and Foucaultian approaches to the study of neoliberalism. Adopts a comparative, historical and global approach to the ways that gender is implicated in state restructuring, changing roles for corporations and non-governmental organizations, changing norms for personhood, sovereignty and citizenship, and changing ideas about time/space.

Recommended Preparation: WGS160Y1
Distribution Requirements: Humanities; Social Science
Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

WGS386H1 - Gender and Critical Political Economy

Hours: 24L

Offers a critical analysis of political economy, its historical and contemporary contentions and the ruptures that open the space for alternative theorizing beyond orthodox and heterodox thinking, by inserting gender and intersecting issues of power, authority and economic valorization across multiple and changing spheres: domestic, market and state.

Recommended Preparation: WGS160Y1; WGS273Y1
Distribution Requirements: Humanities; Social Science
Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

WGS395H1 - Indigeneity(s), hub spaces and decolonization

Hours: 24L

Examines practices emerging from Indigenous hub spaces where complex Indigeneities are negotiated and mobilized for social change. Students will analyse practices rooted in Indigenous feminism, and performance (including Indigenous hip-hop culture), as acts of decolonization; and explore their manifold expressions within Indigenous new media and other forms of community-based activism.

Recommended Preparation: WGS160Y1
Distribution Requirements: Humanities
Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

WGS396H1 - Writing the Body

Hours: 24L

Examines the ways in which bodies are lived and enscribed and represented through a variety of genres. Students will work through issues of corporeality and materiality in the production and reception of texts and will practice embodied writing on a personal level through in-class workshops and written assignments.

Exclusion: WGS332H1: Writing the Body
Recommended Preparation: WGS160Y1
Distribution Requirements: Humanities
Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

WGS397H1 - The Politics of Girlhood

Hours: 24L

The course communicates the growing field of "girl studies" and provides a critical exploration of the historical, social, psychological and political definitions attached to girlhood. We will move toward a feminist understanding of how definitions of girl-child shape individual experience, historical narratives, cultural representations, political agendas and futures.

Exclusion: WGS335H1: The Politics of Girlhood
Recommended Preparation: WGS160Y1
Distribution Requirements: Humanities; Social Science
Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

WGS420H1 - Asian/North American Feminist Issues

Hours: 24L

A transpacific examination of issues that have directly and indirectly shaped the feminist and other related critical inquiries in Asia and among the Asian diasporas in Canada and the United States.

Prerequisite: WGS160Y1, one full course at the 300+ level in WGS, and one half course in WGS.
Distribution Requirements: Humanities
Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

WGS426H1 - Gender and Globalization: Transnational Perspectives

Hours: TBA

Critically examines current interdisciplinary scholarship on globalization, its intersections with gender, power structures, and feminized economies. Related socio-spatial reconfigurations, 'glocal' convergences, and tensions are explored, with emphasis on feminist counter-narratives and theorizing of globalization, theoretical debates on the meanings and impacts of globalization, and possibilities of resistance, agency, and change.

Prerequisite: WGS160Y1, one full course at THE 300+ level in WGS, and one half course in WGS.

Exclusion: WGS463H1, fall session 2009

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

WGS434H1 - Advanced Topics in Women and Gender Studies

Hours: 24S

An upper level seminar. Topics vary from year to year depending on instructor. Please consult the Women & Gender Studies Institute's website for more information.

Prerequisite: WGS160Y1, one full course at THE 300+ level in WGS, and one half course in WGS.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Hours: 24S

An upper level seminar. Topics vary from year to year depending on instructor.

Prerequisite: WGS160Y1, one full course at THE 300+ level in WGS, and one half course in WGS.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

WGS440H1 - Decolonial Cyborgs for Planetary Futures

Hours: 24L

Drawing together film, fiction, and theory this course invites students to explore ways of imagining other worlds. From afro-futurism to planetary humanism, from cyborgs to hauntings, from science fiction fantasies to the politics of aliens, the course examines and produces feminist, postcolonial, anti-racist, and queer visions of other worlds.

Prerequisite: WGS160Y1, one full course at the 300+ level in WGS, and one half course in WGS.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

WGS450H1 - Modernity, Freedom, Citizenship: Gender and the Black Diaspora

Hours: 24L

Explores transnational feminist genealogies of the black diaspora. The course pays attention to the contexts and movements that generated key questions, exploring how these interventions disclose preoccupations with modernity, freedom and citizenship. Topics may include trauma and memory, sexual citizenship, Afrofuturism, indigeneity, and the crafting of political communities.

Prerequisite: WGS160Y1, one full course at the 300+ level in WGS, and one half course in WGS.

Exclusion: WGS434H1 Black Diasporic Feminisms: Modernity, Freedom, Citizenship

Distribution Requirements: Humanities; Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

WGS451H1 - Independent Study in Women and Gender Studies Issues

Hours: TBA

Under supervision, students pursue topics in Women and Gender Studies not currently part of the curriculum. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: Permission of the Undergraduate Coordinator, Women and Gender Studies Program.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

WGS462H1 - Advanced Topics in Gender and History

Hours: 24S

An upper-level seminar. Topics vary from year to year depending on instructor.

Prerequisite: WGS160Y1, one full course at the 300+ level in WGS, and one half course in WGS.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

WGS460Y1 - Honours Seminar

Hours: 24S

Supervised undergraduate thesis project undertaken in the final year of study. Students attend a bi-weekly seminar to discuss research strategies, analytics, methods and findings. A required course for Specialist students. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: WGS160Y1, one full course at the 300+ level in WGS, and one half course in WGS.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities; Social Science

WGS463H1 - Advanced Topics in Gender Theory

Hours: 24S

Senior students may pursue more advanced study in feminist theory. Topics vary from year to year depending on instructor.

Prerequisite: WGS160Y1, one full course at the 300+ level in WGS, and one half course in WGS.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

WGS461Y1 - Advanced Topics in Women and Gender Studies

Hours: 48S

An upper level seminar. Topics vary from year to year depending on the instructor.

Prerequisite: WGS160Y1, one full course at the 300+ level in WGS, and one half course in WGS.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

WGS465H1 - Special Topics in Gender and the Law

Hours: 24S

Senior students may pursue advanced study in gender and law. Topics vary from year to year.

Prerequisite: WGS160Y1, WGS365H1, one half course at the 300+ level in WGS, and one half course in WGS

Distribution Requirements: Humanities; Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

WGS470Y1 - Community Engagement

Hours: 48S

The application of theoretical study to practical community experience. Advanced Women and Gender Studies students have the opportunity to apply knowledge acquired in the Women and Gender Studies curriculum through a practicum placement within a community organization. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: WGS160Y1, one full course at the 300+ level in WGS, and one half course in WGS.

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

WGS480H1 - Challenging Coloniality: Caribbean Sexualities in Transnational Perspective

Previous Course Number: WGS435H1S

Hours: 24S

This course foregrounds the Caribbean as a transnational space, where sexuality, gender, race and class are intimately connected and shaped by colonial legacies and contemporary circuits of globalization.

Prerequisite: WGS160Y1, one full course at the 300+ level in WGS, and one half course in WGS.

Exclusion: WGS435H1 (Topics: Challenging Coloniality: Caribbean Sexualities in Transnational Perspective), offered in Summer 2017

Distribution Requirements: Humanities; Social Science

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

WGS481H1 - Gender, Sexuality and Black Liberation from Black Power to #BlackLivesMatter

Previous Course Number: WGS435H1

Hours: 24S

This course maps genealogies of black insurgency and transnational itineraries of intersectional theorizing, organizing, and praxis from the 20th century to our present moment. Through close study of works by and about black revolutionary migrants, exiles, intellectuals, fugitives, and so-called terrorists, participants will critique and create radical visions for emancipation. Major topics and themes may include black feminisms; queer insurgencies; transnational imaginaries and solidarities; silence and intracommunal violence; accountability and transformative justice. Through collective discussion, writing, and reflection we interrogate visions and strategies of emancipation, and imagine radical futures historically and in our own times.

Prerequisite: WGS160Y1, one full course at the 300+ level in WGS, and one half course in WGS

Exclusion: WGS435H1 (Topics: Sex, Gender and Revolution from Black Power to #BlackLivesMatter), offered in Winter 2017 and Fall 2017

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

WGS482H1 - Translating Sexuality: Queer Migration, Queer Diasporas

Previous Course Number: WGS434H1

Hours: 24S

This course examines how notions of sexuality travel as people move within and beyond national borders. It investigates how queer and trans migrants pursue different versions of belonging, solidarity, survival, and hope. Participants will study transnational archives (which may include popular culture, new media, film, literature, and performance) as they trace globalization's effects on racialized, queer, and trans communities. Major topics may include: queer of color critique; queer settler colonialism; transnational and global south sexualities; imperialism and militarism; neoliberalism and homonationalism; humanitarianism and sexual rights; queer and trans social movements; postcolonial intimacies.

Prerequisite: WGS160Y1, one full course at the 300+ level in WGS, and one half course in WGS

Exclusion: WGS434H1 (Topics: Trans/national Sexuality), offered in Fall 2016 and Fall 2017

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

Introduction

Woodsworth College is named in honour of James Shaver Woodsworth (1874-1942), minister, pacifist, social activist and Member of Parliament, who was strongly committed to broadening educational opportunities for all. The College remains faithful to its mission of promoting accessibility and equity, providing two access programs for students seeking admission to the Faculty of Arts and Science: the Millie Rotman Shime Academic Bridging Program and the Diploma to Degree Transfer Program. In addition, Woodsworth offers rewarding educational experiences through its distinctive College One program, a selection of First-Year Seminars, and the Summer Abroad programs. Our new Minor program in Digital Humanities prepares students for future paths ranging from graduate studies in literature, history, library science, and other fields, to careers as technical writers, data analysts and visualizers, project managers, and programmers.

Regardless of College affiliation, you are encouraged to explore the exceptional range of programs offered by Woodsworth College.

Digital Humanities (Minor program)

Digital humanities (DH) is a discipline at the intersections of the humanities with computing. DH studies human culture -- art, literature, history, geography, religion -- through computational tools and methodologies; and, in turn, DH studies the digital through humanist lenses. Digital humanists study social media phenomena or medieval manuscript archives; computationally analyze thousands of newspaper articles to trace economic developments; construct video games to study literary narratives; or resurrect historical cities through digital maps and virtual reality exhibits.

In introductory and advanced DH courses, students learn about the intellectual landscape of digital humanities scholarship. They learn how to build digital stories, exhibits, and maps; how to digitize rare books; how to analyze collections of data; how to construct digital models and 3D-print them; and how to manage major digital projects. By the end of the program, students conduct a major DH research project of their own or participate in the research of an established faculty project. Throughout the program, students gain a critical perspective on digital technologies, learning to consider the ways digital platforms shape, and are shaped by, the currents of wider social and cultural forces. By providing this critical and technical skillset, the Digital Humanities Minor prepares students for future paths that range from graduate studies in literature, history, library science, education, or computer science, to careers as technical writers, data analysts and visualizers, project managers, or programmers.

Woodsworth One

Woodsworth One offers first-year students an intellectually challenging introduction to university-level studies, and builds students' sense of community within Woodsworth College and across the University of Toronto as a whole. It is designed to complement other first-year courses, thereby enhancing academic success in the first year and beyond. Woodsworth One promotes the development of strong critical thinking, information literacy, oral and written communication skills, and awareness of both the distinctive nature of particular academic disciplines and the practices and values common to all academic work.

Students take two half-credit seminars – one in each term – and participate in weekly co-curricular activities. Seminars are capped at 25 students to maximize opportunities for participation and to promote close contact with both the instructor and fellow students. The emphasis is on class discussion and problem-based learning. Students participate in role-playing games, simulations, debates and more. The co-curricular activities include field trips, film screenings, guest speakers, writing and research workshops, and test-taking seminars.

Woodsworth One has two streams, both of which take an interdisciplinary approach to their topics, drawing on a wide range of Social Sciences and Humanities perspectives. The Order and Disorder stream focuses on the role of laws, values, government policies, trade, and innovation in creating and disrupting both social and global order. The Popular Culture Today stream examines the products of the entertainment industry and the social behaviours associated with their consumption, exploring how popular culture works and what it means.

The Woodsworth One team is dedicated to supporting students' transition to university life, and to guiding their academic planning. In addition to the Program Coordinator, course instructors, and teaching assistants, the team includes the College Writing Centre, the College Learning Strategist, a dedicated Registrar, a program administrator, and student mentors. Each member of the team seeks to create a strong sense of community and to set students up for academic success.

Woodsworth One is geared towards first-year students enrolled in Social Sciences and Humanities within the Faculty of Arts and Sciences. In keeping with Woodsworth College's tradition of open access, there is no incoming grade requirement. See the Woodsworth College website for application details. Students participating in any other One program are excluded from Woodsworth One.

First-Year Seminars

The 199Y1 and 199H1 seminars are designed to provide first-year students with the opportunity to work closely with an instructor in a class of no more than twenty-four students. Each Seminar focuses on specific disciplinary or interdisciplinary issues, questions or controversies of particular interest to the instructor, and introduces the students to the excitement of discovery inherent in academic work at the University of Toronto. In addition, students are encouraged to develop their ability to think analytically and to express ideas and logical arguments clearly and coherently, both orally and in writing. A list of current 199 Woodsworth College course offerings is available here.

Summer Abroad Programs

Students can prepare themselves for a future in the global village by participating in a Summer Abroad program and complete a University of Toronto course overseas in three to six weeks. These programs are designed to enrich students' academic lives by providing an exciting and educational international experience. Learning is not limited to the classroom; students will observe and experience many of the things they study, including the language, history, culture, art, religion, business, and politics of the host country.

Millie Rotman Shime Academic Bridging Program

The Academic Bridging Program is designed for individuals who have been away from formal education for some time and do not meet the University's established requirements for direct entry admission. These courses are intended to help ease the transition into first-year university courses in Humanities and Social Sciences after time away from prior education. Both part-time and full-time options are available to students. Students who successfully complete the Academic Bridging Program, earning a grade of 63% or above, are admitted to the Faculty of Arts and Science at the University of Toronto, with one full credit towards their degree for those who complete the part-time Academic Bridging Program. Students who complete the full-time program may transfer up to two full credits towards their degree.

Diploma to Degree

The Diploma to Degree program is a pathway to university studies for students completing a two-year liberal arts diploma at one of our partner institutions, including George Brown College, Humber College and Seneca College.

The Diploma to Degree Program is a facilitated transfer program into Woodsworth College in the Faculty of Arts and Science at the University of Toronto. The program is designed for students to transfer into programs in the social sciences and humanities with up to 6 transfer credits and retained credits from courses completed at the University of Toronto.

To be eligible for transfer, students must:

- Complete the 2-year diploma with a minimum 3.0 GPA
- Receive a recommendation from your college
- Have a minimum grade of 60% in a qualifying course at the University of Toronto.

Woodsworth College Programs

Digital Humanities Minor (Arts Program) - ASMIN1337

Description:

Digital humanities (DH) is a discipline at the intersections of the humanities with computing. DH studies human culture -- art, literature, history, geography, religion -- through computational tools and methodologies; and, in turn, DH studies the digital through humanist lenses. Digital humanists study social media phenomena or medieval manuscript archives; computationally analyze thousands of newspaper articles to trace economic developments; construct video games to study literary narratives; or resurrect historical cities through digital maps and virtual reality exhibits.

In introductory and advanced DH courses, students learn about the intellectual landscape of digital humanities scholarship. They learn how to build digital stories, exhibits, and maps; how to digitize rare books; how to analyze collections of data; how to construct digital models and 3D-print them; and how to manage major digital projects. By the end of the program, students conduct a major DH research project of their own or participate in the research of an established faculty project. Throughout the program, students gain a critical perspective on digital technologies, learning to consider the ways digital platforms shape, and are shaped by, the currents of wider social and cultural forces.

By providing this critical and technical skillset, the Digital Humanities Minor prepares students for future paths that range from graduate studies in literature, history, library science, education, or computer science, to careers as technical writers, data analysts and visualizers, project managers, or programmers.

Students should note that some courses at the 200, 300, and 400 levels may have additional prerequisites.

Permission to count courses that are not on the list below towards the Minor in Digital Humanities must be received from the Program Coordinator, and will be granted on a case-by-case basis when the student's work demonstrably and substantially engages Digital Humanities-related content or research methods.

Enrolment Requirements:

This is a Type 1 Program. Enrolment is open to students who have completed 4.0 FCEs.

Completion Requirements:

This program requires the completion of four full credits (4 FCEs): 1.0 credit from group 1 (required introductory courses); 2.0 credits from group 2 (digital humanities and cross-listed courses); and 1.0 credit from group 3 (capstone experiences).

Students should note that some courses at the 200, 300, and 400 levels may have additional prerequisites.

Permission to count courses that are not on the list below towards the Minor in Digital Humanities must be received from the Program Coordinator, and will be granted on a case-by-case basis when the student's work demonstrably and substantially engages Digital Humanities-related content or research methods.

It is not possible to complete this program in one year.

1. 1.0 FCE at the 200 level, composed of the following two required introductory courses: WDW235H1, WDW236H1

2. 2.0 FCE to be chosen from the following courses, which include Digital Humanities courses offered by Woodsworth College and cross-listed courses offered by other departments:

- WDW335H1, WDW336H1, WDW337H1, WDW338H1
- Cross-Listed Courses:
Book and Media Studies: SMC228H1, SMC229H1, SMC255H1, SMC392H1
Cinema Studies: CIN260H1, CIN312Y1, CIN360H1
Computer Science: CSC104H1, CSC108H1, CSC300H1
English: ENG287H1
Geography: GGR271H1, GGR272H1, GGR273H1, GGR349H1, GGR452H1
History & Philosophy of Science & Technology: HPS202H1, HPS203H1
Medieval Studies: MST201H1, MST202H1
Music: MUS300H1

Religion: RLG233H1, RLG307H1, RLG308H1
 Urban Studies: INI235Y1, INI308H1, INI333H1

3. 1.0 FCE that provides a capstone experience, either 2 H courses or one Y course, chosen from the list below:

- a. WDW435H1, WDW436H1, WDW437H1
- b. Other fourth-year courses with a significant DH practicum element, such as CDN435Y1 (Active Citizenship), can also be considered for inclusion in the capstone experience, if students receive written permission of the Digital Humanities Program Coordinator within the first two weeks of enrollment in the course.

Woodsworth College Courses

Not all courses are offered every year. Please check the timetable for current course offerings and enrolment restrictions/conditions. Students without course prerequisites may be removed at any time they are discovered. Course descriptions, prerequisites, corequisites and exclusions are listed below.

Woodsworth One

WDW151H1 - Order and Disorder I: Issues and Perspectives

Hours: 16T/24S

Societies require law and order, but at what point does order become oppression? How do we balance our need for freedom and society's need for order? This interdisciplinary seminar allows students to explore these and related questions through selected readings introducing theories from sociology, political science, philosophy, and history. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: Admission to Woodsworth One
Exclusion: INI One, MUN One, NEW One, SMC One, TRN One, UNI One, VIC One
Distribution Requirements: Social Science
Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

WDW152H1 - Order and Disorder II: Problems and Solutions

Hours: 16T/24S

Building on the questions and theoretical perspectives discussed in WDW151H1, this interdisciplinary seminar introduces students to some of the methods used by scholars and researchers in sociology, political science, philosophy, and history to develop, test, and debate possible solutions to the problems of social order and disorder. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: WDW151H1 or permission of the Woodsworth One Program Coordinator
Exclusion: INI One, MUN One, NEW One, SMC One, TRN One, UNI One, VIC One
Distribution Requirements: Social Science
Breadth Requirements: Society and its Institutions (3)

WDW153H1 - Popular Culture Today I: Issues and Perspectives

Hours: 16T/24S

Popular culture, which might best be defined as culture about everyone, by everyone, and for everyone, is an increasingly important part of life. This interdisciplinary seminar examines from multiple perspectives its impact as art movement, agent of social change, and universal language of the digital age. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: Admission to the Woodsworth One Program.
Exclusion: INI One, MUN One, NEW One, SMC One, TRN One, UNI One, VIC One
Distribution Requirements: Humanities
Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

WDW154H1 - Popular Culture Today II: Special Topics

Hours: 16T/24S

20171 Topic: Protest and Popular Culture Building on the general introduction to the subject provided by WDW153H1, this interdisciplinary seminar examines one major area of popular culture in greater depth: popular music, genre fiction, online culture, etc. The focus will be different each year, and in some years more than one option may be available. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Prerequisite: WDW153H1 or permission of the Woodsworth One Program Coordinator

Exclusion: INI One, MUN One, NEW One, SMC One, TRN One, UNI One, VIC One

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

Study of Popular Culture

WDW241Y1 - Introduction to the Study of Popular Culture

Hours: 48L

An overview of the major theoretical perspectives on popular culture, focused on developing critical tools for analyzing and evaluating its major forms both as distinctive cultural artifacts and as social phenomena. Students will draw on their own experiences with popular culture while engaging with a wide range of critical sources.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1); Society and its Institutions (3)

Digital Humanities

WDW235H1 - Introduction to Digital Humanities

Hours: 24L/12P

Digital Humanities (DH) studies human culture -- art, literature, history, geography, religion -- using computational tools and methodologies, and at the same time studies digital technologies and communities through humanist lenses, as complex cultural objects shaped by wider social and political concerns and the ways we construct knowledge and meaning.

Prerequisite: 4 FCEs at the 100 level, at least 1 FCE of which must be in Humanities

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

WDW236H1 - Virtual Worlds: Introduction to Spatial Digital Humanities

Hours: 24L/12P

A Digital Humanities perspective on the virtual worlds in which we are increasingly immersed, from scholarly digital archives to video games. We study the theory and methods of geospatial humanities research and explore the technical and cultural implications of computer vision, augmented reality, the Internet of Things, and 3D printing.

Prerequisite: WDW235H1 or permission of the Program Coordinator

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

WDW335H1 - From Book to Map to Video Game: Texts and their Digital Transformations

Hours: 24L/12P

An examination of the new forms of storytelling made possible by digital media from two perspectives, that of the maker and that of the scholarly reader. Students learn to critically analyze storytelling in new media and experiment with their own adaptations of a literary text to various digital platforms.

Prerequisite: WDW235H1 and WDW236H1; open to students not taking the Digital Humanities Minor by permission of the program coordinator.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

WDW336H1 - Cultural Literacy in the Digital Age

Hours: 24L

This course examines two related debates about digital media in education: first, how best to integrate digital technology into learning (digital or computer literacy), and, secondly, what knowledge is required for full cultural participation (cultural literacy). We examine these issues using a range of academic, general interest and discipline-specific sources.

Prerequisite: WDW235H1 and WDW236H1; open to students not taking the Digital Humanities Minor by permission of the program coordinator.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Thought, Belief and Behaviour (2)

WDW337H1 - Historical Archives in the Digital Age

Hours: 24L/12P

How do digital surrogates of texts and objects change how we use them? This course examines texts and archives in the digital age: the aims of building them; the new scholarly approaches that they enable; the preservation, access, and equity questions that they raise and require us to answer responsibly.

Prerequisite: WDW235H1 and WDW236H1; open to students not taking the Digital Humanities Minor by permission of the program coordinator.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

WDW338H1 - Data: Access, Creation, Curation, and Interpretation

Hours: 24L/12P

A central challenge of digital humanities is the complexity of representing interpretive, narrative, and perspective-dependent humanities data through digital tools and environments. Topics include the history of “data” as term and concept; data standards, databases, and linked data; datasets, data curation and analytics, both qualitative and quantitative; and data visualization.

Prerequisite: WDW235H1 and WDW236H1; open to students not taking the Digital Humanities Minor by permission of the program coordinator.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

WDW435H1 - The Internet Archive

Hours: 24L/12P

Digital environments change how knowledge is created, communicated, and used. Using the Internet Archive as case study, this course examines the significance of such changes from a variety of perspectives: knowledge representation; technical infrastructure; gender, class, and race issues; disability rights; intellectual property questions; and algorithmic and interpretive scholarly approaches.

Prerequisite: WDW235H1 and WDW236H1 plus at least 1.0 additional FCE in the Digital Humanities Minor program; open to students not taking the Digital Humanities Minor by permission of the program coordinator.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

WDW436H1 - Topics in Digital Humanities

Hours: 24L/12P

This course serves as a capstone for the Digital Humanities Minor program. It includes opportunities for students to conduct original research. The topics for this course will vary from year to year.

Prerequisite: WDW235H1 and WDW236H1, plus at least 1.0 additional FCE in the Digital Humanities Minor program.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

WDW437H1 - Research Projects in Digital Humanities

Hours: TBA

This course is for students who wish to pursue a significant research project, usually participation in a faculty-led DH research project, though it may take other forms. Students must be enrolled in the DH Minor program or obtain special permission of the program coordinator.

Prerequisite: WDW235H1 and WDW236H1, plus at least 1.0 additional FCE in the Digital Humanities Minor program.

Distribution Requirements: Humanities

Breadth Requirements: Creative and Cultural Representations (1)

Other Woodsworth Courses

WDW295Y0 - Special Topics Abroad

Hours: 48L

Course description varies each year. Please see the Summer Abroad website for course details. Not eligible for CR/NCR.

Exclusion: RSM295Y0

WDW299Y1 - Research Opportunity Program

Hours: TBA

Credit course for supervised participation in faculty research project. Details at <http://www.artsci.utoronto.ca/current/course/rop>. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Distribution Requirements: Social Science

WDW399Y1 - Research Opportunity Program

Hours: TBA

Credit course for supervised participation in faculty research project. Details at <http://www.artsci.utoronto.ca/current/course/rop>. Not eligible for CR/NCR option.

Writing in the Faculty of Arts & Science

The ability to think critically and to write well-organized, clear, grammatical prose is important to your work in Arts and Science courses. It will also improve your chances if you apply to graduate or professional schools and will give you an advantage in the workplace. To help you develop your writing skills, Arts and Science provides a range of instructional resources.

NOTE: For courses in creative writing, see entries under “English” (ENG), “Innis College” (INI), and “Victoria” (VIC) in this Calendar.

Courses

Departments and programs integrate writing instruction into many of their courses, and some offer courses that concentrate on communication in their disciplines. Check the course listings by department.

Your course instructors and teaching assistants will provide guidelines for written assignments. They will often offer instruction in class and give you the opportunity to ask questions before assignments are due. You may ask them to discuss work that has been graded and returned to you.

In addition, the university offers several courses in writing effective essays:

- ENG100H1 (Effective Writing) is listed under “English” in this Calendar
- JEI206H1 (Writing English Essays) is listed under “English” and “Innis College”
- TRN190Y1 (Critical Reading and Critical Writing) is listed under “Trinity College”

Innis College offers a minor program called Writing and Rhetoric. It reflects the belief that strong skills in critical thinking and written communication are central to a liberal education. It is built on a foundation of long-standing Innis courses in academic and creative writing and on more recently mounted courses in professional writing, rhetoric, and media. Visit course listings under Innis College in this Calendar.

Victoria College offers a minor program called Creative Expression and Society. It has two components: (1) workshop-style courses allowing students to develop skills in creative expression and communication, and (2) courses encouraging students to analyze the relationship between creative arts and society. Visit course listings under Victoria College in this Calendar.

The University of Toronto at Mississauga (UTM) offers a major and minor program in Professional Writing and Communication. The University of Toronto at Scarborough (UTSC) offers a major and minor program in Creative Writing. Consult with your college registrar about taking courses at either campus, and see the UTM and UTSC calendars for more detail about courses offerings.

English Language Learning Opportunities

The English Language Learning \(ELL\) Program offers undergraduates in Arts and Science a variety of ways to develop both oral and written communication. For its intensive non-credit summer course, see the entry for ELL011H1F, Intensive Academic English, listed under “English Language Learning” in the calendar. During the fall and winter terms, programming includes free drop-in workshops using a variety of interesting activities to improve speaking, and also an online component for improving academic reading and writing.

Writing Centres

The writing centres at undergraduate colleges will help you develop the writing and critical thinking skills you need throughout your university studies. They offer, free of charge, both group and individual instruction.

Group instruction is offered through both in-course instruction and a series of workshops called Writing Plus. These intensive group workshops help prepare you to meet the expectations of university writing. They cover all stages of writing university papers, from understanding the assignment to revising the final draft. They also provide targeted advice for handling your reading load and the challenges of studying for tests and exams. Special sessions focus on writing admissions statements for graduate and professional programs. Dates and locations are listed online in the Writing Plus section of www.writing.utoronto.ca.

In individual consultations, trained writing instructors help you improve your ability to plan, write, and revise, focussing on course writing assignments of your choice. Instructors are familiar with writing conventions in the whole range of Arts and Science courses; many have specialized training in teaching students whose first language is not English. You are entitled to use the writing centre of the college where you are registered. Most colleges also allow students from other colleges to book appointments for writing assignments in a college program course. All the college writing centres use an online booking system that requires your UTORid for login. More information is available in the Writing Centres section of www.writing.utoronto.ca. Here is a list of Arts and Science writing centres.

- French Department Writing Labs: ask your professor or inquire at 416-926-2302
- Innis College Writing Centre, Rooms 315 and 322

- New College Writing Centre, Wilson Hall, Rooms 2045 and 2047
- Philosophy Department Writing Clinic, Jackman Humanities Building, Room 422.
- St. Michael's College Writing Centre, Kelly Library, Learning Commons
- Trinity College Writing Centre, Larkin Building, Room 302
- University College Writing Centre, Laidlaw Library, Rooms 214, 216, and 218
- Victoria College Writing Centre, Northrop Frye Hall, Rooms 103A and 103B
- Woodsworth College Academic Writing Centre, Room 214

Writing Resources

Campus libraries stock many reference guides for academic writing, some of them online. You will find both general handbooks on style and referencing, and guides on writing in specific disciplines. You can also consult the Advice section of the website Writing at the University of Toronto at www.writing.utoronto.ca. It contains short files addressing common issues in academic writing along with links to other useful online and print resources.
